How Bad Backs Have Been Made Strong—Kidney Pills Corrected

All over Charlevoix you hear it. Doan's Kidney Pills are keeping up the good work. Charlevoix people are telling about it—telling of bad backs made sound again. You can believe the testimony of your own townspeople. They tell it for the benefit of you who are suffering. If your back aches, if you feel lame, snore and miserable, if the kidneys act too frequently, or passages are painful, scanty and off color, use Doan's Kidney Pills, the remedy that has helped so many of your friends and neighbors. Ask your neighbor. Follow this Charlevoix citizen's advice and give Doan's a chance to do the same for you.

H. R. Fox, carpenter, 205 Park Ave., says: "Sometimes when I catch cold or do too much stooping my kidneys get out of order and my back becomes lame. Whenever I get these attacks, I feel all tired out. A few of Doan's Kidney Pills, however, soon straighten me up in A-1 shape. All kidney sufferers should use Doan's."

Get it at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mr. Fox had. Foster-Milburn Co., Mfrs., Buffalo, N. Y.

Reserves vs. Current Demands

The calling rate at the telephone switchboard is enormous these days and the telephone companies everywhere are pressed for facilities to meet the ever-increasing demand for, and use of, the service.

In Michigan the customary construction program, that is, customary under pre-war conditions, was abandoned during active hostilities in order that the Bell System might devote all of its energy, all of its ingenuity and thousands of its trained assistants to the winning of the war.

The result is that the demand for facilities has overtaken the supply and today the Michigan State Telephone Company finds itself living from hand to mouth, so to speak, in the matter of facilities.

It is difficult to build up reserve facilities and at the same time meet current demands. The unavoidable delays in construction work have been discouraging, at times, both for the Telephone Company and the public. But the turn in the road seems now in sight and the management feels confident that, shortly, the Company will be prepared to respond to all demands for service.

INTERESTING BITS OF INFORMATION CLIPPED FROM OUR EXCHANGES

The tax rolls of the city of Traverse City and the townships of Grand Traverse county will stand just as they were before the fall session of the board of supervisors, and before the equalization committee completed its work. This means that the sum of approximately $177,000, placed on the city by the committee on equalization, will be removed, and spread, largely, on the townships, from where this amount was taken.

This, in substance, was the decision of the state tax commission, two members of which were in Traverse City to adjust the differences between the city and township supervisors.

When the supervisors made up their lists prior to the fall session, they did it, in the judgment of the tax commission, in all sincerity, and with every degree of honesty. When the equalization committee met, some of the townships were pared and the sum thus removed was placed on the city under the protest of city supervisors, who immediately filed objection with the state tax commission.

Wexford county voted to bond for $200,000 for good roads at a special election recently by a majority of about 1,000 votes out of a total vote of less than 2,000. The county will next year construct the sixteen miles of unimproved state trunk line and build about thirty miles of county trunk line. The Mackinaw Trail will be completed early in the spring.

Who won the war? Answer, the Smiths, Johnsons and Greens.

The records show that in the American Expeditionary force there were 51,000 Smiths, 39,000 Johnsons, 22,500 Joneses, 22,000 Greens, 10,500 Sullivans, 9,000 Browns, and 4,500 Cohens. There were 74 George Washingtons, 79 Robert E. Lees, 2 U. S. Grants, 2 Abraham Lincolns and 12 Caesars.

The man who led alphabetically was Edwin B. Aa, ac, closely followed by Bartholet O. Aabel. Then after a lapse of a couple of million names to Stanislaw Zyzniewski, who is just crowded out of last place by Alfred A. Zzeppenfeldt.

Sergt. A. H. Johnson of the Grand Rapids army recruiting station has the distinction of enlisting Stanislaw Zyzniewski, the next to the last in alphabetical order, while on duty in Lansing, July 18, 1918. Zyzniewski was a member of the Polish legion in Lansing and resided there.

The board of supervisors of Kalkaska county has offered a standing reward of $10 for information leading to the arrest and conviction of any person who kills a ringneck pheasant. The pheasants have been extensively planted in this county and are deadly enemies of the grasshopper, a pest that the farmers are fighting with every weapon.

The annual meeting of the board of directors of the Emmet County Agricultural society was held at the City Hall in Petoskey December 2, and Homer Perry, Harbor Springs, elected president of the society for 1920. Mr. Perry has long been a director in the society and it is believed he will prove a wide-awake, hustling president.

Other officers named were: L. L. Thomas, Petoskey, secretary, and Elliott Maxwell, Epsilon, treasurer. Annual reports were made by the secretary and treasurer.

The board fixed the dates of the 1920 fair as September 7, 8, 9 and 10. The board believes that with these dates the fair will secure the patronage of thousands of summer visitors who are in Northern Michigan and that stock and crops will be in good shape for the fair.

THE BOLSHEVIST MUST GO

Bolshevism is doomed. Let those who still tremble at this made-in-Russia nightmare scan the list of great organizations, guardians of national peace and tranquility, now lined up in solid phalanx to combat this enemy within our gates. Bolshevism and all its ill-begotten offspring are to be smashed, squelched and squashed.

The church, the Epworth League, the Young People's Guilds, the Y. M. C. A., the Knights of Columbus, the W. C. T. U., the American Legion, the Department of Justice, police authorities, the 1,000 or more nameless and unnamed local societies for the prevention of this, that, or the other—all of these groups have registered an oath that bolshevism rampant must ramp itself out beyond the ports of this our country.

All told this army now numbers at least 75,000,000 adults, to say nothing of millions of children, lawyers, professors and moving picture actresses who are entitled to exemption. It is impossible to get exact figures on the Bolshevik Army of the United States due to the fact that from day to day so many of these soldiers of misfortune are jailed only to be let out the next day. Sometimes at theater parties or at dances whole regiments of them are captured. It is within reason, however, to estimate the strength of this army at anywhere from 600 to 60,000.

Naturally the conflict will be brief and the victory decisive. A round of lectures delivered in foreign accent, a splatter of pamphlets fired from ambush by the bolsheviks, an answering shot or two by a political stump speaker, a few long-range sermons carefully selected for their deadening effect, then a cordon of police to gather in the struggling victims and conduct them to the hospital jails, the victory is ours.

Whereupon all good citizens in great relief retire to their homes, stopping on the way long enough to pay $3 for a pair of baby shoes worth 75c, and to surrender a dollar for a ten cent piece of cotton simply because it is called a tie. Arriving at their home they work the car into the garage, by ingenious locks securing both car and garage from auto bandits native born. Then sidling into their $125 a month four-room super-frigid apartment, after an inventory of the cut glass and bric-a-brac to make sure that no citizen burglar has made away with it, they lock and bolt the door and lie down to dream of their victory over the Bolsheviks. And once more law and order have been upheld. — Detroit News.

WHAT WAR COSTS

Those who prefer to measure the cost of wars by the expenditure of cash and the value of property destroyed will be interested in the report of the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace, just issued, which places the world aggregate at $337,000,000,000.

Few will be stunned by the brutality of the figures, which show that the economic loss by the killing of 9,998,771 men was the largest single cost item of the war—$33,551,276,250. This total is arrived at through the accepted standards of the value of human life in the various countries contributing to this sickening death toll. The loss on land property was the next item in point of size and importance, reaching a total of $29,960,000,000, while after all that was said of the enormous losses on shipping, the value of property destroyed at sea was the lowest of the three main items, amounting to $6,800,000,000.

It may be surprising also to some that the country which suffered the most severely in the loss of human life was Russia, which has 4,000,000 killed, credited with an economic value of $8,000,000,000. Germany was second and France third.

VOTED FOR AMERICANISM

Senator Newberry and 134 other Michigan citizens have been indicted by the grand jury at Grand Rapids on charges of fraud, corruption and conspiracy in connection with the senator's election.

It is for the courts to decide the truth or falsity of these accusations and whether or not any political animus enters into them.

The fact remains, however, that many thousands of Michigan voters honestly voted for Newberry. They were not corrupted nor guilty of any wrong doing. They voted for Newberry solely because their better judgment guided them, and that only. They supported Newberry because they believed him to be a better American, better fitted and one who could be depended upon to uphold American principles and institutions in any crisis.

If the senatorship again comes to an issue we believe that these voters will again assert themselves and that Ford will have no better chance of election than he had before.—Calumet News.

What Makes Them Lay

It's the nourishment a hen receives that makes her lay. She cannot lay a single egg more than the nourishment she receives will permit. Therefore the better adapted the feed is to the hen's egg-making requirements—the more eggs.

Miss Minnie Payton, librarian of the Charlevoix Public Library, who has been forced to leave her work for the past few weeks by illness, has again partially resumed her duties and has charge of the library in the afternoons.

Tuesday and Wednesday's snow and wind storm was of the real winter variety and brought the minds of our citizens more forcibly to the condition of their coal bins and coal shortage. It certainly looks as if winter had come to stay and the old settlers' predictions of an open winter is all bunk.

City Attorney A. L. Fitch lost the end of one of his fingers Sunday, a painful accident which will cause him some inconvenience. We were told the accident occurred while he was relating how he shot a doe on his recent hunting trip, but have learned later that it was caused by getting it caught in the door of his automobile.

BRANCH OFFICE OPEN AT PETOSKEY

Autoists Should Have No Trouble in Obtaining License Plates

Michigan automobile license plates for 1920 went on sale at the office of County Clerk Madlem last week says the Petoskey Evening News.

Mr. Madlem has sufficient plates to satisfy the demand from this district and any Michigan motorist can obtain plates by applying at the office at the city hall.

Coleman C. Vaughan, secretary of state, has designated Petoskey as one of the branch offices for the distribution of licenses to relieve the congestion at Lansing.

Motorists of Petoskey and the surrounding district are urged to get their plates in Petoskey. Several of these have been opened in various parts of the state and the new plan is expected to do away with the usual excuse in the early months of the year that the Lansing office has not sent the new plates.

With an office right in Petoskey for getting plates, local police see no reason why every motorist here should not have his plates promptly and no doubt the law will be more strictly enforced in all parts of the state as a result. That feature of the matter was as much of a consideration in opening the branch offices as was the convenience of the buyers, since the branches make an additional expense to the state and considerable bother for the local agencies handling the matter.

BEE KEEPERS TO HOLD SCHOOL

Meeting to be Held at Boyne City December 18 and 19

MAPLE GROVE SCHOOL NOTES
Dick Cook visited school Tuesday. The children all were very glad to have him come again.

Maple Grove school is having hot lunches and postum for dinner, also baked potatoes and soup.

Forest Minier is leaving school Friday to accompany his parents to Colorado. A surprise party and pot luck dinner was held for him and every one had a good time.

The regular attendance roll and cleanliness roll was 100 per cent this week.

COUNTY NORMAL NOTES

Miss Stewart was a caller in the normal and training rooms last week.

For Monday morning exercises during the month of December, Miss Bates is giving us talks on the "Madonnas" and upon the artists who painted them.

Miss Preston, the traveling state librarian for county normals, gave talks to the normal class on library books and methods for rural schools Wednesday, Thursday and Friday of this week.

Eastern "Mad-Stones."

In eastern countries rabies is treated by the "tsbasheer," or some other form of what are indifferently called "snake stones," or "madstones," and which are believed to be a specific for all forms of poisonous bites or wounds. "Tubasheer" is a porous, stony accretion found in the stalks of bamboo. It was used in Persia so long ago as the tenth century, and is carefully described by the French traveler Tavernier, who visited India in the seventeenth century.

Rights of Others Sacred.

Our own rights we may often be at liberty to waive. The rights of others are another matter. As far as they are in our keeping, we are bound to protect. We may not be generous with other people's property.

United States' Right in Panama.

The United States did not acquire by the Isthmian canal convention of November 18, 1903, any title to territory in the republic of Panama, but merely a perpetual right of occupation, use and control of and over a zone of land ten miles in width. For this privilege it paid to the republic of Panama the sum of $10,000,000 and undertook to pay the sum of $250,000 annually so long as such occupancy continued. Such payments began on February 28, 1913.

URIC ACID IN MEAT CLOGS THE KIDNEYS

Take a glass of Salts if your Back hurts or Bladder bothers you—Drink more water.

If you must have your meat every day, eat it, but flush your kidneys with salts occasionally, says a noted authority who tells us that meat forms uric acid which almost paralyzes the kidneys in their efforts to expel it from the blood. They become sluggish and weaken, then you suffer with a dull misery in the kidney region, sharp pains in the back or sick headache, dizziness, your stomach sour, tongue is coated and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine gets cloudy, full of sediment, the channels often get sore and irritated, obliging you to seek relief two or three times during the night.

To neutralize these irritating acids, cleanse the kidneys and flush off the body's urinous waste get four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy here; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. The famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate sluggish kidneys, also to neutralize the acids in urine so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot injure, and makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink.

We want every woman in Charlevoix to see our line of all-wool sweaters. They are bargains and just what you have been looking for. Benj. Brown. Adv48tf

COASTING DANGEROUS PLEASURE

SHOULD BE PROHIBITED ON MAIN STREETS

May Result in Death or Serious Injury to Coaster or Pedestrian—One Accident

Much has been said during the past against the habit of the little folks in coasting from the corner by the hardware down to and often across the railroad tracks, and the main reason for changing the school site two years ago was to stop this practice, but so far this winter more coasting has been done in this dangerous locality than at any time in years.

The railroad crossing at the foot of the hill is so walled in by Klooster's store on the north and the farmer's warehouse on the south that a train is almost at the crossing before it can be seen, and some day when train and coasting party arrive at the same time and a few mangled little bodies are carried home, perhaps the people will realize too late that something should be done to discontinue coasting at this particular spot.

Then on the other hand, the danger is not all to those on the sled, as danger of frightened runaway teams are more than doubled by the speeding sleds and as is often the case where the coasting is done on the side walks, the walks become so slippery that a person may easily fall and suffer serious injury.

There is in town at present one little fellow who will not have to be cautioned again this year as he received his lesson last Saturday morning. That one is Arthur, the eight-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Elzinga. This was caused by his losing control of his sled which carried him beneath the feet of a team hitched at Klooster's store. The team became frightened and in their efforts to break loose and run, the sled was stamped to pieces and the boy luckily succeeded in rolling and crawling out of the horses' way, slightly bruised and badly frightened. Accidents occur at railroad crossings every day and you parents who do not want your child killed or crippled should think it over.

NORWOOD

George Lord is visiting relatives in Grand Rapids.

Mr. Baumbach finished baling hay in this locality Tuesday noon.

Henry Jennott has begun moving into his new home in Norwood.

Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Wagner are now at home to their friends at the Cowan cottage.

Mrs. F. E. Richardson has been confined to the house with a severe cold but is able to be out again.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Supernaw are spending the winter in Florida with their daughter, Mrs. French, of East Jordan.

We understand our Antrim City correspondent is a bride of a week. We hereby offer our best wishes for the happiness and prosperity of these young people.

A number of the friends of Mrs. Chas. Greeley gave a birthday surprise in her honor at her home last Thursday evening. A very enjoyable evening was spent with games, music and a pot luck supper.

First Great Lithuanian Poet.
Christinn Donelaitis was the first major poet among the Lithuanians. "Sensons of the Year," written in hexameter, is the most highly prized of all his works. In 1808 the Russian Imperial academy published his complete works at its own expense. During the present war George Baltrushaitis, the Lithuanian poet, and Vlacheslav Ivanov, the Russian poet, collaborated in bringing out a Russian translation, also in hexameter, of "The Joys of Spring."

Chromatic Scales.
There are two forms of chromatic scale. The harmonic chromatic and the melodic form as well. The difference is purely theoretical. They are both played in the same way. It is a question of notation. One calls a note D flat and the other C sharp.

"FLU" KILLED 6,900
IN MICHIGANTotal Deaths During 1918—October Leads Other Months

Influenza was responsible for 6,900 deaths in Michigan during the year 1918, 6,520 of which occurred during the months of October, November and December.

The greatest number occurred during the month of October, 2,462. November shows a decrease of 542 deaths. December shows an increase over November, but 324 less than for the month of October. January, 1919 shows 1,366 deaths and February 601 deaths.

By sexes there were 3,706 deaths of males and 3,194 deaths of females.

The table of deaths by ages and sex shows that the greatest fatality occurred in the age period 29-25 years, 1,220; 647 deaths of males and 573 deaths of females.

The figures quoted should not be accepted as conclusive of the actual number of deaths from influenza, as further investigation of deaths reported to the Department as from "Pneumonia," with "Influenza" as a complication, should in reality have been reported as "Lobar Pneumonia" instead of plain "Pneumonia." In such instances the cause of death should be ascribed to "Lobar Pneumonia," and not to "Influenza."

The same is true with deaths reported simply from "Pneumonia." In many instances the physicians neglected to enter the complication, and while the death was really caused from "Influenza," the record shows that "Pneumonia" was the cause.

For all intents and purposes, however, the figures may be accepted as fairly conclusive.

Wheels of Justice Still Grinding Out Verdicts

As we went to press last week the trial of the People vs. Francis Norton was in progress. Norton is the Beaver Islander, who attempted to carve up a man while filled up with home made booze. He was sent home under suspended sentence and his trial will be resumed at the next term of court.

In the case of the People vs. Lillian Mehegan, charged with larceny, she was found not guilty and acquitted.

No cause of action was found in the case of Edw. Ostrowski, by Tony Ostrowski, his next friend, vs. Robert Jenks. This was a Boyne City case where a young lad was run over by a bicycle.

For the last two days the attention of the court has been given to the hearing of the case of Peter Smith vs. H. S. Harsha. As we go to press the judge is charging the jury.

CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH

Third in the series of "Conscience Calls" the minister will speak at the morning service at 10:30 a. m., December 14th, from "The Call of the Individual." Have you no other church home? Join us in the joy of our fellowship and service. A cordial welcome awaits you.

At 6:00 p. m. the young people's society will meet in the church parlors. The minister will continue the reading of "Justice."

The stereopticon lecture "will be precluded by Mrs. Madeline LaLonde, who will preside at the organ from 7:00 to 7:30. At that time the minister will lecture on a theme of general interest (subject to be announced later). It will be a mighty pleasant way to spend a Sunday evening. Have you tried it?

The Cecilians will note the change in their hour of rehearsal from Wednesday evening to Thursday evening at 7:00 p. m. They are helping "do their bit" in coal conservation.

The mid-week meeting, and class in religious education will meet at 8 p. m. on Thursday evening, thus giving the Cecilians an extra half hour of rehearsal. The general topic for this week will be "John, and his Influence."

On Tuesday, December 9th, Mesdames Crouter, Campbell, Tomerson and Nicholls entertained most pleasantly at the home of Mrs. Nicholls, Dixon avenue, tea being served from 2:30 to 5:30 for the benefit of Circle No. 1.

The Young People's society gave a very successful ten cent social in the church parlors on Tuesday evening last.

The Woman's Missionary society will be held on the third Friday as usual and not next Friday, as scheduled on the program.

The teachers and officers, assisted by the ladies of the church, will entertain the childre of the primary department of the Sunday school with a dinner at 6:00 p. m. Monday evening, December 15th, in the church parlors. The mothers are invited to be present at seven o'clock to view a stereopticon lecture given by the minister.

Hearty acknowledgement should be made to the ladies of the church for the splendid dinner served by them on Tuesday evening, December 2nd.

The Every Member Canvass held on Sunday, December 7th, met with a most gratifying response, and thanks are due all who so generously responded.

MANY FINE CHRISTMAS PURCHASES

HOLIDAY SUPPLIES SUPERIOR TO FORMER YEARS

Customers Asked to Buy Their Holiday Supplies Early—Convenience to Themselves and Dealers

Unless appearances are deceiving one wishing to purchase Christmas gifts for their loved ones and friends should have no difficulty in supplying their wants in Charlevoix.

The display windows of the local business houses have taken on a strictly "Yuletide" appearance and fine window arrangements are evident everywhere. Everything from 3 in 1 oil for the squeak in grandfather's easy chair to a beautiful victrola for the lively young daughter is on show for the gift hunters.

If there is something that you desire to get and are not exactly certain of exactly the right place to find it, just read the advertisements and use them as your guide. They will take you to the places that have for sale the different things you want and by reading these advertisements before starting out you can have determined what you want before reaching the stores, thus saving much time during the bustle of holiday shopping.

Our merchants have a fine line of Christmas supplies this year and they are disposing of them at terms that are very reasonable during this period of high prices. Let them provide the various gifts that are to make the family and friends happy. They will help you to decide if you are in doubt of what to get.

One thing this year is most noticeable in the line of Christmas goods, and that is while the assortment is greater than ever, particularly in toys and other articles for the youngsters, there is a noticeable lack of goods labeled, "Made in Germany," as in previous years. In other words those who purchase Christmas goods this year are practically certain that the products are American made.

While the merchants are doing everything to make Christmas shopping a matter of far less trouble than ever before they are urging their patrons to shop early, to shop immediately, as it is now only six days until Christmas. This will insure less trouble in being waited upon in the stores and will be far less trying for the customer and for the clerks. Not only that, but it will enable a better selection, as the stocks are hardly touched as yet by the eager hands of the Christmas shoppers.

Hammond Friends Relish Results of Hunting Trip

Mr. and Mrs. O. D. Hammond entertained seven ladies and their husbands to a six o'clock venison dinner last Thursday evening.

Miss Doris Hammond, little daughter of the host and hostess, received many compliments on the unique table decorations originated by her. The center piece represented a hunting scene, consisting of several trees, a small deer, a log cabin, also a hunter with a gun in his hands. Tufts of batting were used as snow. Little guns cut out and colored were used as place cards.

During the evening five hundred was played and the prizes were given the following: First prize, Mrs. Art Alcox and L. J. McCann; booby prize, Mrs. Webster and Art Alcox.

FIRST VISIT HERE IN OVER 22 YEARS

C. P. Kendall of Bridgewater, Mass., Visits Mother

C. P. Kendall, son of Mrs. J. J. Howe, who lives south of Charlevoix on the Norwood road, made a flying trip here last week for a short visit with his mother.

This was Mr. Kendall's first visit to Charlevoix for twenty-two years. He expected to arrive here in time to eat Thanksgiving dinner with his mother, but was delayed on account of trains being late and missing connections.

He left the following day for Chicago, to visit his three sisters before his return to his home in Bridgewater, Mass.

SEVERE STORM HITS MICHIGAN

COLDEST WEATHER FOR SOME TIME

Round Lake Frozen Earliest Date in Number of Years—Train Schedule Bothered by Snow

Back in those balmy months of the summer and fall many of our state philosophers filled their pipes, leaned back in their easy chairs and prophesied as to the kind of winter we were due for this year.

Many times we heard the story of the open winter that was to come and how we might, if everything went all right, be picking daisies on the hillside around Christmas.

As we look out of the windows at the present time, we cannot help but realize how true to life all of the predictions were.

Michigan and Charlevoix are experiencing one of the earliest and most severe winters in years—a good many years in fact. Count back and see how many years ago it was that Round lake was frozen nearly completely over at this early date.

The storm that has been sweeping the state since Saturday is one of the severest ever experienced. The Pere Marquette railroad has been hard hit and is having a great deal of trouble in keeping the line open and trains are hours late. The Pere Marquette men say "We are thankful, however, that the storm did not hit earlier, as it might have caught us without coal."

The thermometer was below zero Sunday night and hovered close to that mark all day Monday and Tuesday. Snow shovels have received practice that they never got before at this time of the year. Whether or not the fruit trees and crops of this section will be injured has not yet been determined, but it is hoped that due to the fairly heavy snow fall these plants and trees will be protected and not suffer from the cold.

The fact that the coal-strike has been called off has relieved a great many minds during this cold wave and has released a great deal of fuel that otherwise would have been held and would have caused a great deal of suffering from cold throughout the poorer class of people of the country, who were not supplied with fuel. The end of the strike has, however, released the coal that has been held and prospects now are there will be enough for all who need it.

PROMINENT CHARLEVOIX COUPLE

Married at Home of Bride's Parents Wednesday

A very pretty wedding took place last Wednesday night in which two prominent Charlevoix young people, Miss Rena Cram and Arthur Edwards, were united in marriage at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Brown, on the Stover road.

Mrs. Edwards is a graduate of the Charlevoix high school and also of the Charlevoix county normal, and is well known in the vicinity of Charlevoix.

Mr. Edwards is also a graduate of this high school, and has spent most of his life here. He served two years in the United States Navy as a radio operator.

The home of the bride was decorated in green and white, becoming to the season of the year. Mr. Edward Edwards, brother of the groom, acted as best man and Miss Helena Bates as bride's maid. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Henry Candler, after which a bountiful supper was served, at which the bride received a number of beautiful presents.

After a short wedding trip Mr. and Mrs. Edwards will be at home to their many friends in their new home near the Belvedere resort.

At the Movies

No photoplay has yet been produced so filled with adventure and thrills as "Mickey." The novelty and intensity of the thrills are indeed remarkable.

There is thrill upon thrill and each thrill in these suspense exciting incidents is just a little better than the last, until at their climax the audience is fairly brought to its feet out of sheer enthusiasm and excitement. "Mickey" will spend Christmas in Charlevoix, and you will find her at the Palace Theatre both in the afternoon and again in the evening.

Be sure and see her.

L. Whitney Watkins, of Jackson, is considered to be in the lead for the support of the farmers' clubs who will be united on some one candidate. Mr. Watkins was twice a

NEWBERRY SEAT NOT FOR FORD

MAY THROW ELECTION OUT ON FRAUD

Washington Believes New Contest Will Be Held if Former One Is Thrown Out

Henry Ford's chances of being seated in the senate even should Truman H. Newberry, now holding the place, be convicted of the charges of fraud and corruption, appear to be remote, according to cloakroom opinions here, says a Washington dispatch.

It was believed the approaching senate investigation will result in ordering a new election in case irregularities are discovered.

Newberry's case is the first to come up since direct election of senators by popular vote began and the senate is somewhat confused in appearance.

Old King Coal

The opening pages of the report by the Secretary of the Interior for 1919 suggest the thought that there should be a Department of Editors, in the Government — not of the Creel variety, but with Franklin K. Lane as chief of staff. For Mr. Lane's report reads like a Saturday Evening Post story, or a "good book." It is said that the man who can inject punch into the relating of facts has reached the goal which assures him an audience of readers. In this respect Secretary Lane proves a great success. The report opens with timely references that are down to the minute. There is no last spring or last year considered in retrospect, but the eternal. Now stands out with all the brilliancy of a Christmas necktie, demanding contemplation. Coal, electricity and petroleum as the three sources of light, heat and power, put their appearance in the third line of Secretary Lane's report. He voices the opinion that "the coal strike has brought concretely before us the disturbing fact that modern society is so involved that we virtually live by unanimous consent." This is an epigram worthy of an Emerson, or a Lane. It is supported by proofs. Says Mr. Lane:

"Let less than one-half of one per cent of our population quit their work of digging coal and we are threatened with the combined horrors of pestilence and famine. There was an immediate demand for facts. How much coal is normally mined in this country? By whom is it mined? What is its quality? To what use is it put? Who gets it? How much less could be mined if coal were conserved instead of wasted? What better methods have been developed for using coal than those of ancient custom? Who is to blame that so small a supply is on the surface? Why should we live from day to day in dread of so vital a matter as a fuel supply? What substitutes can be found for coal and how quickly can these be made available?"

People who want to get beneath the surface of things in their study of the coal situation will find, in the above category the questions which have been put up to the Department of the Interior, a basis for their study.

Mr. Lane says that 46 per cent of all the coal that is taken from the ground is mined in the United States. He also informs us that in less than one hundred years we have grown in production from 100,000 tons to 700,000,000 tons per annum; and "that if last year's coal were used as construction material it would build a wall as huge as the Great Wall of China around every boundary of the United States from Maine to Vancouver, down the Pacific to San Diego and eastward following the Mexican border to the coast of Maine again; and this same coal contains latent power sufficient to lift this same wall 200 miles high in the air."

Later on in his report Secretary Lane comments: "Indeed I feel justified in saying that the problem of this strike is not to be solved in the deeper significance until we know much more about coal than we do now, and this especially of the manner in which it is taken from its bed and brought to our cellars." To this philosophy he adds, that it is no wonder "that we are rudely disturbed when one link in the carrier chain from coal-in-place to coal-in-the-furnace breaks."

The miner and his work, and the processes of the operators are discussed, in their larger aspect bearing upon coal as a commodity and as an industry. Mr. Lane believes that the Government should sample and certify coal, as is already done with wheat and meat.

"White Coal"

In considering the question of economy in reference to coal Secretary Lane's report speaks of the dream of our engineers who would tie together the separated power plants so that one could give aid to the other, and by using the mine as one might use a waterfall, or by the development of great hydro-electric plants on the many streams from the Androscoggin to the James, there could be insured without the great present day waste of transportation, the operation of street lights, street cars, elevators, and essential industries in the face of railroad delinquencies. He refers to France: "White coal" they call it in that imaginative land. It is "this tumbling water which is converted into so many forms, and a much cleaner, handier kind of coal it is than its black brother."

Hydro-electric systems, which will in a large manner meet our industrial and economic needs, remain among the achievements yet to be achieved. And the reason for this is found very largely in the inaction of Congress, which year after year has hesitated, flustered and delayed in the passing of laws intended to bring the water powers into use and pave the way for "white coal."

The promise is good that Congress will fulfill the vision of Mr. Lane who says "that a conservation which results in a stalemate as between the forces of progress and governmental inertia is criminal," but that "a conservation that is based on the fuller, the more essential use of a resource is statesmanship."

Mr. Plumb's Struggle With Facts. Reports of the recent tour by Mr. Plumb show that during his trip in the Mississippi Valley he made statements singularly in conflict with previous declarations.

The originator of the railroad employees' control plan, backed by several of the railroad brotherhoods, had hitherto laid great stress on the fact that the railroad securities in the hands of the owners were to be purchased by the issuance of Government bonds "on which the Government would pay only 4 per cent interest." It has been declared that this would mean a considerable saving in the interest charges.

At St. Joseph, Missouri, however, Mr. Plumb said that the bonds should bear "such rates of interest as will procure their acceptance at par." U. S. Government bonds paying four and one-fourth per cent are now selling in the neighborhood of 93. French Municipal bonds, regarded as among the safest of investments, are offered at a price which returns 6.8 per cent on every dollar invested. It, therefore, becomes apparent that the government would have to pay far more than 4 per cent, and eliminate the saving which the Plumb orators have been promising. Current return on all railroad securities is only 5.22 per cent, of which a considerable part is promptly turned back into property, not distributed as dividends or interest.

In speaking at the St. Louis City Club a little later, Mr. Plumb mentioned injury to railway securities which had "left a trail of weeping widows and orphans from one end of the country to the other." The special interest is not so much in the causes he attributes as in the fact that he had always previously denied the existence of any considerable number of widows and orphans at all concerned about railway securities, despite published figures that in one railroad alone there are over 5,000 women stockholders.

The most extraordinary of his statements was probably made in the St. Louis address, in which he declared that $8,000,000,000 of the $20,000,000,000 valuation which he said the railroads were claiming (capitalization is only about $18,000,000,000) could be wiped off the list as land value, and in addition to this, 6 billion dollars more. This leaves 6 billion dollars as Mr. Plumb's estimate of the proper capitalization of the railroads of the country. Since 1907 all railroad (Continued on Page three)

ROAD BUMPS LOSE JAZZ TIME WALLOP

NEW TYPE SPRINGS WORK LIKE CIRCUS RIDERS' LEGS

Ruts and Chuckholes Can't Do a Ragtime Syncopation on Passengers' Spines Anymore

When a ship pitches and rolls in the trough of a heavy sea, why doesn't the sailor fall overboard? How does he balance himself?

You've seen the daring bareback trick riders at the circus? You know what a thrill they give as they race around the track, standing legs apart, a foot on the back of each horse. How do they keep their bodies in balance and at ease as the horses rise and fall in the plunge of their mad gallop?

When you've found the answer you've guessed a good part of the reason why the new three-point suspension springs on Overland 4, the new light car recently announced, act the way they do on the roughest, bumpiest roads on which they have been demonstrated in this city.

An engineering explanation of the why and wherefore of the springs takes in much of interest about the principle of the lever and much more of instruction about distribution of thrusts, the force of blows and the like. Then you learn that in some magical, mathematical way this new type of springs has done the same work for the bumps in the road that the music master does for the notes in the scale.

In the novice's hands, these notes may run into a choppy discord, bumping the senses unpleasantly. The master provides harmony from the same notes and the result is pleasing and comfortable to the ear. The master engineers who designed Overland 4 have done something of the same sort of work through Overland 4's springs. They have found a way to harmonize the bumps in the road; synchronized them, is the engineering phrase. And the result is an apparent floating over rutties, bumpiest highways in smooth, rhythmic travel, rather than in the rag-time jerks of ordinary riding.

There has been so much popular and scientific interest in the new springs that E. H. Belden, vice president in charge of engineering for the Willys-Overland Company has been asked to explain why these springs give the entirely new sensation over bad roads.

"To begin with," Mr. Belden says, "the new spring suspension has turned out exactly as we would like to have it. The new design has aroused the interest of the Society of Automotive Engineers, and all other high grade automobile engineers, as a new standard spring suspension."

"In Overland 4, the springs sweep in a diagonal from a point on the chassis frame fifteen inches beyond the axle at front and rear. The effect is that of four light, flexible levers carrying passenger load on an even keel while lifting the road wheels over rocks and bumps without disagreeably jouncing the passengers."

"No illustration is so apt, perhaps, as that of the circus performer or the rider in the old Olympic games. He urges his horses forward in a wild gallop. He has a foot on the back of each of his two horses. He must maintain balance and equilibrium. And he does. His legs come up and go down with each plunge of the horses beneath but his body remains steady."

"The springs on Overland 4 act like the legs of this circus rider. The body of the car and passengers remain on an even keel while the springs allow the wheels to lift and lower rapidly and easily over the bumps and the ridges and the thank-you-ma'ams of the roadway. The blow of the bump on the road has at last been taken away from the spine of the passenger."

"It is because of this flexible lever action that we have found that Overland 4's springs automatically eliminate bobbing. Fully to describe the total effect of the springs a new word has been added to the automobile to describe this car's spring suspension. That new word is 'spring-base'."

"In the ordinary car, wheelbase has denoted also the center of thrust or load suspended on the springs. Not so in Overland 4. The springs meet the chassis fifteen inches beyond the axles. That gives us spring-base, 30 inches longer than wheelbase. There you have all the effect of large car wheelbase of 130 inches but in securing that, we have actually improved upon the established economy advantages of the short 100-inch wheelbase."

THE NATIONAL CAPITAL
By J. E. Jones

capitalization has been under the supervision of the Interstate Commerce Commission, and has amounted to approximately 5 billion dollars. So Mr. Plumb's extraordinary figures mean that he believes that 230,000 miles of track which were built prior to 1907, together with all the bridges, terminals, telegraph lines, locomotives, cars and materials are worth only 1 billion dollars. This is a capitalization of about $4,300 a mile. As Canada's roads cost $60,000 a mile, and the Government-owned railroads of Prussia $110,000 a mile, it is apparent that Mr. Plumb is talking plain nonsense. Three St. Louis papers take sharp issue with Mr. Plumb's speech in that city in which he declared that the Frisco Railroad was capitalized for $800,000,000, although its real valuation was $150,000,000. The valuation of the road is more than twice Mr. Plumb's wild estimate, being $358,000,000, and the total of capital stock and bonds is $328,000,000, or considerably less than half of Mr. Plumb's guess. The capitalization also is thus well under the book valuation. Facts do not seem to handicap Mr. Plumb and his friends.

WHERE and WHAT to BUY

Our Jewelry and Silverware Make Reliable Christmas Gifts

When you buy Jewelry or Silverware you want to know that it is reliable. The way to know this is to come to the jeweler who has a reputation for fair dealing.

We refer those who have not bought jewelry or silverware from us to those who have.

ROCKFORD SILVERWARE

We have handled this make for 36 years and to this day have not had a complaint as to its quality. It gives service and looks as good after 10 years wear as the date you bought it. What would make a better gift than a dozen knives, forks and spoons.

OUR JEWELRY LINE

All make gifts that will long be remembered. We have a splendid line this year—better than we expected to have. Wrist Watches, Fobs, Signet Rings, Lavalieres, Cut Glass, Parker Fountain Pens, Silver and Gold Thumbless—in fact everything in the jewelry line carried by an up-to-date store.

World Conditions

Deficiencies in the telephone service which have been quite obvious for a long time are due to the unusual conditions prevalent throughout the entire manufacturing, mercantile and domestic world.

The war took men and women from their accustomed duties where they did good work and sent them in every direction to new tasks, and in many instances inexperienced people took their places.

The various industries are gradually getting back their former efficient workers, but the spirit of service has not yet fully returned; that it will come back in a short time is a foregone conclusion.

The telephone service is probably no better or no worse than the general average of the business and domestic routine.

The telephone management is in a vigorous campaign to get its service back to the old standard of speed and accuracy. Nothing will be left undone to reach this desirable result.

THE ANTI-NEWBERRY CAMPAIGN

The Detroit Saturday Night: Republican leaders of the country are rallying around Senator Newberry. That is the most significant development from the indictment of Mr. Newberry and some 134 other republicans by the federal grand jury at Grand Rapids for their work in securing Mr. Newberry's nomination in last year's primaries.

Republican senators went out of their way to give Mr. Newberry an ovation on his first appearance in Washington after his indictment was announced. Congressman Fordney, chairman of the house ways and means committee, avers that "it will be a long time before they send Mr. Newberry to jail." The republican committee on privileges and elections in the senate is preparing to investigate the activities of Mr. Ford's friends in the senatorial campaign, as well as the activities of Senator Newberry's friends. Senator Newberry himself characterizes as "lies made out of whole cloth" the charges that his seat "was obtained by bribery and corruption," and he strikes the keynote of the republican camp when he adds:

"I believe the country will realize the political animus inspiring them. Certainly the people of Michigan understand the source which prompted this entire campaign against me. I propose to expose that source, to show the malignity behind it, as well as the use of unlimited money in the attempt to cast a cloud upon my good name and that of my supporters."

From the party point of view, Mr. Newberry's unpardonable offense was the defeat of Mr. Ford in a republican primary after a democratic president had "commanded" Mr. Ford to run for senator, to use Mr. Ford's own word. This was all the more aggravating to the democratic hierarchy in view of President Wilson's demand, enunciated a few months later, for the election of a democratic house and senate, in order that he might not be embarrassed in the conduct of the war by republicans, who, it will be remembered, had given him loyal support throughout. That Mr. Newberry should not only defeat the president's hand-picked candidate, but turn up as one of a republican majority of two in the senate, was almost too much for human nature to bear.

The hue and cry was at once raised by democratic politicians and newspapers that Senator Newberry's election had been accomplished by corrupt means. Senatorial investigation was presently instituted, and re-inforced by the calling of a grand jury in the city of New York to examine into an election in Michigan. From that day to this the Wilson department of justice has been indefatigable in running down those persons who were guilty of nominating and electing Mr. Newberry.

Quite possibly the members of the Newberry organization are guilty of all the charges made against them. It would be astonishing to learn that any organization had set out to defeat a man as well advertised as Mr. Ford, plus a presidential endorsement, and had attempted to make the necessary campaign on an expenditure of $10,000 or less. It will be astonishing to learn through the senate's investigation that Mr. Ford's campaign cost less than $10,000.

The Newberry organization apparently conducted its campaign on the theory that it was not limited to the expenditure of $10,000 under the federal law, or $3,750, outside of advertising, under the state law; and that those limitations applied only to Mr. Newberry's personal expenditures in the campaign. Because they proceeded on that theory, the members of the Newberry organization are charged with conspiracy to violate the law by aiding Mr. Newberry to spend more than the legal amount. That is the whole case. It is a case that could be made out, we venture to say, against nearly everybody who has ever made an active campaign in Michigan for an office of the first magnitude.

Nevertheless, the foolishness of a law cannot establish the innocence of anybody accused of transgressing it. Only a jury can do that.

We may laugh at a law designed to give the poor man a chance in politics by discounting the influence of great wealth, when we realize what chance a poor man has to make a campaign against such a publicity favorite as Mr. Ford. We may jeer at a law that makes $25 a week "a large salary" for a political clerk. We may see clearly the unreasonableness of a law that restricts the circulation of the printed word in a campaign involving vital national issues. We may wonder why it is legitimate to spend $300,000 or $400,000 on a campaign for prohibition, and illegitimate to spend more than $3,750 or $10,000 on a campaign for senator. But the law is there. It must be enforced or repealed.

Senator Newberry insists that he has obeyed the law. He defies the powers that accuse him of corruption. He welcomes a showdown. More power to him. Next to defeating the chief apostle of pacifism and unpreparedness in this state, his greatest service in Michigan and to America will be his proof that he did it honorably. The fishing expedition which has been angling for Senator Newberry's goat for the past twelve months will then be able to devote its undivided attention to the more useful function of landing cheap haddock.

Another brave ultimatum has been flung at Mexico by the government, and Carranza will retaliate in the same manner. But in the meanwhile Americans are being murdered while officials write letters.

The causes of unrest may be superficial but they are real and serious just the same.

COMEDY—COMEDY—COMEDY

Full of fun and frolic. It sparkles with humor and bubbles with laughter. So that there is not a dull moment. And when the seven reels are finished the play seems much too short.

The picture "MICKEY": The greatest photoplay of its kind. Produced by the master of his craft—Mack Sennett.

It contains every element of human appeal, love and adventure, humor and pathos. A picture you will never forget.

of the United States Navy, has been lost over board off the coast of Spain.

Mrs. F. E. Cartier left last week for Grand Rapids and Detroit where she is visiting friends. She will wait in Detroit for Mr. Cartier, who leaves here Monday. From Detroit they will go to St. Augustine, Florida, where they expect to spend the winter.

Mr. and Mrs. G. E. Dutton of Bay City, former residents of Charlevoix, are expected to arrive in the city not later than December 24, to spend the holidays with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. R. Bellinger, and join their children, who have been here for the past three weeks.

Kathina Anderson, wife of Peter Anderson, living near Ironton, died Saturday, December 13th. The deceased was forty-three years of age and an old resident of Ironton. The funeral was held Monday, Rev. Vnn Kirk officiating. Interment in Brookside cemetery.

To Norwood Tax Payers

I will be at the Charlevoix County Bank in Charlevoix on December 20 and 27 to receive taxes for the township of Norwood. Also I will be in Norwood on January 6th for the same purpose. George Parsons, treasurer of Norwood township. Adv5112

Fire Burns Roof

Shortly after the noon hour last Thursday, fire burned a hole in the roof of William Collins' house, corner Grant and Mason streets. Neighbors discovered the fire and with their help it was extinguished without calling out the fire department. "Judge" Collins wishes to express his thanks to the boys who helped him extinguish the blaze.

CLARKE SCHOOL DISTRICT

Our percentage of attendance was low last week on account of the bad weather.

Our Christmas program will be given at the school house Tuesday night, December 23rd, at 8 o'clock. School was closed Friday afternoon of last week on account of the teachers meeting in the Hilton school house.

Our play which was ordered some time before Thanksgiving, did not come. A card received recently said that the company were temporarily out of stock. This is a disadvantage to us as we had planned to use nothing else for the Christmas program.

How the Mistletoe Came to Mean Kissing

We decorate our homes with sprays of mistletoe at Christmas time, but few of us know the history of it as a Yuletide symbol. Pretty girls are kissed under it and a great deal of fun and nonsense are carried on apropos of it, but no one stops to think of how ancient a decoration it is or how sacred it was once thought to be. The ancient Celts, in their Druidical religion, had two great festivals, one in June and the other in December, the latter being equivalent to our Christmas. In both of these great festivals the gathering of the mistletoe was a sacred rite.

The Druids believed that a poison prepared from mistletoe would increase their flocks and that the plant was a remedy against all poison. It was believed to be a curative for many ills, and this belief is still to be found in many remote places in Europe. In Lacrosse, for example, it is always administered by the native dwellers as an antidote for poison.

In the northeast of Scotland people used to cut withes of mistletoe at the March full moon; these they bent in circles and kept for a year to cure hectic fevers and other troubles. In Sweden on midsummer eve mistletoe is diligently sought after, the people believing it to be possessed of many mystic qualities, and that if a spray of it is attached to the ceiling of the dwelling house, the horse's stall or the cow's crib, the trolls will then be powerless to injure either man or beast.

Many German peasants also consider the mistletoe a powerful charm against evil spirits. A similar belief seems to have lingered among the Romans. When Aeneas descended into Hades he gathered, to protect himself from the infernal powers, a branch of mistletoe, which Vergil calls the golden bough.

The custom of kissing under the mistletoe goes back to the days when Thor and Odin and all the other gods of the Northland walked and talked with men. Baldur, the son of Odin and Frigg, the Apollo of Scandinavian mythology, the flaxen-haired god of sunshine and its attendant blessings, was loved by all earthly and heavenly beings save one—Loki, the god of earthly fire and its attendant evils.

How of all the things animate and inanimate in the world, except the surly mistletoe, swore never to harm the sun god and how Loki slew Baldur with a branch of it, has been told with beautiful poetic power by Matthew Arnold.

In conciliation, hoping to soothe the passionate sorrow of the mother, Frigg, they dedicated the mistletoe to her. And now sin and sorrow had hallowed it; for henceforth it was to grow, not as a symbol of bitterness and hatred, but as a sign of tenderness and love.

But the gods decreed that it was to stand for these things only so long as it touched not Loki's kingdom, the soil; and for this reason it is never seen growing on the ground and we ourselves always hang it high on the rafters or chandeliers. And now that it was the plant of love, the custom arose for enemies to become friends under the mistletoe; for lovers to pledge their truth beneath it; and for those who met there to kiss as a sign of affectionate fellowship.

Santa Claus and Others

There is nothing truer than a fairy tale. It is the quintessence of what Aristotle calls the probable impossibility. The best of the fairy tales are folklores, giving the boiled-down wisdom of centuries of experience, and the truths they teach are the old, old facts of human nature put into visible form for childish minds to grasp. These tales do not teach morals by precept, but truths by example, says Collier's. No amount of teaching about the brotherhood of man, and Christmas kindness, and the rewards of virtue, can have such an effect on the small, objective soul as is produced by the vision of Santa Claus with his white beard and twinkly eyes coming with toys for good little boys and switches for bad little boys, shedding jollity and benevolence all over the place. Long years from now, when every incident of these stories is lost to the memory, the knowledge of fundamental human values will remain. Teach the children fairy tales and you teach them the wisdom of the ages.

Silver knives, forks, spoons, etc., make suitable Christmas presents. C. R. Bellinger has a full line. See him before buying. Adv50t2

Camel CIGARETTES

CAMELS supply cigarette contentment beyond anything you ever experienced! You never tasted such full-bodied mellow-mildness; such refreshing, appetizing flavor and coolness. The more Camels you smoke the greater becomes your delight—Camels are such a cigarette revelation!

Everything about Camels you find so fascinating is due to their quality—to the expert blend of choice Turkish and choice Domestic tobaccos.

You'll say Camels are in a class by themselves—they seem made to meet your own personal taste in so many ways!

Freedom from any unpleasant cigarette after-taste or unpleasant cigarette odor makes Camels particularly desirable to the most fastidious smokers. And, you smoke Camels as liberally as meets your own wishes, for they never tire your taste! You are always keen for the cigarette satisfaction that makes Camels so attractive. Smokers realize that the value is in the cigarettes and do not expect premiums or coupons!

Compare Camels with any cigarette in the world at any price!

Camels are sold everywhere in scientifically sealed packages of 20 cigarettes or ten packages (200 cigarettes) in a glassine-paper-covered carton. We strongly recommend this carton for the home or office supply or when you travel.

THREE BELLS

Wm. Gaunt buzzed wood for Geo. Jarman of the Star District last Tuesday.

Frank Wangerman took a load of wood to East Jordan one day last week for D. Gaunt.

William and Ralph Gaunt delivered a load of wood last Tuesday to W. H. Webb, who lives on the west side of the ferry.

There was no church or Sunday school at our school house last Sunday or account of the preacher, Rev. Reuhle, having to attend to some church doings at Chestonia.

Wm. Gaunt and family and Myrtle Gaunt motored to East Jordan Monday on business, and they reported the roads in pretty good shape for the weather we have had. Arthur Gaunt butchered a small pig for himself last Saturday at Wm. Gaunt's, and Wm. Gaunt also butchered a large one for himself, which they expect to keep for the winter.

Mr. and Mrs. Ira McKee, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Johnston and family, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Gaunt and family and Mrs. Enos Lane and her three youngest children were visitors at Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Gaunt's Sunday.

What the Christmas "Waits" Sing

SANTA CLAUS being about to desert the city streets for his annual reindeer ride over the roofs, the "waits" prepare to sing their centuries old carols.

In several American cities has been revived the beautiful old custom of the "waits" going about from house to house singing the familiar old songs. Light the Christmas candles in your window if you want them to stop before your home!

God rest you merry, gentlemen; let nothing you dismay—they will surely sing that, perhaps the best known of all old English carols. And this too:

Hark! The herald angels sing,
Glory to the newborn king.
And, of course, "O Little Town of Bethlehem."

Perhaps, too, they will sing what is said to be the earliest known Christmas carol, dating from the Anglo-Norman days of the thirteenth century, which begins:

Lordings, listen to our lay—
We have come from far away
To seek Christmas.
In this mansion we are told
He his yearly feasts doth hold;
'Tis today!
May joy come from God above
To all those who Christmas love.

This carol ends with the toast of those days:

"Here, then, I bid you all wassail, curled be he who will not say drink-hall."
"Wassail" meaning your health and "drink-hall" being the usual and courteous acknowledgment.

One of the best known of all the old carols, although not one of the oldest, was written by Nahum Tate in 1703 and is called the "Song of the Angels." It begins:

When you feel discouraged, confused, nervous, tired, worried or despondent it is a sure sign you need MOTT'S NERVE-PILLS. They renew the normal vigor and make life worth living. Be sure and ask for Mott's Nerve-Pills. Price $1.00 by druggists. WILLIAMS MFG. CO., Prop., Cleveland, Ohio.
For Sale by Frank N. Metcalf

While shepherds watched their flocks by night,
All seated on the ground,
The angel of the Lord came down
And glory shone around.

Many are the carols in which Britain's ancient holly figures. "Then drink to the holly berry," pledges one writer of songs, while another in "Under the Holly Bough" summons "All ye who have scorned each other or injured friend or brother, come gather here."

And then there's that grand old hymn "Adeste Fideles," sung in every church in this land and in others, at this Christmas season:

Oh, come, all ye faithful,
Joyful and triumphant!
Come ye, oh, come ye to Bethlehem!

Christmas would not be Christmas, of course, if the "waits" were to neglect one other of the most beautiful of old carols:

Holy night, peaceful night!
Through the darkness beams a light

Holy night, peaceful night!
Through the darkness beams a light!
Yonder, where they sweet vigils keep O'er the babe who, in silent sleep,
Rests in heavenly peace,
Rests in heavenly peace.

If there are any of you who have in mind an after-Christmas dinner evening of song to the accompaniment of a harpsichord, a spinet, a lute or a piano or even the modern and much advertised disk machine, it might be well to try this on the company:

Hark! The herald angels sing,
Hark! The herald angels sing,
Glory to the newborn king;
Peace on earth and mercy mild,
God and sinners reconciled!
Joyful, all ye nations, rise,
Join the triumph of the skies,
With the angelic host proclaim Christ is born in Bethlehem.
Hark! The herald angels sing,
Glory to the newborn king!

Peace to Men of Good Will

By CHARLES F. THWING

The angels' song, "On Earth Peace, Good Will Toward Men," can also be translated "peace to men of good will." This version is timely, as well as correct for the Greek. For peace can and shall come to men of good will, and it cannot come to men of bad will.

Who is the man of good will? It is he who has a choice of happiness, of righteousness, of goodness for all men. It is he who desires that men may be blessed, and who tries to make the desire effective. The man of good will does not hate. Neither does he incarnate hate in any weapon offensive or defensive. He is free from revenge, and is full of forgiveness for the penitent. He may not forget injuries, but what is more important, he is eager to make injury the occasion for helping the offender to overcome the evil within the heart or will out of which the injury sprang. He is capable of mighty indignations, but he does not suffer himself to be conquered by them. Without being impassive, he is calm in the face of wrong, and he is very patient, being more willing to be the victim than the agent of evil. His hatred of all sin and his love for the man who, despite his manhood, is guilty of sin, are alike strong and lasting. He is free from suspicion, he thinks no evil. He loves his neighbor, not only as himself, but even more, being more eager to do justice than to receive justice.

The qualities and elements which constitute the man of good will also constitute the commonwealth of good will.

Such a commonwealth is a commonwealth peace. Willing good to others, others will good also to it. Armaments in such condition have no longer any function to play, and they melt away. The battleflags are furled. Wars cease and rumors of wars are not heard. Men become brothers in mutual service and happiness, as they are brothers in origin and destiny.

A Christmas Prayer

By Frederic T. Cordozo

Most gracious Lord, forbid the sword
And dull each gleaming blade;
Lie in thy will, tonight, to still
Each deadly cannonade.
The straying sheep seek out and keep.
The blackest ones retrieve,
That he may kneel for peace appeal,
Upon this Christmas Eve.

The winter frost, December's ghost,
His spangled robe has spread Across the mead, each shrub and weed
Now lies suppressed and dead.
From out the gloom a hollow boom
The season's message tells,
From metal throats, where hatred gloats,
Instead of Christmas bells.

The sentry's boon, the full white moon,
Which clouds and rain conceal,
Rebukes the blight, with silver light
Of each stern gun of steel.
It clothes the plain where lie the slain
Confronted yet serene,
In garments rare that spirits wear,
Translucent sheets of sheen.

For deaf the ears of kings and peers
To sorrow and despair,
And men still pray in pits of clay,
Entrapped, like beasts to lairs,
While over earth the Saviour's birth
Is heralded once more,
From placid sea to stormy sea,
From seared to sheltered shore.

Though peace on earth reigned at his birth
In David's city then,
And yale and hill sang of good will
From him toward all men,
Tonight the breath of hate and death
Is breathed from many a soul;
Each watchful group and soldier troop
Has slaughter for its goal.

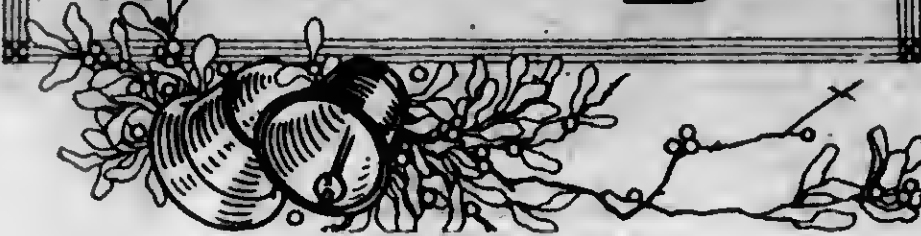

With upraised arm, still each alarm
Which shall ascend above,
Bid thou the age of war's fell rage
Give way to brother's love;
And in thy might forbid the fight
That wages day by day
And lead each race with radiant face
And firm clasped hands, away.

The Christmas Spirit.
(As the Bystander Finds It.)
"Gosh, this car is crowded. Wonder they wouldn't have a little heat!"
"And I want to arrange so that if he doesn't like it you'll exchange it after Christmas."

"No, we're not going to give a thing this year, except to people we positively are indebted to."
"Gosh! It was a sweet dance, Mayme. And Mr. Fitzleface, he said to me—Gosh!"
"Thank the Lord Christmas comes only once a year!"—Exchange.

Deliberate Extravagance.
"What are you going to give your husband this Christmas?"
"I haven't decided. I want to do something really fine for him, though, and if I did that I can afford it I think I will give him eggs for breakfast."

Christmas Tree For the Birds

Mr. and Mrs. Song Sparrow, the Misses Flicker, Cock Robin, Miss Jennie Wren, Sir Woodpecker and other members of the feathered Four Hundred who were lured by warm days at beginning of new winter into stopping with us, only to find themselves sadly hit later by the high cost of living, were thrown into a flutter of excitement by cards issued by Miss Louise Laidlaw of Sands Point, N. Y., to a birds' Christmas tree party.

It was held in the bird sanctuary on the Laidlaw place, near the commodious home built for bird tenants in a sheltering elm there. The tree was the finest ever.

For days little Miss Louise was busy in the pauses of her lessons, stringing

The Birds' Christmas Tree.

cranberries, popcorn, nuts and other dainties beloved of birds. Strings of red skinned apples, cut into tiny pieces convenient for birds to peck at, were a prominent feature of the decorations, and so were bacon rinds and lumps of suet, which are good to keep warmth in the little bodies when the cold creeps under their feathered coats.

Miss Louise, who spent most of her time in the country, studied the ways of the birds and their likings, and she knew that they are as strongly attracted by bright colored things as are children. That is why the tree was made pretty with gay tinted berries.

There was a large attendance, and no birds were turned away, no matter how shabby their coats or disreputable their reputations. The blustering little English sparrows were welcomed with the rest, although they tried to bully the others. Even grumpy old Sir Crow was permitted to peck a bit.

The Spanish Santa Claus.

In Spain, however, it is not Santa Claus, but one of the three kings, no less a person, indeed, than Balthazar, who is the purveyor of gifts. He is always represented as a negro, even in the pictures of the old masters, and as such he survives in Spanish legend. On the eve of the Epiphany the children leave their shoes and boots out in some convenient spot near the chimney, to find them laden with gifts in the morning. Boots, in fact, preceded the stocking everywhere, the superior advantages of the latter as a receptacle having been a recent discovery. In Belgium to this day the children give their shoes an extra fine polish on Christmas eve, fill them with hay, oats or carrots for Santa Claus' white horse and put them on the table or set them in the fireplace. The room is then carefully closed and the door locked. In the morning a strange thing is found to have occurred. The furniture is all turned topsy turvy, the fodder has been removed from the shoes, and in its place the good little children find all sorts of nice things and the bad ones only rods made of birch. In other localities baskets, dishes and wooden ware are made the receptacles. But the elasticity of the stocking, its adaptability and the fact that, while it preserves the individuality of the owner like a shoe, it may yet be cleaned and made ready for the reception of edible presents—these characteristics have caused it to grow into general favor among the juvenile votaries of Santa Claus.

Derived From Days of Yore.

It is a beautiful arrangement and derived from the days of yore that this festival, which commemorates the announcement of the religion of peace and love, has been made the season for gathering together of family connections and drawing closer again those bands of kindred hearts which the cares and pleasures and sorrows of the world are continually operating to cast loose, of calling back the children of a family who have launched forth in life and wandered widely asunder, and more to assemble about the paternal hearth, that rallying place of the seasons, there to grow young and strong again.—Washington Irving.

Santa Claus

*We come in the night! We come in the night!
We softly, silently come.
While the little broken heads on the pillows so white
Are dreaming of haggles and drums.
We cut through the snow like a ship through the foam.
While the white flakes around him whirl.
Who tells him I know not, but he finds the home
Of each good little boy and girl.*

Origin of Word Christmas.
The word Christmas is of comparatively late origin. The word was first used in 1038, its form then being Christes-Messe, the mass of Christ. Origen, an early father of the church, said that in the Scriptures it was the sinners alone, not the saints, who celebrated their birthdays. Another early writer referred to the fact that the birthdays of the pagan gods were kept by the people. The very first evidence of a feast having been held in honor of the birth of Christ was in Egypt about the year 200. Clement of Alexandria said, "Certain Egyptian theologians over-curiously assign not the year alone, but the day of Christ's birth, placing it on May 25." Another date assigned to the event was March 28.—Exchange.

Revenue Department Declares Man's
Home Is Not His Castle

If there are any people in Charlevoix who own those things known as "home stills," they had best heed the warning edict issued by federal authority which denounces the private "brewery" as unlawful, and states clearly that the domestic "booze factory" must go.

Since the country took on its cloak of prohibition, the belief has been more or less common that to manufacture a little home-made "toddy" for one's private and personal use would not be regarded as stepping on the skirts of the liquor law. But the bureau of internal revenue has come to the front with an announcement that home brewing of beer, or domestic distillation of whiskey or other alcoholic liquors have come very much under the prohibition ban, and the public is given solemn warning.

The bureau's statement says that any person found to be manufacturing alcoholic liquor in his own home for domestic use will be subject to the penalties of the law.

The ruling goes even further, and declares that firms who have been advertising corn mash for the amateur production of whiskey, and prepared packages of hops and malt for the brewing of beer, will be subject to prosecution in all cases where their recipes are used.

Accompanying the ruling of the bureau of internal revenue is the statement that the penalty for violation is one year's imprisonment or $10,000 fine, or both.

It has been the general impression in some circles that the man who wanted to make beer at home for his own use would not be interfered with, and even, that private stills would be permitted if the distiller used the liquor for personal consumption. However, the ruling of the department of internal revenue has induced many manufacturers of home and neighborhood stills to refrain from further sales of their products.

plying the precedents. The William Lorimer case, however, was cited as a parallel, the senate having voted to expel him after charges had been made that there was corruption in the Illinois legislature which elected him. A new election was ordered in that case.

A recount of the ballots probably will be made and it is on the possibility that a majority might be found for Ford that his chances of getting a seat in the senate at an early date hang. Even in that case, Ford's election would have to be certified by Gov. Sleeper of Michigan, and it is possible this might be refused in the ground of assertion that fraud occurred in the election and that no result could therefore be valid.

Do You Want Your Kidneys Experimented On?

Kidney troubles are getting more common every day. Government health bureau figures say deaths from this cause are 72 per cent more than 20 years ago.

Anybody who suffers constant backache, who feels blue, nervous and irritable; who has dizzy spells, headache and urinary disorders should suspect kidney weakness. Overworked kidneys must have a rest. Take things easier; live more carefully. Take a good kidney remedy to build the kidneys up again.

But be sure to get Doan's Kidney Pills — the oldest, the most widely used, the best recommended of all kidney pills, now in use all over the civilized world. Don't experiment with your kidneys. Thousands have already tested Doan's. You have their experience to go by. Plenty of cases right here in Charlevoix. Here's one:

Mrs. Wesley Staley, 211 Mason St., Charlevoix, says: "I can conscientiously recommend Doan's Kidney Pills as a fine kidney medicine. My back was lame and I felt tired and languid. My kidneys troubled me, too. Doan's Kidney Pills, procured from Hines & Co.'s Drug Store, completely removed the trouble."

Price 60c. at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mrs. Staley had. Foster-Milburn Co., Mfrs., Buffalo, N. Y.

Significance of Christmas

MAKE Christmas a jolly time.

The whole significance of Christmas is generosity, clarity, good fellowship and consequent happiness, and we must stand in with this spirit of joyfulness or admit ourselves as by no means belonging to the highest types of humanity. If we adopt the Irishman's well-known and philosophical dictum, that "one man's as good's another and some a deal sight better," then we want to be a "deal sight" in most everything, and good fellowship proclaims that loudest and longest.

So, go in for a good time in any old first-class, fine-edged way you can get it, at home or abroad, outdoors or in, upstairs or down, with or without the best means for enjoyment, for the means can be made; if you're determined to make it, there is always a way. If you lack dollars, use pennies; if you lack pennies, use your wits. There are many other things that you have in abundance to spend, and you can spend them by transferring to others and the general atmosphere your optimistic joyfulness over what you have, be it much or little.

The Profiteers in Coal

A rule of commerce is that the tendency of prices is upwards whenever the demand exceeds the supply. Usually there is not much controversy over prices when the purchasers are chiefly interested in getting the goods. Therefore not many people are questioning the price of sugar in the market today. They are willing to take it at any price. If, as Federal Judge Anderson has intimated, there has been collusion on the part of coal operators and miners, then it is reasonable to suppose that in the processes of natural laws of trade, coal would be selling this winter at hitherto unheard of prices, except for the intervention of the Government, which has been able to lay down a hard rule to protect the consumers of the country, by forbidding an increase in the selling price of coal. The coal operators objected to this measure very strenuously, when the controversy was first taken to Washington for decision. However, when exposure of enormous profits threatened them, the operators decided that discretion was the better part of valor, and hastened to declare that they would do anything the Government decided upon. Despite denials, the probabilities are that Secretary of the Treasury Glass and former Secretary McAdoo were in position to back up their allegations that the profits to coal operators have been anywhere from 15 per cent to 2,000 per cent. These profiteers were, however, found to be less stubborn than the profiteers who mined the coal, and who continued to remain on strike when a scientific adjustment was announced, raising their wages fourteen per cent. With cities running their business houses on half time, and the great industries of the country closing down, or operating on a six-hour a day schedule, with train service reduced to the minimum; and with general disaster and freezing threatening the whole country, the so-called "radical group" of miners continued to fight against yielding to the Government. Every intelligent analysis leads to the conclusion that nearly 400,000 coal miners have had the country by the throat, and their manner of defying the Government was not a bit less rebellious than that which occurred in slavery days when a group of states started out running things on their own book. The only difference was that in one case the men backed up their protest with arms and ammunition, whereas the coal miners stayed at home, and there is no evidence that their idleness brought any hardship to them or their families, since they seemed to be well supplied with money.

A commission is to be devised to adjust questions of employment in the coal industry. It is reasonable to predict that such a commission will establish a just standard between the operators and employees. Of course this is in keeping with progressive policies in industry. But when the commission has finished, the same unruly hordes in the coal mining business (including operators and miners) who have imposed their selfish affairs upon the public, will doubtless still be found kicking over whatever awards and conclusions may be arrived at.

A great many people are prone to believe that the better policy on the part of the public would be to see the game of profiteering among coal operators and miners through to the finish, by letting soldiers and citizens, who have a high regard for the rights of the public, operate the coal mines, letting the selfish interests that are in charge of the industry, get as much the worst of things as it would be possible to hand out to them.

Where Are the Liberty Bonds?

Where are the liberty bonds of yesteryear? Who remembers those intensely patriotic gentlemen that arose in the theatres and moving picture houses and called out their bids in thousand dollar lots? Great applause! There were others who took a measly fifty or a hundred dollar bond, which they paid for on the installment plan. These people still have their bonds. It is different with those other purchasers, who bought "spectacular bonds." According to the Federal Reserve bulletin $6,500,000 of Liberty bonds, victory notes and treasury certificates were owned outright and held as collateral for loans in the banks of the country on June 30, 1919. This vast amount of bank credit has been manufactured and put in circulation as purchasing power. The figures serve to explain the great increase in the wealth of the country, which is reflected in a large measure in the increases in prices for commodities and labor.

Senator Jones of Washington, told the Senate the other day, that the ultimate development of all the power available in navigable streams, would be equal to 780,000,000 tons of coal, representing a value of more than $1,500,000,000 — more coal than the country now actually consumes. At the same time the ultimate development would reclaim for navigation, more than 4,000 of the upper reaches of navigable streams, and besides developing power would develop systems of water transportation. Twenty-two states, most of them in the west and south, according to Senator Jones, need legislation to unlock their natural resources. The years of useless delay that have occurred in passing any helpful legislation along these lines, calls to mind the words of Theodore Burton, who when a member of the Senate from Ohio said: "I sometime question whether there is any strong disposition for economy in governmental, state and municipal affairs. Sentiment in its favor is vague and unorganized." As Mr. Burton spoke, he might have looked out upon the Potomac river, where according to the Geological Survey, "four hundred or five hundred tons of coal are floating past Washington daily."

The old government organization known as the Bureau of Corporations devoted itself to furthering the idea, expressed by Commissioner Smith, that the need was "rigid supervision, to protect the public from monopolistic power." The Federal Trade, which succeeds this Bureau, has followed the same warning. And Congress, always afraid of the bogie man, has kept the natural resources of the country under lock and key—"protecting" the public against "monopolistic power"—until the "public" has become quite insistent in demanding that its streams turn water wheels and convert God-given forces into power to be distributed far and wide, instead of running on, furnishing only rhymes about men who come and men who go, while it goes on forever; or stories of fish which Will o' the Mill saw in his mountain stream, always swimming in the same direction.

It is said that in Washington more than two thousand persons are studying the Spanish language, and it is estimated that an equally large number are studying French. The Berlitz School of Languages has been the principal headquarters for the great crop of Americans who are becoming linguists. This chain of schools extends around the globe and was established by that pioneer citizen of the world, M. D. Berlitz. To his deep vision may be traced the better understanding that has come to exist between people of different tongues, since he has convinced them that if for no other than commercial purposes, it is necessary to include in the qualification of a good education a knowledge of more than one language. Washingtonians were inclined to be somewhat skeptical some years ago, when Mr. Berlitz and his associates persistently insisted that the South American and Central American countries could never be brought into sympathetic contact with the commercial and political interests of the United States until a large number of our people at home learned to talk and write in the home language of the people whose friendly interest they desired to cultivate. But time vindicated that prophecy, with the result that today no one has the temerity to go either as a diplomat or a consular or trade representative to countries in Central or South America without having first obtained at least a smattering of Spanish. And while the world war has added additional proof to the American belief that the English tongue is destined to be the language of the world, nevertheless the returning soldier hardly exists who has not brought home with him splendid additions to his vocabulary, and some kind of understanding of French or other foreign languages, that have increased his usefulness to himself, and made of him a better champion of world rights—and a more intelligent idealist. The wonderful foresight of Mr. Berlitz has been emphasized in the experiences of many people who went to Europe from Washington in official capacities.

PICK CAREFULLY NEWBERRY JURY

NO ELECTION WORKER ALLOWED TO SERVE

Persons Who Approach Juror Regarding Case Will Be Sent to Jail, Says Sessions

Recent dispatches say no man who was active in the primaries or election during the 1918 senatorial campaign, either with the democratic or republican party, will be permitted to sit as a juror in the trial of the Newberry case in District court at Grand Rapids, it has been announced following a conference between Judge Sessions and attorneys representing the government and the 135 respondents.

This is one of the reasons assigned for the special venire of 50 tale-men, which was ordered by the court. The decision of the court indicates that since the government would be allowed only six peremptory challenges and the respondents ten, the interpretation of the court of a challenge for cause would be reasonably liberal.

It was understood that the limitation of the peremptory challenges to six and ten for the government and the respondents, respectively, was in line with a decision of the United States Supreme court coming out of a case tried in District court in Vermont.

Judge Sessions said pointedly, the attorneys say, that during the ensuing weeks while the jury is being selected and while agents for both sides are investigating the prospective jurors that under no conditions should a juror be approached and engaged in conversation concerning the case after he has been notified that he had been drawn. "And a man who does approach a juror," the court is quoted as saying, "and it is reported to me, is on his way to jail." He added that this applies with equal force to the agents for the government and defense.

Preparations for the Newberry trial, the most important that ever has been taken up in District court in the western district of Michigan, now are being made by court attaches under direction of the court.

The greatest obstacle which is being met with now is to provide accommodations for the 135 respondents who must be in attendance all the time, the attorneys for various defendants, the 186 jurors who will be summoned, the two score or more of newspaper representatives from all parts of the country and the spectators who will desire to hear the proceedings. There promises to be no space for an audience.

Marshal Herman O'Connor is trying to devise ways of jamming more chairs and tables to the room. Undoubtedly there will be many disappointed spectators had some newspapermen when the trial is under way.

DRINK A GLASS OF REAL HOT WATER BEFORE BREAKFAST.

Says we will both look and feel clean, sweet and fresh and avoid illness.

Sanitary science has of late made rapid strides with results that are of untold blessing to humanity. The latest application of its watery research is the recommendation that it is as necessary to attend to internal sanitation of the drainage system of the human body as it is to the drainage of the house.

Those of us who are accustomed to feel dull and heavy when we arise, splitting headache, stuffy from a cold, foul tongue, nasty breath, acid stomach, can, instead, feel as fresh as a daisy by opening the sluices of the system each morning and flushing out the whole of the internal poisonous stagnant matter.

Everyone, whether ailing, sick or well, should, each morning before breakfast, drink a glass of real hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it to wash from the stomach, liver and bowels the previous day's indigestible waste, sour bile and poisonous toxins; thus cleansing, sweetening and purifying the entire alimentary canal before putting more food into the stomach. The action of hot water and limestone phosphate on an empty stomach is wonderfully invigorating. It cleans out all the sour fermentations, gases, waste and acidity and gives one a splendid appetite for breakfast. While you are enjoying your breakfast the phosphated hot water is quietly extracting a large volume of water from the blood and getting ready for a thorough flushing of all the inside organs.

The millions of people who are both red with constipation, bilious spells, stomach trouble, rheumatic stiffness, others who have sallow skins, blood disorders and sickly complexions are urged to get a quarter pound of limestone phosphate from the drug store. This will cost very little, but is sufficient to make anyone a pronounced friend of the subject of internal sanitation.

HEAVY MEAT EATERS HAVE SLOW KIDNEYS

Not less meat if you feel Backache or have bladder trouble—Take glass of Salts

No man or woman who eats meat regularly can make a mistake by flushing the kidneys occasionally, says a well-known authority. Meat forms uric acid which excites the kidneys, they become over-worked from the strain, get sluggish and fail to filter the waste and poisons from the blood, then we get sick. Nearly all rheumatism, headaches, liver trouble, nervousness, dizziness, sleeplessness and urinary disorders come from sluggish kidneys.

The moment you feel a dull ache in the kidneys or your back hurts or if the urine is cloudy, offensive, full of sediment, irregular of passage or attended by a sensation of scalding, stop eating meat and get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast and in a few days your kidneys will get fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate the kidneys, also to neutralize the acids in urine so it no longer causes irritation, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive and cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everyone should take now and then to keep the kidneys clean and active and the blood pure, thereby avoiding serious kidney complications.

Christmas— and Old Loves

By LAURA JEAN LIBBEY

When I think on the happy days
I spent with you, my little dear,
Now what lands between us lie,
How can I but be eerie?

As yuletide draws near, a man's mind is very apt to revert to happy Christmas times that have gone before. There is most always a woman connected with a man's happy times and pleasant day dreams. The man who left the farm to make his fortune in the great city and who has become rich, a bachelor boarding at a fashionable hotel or club, can usually recall some particularly happy Christmas in the long ago—a Christmas dinner in the old home, taking his first sweetheart Christmas eve to a ball in the town hall; the delight of taking her home—a mile through snow drifts on a winter night. He had written to her a few times after leaving home, then the excitement of city life had crowded her out of his memory and his life. As Christmas draws nigh again, thoughts carry him back to the girl he loved when time was young with him. On the impulse of the moment he dashes off a letter to her. He does not know whether she will receive it. She may be married or she may have moved away. The old folks at home had been careful never to mention her even in answer to his inquiries.

How strange it is that the same thought can fill two different minds at the same time. The girl of long ago, still single, knowing he has not wed, picks up courage to send a Christmas card to the boy grown old now who took her to her first ball on Christmas eve. The letter and card cross each other as each flies to its goal. The bachelor finds it in his Christmas mail. The lonely woman standing by a window in a far-off farmhouse has a letter handed to her by a neighboring farmer who kindly fetched it to her from the post office Christmas morning. Simultaneously there is a warm glow in two hearts widely severed.

And yet there are people who wonder that there are romances which are revived at yuletide when men and women no longer young sigh for love and home cheer, if they sit alone and lonely listening to the chimes of the Christmas bells.

Christmas day is the time to light the sacred fire upon the altar of old hopes and loves and make the longing and dream realities. Sending a little Christmas card with a well-chosen kindly verse is sure to find an echo in a lonely heart at this time of all others. One should not check the kindly impulse to send one. It can do no harm and it may bring much happiness. To whom are you going to send your "Merry Christmas" card in this year of our Lord 1917? Perhaps I'll find one in my stocking. I'll hang it up and see. I take this occasion to send each and every one of my readers a Merry Christmas, together with the wish that the coming year may be the most successful one of their lives.

"A Visit From St. Nicholas"

WHAT is the best known poem in the world? Not Gray's "Elegy," nor "The Song of the Shirt," nor "The Raven," but "The Night Before Christmas." The author is not so well known as his poem.

One recent Christmas the name of Clement Clarke Moore was honored as never before. Above his grave in the chapel of Holy Trinity cemetery, New York, the choir boys sang carols on the night before Christmas, and a service of light was held. This beautiful ceremonial starts with a procession of torchbearers whose torches are kindled from the leader's tapers, and as the line winds through the graveyard the fire is passed back from one to another until the lights grow in number and dispel the surrounding darkness.

The father of Clement Clarke Moore was once the bishop of New York.

"The Night Before Christmas" was published originally without the author's knowledge in the Troy Sentinel two days before Christmas, 1823. Moore had written it the preceding Christmas just for the delight of his own children, but its circulation slipped beyond the family circle, and an unknown friend sent it for publication. The Sentinel readers paid no attention to it, and it passed without comment until seven years later, when the same paper reprinted it. The second reception was very different from the first. "A Visit From St. Nicholas," as it was then entitled, was copied, broadcast, and its author awoke to find his work, if not himself, famous.

Although Clement Clarke Moore was educated for the ministry, he never took orders. For the greater part of his life he was identified with the New York General Theological seminary, being professor of Biblical learning and Greek and later of oriental languages.

Clement Moore's family life had many sorrows. His wife died at the early age of thirty-five, and the two little daughters, for whom he wrote "The Night Before Christmas," both died in their childhood. His son and namesake lived to the age of sixty-eight and is buried in the family plot.

When "The Night Before Christmas" was first published in the Troy Sentinel the editor wrote:

"We do not know to whom we are indebted for the following description of that unwearying patron of children, that homely but delightful personification of parental kindness, Santa Claus, his custom and his equipage, as he goes about visiting the firesides of his happy land, laden with Christmas bounties, but from whomsoever it may have come we give thanks for it. There is to our apprehension a spirit of cordial goodness in it, a playfulness as of fancy and a benevolent anxiety to enter into the feelings and promote the simple pleasures of children which are altogether charming. We hope our little patrons, both boys and girls, will accept it as a proof of our unfeigned good will toward them, a token of our warmest wish that they may have many a merry Christmas; that they may long retain their beautiful relish for these unbought, home bred joys, which derive their flavor from filial piety and fraternal love and which, they may be assured, are the best alloyed that time can furnish them."

The "Service of Light."

Christmas Song.

Oh, Christmas is a happy time,
When human hearts are light,
And human hate have vanished
And all the world looks bright!

And Christmas is a solemn time,
For back long, long ago,
Christ was born to give the world
The joy that we now know.

But not alone at Christmas time
Is happiness and cheer,
For he who really loves the Lord
Hath Christmas all the year.

INTERESTING BITS OF INFORMATION CLIPPED FROM OUR EXCHANGES

The East Jordan Electric Light & Power Co. are contemplating the rebuilding of the old power dam on Deer Creek, near the fair grounds. If present plans mature the plant will be in operation by the coming summer. Considerable work has already been done in way of drafting plans and making blue prints, the securing of flowage rights and option on properties. Some of the old material is still on the site and can be utilized to good advantage.

While the project calls for a considerable investment, the Electric Light Co. management feel confident that it will pay out in the end. Their steam power plant here is one of the best of its size in the state, and will be used in conjunction with the water power. The cost of coal, however, is becoming a serious problem, and there are times when it is almost impossible to obtain it. With the addition of the water power it is figured that both plants can be operated about fifty per cent of the time taking the year round, and this will mean a great saving on fuel expense.

At that time it released a twenty-eight foot head of water which swept down to the lake causing considerable damage. What the actual cause of its giving away was never known. There is no question, however, but what the dam can be rebuilt in such substantial manner that it will hold for all time. And water power is the cheapest power without question.—East Jordan Herald.

John Burroughs, the naturalist, who is spending some time in Michigan with Henry Ford, the auto king, says we are to have a severe winter, and as a reason for his prediction points to the fact that an Arctic bird that very rarely comes south of the Hudson Bay is wintering in Michigan. There are flocks of them on Mr. Ford's farm at Dearborn. Trappers tell of the strong and thick houses muskrats are building and farmers point to the corn husks and a lot of other signs. Take them for what they are worth.

Beginning Jan. 1, dealers in automobiles, owners and operators of garages must keep a full and complete record of all sales and purchases made, and the cars taken in exchange, specifying the date of sale, name and residence of the purchaser and vendor, and the make, serial number and motor number and description of the vehicle.

Duplicate copies of such records must be furnished on the first day of each month thereafter to the department of state. First reports are due Feb. 1, next year. The department is supplying prescribed forms to garages for this work.

HINTS FOR BELATED GIFTS

Bags and Aprons Are Easily and Quickly Made and They Are Always Acceptable.

For many weeks before Christmas the household is busy with needle, crochet hook and tatting shuttle, fashioning Christmas gifts for family and friends. But, there always are some belated gifts, that must be made during the last few days, for friends that we would like to remember.

In such cases there is nothing more quickly or easily made than bags and aprons, and one never can have too many of either. Laundry bags, stock-tag bags, darning bags, piece bags and bags for soiled handkerchiefs can be made of calico or cotton, and fancy work bags, purse bags, and handkerchief bags may be made of silk and ribbon. Several of these bags can easily be made in an evening, and they are always acceptable gifts.

And aprons—no woman ever had too many aprons. A few yards of gingham, percale and butcher's linen made up into aprons, which would not require more than a day to make a good supply, would go a long ways as gifts to busy house mothers. And caps, also. At this time almost every woman wears some sort of cap when doing her house work, and a neat, washable cap makes an acceptable gift, and requires little skill in the making. And so with these practical and quickly made gifts one may be able to catch up with Christmas remembrances, even though belated until the last few days before Christmas.

LADIES! LOOK YOUNG,
DARKEN GRAY HAIR

Use the Old-time Sage Tea and Sulphur and Nobody Will know.

Gray hair, however handsome, denotes advancing age. We all know the advantages of a youthful appearance. Your hair is your charm. It makes or mura the face. When it fades, turns gray and looks streaked, just a few applications of Sage Tea and Sulphur enhances its appearance a hundred-fold.

Don't stay gray! Look young! Either prepare the recipe at home or get from any drug store a bottle of "Weyth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," which is merely the old-time recipe improved by the addition of other ingredients. Thousands of folks recommend this ready-to-use preparation, because it darkens the hair beautifully, besides, no one can possibly tell, as it darkens so naturally and evenly. You moisten a sponge or soft brush with it, drawing this through the hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears; after another application or two, its natural color is restored and it becomes thick, glossy and lustrous, and you appear years younger.

Weyth's Sage and Sulphur Compound is a delightful toilet requisite. It is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.

Dufresnay's Christmas Awakening

ON Christmas morning of the year 1681 M. Dufresnay's apartments were in some confusion. Monsieur himself as he slept on a spindle-legged sofa was not the very laze of order. His rose colored satin coat was under his head, and his silk stockinged calves dangled over the end of his all too brief bed. The cards of yesterday and yesterday's bestrewn the floor.

He was disturbed by the lustiest tugging of a bell. Dufresnay groaned and struggled to his feet.

On opening the door he beheld a very beautiful young lady quietly disguised as a working woman and carrying a large basket such as lunadresses use. Dufresnay retreated in confusion, bowing profoundly and wrestling with his coat.

"I pray you pardon me, mademoiselle. I did not expect a—visita!"

"And I pray you, monsieur, not to mock me," she replied, with a wry lit-seen me before, but I live not far away, and I have often seen you. You are not yourself now or you would not mock me so."

"I was never myself before," insisted Dufresnay.

At this moment a stately personage appeared in the doorway and rang the bell with great vigor.

Dufresnay greeted him with delight. "Is his majesty returned to Paris? No? He is well?"

Turning to the girl, he said: "I am, as perhaps you know, the king's poor kinsman, as poor as he is rich. M. Ribot has been the bearer of many good gifts. Monsieur, mademoiselle is my betrothed."

"Ahem! M. Dufresnay, his majesty intrusted me with this Christmas present for you—this purse of gold, 500 louis, I believe, and this commission entitling you to a valet de chambre du roi, with a stipend of 100,000 livres per annum. I congratulate you, monsieur. As I have many other commissions to execute for his gracious majesty, I must humbly take my leave."

"Present my grateful thanks and Christmas wishes to his majesty."

M. Ribot made his departure with somewhat the air of one who gladly takes leave of a questionable company.

"May I also congratulate you, monsieur?" timidly ventured the girl. "You can pay me now," she added rather timidly.

"You see my establishment—how I live. Could not the order of these apartments be improved? Will you abandon me such such rates? The abbe who ministers in the church yonder is my good friend."

"Why, he is also my abbe!"

"Wonderful! White linens and black are alike his care. I am a most unlucky minister. And you can give me better luck than ever came of winning. On my honor, I love you. And the abbe will be very glad to see us. Shall we not make the good old man happy?"

"If you will, monsieur."—W. R. Van Dusen in New York Evening Sun.

A Christmas Prayer.

God grant no little child may go
With hungry heart or empty hand—
Give this thy world one radiant day
To understand, to understand.
Give us the fitting word to say,
The spendthrift smile, the brave ca-

ress;
Disclose our hearts and give us now
The courage of our tenderness!

Lord, we are old with toil and tears,
Our souls are veiled with various art,
Yet still the little children keep
Thine ancient simplicity of heart—

And they alone of all thy breath
May bind the burning angel's eyes
And, striking laughter from the sword,
Retrace the years to paradise.

They are so brave with love and dreams,
So eager eyed and, ah, so dear!
I think we must return them now
The faith they bore across the year.

I think that we must give them now
The spendthrift smile, the kindly word,
That earth may keep its ancient hope
And we thy full commandments,
Lord.

—Dana Burnet.

Keeping Christmas.

Are you willing to remember the weakness and loneliness of people who are growing old; to stop asking how much your friends love you, and ask yourself whether you love them enough; to bear in mind the things that other people have to bear on their hearts; to try to understand the people who live in the same house with you? Then you can keep Christmas.

—Heary van Dyke.

A Sure Thing.

"Ah always had no faith in sympathy and in congratulations," observed Shadone. "You know for sure that dar an't nobody gwinter be jealous ob you' baid luck."—Boston Transcript.

If you don't worry others, others may do it for you.

"I Did Not Expect a Vision!"

tle smile. "The last time I came your servant said you had no money. You owe me 17 livres."

Dufresnay gazed in speechless incredulity for a moment and then burst out laughing.

"A merry Christmas to you, mademoiselle!" he cried. "Is the basket for me?"

"I wish you also a merry Christmas. But please, please listen to me. Perhaps the wine is not yet out of your head. But I must have money today. Surely you can understand?"

Dufresnay partially mustered his wits and attempted an elaborate compliment.

"I have seen all the shepherdesses of our Arendian Versailles—and by the goddess of the laundry, you are not crying! The basket is very heavy. And here are actual shirts!"

He looked in some perplexity from the basket to the girl. Then he said gently, "Has no one ever told you how beautiful you are?"

"Certainly you are not the first to flatter me nor the first that failed to pay me, but," she added, and her eyes filled with tears, "I had better hopes of you. Fine words will not help me."

"I know they will not. What have I that will bring 17 livres? This ring?"

"But that is a wedding ring."

"My mother's. And it is for my wife. It is for you."

"That is a cruel jest. And I thought you were so different. You have never

CHRISTMAS SPIRIT PREVAILS IN ALL STORES

Merchants Have Many Distinct Lines
of Merchandise Especially for Gift Making

As Christmas of 1919 approaches, a casual survey of the stores and business places of Ellsworth assures the observer of one thing, i. e., the folly of sending money to mail order houses for holiday goods. Here in Ellsworth, this year at least, is a variety of goods offered that is hard to equal in cities of several times the size of our own town and at prices within reach of all.

If our readers will only follow the writer on a short trip through town we are assured that they will be amazed and delighted at what they will find.

The W. A. Boss hardware store will be our first stop, this store being the longest under the present management of any in town. Mr. Boss this year as usual, has his store well stocked, not only for the holiday trade, but for the every day trade of his well satisfied patrons as well. He specializes in shelf and heavy hardware, farm tools, sleighs, wagons, harnesses, gasoline engines and harvesting machinery.

For the Christmas shopper in search of useful and pleasing gifts he has a splendid line of fancy silverware, aluminum tea and coffee sets, watches, etc., and is also well stocked with appropriate gifts for the young folks, among which are sleds, skates and skis, and you will always find the proprietor ready to shake your hand and wish you good luck regardless if the volume of your business amounts to cents or dollars.

From the hardware we will pass on to the Weiss department store, where we meet Mr. Weiss, the owner and manager. This store is entering upon its tenth year under its present management and the yearly increase in the business attests to the honest dealing in practice here. Mr. Weiss has this year made a special effort to

A Lesson In Christmas Spirit

It was the day before Christmas last year. All my shopping had been done (or so I thought) when I suddenly remembered hearing my eldest son, a lad of eight years, say, "Oh, I hope Santa will bring me a harmonicon this Christmas," says a writer in the New York Evening Sun.

Of course I could not disregard such a wish, and, although it was raining, I put on my storm coat and rubbers and with umbrella in hand started out for one of our large department stores.

On arriving at the counter where this particular article was displayed I found every one so busy I could not get attention for some time, and while waiting my turn I noticed two sadly neglected looking little boys of about six and eight years respectively standing very close to the counter and looking, oh, so longingly at these same harmonicons, when suddenly one of the young saleswomen turned sharply around and in a loud voice said, "Now, then, if you two boys don't get away from here at once I'll call the floor-walker and have you arrested." At the time this sudden attack was made upon these poor little waifs I was holding in my hands two of these same musical instruments, trying to decide which of the two kinds I would take.

The larger one of the boys looked up at me with a frightened look, as if to say, "Oh, we didn't mean to steal anything," when I said, "Boys, would you each like one of these harmonicons?" They said nothing, but the look of surprise (gratitude they knew nothing of) when I put one in each boy's dirty little hands I shall not forget to my dying day, and before you could say "Jack Robinson" they were out of the store and out of sight. I turned to the young woman, saying, "I will pay for them," when I noticed the tears in her eyes.

When she finally found her voice she said, "Oh, madam, I am so sorry I spoke as I did." "Well, never mind," I said; "you didn't understand. I am the mother of two boys and know what a boy craves." When she handed me my change and package she said, "I shall never forget this day; it has taught me a lesson."

ELLSWORTH AS SHOPPING PLACE

make his place attractive, both as to decorations and to stock displayed, and you will indeed be hard to please if you cannot fill your holiday wants here. In addition to a complete line of staple and fancy groceries, clothing, boots and shoes, etc., we find on display one of the best lines of candies and toys in the village.

Nothing would be more appropriate as a Christmas gift for husband, brother or son than a pair of gloves or a heavy mackinaw or sweater with which the store is stocked, and with the prospect of a long cold winter ahead, nothing would be appreciated more.

The casual customer at this store receives the same courteous treatment as the one who makes it his regular shopping place, and the motto "With charity for all, with malice toward none" is always in use. One visit here will lead to many more and to meet with Mr. Weiss means the start of a new friendship.

Our next stop will be the Citizens' Bank where cashier Glen C. Townsend welcomes us with a happy smile and a pleasant greeting. This is one of the few places in town where there are no special plans made for Christmas, but where one day is the same as another, the whole year round. Mr. Townsend has helped countless numbers with banking accommodations, and with good advice during the few years since he has taken charge of the Citizens' bank, and has made the enviable reputation of never turning a deaf ear to old or young, regardless of their station in life, when their day of adversity comes. To know Mr. Townsend is to honor and respect him in his private as well as his business life.

The dinner hour is now at hand and we may as well drop in at the "New Orient" hotel, where one of Mrs. Van Skiver's splendid dinners is being prepared. While waiting for this we have a little talk with landlord "Van", who assures us that business is good, a fact which we can easily believe by taking note of the spick and span office and the clean sanitary sleeping rooms and kitchen, to say nothing of the splendid, appetizing meal.

Ellsworth is noted for having one of the best all-year hotels—between Traverse City and Petoskey—in fact the best in the opinion of many salesmen who make this their regular stopping place whenever they can get here. Long life to "Van". May he be with us through many more holiday seasons and may his shadow never grow less.

Our next port of call will be the general store owned and operated by Geo. Klooster and Son, made a decided success by them by eleven years of careful painstaking attention to business and a fixed idea of striving to please. Klooster & Son carry by far the largest general stock of goods in Ellsworth, and both owners as well as a good corps of clerks are always on the job, thus assuring prompt service.

Their store is thoroughly equipped for the Christmas season and it would be hard to imagine an article which we could not obtain from the immense stock. This year for a holiday feature there is being displayed a fine up-to-date assortment of toilet and manicure sets, slippers, bath robes and smoking jackets, neck ties and handkerchiefs, as well as a standard line of groceries and ladies' and gents' furnishings.

Do your Christmas shopping early and be sure to make this store one of your objectives and thus gain satisfaction and save money.

Just across the street from Klooster's store is located the new warehouse erected this year by the Banks Marketing association. Julius Elzinga is manager and is apparently making good. All kinds of farm produce is shipped from this place and the members seem satisfied and happy over their new venture.

A new side track was recently built which will greatly facilitate shipping and the unloading of flour, feed, etc., which the association handles in large quantities.

Continuing south down the Pere Marquette tracks we encounter the warehouse owned by the Ellsworth Produce Co., with M. R. Nelson as general manager, a position he has held for the past four years, during which time his courtesy and fair treatment of those with whom he has dealt has caused an immense increase in his yearly business. The Ellsworth Produce Co. is run on a cash basis and all kinds of farm produce are bought while hay, grain, feed, coal, etc., are kept in stock. A new cream station is the latest addition to this business which is run under the motto "As soon as you weigh, you get your pay." Thus with a cream station here and at the association warehouse and with top prices paid for produce, farmers of the surrounding country have much to cheer them during this Christmas season.

The Ellsworth garage even at this season of the year is worthy of a call. This institution was started four years ago by James H. Elzinga, and has experienced a steady growth due to Mr. Elzinga's upright, forceful management. Recently Mr. Elzinga has been forced to build an addition to the original building and during the past year has kept two repair men. He also has the agency for Chevrolet cars, and the number of these cars in constant use in this part of the country testifies to the worth of the car and to the selling ability of the agent.

On our way up town we may as well stop for a cup of coffee and a lunch at the restaurant owned and run by Mr. and Mrs. Albert Parsons. This is the first year of this place under the present management and is a proven success to judge by the number of meals and lunches dispensed daily and by the amount of home-made baked goods sold. A fine line of cigars, tobaccos and candies are always in stock and you are assured a cheery word and a pleasant chat as well as a thoughtful, courteous reception and one hundred cents value for every dollar spent when ever you drop in.

Only two places are left for a friendly call and the first we will visit now. This one is the Ellsworth Drug Co. Arthur Gidley is in charge of this store, coming here in October, 1918, from Detroit. Mr. Gidley has made a special effort to make his place of business attractive and his decorations and window display is second to none in the village. This year he specializes in books, stationary, cigars, candies, etc., for the Christmas buyers and in these or numerous other lines an excellent assortment is offered.

D. E. Clow & Co. is last but by no means least on the list, and Mr. Clow's regular line of groceries and furnishings has this year been augmented by a new line of toys and candies, ties, mufflers and handkerchiefs, while an exceptionally good line of stationary is also on sale. Mr. Clow is glad to meet all his old customers as well as new ones during the Christmas rush and will be glad to show his goods and will show the proper Christmas spirit, no matter what your decision regarding a purchase.

This finishes our trip and we leave it to you if you find it necessary to spend your money and your time in visiting other places for your Santa Claus work.

Three Capital Crimes.

"When I was a boy," states Mr. Patch in Stockton Herald, "there were three capital crimes—murder, blasphemy, and lying about in the morning. Of the three, murder and blasphemy might sometimes be forgiven, but lying never. One of my grandfathers frequently got up at four o'clock on a winter morning, built a fire in the cook stove and then would sit down by it and go to sleep."—Kansas City Times.

A Christmas Gift for the Entire Family---

A Chevrolet

Can you imagine anything that would be more appreciated? The entire family would enjoy it equally—father, mother, son and daughter. The only way to get real pleasure out of an automobile is to own one—a Chevrolet—as hundreds of our own citizens will testify. Easy to handle, economical to run, and a service station near at hand should any difficulty arise. Buy now is the slogan. With the coal strike, the steel strike and other labor difficulties, it may be hard to get a car in the spring. We can get deliveries now and will hold the car for you until you want it. Automobile experts make the following statement:

"Now is the time to buy your automobile, now is the time to secure the widest selection of models and now is the time to arrange for delivery.

"1920 Models are established. The public has had an opportunity to judge them in operation. There will be little change, if any, during the current year.

"There is no indication that prices will be lowered. The demand for automobiles is steadily increasing and it becomes especially heavy from spring on.

"By placing your order during the winter months the uncertainty of spring and summer demand is avoided. Manufacturers are enabled to calculate the demand more definitely and to produce accordingly. Likewise delivery is made more convenient for the purchaser.

"And there is plenty of use to be enjoyed from automobiles during the winter months. The time has passed when a car's utility ended with fine weather. Today, with all the conveniences, one uses his car the year around.

"In fact it is during severe weather that a car proves to be of the greatest convenience. Especially is this true of the practical closed cars that have become so popular for all season use. That's just what they're made for.

"In short the purchaser who orders his car now has nothing to lose. If he does not want his car right away delivery may be regulated accordingly. If he does he can begin to get practical return from it just so much sooner.

"And a good car will be as fit as ever when summer comes, and what's more he'll have it."

You'll have a good car if you buy a Chevrolet. Buy right now—for the family Christmas present. We will deliver the car when you want it.

GIVES CANTATA

Fair Sized Audience in Spite of the Storm

Braving the worst storm of the season a fair sized audience greatly enjoyed the beautiful Christmas cantata, "The Light Eternal," given at the Methodist Episcopal church last Sunday evening by the church choir assisted by special soloists.

The very capable presentation of this cantata, under the leadership of Miss Helena Bates, fully sustained the reputation of the choir for the rendition of first class music in a pleasing manner.

The soloists were Mrs. Archie Livingston, Charles A. Hamlin, Frank Poole, C. Beers, Muriel Waterhouse, Ney Smith and Helena Bates. Following are the names of the chorus: Arthus Nordrum, Vernard Miller, Irene Auld, Dotty Sickles, Lucile

McDonald, and Nellie Allen. Miss Ethelyn Morrison presided at the piano with her usual fine ability. The solo work of Mrs. Livingston and Mr. Hamlin was especially appreciated.

CHARGE HUNTER WITH MURDER

FRANK NUSS KILLED WHILE AFTER DEER

Coroner's Jury Finds Shot Was Fired by Father, John Nuss—Investigation Is On

Munising, Mich.—"We find that Frank Nuss came to his death on Oct. 14, 1919, by a charge fired from a shotgun held in the hands of his father, John Nuss." This was the verdict returned here late Thursday by the coroner's jury in the case of the death of Frank Nuss, thirty-two, who died in a lonely spot in Matthias township, from gunshot wounds.

The father who was taken into custody by Sheriff John Thornton immediately after the verdict was announced and, charged with first degree murder, pleaded not guilty in justice court here. He is held without bail, awaiting trial. Nuss had been employed in a local factory.

The alleged murder ranks with the most cold-blooded shootings ever perpetrated in the north woods. According to the authorities on Oct. 14 Nuss and his son purchased guns and ammunition at Gladstone. They reached Munising the following day and leased a few acres of land in Matthias township, Alger county, at a spot on the Black river, eighteen miles from any habitation and inaccessible at times of the year.

On the day following the elder Nuss appeared at the home of Supervisor Charles Lightfoot and asked to hire a team to take his belongings away. When pressed for the reason of his removal he said that his "companion" had been shot. At the coroner's investigation Nuss said his son had been shot from ambush by an unidentified man. The son dropped where he was shot and the father maintains he stood watch for three hours over his dying son, keeping him covered with blankets as he complained of the cold. The charge of shot entered the left lung.

While Nuss is awaiting trial the sheriff is investigating the circumstances leading up to the death of the wife of Nuss. The woman met death in Tennessee a year ago, according to Nuss, in an automobile accident.

The Nuss family formerly resided in Jackson county where a $7,000 farm was recently sold. At Ann Arbor they operated a lunch room and also resided for a while in Ottawa county. The first hint that Mrs. Nuss was possibly murdered was given officers by Nuss' daughter who resides in Arizona and refused aid to her father. A former schoolmate of Nuss in Ottawa county furnished more incriminating evidence.

Volcanoes in Britain.

The two great centers of earthquake activity in the British Isles are Cornwall, in Perthshire, and Moresby Island, in the month of the Blackwater, on the Essex coast. In both these localities earthquakes are frequent, and earthquakes are usually a sign of volcanic activity. Highly unpleasant as it would be, geologists would be no more surprised at the resurrection of one of the British volcanoes than they have been at the rebirth of Mount Elburz.

MICHIGAN MAY GET CORN BORER

Has Been Discovered in the East—Dangerous Insect

That there is danger that the European Corn Borer, a dangerous insect which has gained quite a foothold in the east, may be introduced to Michigan in shipments of nursery stock is the opinion of Mr. L. R. Taft, State Inspector of Orchards and Nurseries. The corn borer has become quite widely distributed throughout eastern Massachusetts and in certain sections of New York, and it is feared that Michigan may become infested with the pest.

Practically all forms of farm crops are attacked by the borer, and the fact that it also attacks all of the larger weeds, concealing itself in the pith, makes it well nigh impossible to exterminate the pest when it once gets a foothold in a section. It is known to attack more than 100 of our common plants, but, as the name would imply, is most often found in the ears and stalks of corn.

"The most likely means of the corn borer's introduction into Michigan is with nursery stock," says Mr. Taft. "The danger is not so much from its being in the stock itself, although it might be found in herbaceous perennials such as iris and peonies, but from the straw, rushes, flags and other coarse grasses and weeds with which the stock might be packed. For this reason it is advisable to burn all packing material which comes around nursery stock, especially if straw or other coarse material has been used."

"Although there is as yet no general quarantine against shipments from the infested sections, we would strongly advise against bringing in nursery stock from New England, or from eastern or southwestern New York. There is not likely to be any danger at this time with shipments from Rochester, Geneva, Newark, Dansville and other nursery centers in central New York, however."

"The larvae of the borer are smooth, grayish in color, and about one inch in length. The pupae are grown, cigar-shaped and about one-half inch long. If anything suspicious is found you should mail samples to the State Inspector of Nurseries and Orchards, East Lansing, Michigan, enclosing the specimens in a tin box, as the larvae can cut through a paper box."

INTERESTED IN NATIONAL GUARD

CHARLEVOIX REGION WANTS REGIMENTS

Cheboygan, Soo, East Jordan and Alpena Watch Closely Efforts of Reorganization

Cheboygan, the Soo, Alpena, East Jordan and other places in the Charlevoix region are greatly interested in the effort being made to reorganize the Michigan National Guard regiments. Hundreds of men who were members of the various guard regiments before the war are anxious that guard regiments be organized through Northern Michigan and are working with this end in view.

Michigan veterans of the world war and former militiamen who attended the conference in Lansing are enthusiastic over the plan to reorganize the National Guard in this state. More than 200 officers and men, the majority wearing the Red Arrow of the famous 32nd division, were here in an effort to stimulate interest in the new National Guard organization.

Every city in the state in which a state armory is located was represented. Grand Rapids sent fifty representatives to the meeting while Detroit was represented by a still larger delegation.

Col. John S. Bersey, adjutant general of Michigan, explained the national defense act under which the new guard will be constructed. He declared there was no National Guard in Michigan at the present time except 100 officers who have re-enlisted. In order to meet the requirements of the federal law Michigan must have 3,000 men enlisted by June 30, 1920, and the law required the guard to be increased each year until a maximum strength of 12,000 is reached.

Before equipment and supplies will be issued by the government it is necessary, under the terms of the national defense act, for the guard to be organized. Men who served during the world war and former guardsmen who were honorably discharged prior to the declaration of war may enlist for one year. Other enlistments will be for three years.

Former guardsmen who declared a few months ago that they were through with military life are beginning to take interest again, according to those who attended the conference, and officers declare little difficulty will be experienced in obtaining the desired number of recruits.

M. E. CHURCH NOTES

The stereopticon entertainment advertised for next Sunday evening, has had to be postponed to Sunday, December 28th.

Mrs. Frank Metcalf has succeeded Mrs. Dr. Auld as president of the missionary societies.

Preceding the administering of the sacrament of the Lord's supper last Sunday morning, the minister called for a special offering to be used by the presidents of the ladies' societies of the church for the relief of any distressed family in Charlevoix. The free will offering to be accepted on Christmas Eve will be used for the same purpose. If you know of any family needing assistance kindly notify Rev. Candler.

A very pleasing program is being prepared for Christmas Eve. There will be a Christmas tree with a real live Santa and a gift for everyone.

HISTORICAL SOCIETY FRIDAY EVENING

Will Meet at the Home of Dr. and Mrs. R. B. Armstrong

The Charlevoix Historical society will meet with Dr. and Mrs. Robert B. Armstrong Friday evening at their home on Bridge street.

MAIL YOUR XMAS PACKAGES EARLY

Removal of Trains Causes Confusion —“Early Mailing” Urged

From the local post office comes the urgent appeal to Charlevoix people to “Mail your Christmas Packages early.” This is not the same as of yore. This year, more than any other year, this request should be heeded by all who intend to mail packages. It is a sincere and earnest request, and Postmaster Finucan stated this morning, that this is very important. “We earnestly request, and appeal to the Charlevoix people to mail all packages as early as possible, and if necessary resort to the old “Do not open until Christmas” because the mail congestion is getting to be a serious proposition.

“All postoffices are crowded with mail packages, and with the mail trains being taken off by government order, this has greatly increased the congestion,” said Postmaster Finucan.

While the trains will be restored to the old schedule with the trains taken off several days ago, replaced, this will not do away with the congestion. It has been such all year, that everything has been jammed, and the postal clerks have more than they can handle.

The local clerks are working overtime, to take care of the heavy rush of Christmas mailing, and it is the duty of all Charlevoix people, who intend to do any mailing, to do so as early as possible. This will be a great lift to all postal clerks, will greatly ease up the congestion at Christmas time, which is expected to increase, and will insure the safe arrival of the packages at its destination.

CONG. SUNDAY SCHOOL ENTERTAINED

Primary Department Given Supper at Church

The primary department of the Congregational Sunday school was entertained and given a supper Monday night by the officers and teachers of this department of the Sunday school, assisted by the ladies of the church.

The supper for the little folks was given in the church parlors and began at six o'clock and never was there a more elaborate spread even for big folks. The tables were very nicely decorated and dinner cards were at each place. The tables were decorated with candles.

After the children had finished eating everyone went up stairs and here they sang Christmas songs and some of the speeches were given. They were also entertained with stereopticon views and a talk by Dr. Leuthi of Toledo.

SURPRISED HER ON BIRTHDAY

Young People Gather at Home of Josephine Trimble

Miss Josephine Trimble was pleasantly surprised at her home on State street Monday evening by about fifteen of her young friends, who came to help her celebrate her eighteenth birthday.

Games and music were enjoyed until the refreshments were served. The beautifully decorated birthday cake of course held the place of honor. Each person present blew out one of the tiny candles and expressed a wish for the hostess.

Miss Trimble received many small gifts from those present and all unanimously voted her a splendid hostess.

BAD BREAK IN WATER MAIN

At Corner of Park Avenue and State Streets

The entire water system of Clinton street and Park Avenue was out of commission last Sunday afternoon and evening due to a break in the water main supplying these two streets.

The break occurred in the main at the corner of Park Avenue and State street, upheaving the ground and giving that part of the town the appearance of ground that had been disturbed by an earthquake.

Work was immediately begun on the break and after a period of seven or eight hours the water supply was again to be had.

COUNTY NORMAL NOTES

Miss Stewart was a visitor at the normal rooms Friday morning.

The normal class began to accession the books in the normal library Tuesday afternoon.

Leone McNeil supplied for Miss Irish in Junior high Monday.

The normal class enjoyed their Christmas tree no less than the other rooms.

CITY TO HAVE CHRISTMAS TREE

To Be Placed on Corner of Bridge and Clinton Streets

The community Christmas tree that has been pending in this city for the past two weeks, has at last materialized and that Charlevoix will now have a Christmas tree for the entire public is a fact.

This tree is to be furnished by Mr. R. F. Sloan, who will probably secure it from the woods of the Loeb farms. The tree will be lighted and decorated by Wood Bros., electricians of this city. The power for lights will be supplied by the city, this movement passing the council last meeting.

The tree will be placed on the corner of Bridge and Clinton streets, across from the County Bank building, and will occupy the center of the street leaving enough room on each side to allow vehicles to pass easily. This place has been decided upon and will no doubt be favorable with the entire community as it is a central location convenient to all.

Whether or not an elaborate program will be arranged and given is not known at present, but it has been announced for certain that there will be singing on Christmas Eve. The arrangements are that the young people will gather at the tree before the Christmas exercises of the various churches of the city have begun and sing Christmas carols. After the different church programs they will again gather and if the weather is permissible proceed through the city singing their carols.

Have Xmas The Year Around

What is more beautiful than the children's Christmas tree and the many other decorations and flowers that fill our homes during the holiday period?

Why not make this a year around proposition? The Charlevoix County Nurseries have many varieties of firs and pines that keep their foliage the year around, and always have that green that reminds us of Yuletide. Here you can also obtain many things in the flower line and for decoration, not the kind of flowers that must be kept in vases, but flowers full of life that bloom on and on.

Beautify your home and grounds with plants and shrubs from our nurseries.

To the people of this community, not only those that we have met in the past but those whose acquaintance we hope to gain in the future we wish a very Merry Christmas and a prosperous 1920.

ALWAYS TAKING JOY OUT OF LIFE

Revenue Department Declares Man's
Home Is Not His Castle

If there are any people in Charlevoix who own those things known as "home stills," they had best heed the warning edict issued by federal authority which denounces the private "brewery" as unlawful, and states clearly that the domestic "booze factory" must go.

Since the country took on its cloak of prohibition, the belief has been more or less common that to manufacture a little home-made "toddy" for one's private and personal use would not be regarded as stepping on the skirts of the liquor law. But the bureau of internal revenue has come to the front with an announcement that home brewing of beer, or domestic distillation of whiskey or other alcoholic liquors have come very much under the prohibition ban, and the public is given solemn warning.

The bureau's statement says that any person found to be manufacturing alcoholic liquor in his own home for domestic use will be subject to the penalties of the law.

The ruling goes even further, and declares that firms who have been advertising corn mash for the amateur production of hops and malt for the brewing of beer, will be subject to prosecution in all cases where their recipes are used.

Accompanying the ruling of the bureau of internal revenue is the statement that the penalty for violation is one year's imprisonment or $10,000 fine, or both.

It has been the general impression in some circles that the man who wanted to make beer at home for his own use would not be interfered with, and even, that private stills would be permitted if the distiller used the liquor for personal consumption. However, the ruling of the department of internal revenue has induced many manufacturers of home and neighborhood stills to refrain from further sales of their products.

NEWBERRY SEAT NOT FOR FORD

plying the precedents. The William Lorimer case, however, was cited as a parallel, the senate having voted to expel him after charges had been made that there was corruption in the Illinois legislature which elected him. A new election was ordered in that case.

A recount of the ballots probably will be made and it is on the possibility that a majority might be found for Ford that his chances of getting a seat in the senate at an early date hang. Even in that case, Ford's election would have to be certified, by Gov. Sleeper of Michigan, and it is possible this might be refused in the ground of assertion that fraud occurred in the election and that no result could therefore be valid.

Do You Want Your Kidneys Examined On?

Kidney troubles are getting more common every day. Government health bureau figures say deaths from this cause are 72 per cent more than 20 years ago.

Anybody who suffers constant backache, who feels blue, nervous and irritable; who has dizzy spells, headache and urinary disorders should suspect kidney weakness. Overworked kidneys must have a rest. Take things easier; live more carefully. Take a good kidney remedy to build the kidneys up again.

But be sure to get Doan's Kidney Pills—the oldest, the most widely used, the best recommended of all kidney pills, now in use all over the civilized world. Don't experiment with your kidneys. Thousands have already tested Doan's. You have their experience to go by. Plenty of cases right here in Charlevoix. Here's one:

Mrs. Wesley Staley, 211 Mason St., Charlevoix, says: "I can conscientiously recommend Doan's Kidney Pills as a fine kidney medicine. My back was lame and I felt tired and languid. My kidneys troubled me, too. Doan's Kidney Pills, procured from Hines & Co.'s Drug Store, completely removed the trouble."

Price 60c, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mrs. Staley had. Foster-Milburn Co., Mfrs., Buffalo, N. Y.

Significance of Christmas

MAKE Christmas a jolly time.

The whole significance of Christmas is generosity, clarity, good fellowship and consequent happiness, and we must stand in with this spirit of joyfulness or admit ourselves as by no means belonging to the highest types of humanity. If we adopt the Irishman's well-known and philosophical dictum, that "one man's as good's another and some a deal sight better," then we want to be a "deal sight" in most everything, and good fellowship proclaims that loudest and longest.

So, go in for a good time in any old first-class, fine-edged way you can get it, at home or abroad, outdoors or in, upstairs or down, with or without the best means for enjoyment, for the means can be made; if you're determined to make it, there is always a way. If you lack dollars, use pennies; if you lack pennies, use your wits. There are many other things that you have in abundance to spend, and you can spend them by transferring to others and the general atmosphere your optimistic joyfulness over what you have, be it much or little.

CLARION

The Profiters in Coal

A rule of commerce is that the tendency of prices is upwards whenever the demand exceeds the supply. Usually there is not much controversy over prices when the purchasers are chiefly interested in getting the goods. Therefore not many people are questioning the price of sugar in the market today. They are willing to take it at any price. If, as Federal Judge Anderson has intimated, there has been collusion on the part of coal operators and miners, then it is reasonable to suppose that in the processes of natural laws of trade, coal would be selling this winter at hitherto unheard of prices, except for the intervention of the Government, which has been able to lay down a hard rule to protect the consumers of the country, by forbidding an increase in the selling price of coal. The coal operators objected to this measure very strenuously, when the controversy was first taken to Washington for decision. However, when exposure of enormous profits threatened them, the operators decided that discretion was the better part of valor, and hastened to declare that they would do anything the Government decided upon. Despite denials, the probabilities are that Secretary of the Treasury Glass and former Secretary McAdoo were in position to back up their allegations that the profits to coal operators have been anywhere from 15 per cent to 2,000 per cent. These profiteers were, however, found to be less stubborn than the profiteers who mined the coal, and who continued to remain on strike when a scientific adjustment was announced, raising their wages fourteen per cent. With cities running their business houses on half time, and the great industries of the country closing down, or operating on a six-hour a day schedule, with train service reduced to the minimum; and with general disaster and freezing threatening the whole country, the so-called "radical group" of miners continued to fight against yielding to the Government. Every intelligent analysis leads to the conclusion that nearly 400,000 coal miners have had the country by the throat, and their manner of defying the Government was not a bit less rebellious than that which occurred in slavery days when a group of states started out running things on their own hook. The only difference was that in one case the men backed up their protest with arms and ammunition, whereas the coal miners stayed at home, and there is no evidence that their idleness brought any hardship to them or their families, since they seemed to be well supplied with money.

A commission is to be devised to adjust questions of employment in the coal industry. It is reasonable to predict that such a commission will establish a just standard between the operators and employees. Of course this is in keeping with progressive policies in industry. But when the commission has finished, the same unruly hordes in the coal mining business (including operators and miners) who have imposed their selfish affairs upon the public, will doubtless still be found kicking over whatever awards and conclusions may be arrived at.

A great many people are prone to believe that the better policy on the part of the public would be to see the game of profiteering among coal operators and miners through to the finish, by letting soldiers and citizens, who have a high regard for the rights of the public, operate the coal mines, letting the selfish interests that are in charge of the industry, get as much the worst of things as it would be possible to hand out to them.

Where Are the Liberty Bonds?
Where are the liberty bonds of yesteryear? Who remembers those intensely patriotic gentlemen that arose in the theatres and moving picture houses and called out their bids in thousand dollar lots? Great applause! There were others who took a measly fifty or a hundred dollar bond, which they paid for on the installment plan. These people still have their bonds. It is different with those other purchasers, who bought "spectacular bonds." According to the Federal Reserve bulletin $5,500,000 of Liberty bonds, victory notes and treasury certificates were owned outright and held as collateral for loans in the banks of the country on June 30, 1910. This vast amount of bank credit has been manufactured and put in circulation as purchasing power. The figures serve to explain the great increase in the wealth of the country, which is reflected in a large measure in the increases in prices for commodities and labor.

Senator Jones of Washington, told the Senate the other day, that the ultimate development of all the power available in navigable streams, would be equal to 780,000,000 tons of coal, representing a value of more than $1,500,000,000 — more coal than the country now actually consumes. At the same time, the ultimate development would reclaim for navigation, more than 4,000 of the upper reaches of navigable streams, and besides developing power would develop systems of water transportation. Twenty-two states, most of them in the west and south, according to Senator Jones, need legislation to unlock their natural resources. The years of useless delay that have occurred in passing any helpful legislation along these lines, calls to mind the words of Theodore Burton, who when a member of the Senate from Ohio said: "I sometime question whether there is any strong disposition for economy in governmental, state and municipal affairs. Sentiment in its favor is vague and unorganized." As Mr. Burton spoke, he might have looked out upon the Potomac river, where according to the Geological Survey, "four hundred or five hundred tons of coal are floating past Washington daily."

The old government organization known as the Bureau of Corporations devoted itself to furthering the idea, expressed by Commissioner Smith, that the need was "rigid supervision, to protect the public from monopolistic power." The Federal Trade, which succeeds this Bureau, has followed the same warning. And Congress, always afraid of the bogey man, has kept the natural resources of the country under lock and key—"protecting" the public against "monopolistic power"—until the "public" has become quite insistent in demanding that its streams turn water wheels and convert God-given forces into power to be distributed far and wide, instead of running on, furnishing only rhymes about men who come and men who go, while it goes on forever; or stories of fish which Will o' the Mill saw in his mountain stream, always swimming in the same direction.

It is said that in Washington more than two thousand persons are studying the Spanish language, and it is estimated that an equally large number are studying French. The Berlitz School of Languages has been the principal headquarters for the great crop of Americans who are becoming linguists. This chain of schools extends around the globe and was established by that pioneer citizen of the world, M. D. Berlitz. To his deep vision may be traced the better understanding that has come to exist between people of different tongues, since he has convinced them that if for no other than commercial purposes, it is necessary to include in the qualification of a good education a knowledge of more than one language. Washingtonians were inclined to be somewhat skeptical some years ago, when Mr. Berlitz and his associates persistently insisted that the South American and Central American countries could never be brought into sympathetic contact with the commercial and political interests of the United States until a large number of our people at home learned to talk and write in the home language of the people whose friendly interest they desired to cultivate. But time vindicated that prophecy, with the result that today no one has the temerity to go either as a diplomat or a consular or trade representative to countries in Central or South America without having first obtained at least a smattering of Spanish. And while the world war has added additional proof to the American belief that the English tongue is destined to be the language of the world, nevertheless the returning soldier hardly exists who has not brought home with him splendid additions to his vocabulary, and some kind of understanding of French or other foreign languages, that have increased his usefulness to himself, and made of him a better champion of world rights—and a more intelligent idealist. The wonderful foresight of Mr. Berlitz has been emphasized in the experience of many people who went to Europe from Washington in official capacities.

With Kindest Thoughts and Best Wishes for Christmas

PICK CAREFULLY NEWBERRY JURY

NO ELECTION WORKER ALLOW-ED TO SERVE

Persons Who Approach Juror Regarding Case Will Be Sent to Jail, Says Sessions

Recent dispatches say no man who was active in the primaries or election during the 1918 senatorial campaign, either with the democratic or republican party, will be permitted to sit as a juror in the trial of the Newberry case in District court at Grand Rapids, it has been announced following a conference between Judge Sessions and attorneys representing the government and the 135 respondents.

This is one of the reasons assigned for the special venire of 150 talesmen, which was ordered by the court. The decision of the court indicates that since the government would be allowed only six peremptory challenges and the respondents ten, the interpretation of the court of a challenge for cause would be reasonably liberal.

It was understood that the limitation of the peremptory challenges to six and ten for the government and the respondents, respectively, was in line with a decision of the United States Supreme court coming out of a case tried in District court in Vermont.

Judge Sessions said pointedly, the attorneys say, that during the ensuing weeks while the jury is being selected and while agents for both sides are investigating the prospective jurors that under no conditions should a juror be approached and engaged in conversation concerning the case after he has been notified that he had been drawn. "And a man who does approach a juror," the court is quoted as saying, "and it is reported to me, is on his way to jail." He added that this applies with equal force to the agents for the government and defense.

Preparations for the Newberry trial, the most important that ever has been taken up in District court in the western district of Michigan, now are being made by court attaches under direction of the court.

The greatest obstacle which is being met with now is to provide accommodations for the 135 respondents who must be in attendance all the time, the attorneys for various defendants, the 186 jurors who will be summoned, the two score or more of newspaper representatives from all parts of the country and the spectators who will desire to hear the proceedings. There promises to be no space for an audience.

Marshal Herman O'Connor is trying to devise ways of jamming more chairs and tables in the room. Undoubtedly there will be many disappointed spectators and some newspapermen when the trial is under way.

DRINK A GLASS OF REAL HOT WATER BEFORE BREAKFAST.

Says we will both look and feel clean, sweet and fresh and avoid illness.

Sanitary science has of late made rapid strides with results that are of untold blessing to humanity. The latest application of its untiring research is the recommendation that it is as necessary to attend to lateral sanitation of the drainage system of the human body as it is to the drains of the house.

Those of us who are accustomed to feel dull and heavy when we arise, splitting headache, stuffy from a cold, foul tongue, nasty breath, acid stomach, can, instead, feel as fresh as a daisy by opening the sluices of the system each morning and flushing out the whole of the lateral poisonous stagnant matter.

Everyone, whether ailing, sick or well, should, each morning before breakfast, drink a glass of real hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it to wash from the stomach, liver and bowels the previous day's indigestible waste, sour bile and poisonous toxins; thus cleansing, sweetening and purifying the entire alimentary canal before putting more food into the stomach. The action of hot water and limestone phosphate on an empty stomach is wonderfully invigorating. It cleans out all the sour fermentations, gases, waste and acidity and gives one a splendid appetite for breakfast. While you are enjoying your breakfast the phosphate hot water is quietly extracting a large volume of water from the blood and getting ready for a thorough flushing of all the faulty organs.

The millions of people who are both red with constipation, bilious smells stomach trouble, rheumatic stiffness, others who have sallow skins, blood disorders and sickly complexions are urged to get a quarter pound of lime stone phosphate from the drug store. This will cost very little, but is sufficient to make anyone a pronounced example of the subject of lateral sanitation.

HEAVY MEAT EATERS HAVE SLOW KIDNEYS

Eat less meat if you feel Backache or have bladder trouble—Take glass of Salts

No man or woman who eats meat regularly can make a mistake by flushing the kidneys occasionally, says a well-known authority. Meat forms uric acid which excites the kidneys, they become overworked from the strain, get sluggish and fail to filter the waste and poisons from the blood, then we get sick. Nearly all rheumatism, headaches, liver trouble, nervousness, dizziness, sleeplessness and urinary disorders come from sluggish kidneys.

The moment you feel a dull ache in the kidneys or your back hurts or if the urine is cloudy, offensive, full of sediment, irregular of passage or attended by a sensation of scalding, stop eating meat and get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast and in a few days your kidneys will act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate the kidneys, also to neutralize the acids in urine so it no longer causes irritation, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive and cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia water drink which everyone should take now and then to keep the kidneys clean and active and the blood pure, thereby avoiding serious kidney complications.

Christmas— and Old Loves

By LAURA JEAN LIBBEY

When I think on the happy days
I spent with you, my little dears,
Now what lands between us lie,
How can I but be eerie?

As yuletide draws near, a man's mind is very apt to revert to happy Christmas times that have gone before. There is most always a woman connected with a man's happy times and pleasant day dreams. The man who left the farm to make his fortune in the great city and who has become rich, a bachelor boarding at a fashionable hotel or club, can usually recall some particularly happy Christmas in the long ago—a Christmas dinner in the old home, taking his first sweetheart Christmas eve to a ball in the town hall; the delight of taking her home—a mile through snow drifts on a winter night. He had written to her a few times after leaving home, then the excitement of city life had crowded her out of his memory and his life. As Christmas draws nigh again, thoughts carry him back to the girl he loved when time was young with him. On the impulse of the moment he dashes off a letter to her. He does not know whether she will receive it. She may be married or she may have moved away. The old folks at home had been careful never to mention her even in answer to his inquiries.

How strange it is that the same thought can fill two different minds at the same time. The girl of long ago, still single, knowing he has not wed, picks up courage to send a Christmas card to the boy grown old now who took her to her first ball on Christmas eve. The letter and card cross each other as each flies to its goal. The bachelor finds it in his Christmas mail. The lonely woman standing by a window in a far-off farmhouse has a letter handed to her by a neighboring farmer who kindly fetched it to her from the post office. Christmas morning. Simultaneously there is a warm glow in two hearts widely severed.

And yet there are people who wonder that there are romances which are revived at yuletide when men and women no longer young sigh for love and home cheer, if they sit alone and lonely listening to the chiming of the Christmas bells.

Christmas day is the time to light the sacred fire upon the altar of old hopes and loves and make the longing and dreams realities. Sending a little Christmas card with a well-chosen kindly verse is sure to find an echo in a lonely heart at this time of all others. One should not check the kindly impulse to send one. It can do no harm and it may bring much happiness. To whom are you going to send your "Merry Christmas" card in this year of our Lord 1917? Perhaps I'll find one in my stocking. I'll hang it up and see. I take this occasion to send each and every one of my readers a Merry Christmas, together with the wish that the coming year may be the most successful one of their lives.

"A Visit From St. Nicholas"

WHAT is the best known poem in the world? Not Gray's "Elegy," nor "The Song of the Shirt," nor "The Raven," but "The Night Before Christmas." The author is not so well known as his poem.

One recent Christmas the name of Clement Clarke Moore was honored as never before. Above his grave to the chapel of Holy Trinity cemetery, New York, the choir boys sang carols on the night before Christmas, and a service of light was held. This beautiful ceremonial starts with a procession of torchbearers whose torches are kindled from the leader's flame, and as the line winds through the graveyard the fire is passed back from one to another until the lights grow in number and dispel the surrounding darkness.

The father of Clement Clarke Moore was once the bishop of New York. "The Night Before Christmas" was published originally without the author's knowledge in the Troy Sentinel two days before Christmas, 1823. Moore had written it, the preceding Christmas just for the delight of his own children, but its circulation slipped beyond the family circle, and an unknown friend sent it for publication. The Sentinel readers paid no attention to it, and it passed without comment until seven years later, when the same paper reprinted it. The second reception was very different from the first. "A Visit From St. Nicholas," as it was then entitled, was copied broadcast, and its author awoke to find his work, if not himself, famous.

Although Clement Clarke Moore was educated for the ministry, he never took orders. For the greater part of his life he was identified with the New York General Theological seminary, being professor of Biblical learning and Greek and later of oriental languages.

Clement Moore's family life had many sorrows. His wife died at the early age of thirty-five, and the two little daughters, for whom he wrote "The Night Before Christmas," both died in their childhood. His son and namesake lived to the age of sixty-eight and is buried in the family plot.

When "The Night Before Christmas" was first published in the Troy Sentinel the editor wrote:

"We do not know to whom we are indebted for the following description of that unwearied patron of children, that homely but delightful personification of parental kindness, Santa Claus, his custom and his equipage, as he goes about visiting the firesides of this happy land, laden with Christmas homilies, but from whomsoever it may have come we give thanks for it. There is to our apprehension a spirit of cordial goodness in it, a playfulness as of fancy and a benevolent alacrity to enter into the feelings and promote the simple pleasures of children which are altogether charming. We hope our little patrons, both laids and ladies, will accept it as a proof of our unforgotten good will toward them, a token of our warmest wish that they may have many a merry Christmas; that they may long retain their beautiful relish for these unthought, home-bred joys, which derive their flavor from filial piety and fraternal love and which, they may be assured, are the least alloyed that time can furnish them."—Philadelphia Press.

Christmas Song.

Oh, Christmas is a happy time,
When human hearts are light
And human hate has vanished
And all the world looks bright!

And Christmas is a solemn time,
For back long, long ago,
Christ was born to give the world
The joy that we now know.

But not alone at Christmas time
Is happiness and cheer,
For he who really loves his Lord
Lifts Christmas all the year.

The East Jordan Electric Light & Power Co. are contemplating the re-building of the old power dam on Deer Creek, near the fair grounds. If present plans mature the plant will be in operation by the coming summer. Considerable work has already been done in way of drafting plans and making blue prints, the securing of flowage rights and option on properties. Some of the old material is still on the site and can be utilized to good advantage.

While the project calls for a considerable investment, the Electric Light Co. management feel confident that it will pay out in the end. Their steam power plant here is one of the best of its size in the state, and will be used in conjunction with the water power. The cost of coal, however, is becoming a serious problem, and there are times when it is almost impossible to obtain it. With the addition of the water power it is figured that both plants can be operated about fifty per cent of the time taking the year round, and this will mean a great saving on fuel expense.

At that time it released a twenty-eight foot, head of water which swept down to the lake causing considerable damage. What the actual cause of its giving away was never known. There is no question, however, but what the dam can be rebuilt in such substantial manner that it will hold for all time. And water power is the cheapest power without question.—East Jordan Herald.

John Burroughs, the naturalist, who is spending some time in Michigan with Henry Ford, the auto king, says we are to have a severe winter, and as a reason for his prediction points to the fact that an Arctic bird that very rarely comes south of the Hudson Bay is wintering in Michigan. There are flocks of them on Mr. Ford's farm at Dearborn. Trappers tell of the strong and thick houses muskrats are building and farmers point to the corn husks and a lot of other signs. Take them for what they are worth.

Beginning Jan. 1, dealers in automobiles, owners and operators of garages must keep a full and complete record of all sales and purchases made, and the cars taken in exchange, specifying the date of sale, name and residence of the purchaser and vendor, and the make, serial number and motor number and description of the vehicle.

Duplicate copies of such records must be furnished on the first day of each month thereafter to the department of state. First reports are due Feb. 1, next year. The department is supplying prescribed forms to garages for this work.

HINTS FOR BELATED GIFTS

Bags and Aprons Are Easily and Quickly Made and They Are Always Acceptable.

For many weeks before Christmas the household is busy with needle, crocheting hook and knitting shuttle, fashioning Christmas gifts for family and friends. But, there always are some belated gifts, that must be made during the last few days, for friends that we would like to remember.

In such cases there is nothing more quickly or easily made than bags and aprons, and one never can have too many of either. Laundry bags, stocking bags, darning bags, piece bags and bags for soiled handkerchiefs can be made of lint or cretonne, and fancy work bags, purse bags, and handkerchief bags may be made of silk and ribbon. Several of these bags can easily be made in an evening, and they are always acceptable gifts.

And aprons—no woman ever had too many aprons. A few yards of gingham, percale and butcher's linen made up into aprons which would not require more than a day to make a good supply, would go a long way as gifts to busy house mothers. And caps, also. At this time almost every woman wears some sort of cap when doing her house work, and a neat, washable cap makes an acceptable gift, and requires little skill in the making. And so with these practical and quickly made gifts one may be able to catch up with Christmas remembrances, even though belated until the last few days before Christmas.

LADIES! LOOK YOUNG, DARKEN GRAY HAIR

Use the Old-time Sage Tea and Sulphur and Nobody Will know.

Gray hair, however handsome, denotes advancing age. We all know the advantage of a youthful appearance. Your hair is your charm. It makes or mars the face. When it fades, turns gray and looks streaked, just a few applications of Sage Tea and Sulphur enhances its appearance a hundred-fold.

Don't stay gray! Look young! Either prepare the recipe at home or get from any drug store a bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," which is merely the old-time recipe improved by the addition of other ingredients. Thousands of folks recommend this ready-to-use preparation, because it darkens the hair beautifully, lustrously, no one can possibly tell, as it darkens so naturally and evenly. You must use a sponge or soft brush with it, drawing this through the hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears; after another application or two, its natural color is restored and it becomes thick, glossy and lustrous, and you appear years younger. Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound is a delightful toilet requisite. It is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.

Dufresnay's Christmas Awakening

ON Christmas morning of the year 1681 M. Dufresnay's apartments were in some confusion. Monsieur himself as he slept on a spindle-legged sofa was not the very image of order. His rose colored sash coat was under his head, and his silk stockings calves dangled over the end of his all too brief bed. The cards of yesterday and yesternight bestrewn the floor.

He was disturbed by the insistent tinkling of a bell. Dufresnay groaned and struggled to his feet.

On opening the door he beheld a very beautiful young lady quaintly disguised as a working woman and carrying a large basket such as laundresses use. Dufresnay retreated in confusion, howling profoundly and wrestling with his coat.

"I pray you pardon me, mademoiselle. I did not expect a—a vision!"

"And I pray you, monsieur, not to mock me," she replied, with a wry lit-seen me before, but I live not far away, and I have often seen you. You are not yourself now or you would not mock me so."

"I was never myself before," insisted Dufresnay.

At this moment a stately personage appeared in the doorway and rang the bell with great vigor.

Dufresnay greeted him with delight. "Is his majesty returned to Paris? No? He is well?"

Turning to the girl, he said: "I am, as perhaps you know, the king's poor kinsman, as poor as he is rich. M. Ribot has been the bearer of many good gifts. Monsieur, mademoiselle is my betrothed."

"Ahem! M. Dufresnay, his majesty intrusted me with this Christmas present for you—this purse of gold, 500 louis, I believe, and this commission creating you valet de chambre du roi, with a stipend of 100,000 livres per annum. I congratulate you, monsieur. As I have many other commissions to execute for his gracious majesty, I must humbly take my leave."

"Present my grateful thanks and Christmas wishes to his majesty."

M. Ribot made his departure with somewhat the air of one who gladly takes leave of questionable company.

"May I also congratulate you, monsieur?" timidly ventured the girl. "You can pay me now," she added rather timidly.

"You see my establishment—how I live. Could not the order of these apartments be improved? Will you abandon me such such ruins? The abbe who ministers in the church yonder is my good friend."

"Why, he is also my abbe!"

"Wonderful! White lambs and black are alike his care. I am a most unlucky gamester. And you can give me better luck than ever came of winning. On my honor, I love you. And the abbe will be very glad to see us. Shall we not make the good old man happy?"

"If you will, monsieur,"—W. R. Van Deusen in New York Evening Sun.

A Christmas Prayer.

God grant no little child may go
With hungry heart or empty hand—
Give this thy world one radiant day
To understand, to understand.

Give us the fitting word to say,
The spendthrift smile, the brave ca-
ress;

Disclose our hearts and give us now
The courage of our tenderness!

Lord, we are old with toil and tears,
Our souls are vexed with various art,
Yet still the little children keep
Thine ancient simplicity of heart—

And they alone of all thy breath
May bind the burning angel's eyes
And, striking laughter from the sword,
Retrace the years to paradise.

They are so brave with love and dreams.

So eager eyed and, ah, so dear!
I think we must return them now
The faith they bore across the year.

I think that we must give them now
The spendthrift smile, the kindly word,

That earth may keep its ancient hope
And see thy full commandments,
Lord.

—Dann Burnet.

Keeping Christmas.

Are you willing to remember the weakness and loneliness of people who are growing old; to stop asking how much your friends love you, and ask yourself whether you love them enough; to bear in mind the things that other people have to bear on their hearts; to try to understand the people who live in the same house with you? Then you can keep Christmas.

—Henry van Dyke.

Dufresnay gazed in speechless incredulity for a moment and then burst out laughing.

"A merry Christmas to you, mademoiselle!" he cried. "Is the basket for me?"

"I wish you also a merry Christmas. But please, please listen to me. Perhaps the wine is not yet out of your head. But I must have money today. Surely you can understand?"

Dufresnay partially mustered his wits and attempted an elaborate compliment.

"I have seen all the shepherdesses of our Arcadian Versailles and— By the goddess of the laundry, you are not crying! The basket is very heavy. And here are actual shirts!"

He looked in comic perplexity from the basket to the girl. Then he said gently, "Has no one ever told you how beautiful you are?"

"Certainly you are not the first to flatter me nor the first that failed to pay me, but," she added, and her eyes filled with tears, "I had better hopes of you. Fine words will not help me."

"I know they will not. What have I that will bring 17 livres? This ring?"

"But that is a wedding ring."

"My mother's. And it is for my wife. It is for you."

"That is a cruel jest. And I thought you were so different. You have never

CHRISTMAS SPIRIT PREVAILS IN ALL STORES

Merchants Have Many Distinct Lines
of Merchandise Especially for Gift Making

As Christmas of 1919 approaches, a casual survey of the stores and business places of Ellsworth assures the observer of one thing, i. e., the folly of sending money to mail order houses for holiday goods. Here in Ellsworth, this year at least, is a variety of goods offered that is hard to equal in cities of several times the size of our own town and at prices within reach of all.

If our readers will only follow the writer on a short trip through town we are assured that they will be amazed and delighted at what they will find.

The W. A. Boss hardware store will be our first stop, this store being the longest under the present management of any in town. Mr. Boss this year as usual, has his store well stocked, not only for the holiday trade, but for the every day trade of his well satisfied patrons as well. He specializes in shelf and heavy hardware, farm tools, sleighs, wagons, harnesses, gasoline engines and harvesting machinery.

For the Christmas shopper in search of useful and pleasing gifts he has a splendid line of fancy silverware, aluminum tea and coffee sets, watches, etc., and is also well stocked with appropriate gifts for the young folks, among which are sleds, skates and skis, and you will always find the proprietor ready to shake your hand and wish you good luck regardless if the volume of your business amounts to cents or dollars.

From the hardware we will pass on to the Weiss department store, where we meet Mr. Weiss, the owner and manager. This store is entering upon its tenth year under its present management and the yearly increase in the business attests to the honest dealing in practice here. Mr. Weiss has this year made a special effort to

It was the day before Christmas last year. All my shopping had been done (or so I thought) when I suddenly remembered bearing my eldest son, a lad of eight years, say, "Oh, I hope Santa will bring me a harmonicon this Christmas," says a writer in the New York Evening Sun.

Of course I could not disregard such a wish, and, although it was raining, I put on my storm coat and rubbers and with umbrella in hand started out for one of our large department stores.

On arriving at the counter where this particular article was displayed I found every one so busy I could not get attention for some time, and while waiting my turn I noticed two sadly neglected looking little boys of about six and eight years respectively standing very close to the counter and looking, oh, so longingly at these same harmonicons. When suddenly one of the young saleswomen turned sharply around and in a loud voice said, "Now, then, if you two boys don't get away from here at once I'll call the floor-walker and have you arrested." At the time this sudden attack was made upon these poor little wails I was holding in my hands two of these same musical instruments, trying to decide which of the two kinds I would take.

The larger one of the boys looked up at me with a frightened look, as if to say, "Oh, we didn't mean to steal anything," when I said, "Boys, would you each like one of these harmonicons?" They said nothing, but the look of surprise (gratitude they knew nothing of) when I put one in each boy's dirty little hands I shall not forget to my dying day, and before you could say "Jack Robinson" they were out of the store and out of sight. I turned to the young woman, saying, "I will pay for them," when I noticed the tears in her eyes.

When she finally found her voice she said, "Oh, madam, I am so sorry I spoke as I did." "Well, never mind," I said; "you didn't understand. I am the mother of two boys and know what a boy craves." When she handed me my change and package she said, "I shall never forget this day; it has taught me a lesson."

Let's Make this a Good Old Fashioned Xmas

Time brings changes, but Christmas retains ever its old-fashioned appeal, so let's try and make this a real old-fashioned Christmas. In our forgetfulness of self, let us remember others and give cheer as we would be cheered. This store is ready for the Yuletide trade. There are but a few more shopping days before Christmas. Do your gift buying now and avoid the eleventh hour rush.

make his place attractive, both as to decorations and to stock displayed, and you will indeed be hard to please if you cannot fill your holiday wants here. In addition to a complete line of staple and fancy groceries, clothing, boots and shoes, etc., we find on display one of the best lines of candies and toys in the village.

Nothing would be more appropriate as a Christmas gift for husband, brother or son than a pair of gloves or a heavy Mackinaw or sweater with which the store is stocked, and with the prospect of a long cold winter ahead, nothing would be appreciated more.

The casual customer at this store receives the same courteous treatment as the one who makes it his regular shopping place, and the motto "With charity for all, with malice toward none" is always in use. One visit here will lead to many more and to meet with Mr. Weiss means the start of a new friendship.

Our next stop will be the Citizens' Bank where cashier Glen C. Townsend welcomes us with a happy smile and a pleasant greeting. This is one of the few places in town where there are no special plans made for Christmas, but where one day is the same as another, the whole year round. Mr. Townsend has helped countless numbers with banking accommodations, and with good advice during the few years since he has taken charge of the Citizens' bank, and has made the enviable reputation of never turning a deaf ear to old or young, regardless of their station in life, when their day of adversity comes. To know Mr. Townsend is to honor and respect him in his private as well as his business life.

The dinner hour is now at hand and we may as well drop in at the "New Orient" hotel, where one of Mrs. Van Skivor's splendid dinners is being prepared. While waiting for this we have a little talk with landlord "Van", who assures us that business is good, a fact which we can easily believe by taking note of the splik and span office and the clean sanitary sleeping rooms and kitchen, to say nothing of the splendid, appetizing meal.

Ellsworth is noted for having one of the best all-year hotels between Traverse City and Petoskey—in fact the best in the opinion of many salesmen who make this their regular stopping place whenever they can get here. Long life to "Van". May he be with us through many more holiday seasons and may his shadow never grow less.

Our next port of call will be the general store owned and operated by Geo. Klooster and Son, made a decided success by them by eleven years of careful painstaking attention to business and a fixed idea of striving to please. Klooster & Son carry by far the largest general stock of goods in Ellsworth, and both owners as well as a good corps of clerks are always on the job, thus assuring prompt service.

Their store is thoroughly equipped for the Christmas season and it would be hard to imagine an article which we could not obtain from the immense stock. This year for a holiday feature there is being displayed a fine up-to-date assortment of toilet and manicure sets, slippers, bath robes and smoking jackets, neck ties and handkerchiefs, as well as a standard line of groceries and ladies' and gents' furnishings.

Do your Christmas shopping early and be sure to make this store one of your objectives and thus gain satisfaction and save money.

Just across the street from Klooster's store is located the new warehouse erected this year by the Banks Marketing association. Julius Elzinga is manager and is apparently making good. All kinds of farm produce is shipped from this place and the members seem satisfied and happy over their new venture.

A new side track was recently built which will greatly facilitate shipping and the unloading of flour, feed, etc., which the association handles in large quantities.

Continuing south down the Pere Marquette tracks we encounter the warehouse owned by the Ellsworth Produce Co., with M. R. Nelson as general manager, a position he has held for the past four years, during which time his courtesy and fair treatment of those with whom he has dealt has caused an immense increase in his yearly business. The Ellsworth Produce Co. is run on a cash basis and all kinds of farm produce are bought while hay, grain, feed, coal, etc., are kept in stock. A new cream station is the latest addition to this business which is run under the motto "As soon as you weigh, you get your pay." Thus with a cream station here and at the association warehouse and with top prices paid for produce, farmers of the surrounding country have much to cheer them during this Christmas season.

The Ellsworth garage even at this season of the year is worthy of a call. This institution was started four years ago by James H. Elzinga, and has experienced a steady growth due to Mr. Elzinga's upright, forceful management. Recently Mr. Elzinga has been forced to build an addition to the original building and during the past year has kept two repair men. He also has the agency for Chevrolet cars, and the number of these cars in constant use in this part of the country testifies to the worth of the car and to the selling ability of the agent.

On our way up town we may as well stop for a cup of coffee and a lunch at the restaurant owned and run by Mr. and Mrs. Albert Parsons. This is the first year of this place under the present management and is a proven success to judge by the number of meals and lunches dispensed daily and by the amount of home-made baked goods sold. A fine line of cigars, tobaccos and candies are always in stock and you are assured a cheery word and a pleasant chat as well as a thoughtful, courteous reception and one hundred cents value for every dollar spent when ever you drop in.

Only two places are left for a friendly call and the first we will visit now. This one is the Ellsworth Drug Co. Arthur Gidley is in charge of this store, coming here in October, 1918, from Detroit. Mr. Gidley has made a special effort to make his place of business attractive and his decorations and window display is second to none in the village. This year he specializes in books, stationary, cigars, candies, etc., for the Christmas buyers and in these or numerous other lines an excellent assortment is offered.

D. E. Clow & Co. is last but by no means least on the list, and Mr. Clow's regular line of groceries and furnishings has this year been augmented by a new line of toys and candies, ties, mufflers and handkerchiefs, while an exceptionally good line of stationary is also on sale. Mr. Clow is glad to meet all his old customers as well as new ones during the Christmas rush and will be glad to show his goods and will show the proper Christmas spirit, no matter what your decision regarding a purchase.

This finishes our trip and we leave it to you if you find it necessary to spend your money and your time in visiting other places for your Santa Claus work.

A Christmas Gift for the Entire Family---

A Chevrolet

Can you imagine anything that would be more appreciated? The entire family would enjoy it equally—father, mother, son and daughter. The only way to get real pleasure out of an automobile is to own one—a Chevrolet—as hundreds of our own citizens will testify. Easy to handle, economical to run, and a service station near at hand should any difficulty arise. Buy now is the slogan. With the coal strike, the steel strike and other labor difficulties, it may be hard to get a car in the spring. We can get deliveries now and will hold the car for you until you want it. Automobile experts make the following statement:

"Now is the time to buy your automobile, now is the time to secure the widest selection of models and now is the time to arrange for delivery.

"1920 Models are established. The public has had an opportunity to judge them in operation. There will be little change, if any, during the current year.

"There is no indication that prices will be lowered. The demand for automobiles is steadily increasing and it becomes especially heavy from spring on.

"By placing your order during the winter months the uncertainty of spring and summer demand is avoided. Manufacturers are enabled to calculate the demand more definitely and to produce accordingly. Likewise delivery is made more convenient for the purchaser.

"And there is plenty of use to be enjoyed from automobiles during the winter months. The time has passed when a car's utility ended with fine weather. Today, with all the conveniences, one uses his car the year around.

"In fact it is during severe weather that a car proves to be of the greatest convenience. Especially is this true of the practical closed cars that have become so popular for all season use. That's just what they're made for.

"In short the purchaser who orders his car now has nothing to lose. If he does not want his car right away delivery may be regulated accordingly. If he does he can begin to get practical return from it just so much sooner.

"And a good car will be as fit as ever when summer comes, and what's more he'll have it."

You'll have a good car if you buy a Chevrolet. Buy right now—for the family Christmas present. We will deliver the car when you want it.

PRICE $2.00 PER YEAR

$25,000 TO BOOST MICHIGAN RESORTS

RESORT AND TOURIST BUREAU TO RAISE THIS AMOUNT

Association Reports Michigan Resorts Better Filled Last Year Than in Many Years

Representatives of cities, transportation companies, chambers of commerce and other organizations interested in and connected with the Michigan Resort and Tourist association, whose offices are in Grand Rapids, met there last week with a view of reviewing the year's work and perfecting plans for the coming year.

Reports from those who attended the meeting are to the effect that it was one of great importance to western Michigan resorts and that the plans made will wonderfully benefit every resort in the entire state.

The association will endeavor to raise $25,000 to promote Michigan touring and resort interests during the coming year. This sum is more than double the amount raised for this purpose last year and has been apportioned among the different districts by a committee made up of George McCabe, Petoskey; Fred D. Curtis, Elk Rapids; A. Backus, Harbor Springs; B. G. Oosterbaan, Muskegon; J. C. Blukema, Manistee; Harry Hosg, South Haven; Park Robbins, Goodrich line; C. L. Lockwood, Grand Rapids & Indiana railway, and W. E. Wolfenden, Pere Marquette. The apportionment will be made as equitably as possible, according to the benefits to be realized, and local organizations and committees will be asked to make good the quotas.

Secretary Hugh J. Gray, in his annual report, showed that funds available for last year were about $12,000 and expenditures were $11,994. Of the money spent $4,512.45 was for printing and advertising, the latter in ninety-three newspapers in seven different states, besides magazines. The sum of $670.17 was spent for postage. Thousands of inquiries were received in response to the advertising, personal letters and printed matter being sent as replies. Much free publicity also was obtained, Mr. Gray said.

It has been impossible to check up the number of resorts and tourists who came into the state, but it is certain Michigan resorts never had such a season as last and the number of tourists was without precedent, according to Mr. Gray, who also outlined the needs for the coming year. "Other states and resort districts are spending money without limit in promoting travel and Michigan must do more than in the past to maintain its position as a great resort and tourist state," he said. "The amount available last year was about $12,000 and not less than $25,000 should be raised for the coming year."

"If this money is raised an information bureau will be opened in the loop district in Chicago with the cooperation of the upper peninsula and northeastern Michigan association; a booklet of twenty-four pages, principally illustrations, will be printed; a colored insert will be inserted in every tourist blue book in the country and a new map will be made in two colors showing railroads, boat lines and automobile roads. These items with the maintenance of the Grand Rapids office and other expenses will total about $16,900, leaving about $8,000 available for newspaper advertising." In closing his report Mr. Gray said:

"This association needs, in addition to revenue, some moral support and boosting and if we can all pull together there isn't any doubt in the minds of those who have watched this business that it can be multiplied many times over."

KING OF THE CHRISTMAS SEASON

HE'S A MERRY OLD SOUL

Santa Claus is round and merry,
But who wouldn't be, I say.
With the children thinking of him
Half the night and all the day?
They in fancy see him coming,
Days and weeks before he's here,
Whistling to himself or humming
As he urges on his deer.

Are their thoughts and dreams not of him,
Both before he comes and after?
Don't they tell him how they love him,
Hailing him with song and laughter?
When he's loved by such a merry,
Cheery, charming throng as that,
'Tisn't strange that, like a cherry,
Santa Claus is fair and fat!

CITY'S FIRST COMMUNITY TREE

WORK VERY SUCCESSFUL —
WELL ATTENDED

Community Christmas Tree Should be Made a Thing of the Future by Townspeople

Charlevoix's first community Christmas tree seemed to be a success from start to finish, and evidently was enjoyed by all those present.

The tree, a product of the Loeb farms, was placed in the center of the Clinton-Bridge street corner, easily reached by all, and was beautifully decorated by Wood Bros., aided by different townspeople.

Christmas Eve was the appointed time for the short program arranged for the occasion to be rendered. The musical committee was headed by Mrs. Tom Lalonde and she certainly had things well in hand. The community singing was led by eight young men of the town composing the following list: Messrs. Lalonde, Hamlin, Fowler, Marsh, Poole, Smith, Beers, Saltonstall. This group led the singing which was done by all those present.

Then came the section of the program enjoyed most by the little folks. Old St. Nicholas, who arrived on the afternoon Pere Marquette train, which by the way was five hours late, was scheduled to take part and try and make things more enjoyable. The long trip through the snow bank had not spoiled his temper and he was in the best of moods when he arrived on the scene loaded with candy, nuts and good cheer. Never before had Santa Claus been induced to get out in the middle of Bridge street as on this occasion. After the candy was all gone and the program ended, the meeting broke up and was continued in the different parts of the city and churches.

This community Christmas tree should be made an annual event by the people of Charlevoix and in the future should be a community affair in every sense of the word. The public would be more than glad to assist in an affair of this kind and everyone should get a chance to help prepare as the preparation is nearly as enjoyable as the event itself.

CHARLEVOIX MEN ON NEWBERRY JURY

Seven Men from This County Are on the List

Seven men from Charlevoix county and two from the city of Charlevoix are included on the list of one hundred and fifty men picked for the special jury to hear the Senator Truman Newberry case.

From Charlevoix the men chosen are Harold Bedford and Lyman Benton. From East Jordan, H. J. McMillan, W. C. Spring, H. B. Hipp and Fred S. Bennett. From Boyne City, Ben R. Gardner.

The Newberry trial is scheduled to open next month in Grand Rapids with Judge Sessions of the Federal court presiding.

TO LOOK AFTER SERVICE MEN

THOSE ILL OR INJURED WILL BE CARED FOR

Service Is to Be Without Expense in Case of Illness or Injury Contracted in Army or Navy

Any ex-service man who needs medical or surgical treatment because of illness or injury contracted in the army or navy, can hereafter enter an army hospital, public health service hospital, or local civilian institution or sanatorium, and have all his expenses paid by the government. Few soldiers or sailors seem to be aware of this privilege, which is theirs for the asking, and today the war department instructed the entire personnel of the office of the assistant to the secretary of war, in charge of soldier employment and welfare work, to bring this to the attention of all such men.

Lieut. Colonel Mathew C. Smith, of the general staff, and head of the bureau, has issued a bulletin for nationwide distribution, which says:

"Any discharged service man who is in need of medical treatment and feels that his illness is due to wounds or other disabilities received or aggravated while in service, should at once see the nearest army hospital or local representative of the United States public health service for an examination. Addresses may be ascertained from the postmaster. The American Red Cross representative and state or municipal health officer also are able to advise service men about their cases and should be consulted."

COUNTRY PRESS IS THREATENED

FACES ANNIHILATION UNLESS PROFITEERING IS STOPPED

All Metropolitan Dailies Should be Compelled to Restrict Excessive
Use of Paper

The Western Newspaper Union, the great news gathering agency closely allied with the country press and knowing better than any other institution in America the dangers which threaten it, recently made this stirring appeal to Hon. A. Mitchell Palmer, Attorney General of the United States:

Hon. A. Mitchell Palmer, Attorney General, Washington, D. C.

Sir:

The weekly newspaper was the first public voice to be raised in the wilderness that is now America. The voice has always been heard upon the side of high patriotism, good citizenship, and public and private morals.

It remains today the most potent weapon the republic wields against the forces of evil, and the most powerful mold of public opinion.

The country newspaper represents the heart of America. Not from the cosmopolitan crowds of city streets, but from the green fields, blue skies and clean living of the open, comes that elusive, though real, something that has come to be known as "American Ideals."

As leader, teacher, counselor and friend, the country newspaper has broken trail for one hundred years for the most thrilling example of empire building the world has ever witnessed.

Throughout the world war the country newspaper was wholeheartedly with the government, regardless of its political faith, inspiring its following of patriotic citizens to greater and greater efforts, and giving of its own slender resources to the cause.

Not in the fields of the country press did we find the serpent of disloyalty.

Arthur Balfour of England recently remarked to an American newspaper man:

"Upon the rural press of America rests the fate of civilization."

The country newspaper is, to be sure, a business enterprise, but we believe it more nearly approximates an unselfish public utility than any other American business.

And now the very existence of this most dependable of our influences for good is threatened by profiteering in paper. A fictitious market has been created by greedy manufacturers, brokers and metropolitan dailies, which promises to make the publication of weekly newspapers impossible. It has already made the business unprofitable.

When country newspapers are no longer possible, the country merchant and village life, standing influences in our national being, will pass. A tendency toward centralization is already known to be a basic factor in our high cost of living and general unrest.

As co-workers with and wholesalers to the country press of fifty-seven years, we tender you this appeal for relief from 13,000 loyal American citizens—business men upon whose continued business prosperity depends most largely the destiny of our country.

GIVES LUNCHEON FOR MOTHER

Mrs. O. A. Sears Entertained Last Saturday Afternoon

Mrs. O. A. Sears was entertained at a charming luncheon Saturday afternoon given in her honor by her daughter, Mrs. Susan Sears Thomas.

Twelve friends of Mrs. Sears were present and assisted in making the affair a most pleasurable one for Mrs. Sears. The table was decorated very daintily, following the color scheme of yellow and blue. A center piece of yellow chrysanthemums tied with blue maline and blue place cards with forget-me-nots. The candies and ensembles were wonderfully designed and were sent here from Cleveland for the occasion.

Among the amusing instances of the afternoon was an apron contest in which the ladies made aprons from tissue paper. The prizes were won by Mrs. Alson Wood and Mrs. Robert Paddock.

INTERESTING BITS OF INFORMATION CLIPPED FROM OUR EXCHANGES

According to the daily papers there is a lady member of the local Methodist church who wants a husband. She is under 50 years of age, has $17,000, is lonely and wants a man. Busy bodies have been trying to determine who the lady is and guesses are rife. There are quite a number of young men who will return home to this city for the holidays and it is probable that if the lady in question will delay the nuptials, that a very desirable home-grown man may be secured. Oh you $17,000!—Harbor Beach Times.

With the exception of Kent and Wayne counties, the county of Grand Traverse has the distinction of ranking first place of all the counties in the lower peninsula for the largest sale of War Savings stamps and certificates for the months of September and October.—Record-Eagle.

The marine news from Frankfort, Michigan, announces the arrival in that port account of heavy weather of the large wrecking outfit of Smith and Smith Co. of Sturgeon Bay with a large boiler salvaged from the barge Three Brothers which was wrecked on Manitou islands. The barge was owned by the W. H. White Co. of Boyne City and sailed from that place for many years. On her last and fateful trip she left that port with a load of lumber for Chicago. Heavy seas caused her to spring a leak and she was run ashore in a water logged condition and was abandoned.

We believe we voice the sentiment of every automobile owner, when we say that no person should be allowed to operate a public garage, or allow alleged mechanics to work therein, unless they have passed a rigid inspection for proficiency as an auto mechanic. And why not, pray? The owner of a car must have a license; yet any mere novice on every four corners can set up a garage, camouflage and ruin a man's car, with no possible redress for the owner. Why not law that will give the auto owner some protection against these forlunkers?—Elkton Review.

HARGREAVES APPOINTED MANAGER

Succeeds Paul T. Oppen for Goodrich Company

Mr. Robert C. Hargreaves has been appointed manager of the B. F. Goodrich Rubber Company, Detroit, Michigan, according to an announcement made by Mr. W. O. Rutherford, second vice president and director of sales. He succeeds Mr. Paul T. Oppen, who recently resigned.

Mr. Hargreaves has a wide acquaintance in the automotive world, and will be a valuable adjunct to the industry in Michigan. He is best known throughout the automobile world as the "father" of the Highway Transport Committee of the Council of National Defence. The work done by this body forms an important chapter in the history of America's war-time achievements, and from it, Mr. Hargreaves, and others in Washington, have evolved the present tremendous activity in highway transportation.

Since the close of the great world war, Mr. Hargreaves has been in Akron, where he has studied every phase of the tire and rubber goods business. He comes to Detroit, well equipped to serve automobile manufacturers and users in the important Detroit and Michigan territory, which is served by branch stores at Grand Rapids and Saginaw.

It's time to think about having that car overhauled and painted. Let the Brown Garage do the work. Adv52tf

PETOSKEY ASSURED OF FISH HATCHERY

State Fish Commission Takes Final Action on Matter Wednesday

The Michigan fish commission last Wednesday accepted the proposed hatchery site between Oden and Conway for the new fish hatchery to be located near Petoskey, and by unanimous action voted to begin building early in the spring of 1920.

The final acceptance is being received with pleasure by the many citizens of that section who subscribed toward the purchase of the site.

Emmet county is now assured of a beautiful and much needed fish culture plant, located on one of the main highways, and the center of distribution for northern Michigan. Charlevoix will receive considerable benefit as it will be easier to obtain fish fry and fingerlings from this point than from the state hatcheries in the southern part of the state.

We want every woman in Charlevoix to see our line of all-wool sweaters. They are bargains and just what you have been looking for. Benj. Brown. Adv48tf

NOTE OF HOPE AND HAPPINESS

Celebration of Saviour's Birth Commands Attention of All Nations Regardless of Ravages of War.

On the great feast of the Nativity, Christmas, as it is popularly known, there is always a note of hope and cheer, even when many hands are drenched in blood. It was 1917 years ago that Christ was born, but the message he brought is as fresh and compelling as it was in the years long ago. Over the little town of Bethlehem the heavenly choir sang "Glory in Excelsis Deo"—"Glory be to God on high, and on earth peace to men of good will," or, as some renderings of the Latin text have it, "and on earth peace and good will towards men." That blessed proclamation will go sounding down the centuries to come until time shall be no more.

Professing Christians welcome today as one of peculiar joy and gladness. The liturgical churches celebrate it with impressive services but all God-fearing people, whether they be connected with the Christian body or that, can but find a thrill and a lifting up of the soul in meditating upon the birth of Jesus and the mighty work the Redeemer came to accomplish.

Christmas came to us with its hallowed greeting and with an inspiration for higher purposes and true Christian charity. May this be truly a happy Christmas for one and all.

The Unbreakable Ornament.
The millennium will be here when somebody invents an unbreakable ornament for Christmas trees.

Cars overhauled and painted and made as good as new. We guarantee our work. Benj. Brown. Adv52tf

Public Trustee

Revenue is to the corporation what blood is to the body, reduce or thin it and the corporate body at once shows financial anemia, physical impairment, operative inefficiency.

A corporation engaged in the Telephone business, upon which the public is so vitally dependent, must have ample revenues in order that the equipment shall be of the latest and best type; that the lines shall be kept in perfect condition; that the personnel shall be contented and alert on account of liberal compensation and attractive working surroundings, and that bond interest and a reasonably good dividend rate shall be secure, in order that new capital for extensions and improvements may be readily obtainable.

The source of these revenues is the charge to the public for the service rendered.

Under present conditions higher rates and good service are interdependent. The Telephone Company is the Trustee of the public for the receipt and expenditure of funds devoted to the service of the public.

THE UNIVERSAL CAR

Out of the more than 3,000,000 Ford cars now in use, about sixty percent have been sold to farmers. Probably no other one thing has brought to the farm so much of comfort and profit as has the Ford car. It has enlarged the social life, doubled the facilities for marketing, brought the town next door to the farm, multiplied for the farmer the pleasures of living. A family car without an equal in low cost of operation and maintenance. We solicit your order for one now because the demand is large and continually increasing

IS THE FARMER A PROFITEER?

A recent issue of the Detroit Free Press contains an editorial under the above caption which the Courier believes strikes the keynote in discussing the relation of the farmer to the people of the city or town:

"It is asserted that some West Michigan horticulturists protested the statement made at the recent meeting of the State Horticultural Society in this city, that Michigan fruit growers had sold over $14,000,000 worth of grapes, cherries, pears and apples last season, fearing an accusation of profiteering. When the area under fruit in that section is considered, and the fact that the crop and the profits are divided among a large number of growers, coupled with the fact that they expect, and generally get full crops only every other year, there would seem to be no occasion for anticipating such comment.

The charge that farmers are profiteers is one often—and ignorantly and unjustly—made by city people. Because 20 miles from town they find farmers aware of city prices and charging them city prices for eggs, butter and chickens, motor people cry profiteers! They do not reflect that they would have to pay the same in town without securing the same freshness and quality and generally the same generosity in weight or measure. Their trip is undertaken for pleasure; if they combine a little business with the pleasure why should the farmer favor them?

"Profiteer," a word not found in 1913 dictionaries, belongs to the word-coinage of the war. Many, in ignorance of its actual definition, infer it applies to anyone who asks more for an article than they want to pay, or have been accustomed to paying. The word really refers to one who profits dishonestly, unjustly, or exorbitantly in business transactions. To those who know anything about farming and the farmer's business risks the charge that he is a profiteer is absurd. Every business has its risks; the greater they are the more necessary that profits should cover them. Imagine the business man's state of mind if he knew that his year's labor and consequent income depended upon the weather or the ravages of an insect almost microscopically minute! What would he charge?

The report of the agricultural delegates to the Industrial Commission at Washington—at which, by the way, capital, labor, and the general public were represented by fifteen delegates each, and the agricultural interests by six contained this paragraph:

"The farmer cannot profiteer. His product, after a twelvemonth gamble in which he stakes the cost of his seed, fertilizer, equipment, land, the labor of himself and family, against the weather, the elements, all plant and animal pests and diseases, is sold in market in competition with the product of 6,000,000 other similarly placed producers. Many thousands of farm surveys have proven the generally inadequate labor income of the farmer."

These are facts not recognized by city people.

The farmer is no six-hour-a-day man. He is not even an eight-hour man. There are seasons when he must work from sun-up to sun-down in order to save his crops. He feeds us all, yet we grumble because he wants a fair return for his labor—something that for years he failed to get. More or less unorganized, subject to the mercy of local markets and conditions of transportation—tons of potatoes rotted "up north" while Detroiters were paying $3.50 and $4.00 per bushel in 1917-1918—it would seem no business men conduct is subject to so many risks and uncertainties as farming. How, then, can the farmer possibly be a profiteer."

GREATEST CONVENTION IN HISTORY OF G. O. P.

The greatest political convention ever held in this country—that is a fact assured with respect to the republican convention at Chicago the 8th of June.

While it has long been plain that the convention would be one of exceptional magnitude it has become more clear than ever that this will be the case since the national committee at its recent meeting at Washington, where the time and place were fixed, discussed in a general way the plans for it.

With the announcement of the time and place, demands for seating have already begun to flow in to the convention committee, headed by National Committeeman A. T. Hert of Kentucky.

Not only is there nation-wide interest stirred among republicans but the fact the women are to have so prominent a part in the campaign this year will tend to bring about a large attendance of women at the Chicago convention.

National Chairman Hays said there was no doubt the forthcoming convention would be the greatest one ever held in this country.

Mr. Hert expressed the same opinion. Mr. Hert said that he had never before in his political life had such a great early demand for convention tickets.

The convention committee will be called together soon by Mr. Hert and it will begin active planning for the convention. The standing committee of newspaper correspondents at the Capitol will have a representative present to make known the wants of the press.

AND THE BIRD DISAPPEARS

Did you ever, when you were a child, try to put salt on a bird's tail, having been told that that was all that was necessary in order to catch the bird. And every time when you were only within a few feet of success, the bird became frightened and flew away? If you have been in this predicament, you can appreciate the feelings of all salaried individuals in their effort to get hold of and pin down the high cost of living. Every time they have secured a small raise in salary and hope now to catch the elusive bird, along comes a strike or a group of profiteers, and away flies the bird.

for some time, was so far recovered that he had been notified by attending physicians that he would be able to leave the hospital within a short time, when an epidemic of small pox occurred and he will be forced to remain in quarantine for an indefinite time.

PROCLAMATION ABOUT TAKING OF CENSUS

President Wilson Urges All to Assist in This Important Work

President Wilson has issued a proclamation calling attention to the 14th decennial census to be taken beginning January 2.

He points out that it is the duty of every one to answer all questions on the census schedules and that refusal is subject to penalty.

The proclamation adds: "The sole purpose of the census is to secure general statistical information regarding the population and resources of the country and replies are required from individuals only to permit the compilation of such general statistics."

"No person can be harmed in any way by furnishing the information required. The census has nothing to do with taxation, with military or jury service, with the compulsion of school attendance, with the regulations of immigration or with the enforcement of any national, state or local law or ordinance."

"There need be no fear that any disclosure will be made regarding any individual person or his affairs. For the due protection of the rights and interests of the persons furnishing information every employee of the census bureau is prohibited, under heavy penalty, from disclosing any information which may come to his knowledge."

One Christmas Eve

by RALPH HAMILTON

THE shades of the pretty home were pulled down and the gloom of dusk was alleviated by one light only in the room where the mourning denizens, Harold Bruce and his wife, Laura, sat. They were awaiting the arrival of a taxicab ordered in time to catch an evening train for the South. Both were somber-faced and wearied of life. They had not spoken for some time, for it was a situation where words meant nothing. The wife never lifted her tear-stained eyes, the husband wore a set expression upon his face as though exerting the utmost will power to repress the poignant emotion which consumed him.

Without, joyous shouts echoed, the sound of merry sleigh bells tinkered the air with Christmas eve fervor, and the contrast of this long-anticipated holiday presentation with what they had hoped and planned for, wrenched their souls to the point of anguish. Their lives desolated beyond repair, poignant memories ever present, they scarce dared to rest their glance upon the portraits of their smiling, happy faces looking down from a heavily framed picture, for only that morning they had received the terrible news that the originals, their only children, Don, aged six, and Etta, two years his junior, had been victims, with many others, of a disaster by cyclone and flood that had devastated the district where they had their winter home in Florida.

All they knew was that the pretty bungalow and many others, with their occupants, had been swept away, and hundreds were said to have perished, and no word had been received as to the fate of their two little ones, nor of Rhoda Marsh, who had them in charge.

Rhoda Marsh had come into their thoughts almost as frequently as little Etta and her brother. Each recalled that it was a Christmas eve four years back when Harold Bruce had come home from the funeral of his mother, bringing with him a wistful-eyed, sad-faced mite of a girl.

"Laura," he said to his wife, "this is Rhoda Marsh, a poor orphan child whom my mother adopted, who has given her the tenderest care to the last hour of her life and was a blessing to her old age. She is left without a home. Should we give her one?"

"We should, and we shall," came the quick reply, as Mrs. Bruce gazed into the earnest, longing eyes of the girl of fourteen, and read there truth and innocence and a soulful appeal to all that was maternal and sympathizing in her nature.

It proved to be a wise and fortuitous choice. As the children came along Rhoda proved to them a true and loving sister, nurse and friend.

Then came a test of the fidelity and self-sacrifice of the girl just merging into young womanhood. Both of the children were taken down by a dangerous contagious malady. The house was quarantined. Rhoda braved the perils of infection. Day and night she was the constant attendant of Don and Etta. She found so sure a loving place in the hearts of those she had benefited, that her eyes beamed with joy and happiness whenever she was in their presence.

The physician who attended the children was Alton Merritt. He had entered the profession the protégé of a wealthy man, and had acquired a clientele of prominence and a large income. It was when the little ones were convalescent that he had come to Mr. Bruce, who was a close personal friend.

"Bruce," he said, "I cannot find words to express my admiration and respect, yes, and something deeper, for that sweet little heroine, Rhoda, whose studious care of the children, far more than my ministrations, is responsible for their recovery."

"Yes," answered Mr. Bruce with genuine fervor in his tones, "she is a jewel of worth and constancy. Both my wife and myself realize what we owe to this poor wail who has endeared herself to us as though she were our own daughter."

Both Were Somber-Faced and Wearied of Mien.

Doctor Merritt proved his expressed sentiments by very often visiting the Bruce home after that. The children loved him and he would drop in for an hour or two and play with them and talk with Rhoda and listen to her singing at the piano, for music with Rhoda was her one great passion. There never was a visit on his part that Rhoda did not greet him with a beautiful, tender flush upon her fair, expressive face, and one night her kindly benefactors indulged in playful banter when she accompanied Doctor Merritt to the door.

"Doctor Merritt has become quite a beau—eh, Rhoda?" intimated Mr. Bruce.

"Three times in a week," spoke Mrs. Bruce, "Rhoda dear, he is a loyal chevalier."

"Please don't," pleaded Rhoda, looking serious, shy and embarrassed. "He is only a great good friend to all of us, and he has so encouraged my singing that it has made me more anxious than ever to please him."

Early in November Mrs. Bruce, the children and Rhoda went to the Florida winter home where the family spent four months of the year. There were anticipated happy days in the pretty bungalow when Mr. Bruce should join them later on. It was just two weeks before Christmas when Mrs. Bruce decided to take a trip North and remain with her husband until the holidays, when he would be ready to accompany her to Fair Villa. It was a few days after her coming that her husband said to her: "Laura, Doctor Merritt has fairly haunted the house evenings since you went away. I met him today and told him of our plans, and he was especially pressing in his inquiries about Rhoda. I presume he will be here this evening to ask you about Rhoda," but the young physician did not materialize as expected, and the next day the Bruces understood that he had left the city.

It was two days before Christmas when the dreadful news came of the disaster in the South. Fair Villa had been practically swept off the map; their winter home had been carried away by the raging waters. Telegrams contained vague and distracting details. They had no reason to hope that their loved ones had escaped the general fate of those who were missing among the former residents of the little inland town. They were now ready to go South and seek a trace of their two little children and of Rhoda, in whom they had so trustfully left them in charge.

"It must be the taxi," spoke Mr. Bruce, arousing with a sigh from his painful reverie as the doorbell rang, but he crossed the outer threshold to come face to face with Doctor Merritt. The manner and words of the latter were jarring to the bruised sensibilities of the bereaved father, for the young physician was radiant of face. His eyes suggested a fever of exhilaration as he greeted Mr. Bruce with riotous embrace and waved his hand gaily to Mrs. Bruce, who had followed her husband into the hallway.

"A glad and merry Christmas to both of you!" hailed Doctor Merritt jubilantly.

"You haven't heard?" spoke Mr. Bruce in a low, reproachful tone.

"Why, what do you mean?" questioned Doctor Merritt.

"The disaster at Fair Villa—the children."

"Why, bless you!" fairly shouted the doctor—"they are right here!"

Harold Bruce wavered against the wall for support. Mrs. Bruce uttered a wild scream. Across the threshold from the porch there rushed little Etta and her brother. Joy, delight, ecstasy tinged the shock of what at first stunned the frantic parents as an appearance from the dead.

"And last, but not least, she whose mission in life seems ever to be to bring healing and happiness, and love, and peace to all those who are dear to her!" In a gently reverent tone continued Doctor Merritt, and with supreme satisfaction the young physician viewed the dye resulted ones in a maze of embraces, kisses and tears. Rhoda, clinging to Mrs. Bruce, hid her face in modest confusion, as Doctor Merritt recited her brave battle against the elements in a great storm upon a battered raft until she had brought the children to safety.

"But you, Doctor Merritt?" propounded Mrs. Bruce wonderingly—"how came you to be at Fair Villa?"

"I arrived there after the disaster," was the reply. "I had gone there on a specific mission, later executed, to ask our peerless Rhoda, queen of all wom-ankind, to become my wife," and as Rhoda extended her hand he covered it with kisses and pressed it to his happy, happy heart.

"If there was a mistletoe here I would munch you two promptly under it!" threatened Mrs. Bruce, immersed in thrilling joy and gratitude.

"There shall be one before Christmas morning arrives!" cried Doctor Merritt in tones that rang out like a cheer. "Come, Bruce, you and I on a hunt for Santa Claus and the choicest gifts he can bestow. Oh! nowhere in the world, and never to any others, has there come a happier, merrier Christmas than the one we shall celebrate!"

COUNCIL PROCEEDINGS

Council Chamber, Dec. 22, 1919.
The common council of the city of Charlevoix met on the above date, Mayor Rose presiding.

Aldermen present: Benton, Genett, Levinson, Washburn and Wood. Minutes of the meeting of December 15, 1919, were read and approved.

Communication from the board of education requesting that the curfew be rung at 8:30 p. m. during the winter and 9:00 p. m. during the summer was read and referred to the ordinance committee.

To the Honorable, the Mayor, and Common Council of the City of Charlevoix:

Your committee on streets, sewers and public health, to whom was referred the matter of the petition for the vacation of the public alley running east and west across block 12 of the original plat of the city, respectfully report that we have carefully investigated the same and commend that the alley be not vacated.

Dated December 22, 1919.
(Signed)

L. E. BENTON,

G. GENETT,

Committee.

On motion of Ald. Levinson, supported by Ald. Washburn, the report was accepted.

The following resolution was presented by Ald. Benton, who moved its adoption, seconded by Ald. Genett. Resolved by the Common Council of the City of Charlevoix, that the prayer of the petition of Earl Young and other owners of property located in Block 12 of the original plat of the City of Charlevoix, asking for the vacation of the public alley running east and west across said block 12, be denied for the reason that the vacation of such alley is not necessary nor advisable, and would not be a public improvement.

Adopted at a regular meeting of the Common Council held in the Council Rooms, in said city, the 22nd day of December, 1919, by aye and no vote as follows: Ayes, Aldermen Benton, Genett, Levinson, Washburn, and Wood. Nays, none.

S. M. ROSE,

Mayor.

D. S. PAYTON,

Dept. City Clerk.

No further business appearing, adjournment was moved and supported.

ARCHIE LIVINGSTON,

Clerk.

CHRISTMAS WISHES

As the wheels turned Miss Adriana pined under the weight of her secret trouble. Delmar became uneasy for her, and a few days before Christmas sent her to the near-by city to see one of his friends, a fine young physician there.

That afternoon while crossing the street to the railroad station Miss Adriana felt herself caught and pulled back just in time to escape being run over by a heavy truck that came around the corner. The girl who saved her, helped her to the ladder sitting room of the station, but when her train came a few minutes later she was too shaken and nervous to attempt to board it.

"Oh, what will Delmar think when I don't come!" she exclaimed.

"Delmar!" The pretty girl's cheeks grew a deeper pink, and Miss Adriana knew her to be Iva Ellsworth.

"My nephew, Delmar Halstead, with whom I live in Keweenaw," she explained. "Why, Keweenaw is only twenty-five miles," cried the girl; "I'll telephone him and he can come for you in an automobile."

When she came back Miss Adriana's lips trembled over a question.

"Are you—are you married, my dear?"

When Delmar came Miss Adriana was able to smile in wan gaiety at him.

"Where is the lady that saved you?" he asked presently as he knelt beside her with his arms about her. "I don't know how, I'll ever thank that blessed woman!"

"Delmar, You've Misjudged Me."

Miss Adriana took his face between her hands.

"Delmar," she said, "she told me her dearest wish for Christmas was a home! She has a little money of her own, but, Delmar, three people could live on what we two do, in comfort, in real comfort. I—oh, Delmar, I want her to come and live with us!"

Before Delmar could speak the latter door opened and Iva Ellsworth came in.

"I know now why you didn't ask for what you wanted last Christmas," she said softly. "Delmar Halstead, how you've misjudged me! Plain living, with—with love, and this dear woman to mother me, would be riches to me!"

END OF WORLD THE PRIZE HOAX

GREAT UPHEAVAL FAILS TO TAKE PLACE

Professor Porta's Prediction Causes
Many Suicides and Trouble
Throughout Entire World

Last Wednesday saw the culmination of the most gigantic hoax in history—the prediction of the end of the world by Dr. Albert H. Porta, astronomer of the University of Michigan.

According to Professor Porta's original statement, the cosmic upheaval was scheduled to take place about noon that day, when Venus, Mars, Mercury, Saturn, Jupiter and Neptune were in line up on the same side of the sun as our own planet, while the eighth member of the planetary group, Uranus, would be on the same line on the other side of the sun.

Gravitational influences, according to Professor Porta, would release several stars from their regular places, and one of these was destined the professor said, to destroy the earth.

Pressed for details, Professor Porta denied making the prediction. He said that what he did predict was a series of terrific storms on the Pacific coast between December 17 and December 31, the effects of which would be felt far toward the east.

Professor E. B. Frost, of Chicago, famous astronomer of the Williams Bay Observatory, delivered the following strong remarks on the subject.

"It is the shearest and most miserable nonsense," he said. "There is absolutely no foundation for any such tommyrot. The planets have been in the position they will assume at least a thousand times, as far as history records, and no harm has ever come of it."

Professor Forrest G. Moulton of the astronomical department of the University of Chicago, one of the foremost authorities in the world, was equally positive in his refutation of Professor Porta's prophecy.

"The conjunction of the planets may possibly have some slight effect upon the weather, but no serious disturbance can possibly result," he said.

Savants in other parts of the country were of similar opinions.

The immediate result noted was in the form of increased church attendance. Ministers will probably vouch for the fact that since the prediction was made people who seldom attended church have been regular worshippers.

Professor Porta's prediction was that owing to the strange grouping of the six mighty planets, such as he claimed had not been seen in a score of centuries, the United States would be swept by the most terrific weather cataclysm experienced since human history began.

CENSUS TO BEGIN IN CITY SOON

List of Census Enumerators for This County

The following information has been received in regard to the coming census that will be taken the first of the coming year. Here is also a list of the census enumerators of Charlevoix county.

The men and women appointed to serve as enumerators of the fourteenth decennial census are charged by law with the collection of all facts necessary to fill out properly the printed census schedules which each enumerator will carry when making the house-to-house canvass of the territory assigned to him. Each enumerator must visit personally each house in his district and make his inquiries of the head or some other member of the family who is competent to answer the census questions.

The act of congress providing for the census gives each enumerator the right to enter every dwelling in his district for the purpose of obtaining the information required. Enumerators will carry with them at all times their identification cards and also their written commissions from the government which they will show whenever requested to do so. They are instructed to be always courteous and considerate, but in those rare instances where information necessary to fill out the questions is denied them, they are empowered by law to insist on correct answers. There are legal penalties for refusing to answer the census questions or willfully giving answers that are false.

Each enumerator is prohibited by law from publishing or communicating any information obtained through the census regarding any individual or his affairs. This obligation to secrecy likewise applies to all persons connected with the census. After the schedules are all filled out they are scaled up and sent to Washington where the information is tabulated by means of machinery, names being discarded entirely. No person, therefore, need fear that his personal affairs will be disclosed or that the information given will be used to harm him in any way.

It is expected that the work of enumerating urban districts will be completed in two weeks and of rural districts in one month, except where severe weather makes it necessary to postpone activities.

List of census enumerators for various parts of county:

Bay and Hayes townships, Howard C. Stephens.

Boyne City: Ward 1, Mrs. Agnes Lorch; Ward 2, Lineal E. Phillips; Ward 3, Mrs. Mattie Dean; Ward 4, Mrs. Minnie B. Friedly.

Boyne Valley township, including Boyne Falls village.

MORNING BLAZE ON BELVEDERE AVENUE

Building on Lake Front Destroyed by Flames

The new chemical and auto truck recently purchased by the city for the fire department had its first chance to prove its worth Saturday morning about eight o'clock when a fire broke out in one of the old buildings on the lake front near the skating rink.

The entire building was a mass of flames before any of the members of the fire department arrived and a couple of the surrounding buildings had also started to catch, as the flames were fanned by a high wind.

The other buildings were easily saved but the building where the fire started was burned down.

GLENWOOD DAIRY CHANGES HANDS

Bought by Jesse Gregory, Who Resides Near Barnard

An old and well established business changed hands last week when the Glenwood Dairy, owned and operated by William Shapton, was sold to Jesse Gregory, who lives near Barnard.

Mr. Shapton has been the manager of the Glenwood dairy for the past fourteen years and during this time has established himself well in the esteem of the people of this city.

It is understood that Mr. Gregory will operate the business along the same lines as did Mr. Shapton, and will try and hold up the reputation this business has earned.

Telephone Girls Strike

Twenty girls, the entire operating staff of the Citizens' Telephone Co. at Traverse City, were on strike Monday, demanding 50 per cent increase in wages and time and a half for overtime. All service over lines of this company there were not a standstill.

"If discharge or other papers showing that the disability was existing at the time of separation from service are available, they should be taken along, as they will be of help in making a decision on the case. However, if those papers are not available the man should not hesitate to apply. Such an applicant will be immediately placed under treatment pending the receipt of the necessary papers.

"If there is no representative of the health service in the ex-soldier's home town and no army hospital at hand, and it is possible for him to travel, such traveling expenses, hospital expenses and wages lost while undergoing examination will be paid by the government, should it be decided that treatment is necessary.

"On the other hand, if the physical condition of the man makes it impossible for him to travel, he will be examined and treated at his home. In special cases where it is found that a change of climate will be beneficial patients will be sent to specially designated hospitals."

CHX. WOMAN HEADS CAFETERIA

Mrs. Olive Nowland Feeds Telephone Operators

Information from a clipping taken from the Bell Telephone News states that Mrs. Olive Nowland of this city has charge of the cafeteria in Ann Arbor that feeds all of the telephone operators of that city and according to the girls that eat there it is some place to feed.

Mrs. Nowland is known as "Mother Nowland" to the patrons of the cafe and evidently her ability to cook has won a warm place in the hearts of her customers.

URIC ACID IN MEAT CLOGS THE KIDNEYS

Take a glass of Salts if your Back hurts or Bladder bothers you—Drink more water.

If you must have your meat every day, eat it, but flush your kidneys with salts occasionally, says a noted authority who tells us that meat forms uric acid which almost paralyzes the kidneys in their efforts to expel it from the blood. They become sluggish and weaken, then you suffer with a dull misery in the kidney region, sharp pains in the back or side, headache, dizziness, your stomach sour, tongue is coated and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine gets cloudy, full of sediment, the channels often get sore and irritated, obliging you to seek relief two or three times during the night.

To neutralize these irritating acids, cleanse the kidneys and flush out the body's urinous waste get four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy here. Take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate sluggish kidneys, also to neutralize the acids in uric acid, so it no longer irritates, thus relieving bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot injure, and makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink.

DUNLOP—MARTIN NUPTIALS WEDNESDAY

Bride Graduate of Normal School and Well Known Here

Mr. John L. Martin and Miss Mabel E. Dunlop were married last Wednesday morning at 10:00 o'clock at the bride's home near Ironton. The ring ceremony was said by the Rev. G. W. White of Boyne City. After a wedding breakfast the young couple left on the C. R. & I. for a 10 days trip to Ohio. They will be at home at Grayling by January 1st.

The groom is an employee of the M. C. R. R. stationed at Grayling. The bride is a daughter of Mrs. Jno. Dunlop of Eveline township, and has always made her home with the family near Ironton. For the last six months she has been employed as bookkeeper at the Boyne City Electric Co.'s office. A host of friends join in good wishes for the estimable young couple.

CHRISTMAS NUMBERS AMONG OUR EXCHANGES

All Issues Show Considerable Enterprise and Deserve Mention

Among the numerous Christmas numbers of papers published in neighboring towns that deserve mention are the Boyne Citizen, East Jordan Herald, Mancelona News and Harbor Springs Graphic. In each instance additional pages were required to handle the Christmas advertising, besides an unusually attractive two color cover.

The Alma Record did itself proud by getting out a 24-page issue, filled with interesting reading matter and advertising. Its owners, the Messrs. Babcock & Crosskopf, are former Harbor Springs men, having purchased the Record last spring.

The Gratiot County Herald carried 34 pages in its Christmas number, which is nothing unusual for this progressive weekly newspaper. Brother McCall states he made no special effort along the lines of soliciting advertising—the business just came in and he was under obligations to take care of it. It was a dandy paper and its readers certainly ought to enjoy reading it.

The feed barn just west of the Masonic block on Mason street is now open and ready for business. Put your team under cover these cold days—cost but little. J. R. Cooper, proprietor. Adv52t2

M. E. CHURCH NOTES

A very fine stereopticon service will be given on Sunday night at the Methodist church beginning at 7 o'clock. The program will be the famous Passion Play of Oberammergau with illuminated solos, recitations and hymns. A cordial invitation is extended to all.

The Epworth League service at 6 o'clock will be under the leadership of our young people who are home from college for the Christmas vacation.

On New Year's Eve a banquet will be served to the members of the Sunday school, children and adults.

A special invitation is extended to our members and friends to attend the watch night service.

Don't wait until spring and then want your car painted and overhauled at once. Have it done now. See Benj. Brown about it at once. Adv52tf

CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH

At the Sunday morning service of December 28th, the minister will speak from the theme "Personality and Power." Have you no church home? Ours is open to you at all times.

Immediately following the Community tree, the children of the Sunday school will present a pageant of the Nativity. The public is invited. At the pleasant Sunday evening hour the Art Institute slides will be used in connection with a lecture by the minister. The subject will be announced later.

And lastly—though decidedly not least—the merriest Christmas and the happiest New Year to all.

SURVEY OF THE COUNTY SCHOOLS

SCHOOL COMMISSIONER STEWART MAKES REPORT

Compliments Teachers on Splendid Work They Are Doing and Results Obtained

With the completion of the fall round of visits including even the small islands of the Beaver group, the commissioner is taking a bird's eye view of conditions—measuring what we have with what we might have expected.

Last spring a number of directors looked rather gloomily over the prospects for the coming year. They said, "We always do have to take our chances even when we pick and choose. What will it be when we have to take what we can get?" Or "There are always a number of misfits anyhow. What will it be when we have so great a teacher shortage?" Surely enough, the prospects were not very bright. The directors had reason to believe that all might not be well. Bright, capable girls were leaving the profession every day and strangers were entering. At best it looked as if only two-thirds of the schools could be filled and even then every applicant would have to be considered.

The directors set about their work with a will. They did not intend to bide everybody who applied. It would be far better to have some of the schools closed than to have them running in confusion. Where there was a question of character or very low scholarship, not a director in the county considered the applicant. If it was a question of wages, almost every school said we shall pay what is right. Good teachers who came to apply were seldom allowed to leave if money could induce them to remain. It was hard—those first days of the change of the wage scale last summer, but the school officers of the county knew that the children's lives and future were at stake and faced the situation squarely.

The result is splendid. Almost every school has a teacher. Only one school in the county is not provided for. This school has had two applications from qualified teachers who would not teach for less than seventy dollars. They did not feel that they could pay this much. No provisions have been made for the children. Six school districts are transporting their pupils to neighboring districts with very good service. Several others are considering this movement for next year and some are talking of consolidation in order to achieve their ends and be sure of a teacher in the bigger shortage next year.

The finest thing about the year's school work so far, is that we have such a splendid corps of teachers. It pays to be careful and the school officers are to be commended in not having a single failure in the country schools this year. Every teacher is working might and main. Every teacher is using all the training she had to begin with and looking for more in her libraries and other equipment about her. We never had a more enthusiastic corps of teachers, never had so few complaints, and so many compliments for the teachers in charge.

It is a pretty good feeling on New Year's Day to know that with the teacher shortage looming greater every day, our school boards have managed to help us keep going and still keep us on top. The best way to get a happy New Year is to go out after it and this they have done in the schools of Charlevoix county.

NORTH MICHIGAN BASKET BALL MEET

PETOSKEY SELECTED AS ONE OF EIGHT CENTERS

Teams in Northern Michigan to be Entered in Contest to be Held March 25 and 26

The Michigan Athletic association has selected Petoskey as one of the cities in which high school basketball tournaments will be held this coming season, March 25th and 26th. Tournaments of this sort are to be held in eight Michigan cities.

Superintendent Lantz of Petoskey high school will have charge of the tournament that will be held at that place. The teams that will participate in this meet are expected to be Traverse City, Cadillac, Alpena, Charlevoix, Bayne City, Cheboygan, Onaway, Gaylord, Grayling, East Jordan, Manclona, Bellaire, Central Lake, St. Ignace and the Soo. Several others not yet listed will probably take part.

The Petoskey high school has a fully equipped gymnasium and one of the finest basketball courts in the state and should be well able to entertain the large number of teams that will be there.

The eight different centers for basketball competition include Petoskey, Detroit, Grand Rapids, Ypsilanti, Kalamazoo, Houghton, Marquette and Mt. Pleasant, where the preliminary games will be played to settle the best quintets in classes A and B.

All schools having more than 250 students will be placed in Class A, while those having under this figure will compose Class B. The two best teams in each division will meet at the state tournament.

This year the state basketball tournament will be held for those in Class A at Ann Arbor and for those in Class B at East Lansing. Next year the order will be reversed and Class A will play at East Lansing, while Class B will go to Ann Arbor. This tournament is scheduled to take place in March.

Sixteen teams will be entered in the championship tournament and the state title will be settled by a short series of games on the elimination plan. The preliminary tournaments are scheduled for March 25th and 26th. The winners of these tournaments will meet in the final clashes on April 1st and 2nd for the state title.

FARM AUTO TOUR OF NORTH MICH.

WILL BE UNDERTAKEN DURING NEXT AUGUST

Grange, Farm Bureau, M. A. C. and State Highway Department Bureau Are to be Included

Plans are now being completed by J. H. Brown, field editor of the Michigan Farmer, of Detroit, for a big automobile touring trip to Mackinaw City and Sault Ste. Marie next August in which Grand Rapids automobile owners will be expected to cooperate.

The tour is planned for the farmers of Michigan and will be made up of state officials of the Grange, state farm bureau and members of these organizations, including State Highway Commissioner Frank F. Rogers, Master J. C. Ketcham of the State Grange, C. A. Bingham and Roland Morrill of the state farm bureau, some of the M. A. C. officials and faculty and especially A. R. Turner of the Boys' and Girls' clubs, Dr. Mumford, John I. Gibson of the Western Michigan Development bureau and T. F. Marston of the Northeastern Michigan Development bureau. Details will be considered at a meeting in Lansing early in January.

The trip will probably start on Monday, Aug. 9. The first night camp on the west pike will be at Grand Rapids and at Reed's Lake. Those farmers and others who live west of Lansing and Jackson will go up that pike.

Many of the cars will be more or less equipped with some sort of folding beds, bedding, gas stoves for cooking, etc. Each one will travel in a garb for such a stunt and the greatest enjoyment will be had at each night control, where cars will be parked and the passengers sleep, eat and live in any old way they please.

The night controls on the west pike are now being planned for Grand Rapids, Manistiquie, Traverse City and Mackinaw City. The cars on the east pike will have the first night control at Saginaw or Bay City. Other night stops will be at Tawas City, Harrisville or Alpena, Cheboygan, and these cars will meet those of the west side the same afternoon at Mackinaw.

The plan as laid out includes music by a band and noted state speakers on various agricultural topics at a public meeting in the early evening at each night control on the road.

The speaking program will be in charge of Mr. Brown of the Michigan Farmer and J. C. Ketcham, C. A. Bingham, Frank F. Rogers, Dr. Mumford and R. A. Turner.

The boosting of all good measures for the farmer and his family will be the leading theme. This will include good roads. Plenty of surprise developments are being planned.

Mr. Brown, in a talk before the State Grange at Saginaw recently, made the first public announcement of the plan. Mrs. Olivia J. C. Woodman, of Paw Paw, and chaplain of the State Grange, has already made definite plans to go and will be accompanied by Mrs. Abbie E. Dills, of Dewitt, in the car of Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Bartlett, of Pontiac. Mrs. Woodman is well along on the journey of life, but she is bound to take this trip and have as good a time as anybody in the whole crowd.

John I. Gibson and H. J. Gray, of Grand Rapids, will have local charge of entertainment on the west side as Mr. Brown's aides, and Burt Wermuth, of Detroit, will have the management of the east side. T. F. Marston, of Bay City, will look after the local entertainment.

At Mackinaw City the cars will be parked over Sunday—unless favorable terms can be arranged for transporting the cars on the ferry across the Straits of Mackinaw. Mr. Brown will make arrangements to take a boat to the Soo by way of Mackinac Island and up St. Mary's river.

Two of three days may be spent at the Soo, visiting the immense locks, riding down the rapids, etc. Upper peninsula officials, including those at the Soo, promise Mr. Brown they will give the tourists a rousing reception, fish dinners and plan a monster agricultural picnic and rally.

It already looks as though the greatest and longest procession of farmers' automobiles in the country would be on the way to Michigan next August.

OPEN SEASON FOR BACHELORS

BACHELOR HUNTING NOW LEGAL—LET'S GO, GIRLS

Licenses May Be Obtained from County Clerk Lewis if the Hunt Should Prove Successful

The season is about to open—girls get ready for your chance that comes only once in four years. Bachelors who have no desire for this so-called domestic tranquility, had better lay low for the next 366 days.

When the clock strikes twelve tonight men will become fair prey to all single women desiring to wed according to the custom of the country. The opportunity comes only once in four years and the date has been thought of with wistful smiles many times during the past four years.

Bachelor hunting differs from that of wild game considerably. In the first place the time of securing licenses differs. To hunt wild game one must have their license before starting the hunt, while in quest of bachelors one does not get a license until the hunt is finished, providing it has been a successful one.

To those who never before had experience in this line of hunting and also to those who have had more or less experience this information may prove interesting and prove of great value in the year to come.

Bachelors are one of the shyest and most elusive game that roam the woods and in trapping them one must use great caution and diplomacy. If caught while young and tender a bachelor is fairly easy to handle; this is also true after they have become quite old.

Like the ostrich they are very foolish and after reaching a certain old age imagine that they are young and frivolous once more and soon fall prey to some sportsman matrimonially inclined. It is the middle aged ones that are the most desirable and are the hardest to corner.

To be persistent is one of the best policies to follow. Keep everlastingly on the trail and at last they will give up in despair and the rest is easy. Get them off from their own ground and the fight becomes easy and ends in the hands of the village parson.

Leap year originated at the time of the old Romans, who made a mistake in figuring out the twelve months calendar, which we still use. Instead of 365 days in a year there were really 365 1/4 days. Julius Caesar fixed that in B. C. 46, but his adding machine was having an off day and went flat by the count of eleven minutes and fourteen seconds. To overcome this difficulty it was decreed in 1582 that every fourth year should be Leap year to make things balance up right.

This custom has continued ever since. The tradition of the origin of the right of women to propose is more or less uncertain, but it seems that a certain Scottish parliament which met in 1228 when gatherings of the nation's solons were not so involved with questions of strikes, coal situations, railroads, tariff bills, etc., passed a law making it possible for women to propose to the men if that branch of humanity should lay down on the job.

So that no partiality will be shown it is best to also offer a few words of advice and warning to the terror-stricken bachelors. Stick close to home, and when you do go outside go in a bunch. Even then you are not entirely safe. Don't think that you can depend upon your powers to argue to save you because if you do you are as good as gone right now.

REMAINS BROUGHT HERE FOR BURIAL
Mrs. A. J. McLeod Lived in Charlevoix for Many Years
Friends of years standing Wednesday paid their last respects to the late Mrs. Alexander J. McLeod, a former resident of this city, who died in Detroit, December 27th, and whose remains arrived in Charlevoix on the evening train Tuesday.

Decensed was born in Barry, Ontario, in 1823, and came to Charlevoix in 1870, leaving here a number of years ago. She is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Anna Lobdell and Miss Christine McLeod, her husband having died several years ago.

Funeral services were held from the Congregational church Wednesday morning at 10:00, Rev. VanKirk officiating. Interment in Brookside cemetery.

STORK ARRIVES CHRISTMAS EVE

Three Homes Made Happy by Arrival of Son and Daughters

The stork and Santa Claus were both kept busy in Charlevoix Christmas Eve and day delivering parcels (also babies) to the many homes here. Both were welcome visitors, especially at the home of Mr. and Mrs. P. D. Campbell, whose home was made happy by the arrival of a baby girl about nine o'clock Christmas eve. The young miss will be called Margaret Jeannette.

On Thursday evening the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Gebeau was gladdened by the arrival of a bouncing baby boy, and a baby daughter also arrived at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Gus Sandenburg the same evening.

In the past the nights set aside by the city council to set upon the city expenses has been the first and third meetings of the month.

This has been changed and in the future pay nights will be the second and fourth Mondays of the month.

TWO BUSINESS TRANSACTIONS

MARTIN BLOCK BUYS KLOOSTER MARKET

Building Used by Klooster Sold to L. P. Adams Who Will Rebuild and Occupy Soon

Two business transactions of considerable importance were completed in the city last week.

The grocery business owned and operated by Edward Klooster was sold to Martin Block, who also operates a grocery and meat market here.

Mr. Klooster entered business in Charlevoix about three years ago and in the time that he has been here has earned a reputation for fair dealing and built up a fine trade and made a host of friends among the people of Charlevoix. This sale only involved the stock of grocery and grocery fixtures, Mr. Klooster still retaining the market fixtures. What he intends to do in the future is at present unknown but whatever it may be he can rest assured that the best wishes of this community go with him.

The building that has been occupied by the Klooster business has been sold to L. P. Adams, who in the past has operated a cigar store and billiard parlor on the corner of Bridge and Clinton streets. Mr. Adams announces that the building will be remodeled, the floor lowered to the level of the street and the cellar enlarged and deepened, the work to begin at once, and as soon as the building is ready for occupancy he will move his stock and fixtures there from the old building and resume business at once.

MISTAKES IN APPLYING FOR LICENSES

Make Checks Payable to Clerk of Emmet County Only

Many people in Charlevoix and vicinity applying for automobile licenses through the branch office at Petoskey, have been under the impression that the certified checks that accompany the application are to be made out to Coleman C. Vaughn, secretary of state.

Many people thus far have made this mistake only to find that they were wrong and to cause an additional amount of work, waiting and trouble.

All persons applying for licenses through the Petoskey branch office should send with the application a certified check for the amount of the license made payable to Allen C. Madlen, clerk of Emmet county, and the man in charge of this branch office.

THE FARMER'S ACCOUNT BOOK

HOW MANY IN COUNTY KNOW OPERATING EXPENSE?

Few Can Tell What They Are Worth or of Amount of Produce Disposed of in a Year

Will you venture a guess as to how many farmers in our county keep books, even though simple, in which they record a complete income and expense account, as well as other activities and business transactions occurring on the farm?

Or, offering a wider margin, how many can tell you to within a few hundred dollars what they are worth and the business which they have done within the last twelve months? How much did you make on that calf you sold—on the cow you bought, when was she bought, how much on that field of potatoes—from the apple—the poultry—the wood and a dozen and one other things? Such are the every-day questions asked on the farm, but how many are properly answered? As a rule, on the majority of farms, these questions cannot be answered with any degree of accuracy at all.

With all due deference to the farmers, it is a fact that if the ordinary business man kept books the way the ordinary farmer keeps his books he would go bankrupt. The business man can tell you exactly how much he makes on certain lines of merchandise, and what he can handle to a profit. So can the farmer, when he keeps books, even though they be simple. The college supplies books for the use of the farmer which are highly practical, easy to keep, and can show the farmer at any and all times just where he is in his business.

It has been said by men who have made a study of conditions that there would be more money made and fewer farm failures if the farmer would keep books, which would give him an accurate tab on his business.

The Farm Bureau urges that more farmers keep books, because we believe it is important. You can get these little books from the college at East Lansing or from the Farm Bureau office in Atlanta. The Farm Bureau office has arranged to supply them to you free of cost if you agree to keep them up to date. The county agent will be glad to assist you in beginning your book and getting it into shape. It can't be made any cheaper to you, but no matter how cheap it is made to you, it will be of immeasurable value to you in your business.

NOVEL OFFER OF LOCAL SHOEMAN

Will Give Pair of Shoes to Every Baby Born in 1920

We don't know, and if we did know we wouldn't tell, the real reason for it, but at any event the Campbell Boot Shop is pulling off about the best advertising stunt we have heard of in many days.

Possibly it is due to a recent visit of the stork at his home, or perhaps for some other reason, but Don is offering a proposition that might be taken seriously by some people whose homes have not been blessed by the arrival of little ones.

His proposition is this: He offers to give absolutely free of charge, a pair of baby shoes upon the arrival of the little one, and to date has given away several pairs of shoes.

Upon the box is a label reading thus: "Baby's First Shoes, compliments of Campbell Boot Shop, 203 Bridge Street, Charlevoix, Michigan."

It is hard to estimate the number of pairs of shoes he will give away during 1920; but he states there is no limit to his offer.

LADIES' SECRET TO DARKEN GRAY HAIR

Bring Back its Color and Lustre with Grandma's Sage Tea Recipe.

Common garden sage brewed into a heavy tea, with sulphur and alcohol added, will turn gray, streaked and faded hair beautifully dark and luxuriant. Mixing the Sage Tea and Sulphur recipe at home, though, is troublesome. An easier way is to get the ready-to-use preparation improved by the addition of other ingredients in a large bottle, at little cost, at drug stores, known as "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," thus avoiding a lot of fuss.

While gray, faded hair is not sinful, we all desire to retain our youthful appearance and attractiveness. By darkening your hair with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound, no one can tell, because it does it so naturally, so evenly. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning all gray hairs have disappeared. After another application or two your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy, soft and luxuriant and you appear years younger. Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound is a delightful toilet requisite. It is not intended for the cure of dandruff or prevention of disease.

"Stickiness."

"A million come callers no more!" but lots of people gather on the sun that is in its place and stick like glue.

VICE CHAIRMAN OF STATE REPUBLICAN COMMITTEE

MISS BINA M. WEST.

Member of the National Woman's Republican Committee of Eleven, and Vice Chairman of the Republican Michigan State Central Committee.

The honor of being the first woman chosen to hold a political office on a Michigan Party Committee has been given to Miss Bina M. West, the founder of the Woman's Benefit Association of Port Huron. This honor has been worthily placed as Miss West has made a phenomenal success in organization work. The Association she founded 27 years ago is today the largest fraternal organization for women in the world. Miss West brings to her appointment years of successful training and business experience.

MICHIGAN WOMEN ORGANIZED

District Leaders Named and Resolutions Passed for Party Recognition.

The recent very successful meeting of the Woman's Central Committee, jointly with the Central Committee in Detroit, December 16, has shown that the women have an intelligent grasp of what is required of them and the Congressional districts will be thoroughly organized early in the year. Mrs. Fletcher Dobyns, Chicago, vice chairman of the Illinois Central Committee, was the guest of honor at this meeting.

The following resolutions were unanimously adopted: WHEREAS the women of the Republican State Central Committee, and the members of the Woman's Executive Committee of the State of Michigan in joint session have expressed it as their belief, that the preservation of our Republic, and the perpetuation of the American ideals of democracy in Government, is dependent upon the success of the Republican party in 1920, the party which has always stood for exact justice to all groups, and for equal rights and responsibilities under the law, and

WHEREAS we feel that as representatives of the Republicans of Michigan it is our position on matters of vital interest to the women of Michigan, therefore, be it RESOLVED by the members of said committees in joint session, that we do hereby instruct our Chairman to communicate with the State Central Committee, and urge upon said Committee that it recommend to the various conventions to be held in this State for the selection of delegates to the National Republican Convention in Chicago in June, 1920, that such delegates be selected to support a change in the laws and rules governing the formation of the Republican National Committee so as to provide for the selection of two members to said National Republican Committee from each State, one such member to be a woman. Be it further

RESOLVED that we do urge upon the State Central Committee the immediate appointment of a platform committee composed of members chosen from the State Central Committee, and a number of well known Republican men and women, representing the various groups within the State, so that all interests may have an opportunity to be heard and represented, and the end that a platform may be prepared which will fairly represent the average opinion of the Republican citizenry of Michigan. Be it further

RESOLVED that we do urge upon the Republican State Central Committee, and upon the platform committee, if such be appointed, the serious consideration and approval of a law for the regulation and censorship of motion pictures in this State, for the codification of the Child Welfare laws of this State, for the immediate enrollment of women into existing Republican Clubs in the State, and into Clubs which may be hereafter formed, so that every Republican organization in the State of Michigan shall be open alike to men and women. Be it further

RESOLVED that we do hereby extend to Hon. Chas. B. Warren, member of the National Republican Committee for the State of Michigan, and Hon. Huri D. Cady, chairman of the State Central Committee of Michigan, and the men members of said committee, our sincere appreciation for the courteous assistance extended to the Republican women of Michigan in their efforts to organize and enroll the women of the State, our great party.

Women members of the State Central Committee are: First Congressional District, Miss Lotta Broadbridge; Second, Mrs. Norma Bowbeer, Wyandotte; Third, Mrs. Carollo Kleinastuch, Kalamazoo; Fourth, Mrs. Cora E. Ketcham, Haastings; Fifth, Mrs. Aldo L. T. Blake, Grand Rapids; Sixth, Mrs. E. D. Black, Flint; Seventh, Mrs. Elizabeth Deo, North Branch; Eighth, Mrs. C. W. McClure, Saginaw; Ninth, Mrs. Orrin T. Bolt, Muskegon; Tenth, Miss Flora M. Minchla, Ewart; Eleventh, Mrs. A. E. Sangster, Cheboygan; Twelfth, Mrs. Ahly B. Roberts, Marquette; Thirteenth, Mrs. Wilbur Brotherton, Detroit.

This capable committee hopes at an early date to have their Committee in every county organized, thereby having in each county an equal representation of women with men. Furthermore there will be a course of study outlined in every county, whereby women will be educated on the principles of the party as well as a study of its constitution and organization methods.

CITY OF STONES AND SAINTS

Old Spanish Stronghold of Avila Has Long Been Known by That Peculiar Cognomen.

Avila is an ancient Spanish stronghold now known as the city of stones and saints. The stones are prominent enough in the high wall, broken by circular towers, which surrounds the city and in the past kept out undesirable visitors. Some people say, however, that the term stones refers to the stone pigs which decorate the city in unexpected places. No spot is too sacred for these roughly carved pigs, which fact recalls the tradition that when paganism ruled in Avila these grotesque animals were themselves objects of veneration. But today they provoke only jest in spite of their attitudes of haughty aloofness.

The saint part of the stones and saints epithet is adequately represented by Santa Teresa, the most beloved saint of Spain, who spent most of her life in Avila. Santa Teresa started her career of saintliness at seven years of age, when she tried to get herself martyred by the Moors outside the city walls. She was deterred from achieving this at the critical moment by her relatives. Later, tradition states, she was transported to heaven and given instructions on building and running a convent, after which she returned to earth and spent the rest of her life carrying out the celestial orders, and thereby winning the love of the people.

SELECT PIGS FOR BREEDING

Animals Should Not Be Pushed, but Kept Growing Nicely to Develop Bone and Muscle.

Pigs selected for breeding purposes should be kept growing nicely, but they must not be pushed, for the whole object of their feeding is to make them stretch out and develop bone and muscle in place of fat. They should be continued on a growing ration. A little skim milk and shorts make a good ration. A small amount of ground oats and cracked corn will help develop and insure normal growth. But corn should be used sparingly as it is too fattening for pigs. Remember that these pigs should also have an abundance of green feeds.

A vast amount of work now remains to be done which the intervention of war has necessarily delayed and accumulated, and the result is that a very large capital expenditure must be made up for the interruptions inevitably due to the war, and to prepare the railroads to serve adequately the increased traffic throughout the country.

WALKER D. HINES,
Director General of Railroads.

Work more—Produce more—
Save more—

But we can't continue increasing our production unless we continue increasing our railroad facilities.

The farms, mines and factories cannot increase their output beyond the capacity of the railroads to haul their products.

Railroads are now near the peak of their carrying capacity.

Without railroad expansion—more engines, more cars, more tracks, more terminals—there can be little increase in production.

But this country of ours is going to keep right on growing—and the railroads must grow with it.

To command in the investment markets the flow of new capital to expand railroad facilities—and so increase production—there must be public confidence in the future earning power of railroads.

The nation's business can grow only as fast as the railroads grow.

Something from Nothing

The annual report on Forestry issued within the past few days shows an annual crop production of $100,000,000 or over, from lands which a short time ago returned nothing. Mr. Arthur P. Davis, director of the United States Reclamation Service says that more than 200,000 people are located in prosperous and contented homes on lands that have been restored through the reclamation service. He says that there is also an equal number in the cities, towns and villages which are affected by this agricultural development. The report points out that there are millions of acres of land equally favorable toward development, and that thousands of citizens are clamoring for forms in reclamation projects. The report lays stress upon the need of increasing to the greatest possible extent the acreage for settlers as well as the taking up of new projects without delay.

Oracles of Old

Andrew Carnegie once declared that in ordinary electric light plants hardly one-fifth of one per cent of the energy of coal was actually utilized. That was in the days before the development of gas producers, and other devices, but the figures of Mr. Carnegie have not been modified to the extent that might be expected in a day of scientific inventions. Harkening back to the oracles of old it is interesting to recall right here that John Mitchell, who served with great distinction as the head of the coal miners in the days when they started in to enforce their demands through organizations, gave it as his opinion that the waste of coal in the process of mining was more than twenty-five per cent—he believed that one-fourth of coal taken from the mines was never burned. Mr. Carnegie in an address delivered in 1908 stated that the actual consumption of coal had been over 7,500,000,000 tons, while the waste and destruction had been in the neighborhood of 2,000,000,000 tons. He added: "If our mining were perfected from now forward we might reckon that considerable less than one per cent of our original stock has been consumed, but estimating of this wasteful methods hitherto pursued nearly two per cent of our available supply is gone."

Oil Wells Running Behind

The monthly production of domestic crude petroleum in the United States was 33,378,000 barrels in October, an increase of practically 2,000,000 barrels over 1918. Each barrel contains over 42 gallons. The consumption for October of this year was 34,089,300. This shows a shortage of production, and the figures for last year also indicate that John D's guages of stock on hand are being lowered gradually. The oil wells are not keeping up with the automobiles and other gas burners.

Nothing to That French Story

It is announced by the War Department that "firms which have reconstruction contracts for France have been circulated, and they state that they are not employing any labor there as yet." The statement also says that "there are very few jobs of any kind for American soldiers in France at this time, and the statement that contractors are now offering good pay to all ex-service men who will sign up is without foundation. The report that the French government wishes to hire former soldiers from the United States is also incorrect."

These Progressive Days

Water power legislation has been held up since the days before the country became "progressively republican and progressively democratic" through the inaction of Congress. Even though there are worlds full of ideals that have taken our arms across the seas, the politicians still refrain from unlocking our natural resources, and putting the streams that have played since Adam, to work.

It's time to think about having that car overhauled and painted. Let the Brown Garage do the work.

UNITED DOCTORS SPECIALIST

Brings the knowledge of their Organization and experience in their Successful Treatment of

THOUSANDS OF CASES

Offers Services Free of Charge

This United Doctors is an organization of reputable, licensed physicians. They are all specialists in the treatment of certain diseases. They treat without surgical operations diseases of all internal organs, stomach, intestines, constipation, piles, liver, spleen, heart, nerves, skin, rheumatism, sciatica, goitre, tape-worm, leg ulcers and all long standing, deep seated diseases. Many years experience. The complete record of thousands of cases successfully treated prove that their methods are right. They were among the first to earn the name

"BLOODLESS SURGEONS"

Each staff member has at his command the knowledge and resources of the organization. Many people suffer from diseases that can be alleviated just because they cannot afford to go to high priced Specialists and Hospitals at a long distance from their home. No community has a sufficient number suffering from these diseases to support special Hospitals for their treatment and cure. The United Doctors have solved the problem. Their highly trained Specialists go to each community and will advise a proper course of treatment for the sufferers and instruct them how to take care of themselves at home. No matter what you have been told or the experience you had with other physicians, consult him on this visit. It costs nothing. If your case is incurable he will give you advice as may stay and relieve the disease. Married ladies must come with their husbands and minors with their parents or guardians.

SAYS FOREST FIRES KILL SOIL FERTILITY

M. A. C. Man Holds Loss of Humus as Greatest Damage

That the timber actually burned is only part of the loss to a community from forest fires, the destruction of soil fertility by the fires being of tremendous economic importance, is the opinion of Dr. M. M. McCool, head of the soils department at the Michigan Agricultural college.

"While the loss of timber itself is extremely important when forest fires pass over a section, there is another and less apparent loss which, from many points of view, is of even greater economic importance. I refer to the destruction of soil fertility.

"A great deal of humus is destroyed when fires pass over these regions. The loss of nitrogen, an extremely important and expensive element of plant food, reaches several hundred pounds an acre in some of the burned-over areas. Naturally, the value of these lands for agricultural purposes is tremendously reduced, if not practically destroyed."

This suggestion of the far-reaching effects of forest fires emphasizes the need for increased effort in the annual battle against the fires which sweep over the northern part of the state every year.

OLD-TIME COLD CURE— DRINK HOT TEA!

Get a small package of Hamburg Brand Tea at any pharmacy. Take a tablespoonful of the tea, put a cup of boiling water upon it, pour through a sieve and drink a teaspoon full at any time during the day or before retiring. It is the most effective way to break a cold and cure grip, as it opens the pores of the skin, relieving congestion. Also loosens the bowels, thus breaking up a cold.

Try it the next time you suffer from a cold or the grip. It is inexpensive and entirely vegetable, therefore safe and harmless.

RUB RHEUMATISM FROM STIFF ACHING JOINTS

Rub Soreness from joints and muscles with a small trial bottle of old St. Jacobs Liniment

Stop "dosing" Rheumatism. It's pain only; not one case in fifty requires internal treatment. Rub soothing, penetrating "St. Jacobs Liniment" right on the "tender spot," and by the time you say Jack Robinson—out comes the rheumatic pain. "St. Jacobs Liniment" is a harmless rheumatism cure which never disappoints and doesn't burn the skin. It takes pain, soreness and stiffness from aching joints, muscles and bones; stops sciatica, lumbago, backache, neuralgia.

Linger up! Get a 30 cent bottle of old-time, honest "St. Jacobs Liniment" from any drug store, and in a moment you'll be free from pains, aches and stiffness. Don't suffer. Rub rheumatism away.

MUST GET AUTO LICENSES NOW

Emmet County Sheriff Tells Car Owners What They Must Do

No car can be operated in Emmet county during any part of 1920 with a 1919 auto license attached. Such is the latest ruling made by Sheriff Miller of Emmet county. With a branch office in Petoskey, Sheriff Miller says there is absolutely no excuse for anyone to be without a new license. This rule also applies to any car owned in Charlevoix or adjoining counties.

License plates may now be secured at the office of the county clerk in Petoskey and the sheriff says he will accept no excuses from persons who do not have car licenses on their cars. "These people will have no excuse," the sheriff says, "for they have had plenty of time and opportunity to get their license right here at home. If the Petoskey office is not made use of by autoists in this region the state will discontinue it."

The Petoskey branch office was installed for the accommodation of people in northern Michigan. Considerable trouble was experienced in former years in obtaining licenses from Lansing on account of the thousands of applications coming in at once, late in the season. Get your auto licenses now—you'll have to buy them some time why not now? And it may save you trouble, also.

Cars overhauled and painted and made as good as new. We guarantee our work. Benj. Brown. Adv52tf

Labor the Limitation

Telephone management and operation never stand still. They cannot stand still. The dependency upon them of very important factor in our commercial, industrial and social life precludes any relaxation or suspension of activity.

The Great War caused the demand to overtake the reserve facilities and equipment of the Bell System and for a time it was nip and tuck between demand and supply. Now that the War is ended the Michigan State Telephone Company is planning to spend for new construction in the next two years whatever amount of money the available labor and material supply permits in an effort once more to get ahead of the immediate needs of the public and back to its former position of Ready to Serve.

Rates must be charged to meet present cost scales. But these rates are charged the public for the benefit of the public. Telephone service is a public service and must be maintained at the maximum of efficiency and comprehensiveness at any cost.

CHRISTMAS CLUBS AND THRIFT

The organization of so-called Christmas clubs by the banks of this country has done much to promote thrift and saving on the part of the people. The extent and importance of this movement is shown by the statement that this year about 3,500 banks which have adopted this plan have distributed more than $100,000,000 to approximately 3,000,000 members of Christmas clubs. For fifty weeks these club members regularly deposited small sums at the banks, and then they get it back with interest, in time to help them meet the annual problem of Christmas purchases.

The system of the Christmas club is understood by most persons, for it regularly is advertised by the banks in their efforts to promote this movement and secure new members. The latter merely agree to deposit a small sum weekly, or to start with a small sum and increase it in regular ratio, and the banks take care of this money and regularly add interest earnings that considerably increase the amount actually deposited. A penny, a nickel or a dime may be made the regular deposit, or a larger sum by those able to do so, and the depositor scarcely notices the amount, which otherwise probably only would be spent on some frivolity. When the fund matures, the size of the saving always is a welcome surprise, and of course the money is returned "just when it most is needed."

The Christmas clubs are a good thing and should be encouraged. Not only do they help to solve a real problem for many, in providing funds for holiday purchases, but they serve to teach and lastly impress the importance and advantage of systematic saving. The Christmas club plan has been in vogue only eight or ten years, but it has become an established institution, and this year it included 3,000,000 members, with combined savings of more than $100,000,000. Next year the membership and savings will be still larger, while many who learn the habit of thrift and saving in this way will apply the same practice in making a start toward financial independence.

A "BONEHEAD" PLAY

Sometimes slang must be resorted to to adequately express those things which should be brought clearly to the minds of the American people. And the present sugar shortage brings about a condition which is no exception. Thanks to a republican Congress a bill has been passed to continue the Sugar Equalization Board throughout the year 1920. But to resort to the slang, the greatest "bonehead" play made by the present administration was made when Mr. Wilson failed to authorize that board last fall, when he had been sufficiently warned, to purchase the 1920 Cuban sugar crop which at that time could have been purchased at low rates. Such action would have prevented the present so-called shortage which is a shortage simply because the available Cuban crop wasn't authorized to be purchased, looking to the "rainy day." It is said that the board, thanks to the republican Congress, may at this late day be able to obtain some of the remaining Cuban crop. But if that is true it will have to be purchased at the high rate of 13 1/2 cents a pound when it could have been obtained at a price far below that last fall if President Wilson had considered it important enough. The procrastination of the administration will make it impossible for the board to relieve to any great extent the shortage end of the situation. That it will be able to keep the retail prices from soaring out of sight is generally conceded.

And that will mean much to an already pocket-book sick populace.

CUMMINS BILL PROTECTS PEOPLE'S RIGHTS

The railroad bill as considered by the Senate admittedly did not meet with the entire approval of any member of the Interstate Commerce Committee when it was reported. It did, however, represent the composite views of an overwhelming majority of that committee. After months of painstaking study, based on hundreds of pages of testimony taken from the leading rail experts of the country, Chairman Cummins and his committee colleagues drew up a measure that to their minds offers a practical solution of the transportation problem, both by rail and by water.

For the first time in the history of railroad legislation the bill has for its guiding principle the protection of the people's rights. In drafting the provisions that afford that protection the committee was compelled to infringe on some of the prerogatives claimed by the railroad owners, and on some of the rights that labor insists belong to it. Furthermore, the committee found it necessary to meet conditions as they exist. If the rail situation had not been complicated by long-established customs of the roads in regard to rates and other details of operation it would have been far easier to prepare legislation dealing impartially with all parties in interest.

While perfection is not claimed for the measure, even by its friends, it is conceded to be the best disposition of the rail problem that could be made in the light of past experience, the facts at hand, and the probabilities of the future. It is essentially constructive, while the criticism that has been aimed at it has been almost entirely destructive. Senators have not hesitated in paying tribute to Senator Cummins for his "infinite patience, industry, and intelligence in the long and tiresome consideration of the measure."

On the other hand it is pointed out that Mr. LaFollette, a member of the Interstate Commerce Committee and the bitterest opponent of the bill, never offered a single constructive suggestion to the committee when it had the measure before it. He was content to remain silent while his colleagues labored in an earnest endeavor to frame an effective bill. When the result of their work was brought before the Senate for consideration LaFollette saw fit to launch into a campaign of denunciation of practically its every feature.

With the passage of the bill Congress will have provided a plan for railroad control that could not be improved upon with out present limited vision of the future. As its weak spots may develop later or as additional legislation may be found necessary the bill can be readily amended to meet conditions as they are found to exist. Precisely as the original interstate commerce act of 1887 has been amended many times in the years since that date, as changes in our transportation policy dictated, so will the Cummins bill undergo improvements as experience proves them wise. But as the Act of 1887 furnished the groundwork for future railroad legislation, so will the Cummins Act be the basis upon which will rest the interstate laws of succeeding Congresses. Without a start toward relieving the people of the transportation problems that now exist nothing could be accomplished. Senator Cummins and his republican colleagues have taken the initiative and presented a measure that represents the culmination of months of laborious study given to the subject.

AN ORGY OF EXTRAVAGANCE

"The whole country is engaged in an orgy of extravagance," says John J. Mitchell, a Chicago financier, "and there is no denying the charge. We have been spending money like drunken sailors for several years, and very soon we will have to face the 'morning after'."

Mr. Mitchell puts the blame on big business men inflating their expense bills to avoid the government taxes as much as possible, but that is only a narrow view to take of the situation. The evil has been rampant in all classes of society, and no where more so than among the workmen. They found themselves earning wages far above what they had pictured in their wildest dreams, and following the natural tendency, they immediately raised their scale of living to match it. Nothing but the most expensive food and clothing would satisfy them, and the landlord took what was left. Some were provident enough to lay aside their surplus and invest it in a home, or a business, and such men as these can regard the future with confidence, but the great mass of the workmen saved nothing beyond the liberty bonds they paid for by installments out of their weekly wages.

The time is rapidly approaching when the nation must return to something like its normal status, if we are to maintain our grip upon the markets of the world. That condition would have been upon us today were it not that the war has demoralized European industry more than it has ours. The men who have been soldiering for five years cannot settle down to work all at once, but as soon as the government allowances are stopped they will be obliged to on pain of starvation. Then may come the fiercest competition we have ever experienced, and if we are to hold our own we must be ready for the battle.

Daily Thought.

Man is but a reed, the weakest in nature, but he is a thinking reed.—Blaise Pascal.

Scotland's Oldest Church.

When Lands Do Not Matter

By S. B. HACKLEY

(Copyright, 1919, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

He had been on the road with the six fine saddlers he would not trust to anybody else's care, several hot, fatiguing days, and his long form did wearily into the restaurant chair.

"A bite and a sup for you, Gilbert Shore," then led—the glories of Frisco ran waltz," he thought.

Just across from him dined a man of fifty with a neck and a girl the like of which young Shore never remembered seeing outside the stockyards. The slim young waitress who served him broughticed water and hot soup, cold milk and hot coffee, and it seemed to the Kentuckian every known meal, salad, vegetable, but ensure only rewarded her efforts.

"What have you for dessert?" the waiter finally demanded.

"Lemon pie, snow pudding, raspberries, and strawberry ice cream."

"I'll take 'em!" he growled, "and bring 'em quick!"

Watching this interesting specimen devour, the young man did not notice that the girl was standing at his own elbow.

"Your order, please," she was saying.

Her cheeks were flushed with her encounter with the fat brute, her soft voice was not quite steady and there was a mist in her eyes—eyes deep and dark blue like the ocean when the summer sun is over it.

A wave of protecting tenderness swept over Shore; he made much ado to keep from pushing away his simple order and fastening his eyes on her winsome face, but he was a dilident young man, and a gentleman, so he pretended to eat, and used his eyes only by stealth.

And the girl? Long ago Albie Randolph had learned that silent unresponsiveness to all social advances of the young masculine customer was a girl's safeguard from insult, but she looked at the young man with his fine eyes, his clear, healthy skin and his charming manner and almost wished that he would ask her to go out with him. But he did not.

However, on his third day in San Francisco the aristocratic old lady with whom he lived on the great Blue

"I'll Take 'Em," He Growled.

Grass stock farm received a telegram: "Will be detained longer than I expected. Start back Tuesday."

"Oh, Grandmother Girl, if you knew why I am staying," he thought whimsically, "you'd say I'd been sleeping in the moonlight of my lost senses!"

On the evening he ate his twentieth meal at the Bay View restaurant, the man of the thick neck was leaving, just as he took his seat at the next table.

"That man needs a man to punch his head for bullying a little thing like you," he remarked. "I'd just like—"

"Oh, sir, please," she interrupted him half frightened, "he's a regular customer here! I—I don't really mind. One—one gets used to the unpleasantness here!"

Shore's heart prompted him to say:

"Little one, let me take you away from all this unpleasantness forever!" But he only said something so difficult that if she would let him, he would take her to see a good play somewhere that evening.

Albie's heart leaped, but she faltered: "I do not go out with customers!" Then she fled to the kitchen. When she came back he was gone, and a twisted bit of paper and a single Marshal Niel rose lay beside his plate.

"Oh, Little White Apron," the note said, "I wish I could feel that you trust me, stranger that I am! I like to think there is nothing in my face to frighten a girl. I'm leaving in the morning, but I shall see you again, for I'm coming back to see if you believe in the message of the rose!"

It was signed "Gilbert Shore, Bon Aqua Farms, Treadwell, Ky."

"What is the sentiment of the Marshal Niel rose, Sissy?" the girl asked her widowed sister that evening.

Corona reached for the dictionary. "Adoration," or "yours, heart and soul," she quoted.

Albie slipped back to her room and held the delicate rose for a long treacherous moment to her lips. "If only I knew he meant it!" she whispered. He was so lovable and so good-looking, but there were so many with good looks and had intentions! "And," she thought bitterly, "he is rich and I am a beggar!"

One evening in February she saw him enter the restaurant again. He came straight to her table, his brown eyes eager, glad.

"Oh, Little White Apron," he said softly, "I couldn't stay away any longer! Do you believe what the rose told? Do you trust me enough to go out to the theater with me this evening?"

Albie fought back the happiness looking out of her eyes. "I must work until twelve," she told him, "but you may go and call on my married sister and my invalid father. But do not stay late. Father must sleep early."

GLASS OF SALTS IF YOUR KIDNEYS HURT

Eat less meat if you feel Backache or have Bladder trouble—Salts for Kidneys.

Meat forms uric acid which excites and overworks the kidneys in their efforts to filter it from the system. Regular eaters of meat must flush the kidneys occasionally. You must relieve them like you relieve your bowels; removing all the acids, waste and poisons, else you feel a dull misery in the kidney region, sharp pains in the back or sick headache, dizziness, your stomach sour, tongue is coated and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine is cloudy, full of sediment; the channels often get irritated, obliging you to get up two or three times during the night. To neutralize these irritating acids and flush out the body's urinous waste get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast, for a few days and your kidneys will then act free and bladder disorders disappear. This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to clean and stimulate sluggish kidneys and stop bladder irritation. Jad Salts is inexpensive; harmless and makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which millions of men and women take now and then, thus avoiding serious kidney and bladder diseases.

First "Gas Mask."

The first apparatus to enable persons to enter a noxious inflammable atmosphere was called the "aerophore" and was the invention of M. Denayrouze, a French inventor and scientist. It was first tested at Chatham, England, 44 years ago, and was reported successful. Vast improvements on this device, which comprised an air-pump and flexible tubing, have since been made, and these have saved the lives of hundreds in mine accidents and other disasters where rescue work would be impossible without their use.

It's time to think about having that car overhauled and painted. Let the Brown Garage do the work. Adv524f

Everyone Should Drink Hot Water in the Morning

Wash away all the stomach, liver, and bowel poisons before breakfast.

To feel your best day in and day out to feel clean inside; no sour bile to coat your tongue and sicken your breath or dull your head; no constipation, bilious attacks, sick headache, colds, rheumatism or gassy, acid stomach, you must bathe on the inside like you bathe outside. This is vastly more important, because the skin pores do not absorb impurities into the blood while the bowel pores do, says a well-known physician.

To keep these poisons and toxins well flushed from the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels, drink before breakfast each day, a glass of hot water with a teaspoonful of Epsom's cathartic in it. This will cleanse, purify and freshen the entire alimentary tract before putting more food into it.

Get a quarter pound of Epsom's cathartic from your pharmacist. It is inexpensive and almost tasteless. A sourish twinge which is unpleasant. Drink phosphated water every morning to rid your system of these vile poisons and toxins. To prevent their formation. To feel like young folks feel. It is a fact before your mind, nerves and muscles become saturated with a contamination of body poisons, begin to tremble and shake all, keep it up. As soon as hot water act on the old sluggish bowels, and purifying the system of the body and hot water act on the old sluggish bowels, and purifying the system of the body and hot water act on the old sluggish bowels, and purifying the system of the body.

"He will not go," she told herself bitterly. "He will not go! They never do!" But even as she said it her heart whispered that she believed he would. "He is rich and we have nothing, Corona," Allie remonstrated when Corom told her in delight she had accepted Shore's invitation for them all to go motoring with him the next day. "We are not the people he belongs with."

When two weeks later Shore asked Allie to marry him the girl could not keep the glow of joy out of her face, but she crushed it from her voice.

"I cannot," she told him. "You might remember one day that I was poor and think that your riches tempted me. That would break my heart."

"Oh," he said easily, "I'm not a millionaire, if that's what's worrying you. Don't punish me because of the little grandfather left me."

But she was obstinate. "I cannot marry you," she repeated.

"Don't you love me?" he insisted. But she turned her telltale face away.

"I will come back," he said then, white and unhappy, "when you have had time to think it over."

"No," she said, her voice shaking, "do not come. I cannot ever marry you."

In many the city was full of fair visitors. One noon when Allie's whole body ached with weariness, her heart most of all, two Southerners sat at her table.

"I heard Gilbert Shore got badly smashed up out fox hunting about two months ago," the younger man remarked to the older. "How is he these days, doctor?"

"He's doing no good," the older man answered, and Allie's heart stood quite still. "When I told him the other day if he didn't try he'd never get so he could walk or get well, he said: 'I wish, to please you, doctor; I wish I could take more interest in getting well, but what's the use? Something besides his injury's troubling him. Raymond, I'm going to prod him into telling me when I get back!'"

A few days later a young man sitting in an invalid's chair on the porch of a fine country house in the Blue Grass, his eyes closed, suddenly felt a pair of strong arms around his neck.

"Oh, Gilbert," a soft voice breathed, "tell me you are not going to die! I came—came—"

For a moment he looked at her uncomprehending, then his eyes lighted with triumphant happiness. "And so you came to do good to the dying? Oh, little white Apron, can't you do good to the living and stay with him forever?" Then he added in tender whimsicality: "I ought to tell you, particular one, I've still got what grandfather gave me!"

She raised her head from his breast. "I've thought it over," she said. "It doesn't matter!"

Truth Everlasting.

The truth was never born, and it still never dies. It is as old as the universe, and while the universe endures the fact that love is life and life is death will endure along with it.

A Doctor N. Vain.

What YOU NEED was not a bottle of pills—But a GOOD POWER WASHING MACHINE

What's the use, Mr. Head of the House, of allowing the wife to overwork herself over an ordinary wash tub. Its the hardest kind of drudgery. You probably have a riding plow or cultivator. You take it easy as you can with your work. Play square with your wife and buy her a power washing machine. Your home will be happier. Try it and see.

We have the famous Fairbanks-Morse Power Washing Machines—either gasoline or electric. Also the Muskegon make. Everything is attached and run by power—wringer, rinser and all. If you want an electric plant, we can furnish that, too. Also a full line of tubs, boilers, wash boards and wringers.

FACTS ABOUT COAL STRIKE

IMPORTANT POINTS IN COAL CONTROVERSY

Republican Publicity Association Make Following Statements Regarding Controversy

The Republican Publicity Association, through its president, Hon. Jonathan Bourne, Jr., today gave out the following statement from its Washington headquarters:

"Here are a few plain and fundamentally important facts in connection with the coal controversy, strike and settlement:

"1. The coal miners repudiated valid wage agreements many of which would not expire until April, 1920, and demanded a 60 per cent increase in wages, with other concessions.

"2. The operators refused to grant the demands but offered to arbitrate.

"3. The miners refused to arbitrate and ordered a strike.

"4. President Wilson denounced the strike as unjustifiable and unlawful, and called upon the miners to return to work.

"5. Attorney General Palmer brought an injunction suit upon the allegation that the strike was unlawful, and secured a mandatory writ ordering cancellation of the strike order.

"6. The strike order was cancelled but the miners did not return to work — which return was the chief purpose of the suit.

"7. While the miners were thus engaged in what the President and the Attorney General declared to be an illegal act, the Attorney General negotiated with them concerning compliance with the law and made terms satisfactory to them by which their return to work was secured.

"8. These terms included a concession of a material part of the strikers' demands, the appointment of a tribunal satisfactory to them to determine what additional concessions should be made, and conveyed an implied forgiveness of the illegal acts already committed.

"9. Although the operators had offered to arbitrate all the demands, as made at the time of the threatened strike, the Attorney General granted part of the demands and then insisted that the operators had agreed to arbitrate the remainder, which they had never offered to do.

"10. If the agreement of the Attorney General shall stand, the miners gain at least the concession already made, and may gain much more through the arbitration, forced upon the operators, thus demonstrating that unjustifiable and unlawful acts are profitable—in other words, that dishonesty is the best policy.

"11. If the Attorney General's agreement shall stand, the Department of Justice thereby establishes the policy of negotiating terms with criminals—for the Attorney General declared the strike criminal but said he preferred to prosecute the case in the civil courts.

"12. Success of the unjustifiable and unlawful acts of the striking miners will be due notice to all class interests that the way to win is to repudiate agreements and imperil the public welfare, thereby forcing the government, through its duly authorized agencies, to yield at least a part of the demands and make agreements that may give to the law-breakers all that they ever expected or hoped to secure."

MAY JOINTLY BUILD COUNTY HOSPITAL

Charlevoix and Antrim Counties May Unite on Proposition

During the October session of the Board of Supervisors, a committee consisting of Wm. F. Baahaw, E. C. Chew and W. J. Gallagher recommended to that body that a suitable building be erected on the S. E. corner of the County Poor Farm for the care of tubercular patients. The report of the committee was accepted and adopted. Two thousand dollars was appropriated with which a committee was instructed to clear the site, drive a well and have building plans drawn. The committee now petitions Prosecuting Attorney Ruegger to draft a special call for the Supervisors at which meeting it is hoped to have their plans accepted and the necessary appropriation authorized for building. Mr. Ruegger in looking into the laws governing such matters has found "Any two or more counties may co-operate for the establishment and maintenance of a joint county sanatorium for the treatment of tuberculosis." The plan now seems to be to invite Antrim County to unite with us in this enterprise.—Boync Citizen.

SURPRISED BY THEIR FRIENDS

Pleasant Evening Spent at G. W. Sneathen Home

Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Sneathen were surprised Monday evening when a load of young people from Boyne City arrived at their home in Hayea to spend the evening.

Cards and games were enjoyed and at one-thirty an oyster supper was served. They returned to their homes in the wee small hours of the morning.

The party consisted of Mr. and Mrs. Archie Howe, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Scott, the Misses Thelma Spees, Mabel Thayer, the Messrs. Leslie Gould, Grayden Scott and Emory Fuller.

M. E. CHURCH NOTES

A congregation that filled the spacious auditorium of the Methodist Episcopal church enjoyed one of the finest stereoscopic entertainments ever presented in Charlevoix.

The famous Passion Play of Oberammergau was the chief feature, and the religious emotions of the congregation were deeply stirred as they witnessed the Passion of the Saviour, Christ.

As the view of Christ hanging on the cross between the two thieves was thrown upon the screen the audience sang the beautiful hymn: "Alas! and did my Saviour bleed? And did my Sovereign die? Would he devote that sacred head For such a worm as I?"

The preliminary numbers consisted of twelve very beautiful views illustrating the well known hymn, "The Holy City." As the views were shown Frank Pool sang the hymn with piano accompaniment by Mrs. Wakeman of Petoskey.

Professor Correll of the State Normal school at Plattsburgh, New York, sang "Lend Kindly Light," as the views illustrating the hymn were shown. Two illuminated Christmas carols in which the audience assisted closed a service which will be long remembered by those present.

REPURCHASES LEWIS MILLINERY STORE

Mrs. H. B. Wood Buys Back Store Formerly Owned by Her

On Tuesday Mrs. H. B. Wood purchased the millinery store, stock and fixtures, of Mrs. L. A. Lewis, and will take immediate possession.

It will be recalled that Mrs. Wood formerly conducted this store, disposing of it about a year and a half ago to Mrs. Lewis, who will leave Charlevoix this week for the city to continue in the same line of occupation.

Mrs. Wood will close the store and within the next ten days expects to visit the leading millinery wholesale houses in Chicago and purchase a complete line of spring millinery, opening the store on or about the first of March. She extends a welcome to old as well as new customers to visit her store after this date.

FIRST MINUTES OF ORGANIZATION

NEW CHAMBER OF COMMERCE AT FIVE MILE CREEK

"The One That Keep the Minut" Tenders Report of Meeting for Public Benefit

Not to be outdone by surrounding localities, the progressive Indians of Five Mile Creek, submit the following minutes of the organization of their Chamber of Commerce, says the Petoskey Evening News:

Minutes

I now write you about Chamber of Commerce we organize at Five Mile Creek. Well, we meet and elect Joe Tabasash head chambermaid. She called for order, also to pass jug of cider. Joe she ask for executing committee to be elected. Mary Snow-bush, Jonas Wabadick and Susan Checonassess elected. Committee moved and carried that we ask the United States to send 500 trout fry to plant in Five Mile Creek, also 500 porcupine fry to plant in woods for quills, also 500 black ash tree to raise splint for basket. Moved that we hold big home-coming day in Five Mile Creek. Set day for two week before yesterday, also that we invite the two chambers (one from Petoskey and one from Harbor Springs) to come and be our friends that day. So please put notice in your paper.

Susan Tobio now say he make song to speak called "When the Snow Is on the Milkweed." So she start him "When the snow is on the milkweed is bad time to dig the potato." He get no farther with song for that make old man Shebowski sore for he never get his potato dug till snow come. So he throw stove hook at Susan. No hit Susan but hit cider jug and break him. This make chamber all sore like dog ear in fly time. So all go home mad and dry to.

So good by,
Jonas Wabadick,

ENJOYING BEAUTIFUL CALIFORNIA WEATHER

Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Burdick Extend Christmas Greetings

The Courier is in receipt of a letter from Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Burdick, former well known Charlevoix residents, now located at Alamo, California, in which they extend greetings to their many Charlevoix friends and acquaintances.

They state they are both well and fully enjoying the beautiful California climate. Once in a while, according to the information given, they have had frosty mornings during the past month requiring a little fire mornings and evenings.

The letter was written on Christmas Eve, just as several automobiles filled with sweet-voiced singers are surrounding their store. They also state their thoughts turn to their friends in Charlevoix, whom they would be glad to welcome to their home at any time. They expect to visit Michigan and Charlevoix again in 1920 if nothing happens to prevent.

CENTRAL TIME WINS AT PETOSKEY

Fast Time Receives a Knock Out Blow by Popular Vote

By the decisive vote of 400 to 33, Petoskey citizens went on record in favor of Central Standard time, in the referendum held at the office of The Evening News, which closed last Wednesday evening at six o'clock. "Fast" time received a knockout blow.

Keen interest was shown in the matter, and the overwhelming majority in favor of returning to Standard time, leaves very little doubt as to the preference of the voters at large.

Considerable confusion was caused by business places and factories running on one time and the railroads, postoffice, public building, schools, etc., on fast time. The result is that but one time exists now in our neighboring city.

Time to store your car, and have it overhauled and painted. See Benj. Brown about it. Adv5212

COURIER, CHARLEVOIX, MICH., WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 7, 1920

PRICE $2.00 PER YEAR

RESORT REVENUE 100 MILLION

HUGH J. GRAY ESTIMATES THIS AMOUNT FOR 1920

Says All Business Will Benefit Through Big Summer for Hotel Keepers

Tourist and resort revenues amounting to not less than $100,000,000 are predicted for western Michigan in 1920 by Hugh J. Gray, manager and secretary of the Michigan Resort and Tourist bureau, at Grand Rapids. Mr. Gray regards this estimate as conservative.

"It is estimated that in western and northern Michigan as we know it there are approximately 2,500 large and small hotels and boarding houses who cater, principally, to the tourist business," Mr. Gray says. "It is estimated that these various stopping places accommodate an average of fifty people and to be very conservative I would say that during 1919 they were full practically five weeks. It is also estimated that for another five weeks all of these places are approximately half full," he declared. Speaking of last year and in telling of prospects for 1920, Mr. Gray said: "The average rate per week in these hotels and boarding houses throughout the section is approximately $20, so that on this basis the amount of revenue paid to hotel and boarding house keepers during that period of the summer would be approximately $18,750,000.

"It is a well known fact that the board and room of summer tourists does not equal one-half the money which they leave in the territory, but for the sake of argument say they only spend an equal amount, which would make the revenue left in this territory by permanent vacationists staying this length of time $37,700,000.

"These figures do not in any way represent the money left by the thousands of people who reside for anywhere from one week to the entire season in cottages which they either rent or own, neither does it take into account the revenue taken in from automobilists traveling through the territory either early or late in the season, as we term it. In addition to this is the revenues left by automobilists who carry their own camp equipment. And it does not take into account the thousands of people who came to the territory, especially south of Pentwater for week ends or one day excursions. We all know that this class of people come frequently, are good spenders for the two or three days which they are in the territory, so that summed up, it is my opinion that during the 1919 season the revenues left by tourists and resorters in this section of Michigan would approximate somewhere around $80,000,000.

"As I see it in order to increase this revenue, and I believe it is very feasible to do so, we have to lengthen the resort season in this part of the state which I am firmly of the opinion can be done by intensive advertising during the winter and early spring in the extreme south. Also by making the fact known as our roads continue to get better that the season in western and northern Michigan is delightful, and well worth trying, commencing as early as about May 15 and continuing to at least November 1.

"Of course you and I know that the weather in this part of the state is ideal, especially during the latter part of May and all of September and October, but to the average person living outside of the state this fact is not known and it is up to us to convince these people of this fact.

"As for the 1920 season, if constant inquiries regarding this section count for anything and the weather is at all favorable, I am thoroughly convinced that we can do an even larger business than we did in 1919 and it is my conviction that, without any doubt, we can secure a revenue in this part of the state from this business of not less than $100,000,000, which should and will be multiplied many times over as time goes on and we get better and more accommodations to take care of the business which presents itself.

"In order to do this, however, we must have more hotels, boarding houses, camp sites, amusements, etc., but I believe they will all come with the building of good roads and the confidence which must be instilled into the business man when he realizes that his business will increase each year."

HARTMAN QUILTS G. R. & I. RY. POST

BECOMES MANAGER FOR POTATO TO FLOUR CONCERN

W. P. Hartman Has Been Active in Promoting Agricultural Possibilities of This Region

William P. Hartman, agricultural and industrial agent for the G. R. & I. railroad, and well known in Charlevoix for his work in connection with the development of this region, has resigned from his position with the railroad and has accepted an executive position with the Falk American Potato Flour company, which has a plant at Cadillac. Mr. Hartman will be production manager of the Falk company and will enter upon his new duties Feb. 1.

Mr. Hartman has been in his present position five years and has done similar work for the Pennsylvania system for ten years. Previously he was employed by the Norfolk and Western. All of his railroad work was along agricultural lines and the experience which it afforded him helped to prepare him for his new office, which will be production manager for the Falk American Potato Flour corporation. Other plants are in Maine, Wisconsin, Minnesota, Idaho, Colorado, California and Washington. Plans are under way for establishing additional units until there are twenty-five mills in the potato districts of the country's locations to be determined by Mr. Hartman, whose headquarters will be in Pittsburgh.

Mr. Hartman had been largely instrumental in making the Northern Michigan an agricultural region and has been untiring in his efforts to assist the natural growth of the district from Grand Rapids to Mackinaw. He was very active in working with the Western Michigan Development bureau and has recently secured attention through advocating raising turkeys to combat the grasshopper pest.

SENATOR BAKER HURT IN EXPLOSION

Lighting Outfit in Rear of House Lets Go With Disastrous Results

Senator Herbert Baker, of Cheboygan, was taken to Petoskey hospital late Thursday afternoon of last week suffering from burns about the face, head, neck and hands, as the result of an explosion of an acetylene gas lighting outfit at his home in Munro township, Tuesday afternoon.

At first it was thought the burns had reached the eyes and that the sight might be endangered, but it is now believed that his eyes were not injured and that none of the burns will prove as serious as was first anticipated.

Senator Baker was three times a member of the Michigan house of representatives, speaker of the 1911 session, and at present is state senator from the 29th district which includes Emmet county.

Legislators who served with Senator Baker speak highly of his law-making activities, and declare him one of the best speakers in the capitol.

LESLIE SHAPTON POST ORGANIZED

AMERICAN LEGION STARTS WORK HERE

First Meeting of Ex-Service Men Held Friday—Officers Elected —Post Named

The first meeting of the ex-service men of Charlevoix relative to the organization of the American Legion in this city was held Friday, January 2nd. A very small number of the service men of this city were at the meeting, only twelve in all being there. The meeting was held in the office of Attorney R. L. Lewis and the first steps toward making the post at Charlevoix a permanent one were taken.

Following is a copy of the minutes of the meeting:

January 2nd, 1920.

Meeting called to order by R. L. Lewis, who stated the purpose of the meeting, and read several communications from the state headquarters of the American Legion, explaining to those present that some time previous an application for a charter in the American Legion had been made by the required number of those who were in the service of the United States in the World War; that the application had been acted upon favorably and number 226 assigned to the Charlevoix Post of the American Legion.

It was moved and seconded that Dr. Frank H. Wilkinson be temporary chairman. Motion carried.

It was moved and seconded that R. L. Lewis act as temporary secretary. Motion carried.

Dr. Wilkinson, the chairman, called the temporary organization to order, announcing that the first thing to come before the meeting would be the selection of a name for the local post.

After prolonged discussion, it was decided to name the post in the manner adopted by the majority of posts; namely, that of the first soldier or sailor from this jurisdiction who was killed in action.

It being ascertained that Leslie E. Shapton was the first one killed in action from this jurisdiction, the name adopted was Leslie E. Shapton Post No. 226.

It was moved that the dues for the ensuing year be $2.50. Motion carried.

Ballot being taken, the following officers were elected for the year ending December 31st, 1920:

Post Commander, Frank H. Wilkinson.

Post 1st Vice Commander, Dan Mathers.

Post 2nd Vice Commander, Forrest F. Fowler.

Post Adjutant, Robert Bridge.

Post Finance Officer, William W. Mitchell.

Post Historian, Ney Smith.

Post Chaplain, Harold Van Kirk.

Meeting adjourned to January 30, 1920, at 7:30 p. m.

ACCIDENTALLY SHOOTS HIMSELF

Elmer Coblentz of Boyne City Hurt
Last Saturday Night

Elmer Coblentz, 19 years of age, former high school athlete at Boyne City and at present a student at the State University of Ann Arbor, accidentally shot himself with a 20 guage shot gun at the home of his sister, Mrs. George Stone, 341 N. Park street, Boyne City, at about 8:30 Saturday night.

Elmer had the gun stored back of a trunk in a clothes closet at the Stone home, and in removing it preparatory to going hunting the next morning, in some unaccountable manner caused the weapon's discharge. The shot from the shell entered his left side shattering the hip bone and causing a very painful wound.

Two physicians were summoned who carefully examined and dressed the wound and it is hoped, if no infection or complications set in, the young man may be walking again in six weeks or two months.

CITY TO MOVE LIGHT PLANT

UNUSED MACHINERY AT BELLAIRE
LAIRE TO BE UTILIZED

Increased Demand During Summer Months Make Immediate Change
Imperative

Work has been started by the city of Charlevoix on their electric light plant at Bellaire relative to moving the steam plant located there to this city.

By so doing the city will relieve a long felt want, because as the spring and summer months come the strain on the city power as it now is, is certain to make a load that the present water-power plant cannot handle. The opening of the summer cottages and the hotels causes the demand for excess power.

The steam plant owned by the city at Bellaire is a good one of 500 h. p., has two good Sterling boilers and once installed here would be able to furnish all of the power necessary for any kind of an emergency.

The plant as now planned will be installed on the property owned by the city, located near the old sugar factory. Here, near the lake and the railroad, supplies and coal can be easily handled and probably a dock will be built in Pine Lake for this purpose.

The work of tearing down the plant prior to shipment started Tuesday morning with Dan Soule in charge, and plans have been made to build a building and install the plant in this city in the spring.

The move about to be undertaken has been long under consideration. At the present time the capacity of the Bellaire plant is sufficient only to produce enough electricity for our present needs, not to take into consideration at all the heavy summer load, which is more than double during the months of July, August and September, than the remaining nine months of the year.

During the past season, the city was fortunate enough in being able to buy the necessary current for the peak load from the Bellaire village plant. And at times this proved not sufficient. Nor can the Bellaire plant in the future supply the amount necessary to cover this shortage.

Suggestions which might or might not relieve the present situation have been offered, but have been found either too expensive or the amount of juice needed not available.

The maximum amount of electricity that can be produced at the Bellaire plant is known and can never be increased to cover even the present shortage, not to take into consideration the yearly increase that is bound to come — unless, perhaps, Charlevoix as a popular summer resort, should lose out and be a back number in the game.

It is the plan of the men in charge of our city affairs to, if possible, safeguard the interests of the city. By moving this unused machinery to the contemplated site, building a good building to house it, we are without doubt assured of an adequate supply of electricity to supply all present and future needs.

The matter should be given careful thought by every taxpayer in the city. It is to protect their interests that the move is being made. If you have objections, voice them right now. Go to your alderman, or better still, attend a meeting of the council, and express yourself openly. And keep in mind at all times that the electric light and power situation in Charlevoix needs immediate attention and the men who by your vote have been chosen to decide these matters are not least entitled to know your wants at all times.

HIGH SCHOOL OPENS SEASON

MEETS BELLAIRE NEXT WEEK
HERE

Plenty of Good Material on Hand to Whip Out a Good Team From This City

The first work of the Charlevoix high school basketball season began Tuesday night, January 6th, when Coach Loomis gathered his squad for the coming season together at the skating rink.

Work of installing the baskets and making the local rink ready to use has been done and practically the same hall as in the years past will be used this season. Although low, this floor is one of the best in northern Michigan outside of those schools having a fully equipped gymnasium, and the high school should be able to schedule some first class games with outside teams.

There is an abundance of basketball material this season and a cracking good team should be developed from it. Weststaff, Jones, Halverson, of last year's team are all back while valuable men in Krulick, Hammet, Paddock and several others are ready for this season's play and should form a combination hard to beat.

Much preparation has been made in the state for basketball this year in the form of tournaments to settle the state championship and Charlevoix should be well represented in the tournament to be held to choose the best team from this section of the state at Petoskey in March.

Petoskey has been chosen as the meeting place of these teams due to the fine gymnasium and basketball court in their high school. Teams from Cadillac, Traverse City, Boyne City, East Jordan, Harbor Springs, Bellaire, Cheboygan, Alpena, Grayling, Gaylord and Manistota are expected to compete there.

The boys are now hard at work practicing every night and getting ready for their first battle of the season which will take place at the local rink next week, the opposing team being from Bellaire.

ELMER POOLE BADLY INJURED

BURIED UNDER LARGE AMOUNT OF DIRT AND STONE

Wall Caves in While Working in Basement of Klooster Building
New Year's Day

A very serious and painful accident that nearly proved fatal occurred Thursday morning, New Year's Day.

A party of workmen under the supervision of F. M. Glassford and L. P. Adams were busy excavating dirt in the basement of the building recently purchased by Mr. Adams, on the corner of Park avenue and Bridge street. They were working at the rear of the building near the back wall and directly under a brick chimney about forty feet high.

For some reason or other no foundation had ever been put under this chimney, and the added pressure caused the wall of the building to cave in without warning, several tons of earth and large stones from the foundation falling into the basement.

Elmer Poole, one of the men working directly under the chimney and next to the wall, could not get out of the way in time and was completely buried under about eighteen inches of earth, mortar and rock.

Very speedy work was necessary in order to remove the debris from the buried man's face before he suffocated. The man was unconscious when uncovered and the lower part of his body was fast in the earth and rocks.

Most of the large stones for the wall were settled around his hips and back making the work of removing him difficult. As he recovered consciousness after being uncovered the further work of removing him was very painful. About an hour passed before the dirt was entirely removed and the body released.

It was found that he was suffering from one broken leg, many bruises, and a terrible shock. He was removed at once to his home and placed in the care of Dr. Armstrong. Due to his weakened condition the broken leg was not set until that evening.

The ring ceremony of the Methodist Episcopal church was used. Miss Vane Swinout and Charles M. Howard accompanied the bride and bridegroom.

MEN INVESTIGATING NEWBERRY CASE

Interview Several Men in City Seeking Information

Federal agents Hoeckley and Noble of the department of justice were in the city Tuesday interviewing men of this place in regard to the Senator Truman Newberry case soon to be tried at Grand Rapids before Judge Sessions.

The federal agents remain silent as to any developments in the case and they will probably do further work in this locality.

CORRESPONDENCE

NORWOOD

The Coeling sale was well attended.

Mrs. Wagner returned from Charlevoix Sunday.

Somehow our three day blizzard was not much appreciated.

Mr. and Mrs. Percy Empey of Atwood spent Sunday at the home of Nelson Empey.

Mrs. George Hires of Grand Rapids is visiting her father, Henry Jennett.

I. Dice is living in the Henry Supernaw house and cutting wood on his own place.

Sam Alward purchased a horse at the Coeling sale last week. Albert Harwood also purchased one.

Colon McKenzie and family of Charlevoix spent New Year's at the home of her father, George Lord.

Mr. and Mrs. Gardner and Mr. and Mrs. Kidder of East Jordan spent New Year's with their father, Henry Jennett.

Mrs. Harold Stafford has been spending a week with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Van Dusen, at Inwood.

The first floating ice seen this winter in the lake was discovered Sunday but had disappeared Monday morning.

Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Morehouse spent New Year's with their nieces, Mrs. Watson and Mrs. Annis, and Mr. Morehouse's sister, Mrs. Button at Central Lake.

Miss May Lucia celebrated her nineteenth birthday December 30th at the home of Mrs. Henry Cooper.

Dixon avenue, Charlevoix, where she is working. A very pleasant evening was spent by all those present and all wished May many more happy birthdays.

The friends of Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Varges of Clarendon Ave., Chicago, will be very sorry to learn of Mr. Varge's death which occurred at their home December 24, from cancer of the throat. Mr. and Mrs. Varges spent some time last summer at the home of F. E. Richardson and made many new friends while here. The bereaved wife has our deepest sympathy.

MAPLE GROVE SCHOOL NOTES

(Too late for last week)

The cleanliness roll is 98 per cent.

The regular attendance roll is 98 per cent.

Maple Grove is enjoying test this week.

The cleanliness roll for this week is only 95 per cent.

Nevn Webster has been absent on account of sickness since Wednesday.

Ruth Pant fell on the ice last Sunday and has been absent ever since.

Last Wednesday afternoon Mrs. Ferris, Mrs. Pant, Delcie Howe and Alice Howe visited school.

Everyone contributed a poem, story or music and everyone enjoyed themselves.

The honor roll for regular attendance is every one except Neva Webster, Ruth Pant and Ethel Monty.

What a Merry Christmas we had. Our janitors, Willie Ferris and Custer Howe, brought us a Christmas tree. They had to start just after breakfast to do it, and it was all decorated when the pupils arrived to put the presents on. It was a complete surprise to all.

DRINK MORE WATER IF KIDNEYS BOTHER

Eat less meat and take Salts for Backache or Bladder trouble—Neutralizes acids

Uric acid in most exerts the kidneys they become overworked; get sluggish and feel like lumps of lead. The urine becomes cloudy; the bladder is irritated, and you may be obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night.

When the kidneys clog you must help them flush off the body's urinous waste or you'll be a real sick person shortly.

At first you feel a dull misery in the kidney region, you suffer from backache, sick headache, dizziness, stomach gets sour, tongue coated and you feel rheumatic twinges when the weather is out.

Get from any pharmacist four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to clean clogged kidneys and stimulate them to normal activity; also to neutralize the acids in urine, so it no longer is a source of irritation, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everyone should take now and then to keep the kidneys clean and active. Druggists here say they sell lots of Jad Salts to folks who believe in overcoming kidney trouble while it is only trouble.

The High Cost of Living

The problems of peace, as did the problems of war, involve heavy expenditures by the Telephone Company.

There is much reconstruction and even more advance construction work to do before the former position of Readiness to Serve is regained.

Little or no construction work for two years, a vast increase in demand for service and a vast increase in the population to be served, presents a stunning problem to the telephone management.

A dollar will not buy as much service or as much material as heretofore, which further complicates the problem.

In the circumstances the Telephone Company must adopt the policy so uniform among merchants in every line of business and sell its service at higher prices.

The higher rates are a protection to a service that is in the interest and for the convenience of every subscriber.

BE READY TO ANSWER QUESTIONS

CENSUS ENUMERATOR WILL SOON CALL

Began Work Last Friday — List of Questions Every Farmer Must Answer

The fourteenth decennial census of the United States is on!

Under the immediate direction of G. E. Benner, supervisor of the tenth census district of Michigan, census enumerators will call at every dwelling house in this community to secure the information necessary to fill out the questions contained on the printed census schedules.

Questions covering the following points will be asked of every person in the United States:

Sex.
Color or race.
Age at last birthday.
Whether single, married, widowed or divorced.
Birthplace of person enumerated and birthplaces of father and mother, giving names of both country and province if foreign born.
Occupation, specifying trade or profession, also industry in which employed.
Whether attending school.
Whether able to read.
Whether able to write.
Whether able to speak English.
Whether home is owned or rented, and if owned whether home is free of encumbrance or is mortgaged.
Persons of foreign birth will be asked questions concerning these additional points:

Year of immigration to the United States.

Whether naturalized, and if so the year of naturalization.

Mother tongue or native language.

Census enumerators also will call at every farm in this community to secure the information necessary to fill out the questions contained on the agriculture schedule.

Each farmer will be asked questions concerning the acreage and value of his farm; whether he owns, rents or partly owns and partly rents the land he farms; the value of the buildings, machinery and implements belonging to his farm; the quantity of all crops raised on his farm during the year 1919; and many other questions which cover all possible farm operations.

An absolutely accurate and complete census vitally concerns the welfare of this community and of every person living in it. The official population for the next ten years will be determined by the census of 1920.

Be ready with your answers when the census man calls at your house.

It's time to think about having that car overhauled and painted. Let the Brown Garage do the work.

INTERESTING BITS OF INFORMATION CLIPPED FROM OUR EXCHANGES

"Wolf, Fox, Lyon," called the sergeant as he ushered three recruits into the marine corps recruiting office in Buffalo, N. Y.

"It sounds like a menagerie," said the recruiting officer to the sergeant. "Do you think we're signing up animal acts for a circus?"

"No, sir," replied the sergeant, "but there is still one more man to sign up, Captain."

"Bring him in."

"Baer!" shouted the Sergeant and the fourth recruit entered.

The four recruits were James E. Fox, of Gates, N. Y.; James Baer, of Erie, Pa.; George R. Wolf, of Warren, Pa.; and Charles Lyon, of Rochester, N. Y.

The township board of Bear Creek township, Emmet county, at a meeting last week voted the appropriation of $100 to buy grasshopper poison to be distributed in the infested districts of that township next spring.

The grasshopper pest has become a menace and it is only by aid by the township and county that the pest can be controlled, the township buying the poison will give the farmer a chance to put the bait on the cut-over lands held by lumber companies and vacant farms, and the people owning these will bear a part of the expense. The amount appropriated, according to prices last year, will buy about 1,000 pounds of poison.

Letters have been sent from the Emmet County Farm Bureau office to every supervisor in the county regarding the township financing the buying of poison. Several supervisors have informed the Farm Bureau that they were personally interested and would like to see their townships help in this matter.

It is necessary that action be taken as soon as possible so that arrangements can be made to get the poison in the county not later than May, according to the Farm Bureau. Everything should be ready when the hoppers hatch. But results are obtained when poison bait is put out when hoppers are about one-quarter to one-half inch long.

The Antrim county board of supervisors at the October session appointed a committee consisting of Supervisors Frank Shepard of Star, Frank Leshner of Mancelona and Wm. Chapman of Custer township to engage a new county farm agent to succeed W. C. Cribbs, resigned. This committee met at Alba recently with L. L. Drake, of Traverse City, and made arrangements with him to take the position. He has been in charge of the state asylum farm at Traverse City for a few years and comes highly recommended. — Mancelona Herald.

Henry Ford and his son, Edsel Ford, announced New Year's the distribution of an $8,000,000 bonus among the 80,000 employees of all branches of the Ford interests and the inauguration of an investment plan whereby every worker, from the man who wields a broom to the chief executives, may participate in the profits of the business.

Bonuses, which were paid in cash came in addition to the profit-sharing plan which was inaugurated several years ago and which will be continued. It is the intention of the Ford organization to make the distribution of these bonuses an annual event if the earnings of the company permit.

Frank E. Rogers, state highway commissioner, has announced that the Wisconsin plan for marking trunk roads has been adopted for Michigan and the markers will soon be placed on the telephone poles. The design of the markers will be a diamond, outlined in black, on a white background with the words "State Trunk Line" across the widest portion of the diamond. At the upper point will be the letter "M," and beneath will be the number of the route. At turns, the markers will also bear the letters "R" or "L."

Complying with the state law, punch boards and other gambling devices in Traverse City must go. Every once in a while it is necessary to issue this warning, and now Commissioner of Public Safety George Lathier announces that owners of establishments in which gambling devices are found by Saturday night of this week will be prosecuted. — Traverse City Record-Eagle.

COUNCIL PROCEEDINGS

Council Chamber, Jan. 5, 1920.

The common council of the city of Charlevoix met on the above date, Mayor Rose presiding. Aldermen present: Benton, Genett, Levinson and Wood.

Minutes of meeting held December 29th were read and approved.

Enter Aldermen Washburn and Hiller.

Moved by Ald. Wood, seconded by Ald. Levinson, that the electric light committee be authorized and instructed to proceed to dismantle the steam plant at Bellaire preparatory to moving same to Charlevoix.

Carried by following aye and nay vote: Ayes: Ald. Benton, Genett, Hiller, Levinson, Washburn and Wood. Nays, none.

Moved by Ald. Washburn, seconded by Ald. Wood, the adoption of the following resolution:

Resolved, by the Common Council of the City of Charlevoix, that the unearned portion of the 1919 license fee paid by the owners of dogs in the City of Charlevoix, the same being that part of such license fee covering the period from January 10th, 1920, to June 7th, 1920, be refunded to the several persons paying such license fee. Provided, that such person is the present owner of the dog upon which license fee was paid and has paid to the City or County Treasurer the tax imposed under the provisions of the state Dog Law of 1919.

Resolved further, that the City

Clerk be and hereby is authorized to issue proper orders on the City Treasurer for the purpose of carrying out the purposes of this resolution, except that such order shall not issue unless the applicant for such refund shall present to such Clerk the receipt of the City or County Treasurer for the payment of the tax under the state dog law of 1919 upon the same animal upon which the City license fee was paid.

Resolved further, that the City Clerk cause a notice of the matter of this resolution to be published in two of the newspapers, printed and circulating in the City of Charlevoix one issue.

Adopted at a regular meeting of the Common Council of the City of Charlevoix, held in the Council Rooms in said city on the 5th day of January, 1920, by aye and nay vote as follows:

Ayes: Aldermen Benton, Genett, Hiller, Levinson, Washburn, Wood. Nays, none.

S. M. ROSE, Mayor.

ARCHIE LIVINGSTON, City Clerk.

On motion of Ald. Hiller, the Council adjourned.

GRANDMA NEVER LET HER HAIR GET GRAY

She Kept Her Locks Dark and Glossy, with Sage Tea and Sulphur.

When you darken your hair with Sage Tea and Sulphur, no one can tell, because it's done so naturally, so evenly. Preparing this mixture, though, at home is messy and troublesome. At little cost you can buy at any drug store the ready-to-use preparation, improved by the addition of other ingredients called "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound." You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning all gray hair disappears, and, after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully darkened, glossy and luxuriant. Gray, faded hair, though no disgrace, is a sign of old age, and as we all desire a youthful and attractive appearance, get busy at once with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound and look years younger. This ready-to-use preparation is a delightful toilet requisite and not a medicine. It is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.

DRINK HOT WATER BEFORE BREAKFAST

Says you daily feel clean, sweet and fresh inside, and are seldom ill.

If you are accustomed to wake up with a coated tongue, foul breath or a dull, dizzy headache; or, if your meals sour and turn into acids, you have a real surprise awaiting you.

To-morrow morning, immediately upon arising, drink a glass of hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it. This is intended to first neutralize and then wash out of your stomach, liver, kidneys and thirty feet of intestines all indigestible waste, poisons, sour, oil, toxins, thus cleansing, sweetening and purifying the entire alimentary canal.

Those subject to sick headaches, hiccups, bilious attacks, constipation or any form of stomach trouble, are urged to get a quarter pound of limestone phosphate from the drug store and begin enjoying this morning inside-bath. It is said that men and women who try this become enthusiastic and keep it up daily. It is a splendid health measure for it is more important to keep clean and pure on the inside than on the outside, because the skin pores do not absorb impurities into the blood, causing disease, while the bowel pores do.

The principle of bathing inside is not new, as millions of people practice it. Just as hot water and soap cleanse, purify and freshen the skin, so hot water and a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate act on the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels. Limestone phosphate is an inexpensive white powder and almost tasteless.

IT'S UP TO YOU

The coming year will be just what the majority of people make it. We shall have peace or war, justice or injustice, law and order or revolution, exactly according as the bulk of the population decide; and that majority decision is made up of a combination of individual decisions. We are taking with us into the new year weighty national and political problems, and there will not be wanting heated efforts to sway the opinions of men, but every one of these problems will be solved finally by the concerted pressure of a number of individuals. It makes individual duty and responsibility loom large in the honest mind.

Most individual decisions will have little to do directly with great issues. They will deal with small matters, matters of private business, and personal affairs. Yet the way in which each of these is met by the greatest number of individuals will throw the balance of the nation and the world.

It is worth thinking about. Personal honesty, integrity of purpose, clearness of thought and coolness of action have a more serious meaning than they ever had before. Every honest man, every good citizen, every clean, unbiassed vote helps. It is not a case where everybody's business is nobody's business; it is a case where everybody's business is every man's responsibility.

ATTENTION VOTERS!

Testifying before the House military affairs aviation subcommittee, Major Benjamin D. Foulois, former chief of the air service of the A. E. F., declared that the United States would have to begin its aviation program anew in the event of intervention in Mexico. And the taxpayers of the United States were milked for $1,500,000,000—nearly $75 for each head of a family—to pay for a service which contributed nothing very effective toward the winning of the war against Germany, and which Secretary Baker appears to have sent to the scrap heap. That will be another little item for the voters to remember next November.

She has written the commissioner of schools that she will go with her Wednesday, Thursday and Friday to visit the clubs in the county. The boys and girls already know Miss Hutter since she visited them in November and encouraged them in the work they were undertaking. She promised at that time to come again to see the garments made by the sewing clubs, to find out how the book-keepers were getting along in their new lunch records, and what the boys could make in the newly improvised work rooms.

The itinerary includes this time the Ranney school, Rock Elm, Walker school, Ironton, Johnson school, Burgess and Bay Shore. At each place the clubs organized will be assisted in every way and a few new ideas left behind.

We are especially fortunate in having an expert like Miss Hutter come to us in our work. Since she is paid from the federal appropriation, she comes to us without additional expense, but gives us the benefit of her years of training and of her enthusiasm for her work.

DIPLOMAS AWARDED DEAD HEROES

Relatives Should Notify American Legion Here

The following information has been received from the Adjutant General of the army, which is of great importance to all those losing relatives during the World War:

"The French High Commission has decided to present a memorial diploma, in the name of the French government, to the nearest kin of the Americans who died in the service of their country during the World War, and has requested the American Legion, in co-operation with Army Recruiting Officers, to distribute these diplomas on Washington's birthday, February 22nd, 1920. The War Department has welcomed the plan and promised its full co-operation. The diploma, representing one of the bas-reliefs of the Arc de Triumpe in Paris, will bear the name of the deceased soldier with a recognition from the French people signed by the president of the French Republic."

The military headquarters for this section of the country is at Grand Rapids, Col. Ralph McCoy in charge. He announces that on receipt of these diplomas they will be sent to this community for distribution to those having the right to receive them.

It is requested that all persons having lost members of their family in the late war to notify the Post Commander of the Charlevoix Post of the American Legion, Dr. Frank Wilkinson, or Historian Ney Smith of the same organization.

ENTERTAINS IN HONOR OF GUEST

Charming Party at Crimmins' Home Last Friday

A group of Charlevoix young ladies were very charmingly entertained Friday afternoon at 3:00 p. m., by Mrs. A. D. Crimmins at her home on Park avenue, in honor of her guest, Miss Irene Higgins of Manistee.

The afternoon was spent in playing five hundred and later a four course luncheon was served. The house was decorated with Christmas colors and the favors were oranges with small faces painted on them.

Those present were the Misses Besse and Ruth Hammet, Horatio Idings, Helen and Dorothy Armstrong, Beatrice Harrington, Eunice Carr and Mary Finucan.

Senate Passes Cummins Bill

The Cummins railroad bill had a hard tussle, but finally got through the Senate before the holiday recess. The House having passed the Esch bill, the two measures are now being considered in Conference, by a committee representing the two legislative bodies, and there is strong hopes that an agreement may be arrived at so that the railroads may go back to private management on a safe and sane basis. The debate on the return of the roads was eventful in Congressional proceedings, since the discussions were rich in unfolding every feature of the industrial situation, and the controversial points were thoroughly threshed out. When it looked as though the legislation might go over till 1920, Senator Cummins caustically reminded the Senate that it was "the known habit of Congress to delay in everything until the necessity becomes obvious to even the most indifferent mind." He warned his colleagues that if the railroads were turned back without prospective legislation, that chaos would follow, and said that "if the roads should be returned without effective legislation they could exist about a month, and then they would fall into hopeless confusion, and two-thirds of them would be in the hands of receivers."

Senator Kellogg of Minnesota, furnished some illuminating figures on the railroad situation, and he told the Senate that he had learned from Interstate Commerce Commission sources that out of 165 Class One railroads 108 failed during the first three quarters of 1919 to earn their fixed charges for that period. In other words, instead of earning a surplus for the payment of dividends to stockholders, they have not earned their interest charges and the stockholders would thus be left with a deficit instead of a surplus. The balance over fixed charges earned by the remaining 57 roads is not sufficient by $56,000,000 to overcome the deficits of the other 108.

"These tables show that practically two-thirds of the railroads of the United States must inevitably go into the hands of a receiver unless their conditions are improved—and these are not the poor railroads," said Senator Kellogg, "they are such lines as the Pennsylvania, the Baltimore and Ohio, the Great Northern, the Southern Pacific, and many others. The Government took over these railroads in a solvent condition, and while, of course, it has paid, during its operation, a fair rental for the properties, it has increased the operating expenses so greatly that when they are turned back they will be bankrupt and can not from their earnings pay their operating expenses and fixed charges, without one dollar for dividends. A railroad is worth what it will earn."

"We have no right to take over a public-service corporation and use it for Government purposes, increase its operating expenses so as to render the property valueless, and turn it back without any remedy. Furthermore, should this be done, a financial collapse in this country is bound to follow, and as the bonds of these railroads are held in savings banks, insurance companies, and by millions of individuals, and are a large basis of credit, the greatest care should be taken to preserve their integrity."

"I wish to save the railroad systems of this country from utter bankruptcy, because railroad efficiency is needed on every farm and in every village and in every single industry that exists in the country; and I doubt if Senators realize the serious condition confronting the country. I do not care what basis of value you take; I will take the valuation fixed by any board in the world that is fair. The railroads today are not earning anywhere near 4 per cent upon their value. Everyone knows, of course, that the bonded indebtedness of the roads is far below, six or seven billions below, any valuation which will be placed upon them."

Senator Kellogg pointed out examples of large unnecessary expenditures under Government operation of the railroads and made a vigorous plea for a return to private operation without delay, but with legislation which would make possible the gradual overcoming of the handicap under which roads would have to labor upon their return to their owners.

Rejecting the logrollers

Enigma Goldman, Alexander Berkman and 247 more "revolutionists" have been put aboard ship and they are now on the way back to Europe. The entire group is composed of anarchists who never became citizens of the United States.

The United States government has long hesitated to take the step that has led to the deportation of these people who are complimented when they are referred to as "political prisoners." The melting pot had to be skimmed of its scum to protect its contents from constant pollution; and the "bon voyage" to these unwashed foreigners can well be changed to hearty wishes for "good riddance to bad rubbish."

The deportation should be construed as a part of the practical work of Americanization, for just as the dullard is finally rejected from the public school grades and sent among the "defectives," or consigned to an institution for the feeble minded, so should the policy be continued of rejecting foreigners who show no indication of adapting themselves to our ideals and institutions.

Anarchists who talk glibly of the "revolution," should learn the truth of Vice President Marshall's statement that "we had our revolution in this country a good many years ago, and have passed that stage in our history." Foreigners who find it difficult to assimilate American ideals should be speedily deported, just as was done with Goldman, Berkman, and their fellow loud-voiced crew. (Continued on page seven)

Fire Truck Has Right of Way

When the fire alarm sounds and the auto fire truck is on the way to the fire, the fire equipment has the right of way and it is the duty of every one, both pedestrian, autos and horse drawn vehicles to get out of the way. Give the fire truck the right of way at all times. Do not by sticking to the road, delay the truck. As soon as the alarm sounds, watch if the truck is coming your way and keep off the street or turn out in time so as not to delay the truck.

Notice to the Owners of Dogs

Under the new state dog law all owners of dogs must pay a license fee of $3 for a male dog and $6 for a female dog. This license must be paid before January 10th, of each year. The 1919 license issued by the City of Charlevoix is good until May 7th, 1920. The City Council believing that this overlapping of the license term causes double licensing, has adopted a resolution providing for the refunding of the unexpired license fee paid the city which is approximately five-twelfths of the amount paid.

Owners of dogs should read the published resolution to ascertain the steps to be taken to secure the refund. The license under the new law must first be paid and the receipt shown to the City Clerk and the applicant for the refund must be prepared to prove to the satisfaction of the City Clerk that the refund is asked on which the new tax has been paid. The purchaser of a dog will stand in the place of the person who paid the 1919 license and may receive the refund. A person who parted with the ownership of a dog, or otherwise disposed of it cannot obtain the refund. The same is true if the dog has died since the 1919 license was paid.

Dated, January 6, 1920.
DANIEL S. PAYTON,
Deputy City Clerk.

ELLSWORTH LOCALS

D. E. Clow spent Thursday and Friday of last week in Grand Rapids. Mrs. George Hunter left the first of this week to rejoin her husband at Detroit.

Hubert Bearss has secured a position at Reed City and left for there the last of last week.

M. R. Neelon left on Saturday of last week for southern Ohio with a string of potato cars.

Frank Klooster and family of Phelps spent New Year's at the Geo. Klooster home at Ellsworth.

H. L. Dawson of Elk Rapids was in Ellsworth on business on Tuesday of this week.

Miss Helen Boss of the Petoskey hospital staff was at her home here between trains on Tuesday of this week.

Alfred Moblo is working in Detroit this winter. He left for there the first of last week and expects to be gone until spring.

J. H. Elzinga of Ellsworth, Harry and Albert Elzinga and T. L. Coeling of Atwood are camped south of Torch Lake on a fox hunting trip.

Mrs. Claud Thompson and children of Chestonia have been spending a few days at the Sidney Thompson home here, and left last week for their future home at Detroit.

C. S. Griffin, who has been visiting his parents at Phelps for the past few weeks, left on New Year's day for Chicago, where he will enter the University of Chicago.

F. H. Show and family and George Bradford and family composed a sleigh load who drove to Boyne City last Monday to attend a special meeting of the Boyne City Evangelical church.

Beginning Tuesday evening, January 13, special meetings will be held at the M. E. church and will continue indefinitely. The pastor, Rev. E. E. Clark, will be assisted by some minister who as yet has not been decided.

A sleigh load of young people from Ellsworth attended the surprise party on Laverne Harwood at his home near Atwood one night last week. Laverne left on New Year's day on his return to the hospital at Fort Sheridan, Ill.

The Banks Township Marketing Association held a meeting at the Blue Hall Tuesday, January 2nd, which, in spite of the stormy weather, was well attended. County agricultural agent Drake of Bellaire and former agent W. C. Cribbs of Cadillac were the speakers.

WILDWOOD

Is there snow enough for you?

Emery Patterson drove through here on Tuesday morning.

Bert Sinclair is kept busy breaking roads for "the postman who never fails."

"Grandma" Fales is spending the winter with her son, Clarence, and family.

E. R. Wilson was accompanied by John Cawood when he returned to his work at Newberry last week.

Jim Wilson delivered his bunch of young cattle to Ellsworth on Friday. Stormy day for the work but neither he or Nat Burns cares for bad weather, evidently.

Mrs. Sarah Emery is visiting her daughter, Mrs. E. R. Wilson, for a few days after which she will go to Traverse City where she will spend the winter with the family of her son, Tom Emery.

Roy Powell drove through here on Saturday evening enroute to his home after spending most of the week with relatives near Bellaire, incidentally drawing some hay to market to pass the time away, so to speak.

Mrs. Minna Donaldson has gone to Ellsworth to assist Mrs. Wm. Boss for a few weeks.

Mrs. Bert Grossett has been entertaining the grip for a few days.

A baby daughter arrived in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Henley Christmas eve.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Donaldson and family and Mr. and Mrs. Bert Grossett and family spent Christmas with relatives in East Jordan.

ATWOOD

Leap year.

Henry Koster went to Bellaire on Monday last on business.

J. T. Odbert left last Friday to spend the winter in Florida.

Olive McKenzie of Charlevoix visited her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Lord, during the holidays.

Married, on Wednesday, January 7th, by Rev. Pickart, Henry Koster and Miss Jessie DeVries, both of Atwood. They will live on the farm known as the Pleny Genet farm.

Success to the happy young couple. The Brinks township hall built in 1885 at Atwood was sold on Saturday last to Henry Klooster of Atwood. Mr. Klooster will put it in good shape next spring and it will be kept for the accommodation of the public in general.

Henry and Albert Elzinga, Tice Coeling and Jim Elzinga of Ellsworth left for Kewadin Tuesday morning to hunt fox for one week. Their kit consisted of axes, guns, knives, one tommy-hawk, ropes, three hounds. Ask their wives about the amount of pastry needed for the trip.

Upon whose bosom snow has lain;

Who intimately lives with rain.

THE NATIONAL CAPITAL

By J. E. Jones

tures, who have been tolerated year after year, while in return they failed to contribute a single iota of constructive work for the betterment of conditions in a free country.

Free Thought and Free Speech

Attempts to make martyrs of Goldsman, Berkman and the others, by the claim that they have been deported because they advocated a new doctrine, will not go down. They have been rejected because they were still foreigners, pure and simple—hopeless types that it was a folly to bother with, or tolerate any longer.

Free thought and free speech are American heritages. The progress of the nation has been built upon these privileges, and under the full exercise of this principle minorities become either majorities, or drop in to the discard. It is all entirely separate and apart from the infection of anarchy, which seeks to destroy a good government which these foreigners have never been capable of understanding.

With this distinction understood it is clear that the "bolder than thou" Americans who haven't many brains to think with, and who turn scornfully upon the men and women of the country who are bringing their thought and their speech, oftentimes rich with an understanding of basic principles too deep for prompt comprehension of the masses; and bellow "bolshievists" at their betters, constitute an element in society that should have lived in the days of the early Salemites when "witches" were tortured.

The victories of a little over half a century with three great wars in which the country has been engaged, are nothing compared with the victories of peace in that same period. Lincoln wrote with a quill and wouldn't have known what a telephone was for if he had seen one. McKinley, of another war, never had a real motor ride in his life or saw an air ship, and the financial plans of his time would have precipitated a panic at least once a day if applied to present day problems. Even within a few weeks a scientist has convincingly disclosed the fact that the rays of the sun start out and get so badly twisted that they finally turn back, with the result that the direct rays of our old friend Sol never get to earth at all.

Free thought and free speech are the parent sources which have made America the greatest country in the world. And it is for these things that we acknowledge to ourselves that we are richly deserving of the Merry Christmas of 1919 and the Happy New Year of 1920.

FOR A BAD COLD

Get a small package of Hamburg Breast Tea at any pharmacy. Take a tablespoonful of the tea, put a cup of boiling water upon it, pour through a sieve and drink a teacup full at any time during the day or before retiring. It is the most effective way to break a cold and cure grip, as it opens the pores of the skin, relieving congestion. Also loosens the bowels, thus driving a cold from the system.

Try it the next time you suffer from a cold or the grip. It is inexpensive and entirely vegetable, therefore safe and harmless.

Get a 30 cent bottle of old, honest "St. Jacobs Liniment" at any drug store, pour a little in your hand and rub it right into the pain or ache, and by the time you count fifty, the soreness and lameness is gone.

Don't stay crippled! This soothing, penetrating oil needs to be used only once. It takes the ache and pain right out of your back and ends the misery. It is magical, yet absolutely harmless and doesn't burn the skin.

Nothing else stops lumbago, sciatica and lame back misery so promptly!

3,237 DEATHS
IN MICHIGAN

DURING MONTH OF NOVEMBER
ACCORDING TO REPORT

Cancer Took 230; Pneumonia 228;
242 Died From Violence Says
Department of State

There were 3,237 deaths reported to the Department of State as having occurred in the state of Michigan during the month of November, 1919. This number corresponds to an annual death rate of 12.2 per 1,000 estimated population. In addition to the above there were 263 stillbirths returned as deaths.

By ages, there were 492 deaths of infants of children aged one to four years, both inclusive; and 1,115 deaths of elderly persons, aged 65 years and over. Upon referring to deaths reported for the previous month it is noted that there is an increase in the number of deaths of elderly persons. A slight decrease is noted in the number of deaths of children under one year and also aged one to four years.

Important causes of death were as follows: Pulmonary tuberculosis, 167; other tuberculosis, 43; typhoid fever, 33; diphtheria and croup, 74; scarlet fever, 12; measles, 19; whooping cough, 13; pneumonia and broncho-pneumonia, 228; diarrhea, enteritis under two years, 86; meningitis, 22; influenza, 21; cancer, 230; violence, 242. Among the deaths reported from violence were 13 railway accidents; 17 homicides; 21 suicides; 6 drownings; 5 from conflagration; and 4 electrocutions. In addition to the important causes noted above there were 2 deaths from small pox; 1 from tetanus and 3 from poliomyelitis.

As compared with the month immediately preceding a slight increase is noted in the number of deaths returned from pulmonary tuberculosis, other tuberculosis, diphtheria, and croup, scarlet fever, measles, whooping cough, pneumonia and broncho-pneumonia, and violence. A slight decrease is noted in the other important causes given.

The different state institutions (hospitals and asylums) reported deaths as follows: Ann Arbor, 20; Kalamazoo, 14; Lapeer, 27; Pontiac, 11; Traverse City, 12; Newberry, 7; Soldiers' Home, 7; Wayne County House, 37; Wahjamega, 7. The death rate for cities in which the above institutions are located is shown in Table 2, include all deaths, transient and others. In a majority of instances the transient deaths should not be charged to the particular city in which institution is located. Following are corrected rates for such cities: Ann Arbor, 20.1; Kalamazoo, 9.7; Lapeer, 5.2; Pontiac, 20.7; Traverse City, 6.4.

The distribution of deaths referred to above by counties and cities as well as by the most important causes of death may be seen in table shown in the Monthly Bulletin of Vital Statistics, which is published by the Department and is for free distribution.

FARMERS TAKE OVER ELEVATORS

Buy Out Packers' Interest in Llewellyn Bean Company

Entering the new year the Gleaners, a farmer organization, will become the largest buyer and seller of farm products in Michigan. Its operations will be on co-operative lines, all profits going to the members of the order on a patronage basis. Grand Rapids will be headquarters.

The Gleaners have purchased the Llewellyn Bean Co. elevators, warehouses, buying stations and business, including the half interest held by Armour & Co., and will combine them with the facilities for doing business already owned. The combined facilities include the Llewellyn elevator in Grand Rapids and elevators and warehouses at Detroit, Big Rapids and Scottville and 162 local elevators and stations scattered about the state. It also will have close relations and business interests in 1,326 or more local farmer organizations.

The business of buying and selling farm products will be carried on through two closely affiliated organizations. One of these will be the Gleaner Holding Co., capitalized at $1,000,000, all common stock, and all held by the producers or those directly connected with the business. This company will buy direct from the producer anything that he may have to sell—beans, potatoes, grain, livestock, etc., and control the local stations, warehouses and elevators.

It also will buy machinery, fertilizers and other farm supplies for sale to members at cost and in some localities will conduct general stores for members.

MUST ANSWER
CENSUS TAKER

CERTAIN QUESTIONS MADE ANSWERABLE BY LAW

Answers to These Main Enquiries Should be Well Prepared in Advance to Avoid Delay

The taking of the fourteenth U. S. census will begin Jan. 2 and every home in Charlevoix and in Charlevoix county will soon be visited by a census enumerator. To avoid confusion and save time, the answers to the following questions should be immediately at hand.

1. Name and age of every person living at the house, whether boarders, roomers, servants or members of the family, and also including all those temporarily away on pleasure or business or otherwise.

2. The birth place (state or country) of each person, and the birth place (state or country) of his father and mother.

3. If foreign born, the date of coming to the U. S., and if naturalized, the date of naturalization, also the mother tongue or native language of all such foreign born.

4. Whether you own or rent, and if you own whether your home is free from debt.

5. Occupation.

There are many other questions but the others can undoubtedly be answered readily by the person in charge of the house, but above questions should be prepared in advance to avoid delay.

In addition to the above all farmers, whether living in town or out or town, will be required to furnish complete information as to acreage, timber, values, buildings, machinery, labor, livestock, crops of all kinds, fruit, milk and butter sold, number of years in farming business, etc.

All residents of Charlevoix who are temporarily away for the winter, should inform the enumerators of their respective wards, as to the aforementioned facts.

Taking the U. S. federal census is a gigantic task, and Uncle Sam needs the help of every loyal citizen, and is depending on you, to assist in giving the information as promptly and accurately as possible.

A UNIQUE RECORD

Home testimony for Doan's Kidney Pills, published in every locality, is of itself convincing evidence of merit. Confirmed testimony forms still stronger evidence. Years ago a citizen of Charlevoix gratefully acknowledged the benefit derived from Doan's Kidney Pills. The statement is now confirmed—the proof more convincing. Cases of this kind are plentiful in the work of Doan's Kidney Pills—the record is unique.

Mrs. M. Olney, 310 W. Huribut St., Charlevoix, says: "I have used Doan's Kidney Pills on different occasions for kidney trouble. I suffered from severe backaches and Doan's Kidney Pills greatly benefited me. Others of my family have also used this medicine for lame back and pains in the kidneys with good results."

Again Praises Doan's Five years later, Mrs. Olney said: "I have never found a kidney medicine that can equal Doan's Kidney Pills. The occasional use of this medicine keeps my kidneys in good condition. I will never go back on what I have said before in praise of Doan's Kidney Pills."

Price 60c, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mrs. Olney had. Foster-Milburn Co., Mfrs., Buffalo, N. Y.

Looking Back Over the Past Year

We were thinking about the various factors which have helped to make our business grow and expand. In order they seem to have been about as follows:

1. A larger and better balanced stock of merchandise, automobiles and auto-accessories at all times, especially when others were out of certain items which we had.
2. Better service as evidenced by our desire to follow the wishes of our customers.
3. The large expansion in our House and Traveling-Force, in order to better take care of the wants of the trade.
4. Purchase of new buildings, giving us larger floor space and, when completed, one of the finest quarters for a business of this type in Northern Michigan.
5. The earnest desire on the part of everyone connected with the House to tell the truth about our merchandise, the rapidly changing market and about everything necessary to the welfare and profit of all our customers and prospects.

To sum it all up, in the first place, our desire has been to do everything possible to help the trade, and in the second place, do everything possible on our part to meet the needs of the trade, so that by co-operating together we could build a first class retail merchandise and auto sales house here where it is needed and which will result to the further and continued profit of both you and ourselves during the years to come.

We are much pleased with the progress that has been made in the past year and desire to express to you our thanks and appreciation for the interest you have taken in our business and for the helpful co-operation and uniform courtesy which we have had from all our friends and customers. It is our earnest hope that our family shall continue to grow.

We believe that the successes of the past have out-numbered the mistakes, which we assure you have not been intentional. It is our purpose to continue on the principles above and to further build and expand this business to meet the ideal which we have set before us.

We will soon have our new Auto Sales Room and East Jordan Branch garage in operation. When completed they will both be model stores of their kind and employ the latest methods in transacting business and we hope you will look them over. You are welcome at all times to inspect any part of our business you desire to.

We have bought on a low market a large amount of fine new merchandise and auto accessories such as never before have been handled by us, so that we will be in a position to take care of the entire need of the lines we handle. Each week from now on we will announce special sales or offerings which we are sure will be a revelation to you. Watch our advertisement each week as they will contain a message of great importance to you.

We trust you will pardon our pride in speaking of these things but we want you to know how earnestly we desire to serve you in every particular.

There is nothing which pleases us more than to have you come to our stores and see us, because it gives us an opportunity to become better acquainted. The large increase in our trade is one of the things which we are the proudest of. We shall always continue to do everything we can to get you to come and visit us.

Every effort on our part will be made to satisfy your wants. Any time you have any suggestions, please let us have them. We want your business; we want you satisfied, so we are at all times open to any suggestion you may make. Let's make the year 1920 of benefit, both in a financial and friendly way.

UNCLE GEORGE H. VAN PELT
NOW IN FLORIDA

Seeds Courier What He Avers Will Be His Last Communication for a Period of Time.

We have received a lengthy communication from "Uncle" George H. VanPelt, Charlevoix's young and well known booster for good roads and fireproof hotels. "Uncle" George is now at the Hotel Clarendon, Seabreeze, Florida. Here he had the honor of being the first guest at the opening of the hotel for the 1920 season, and is also ex-president of the "Clarendon Korner Liar's Klub." At least this is the statement of the Daytona Daily News, from which we are copying this bit of news.

"Uncle" George says this will be his last communication for some time but we don't believe it. He has made this statement on previous occasions but we heard from him just the same—and as frequent, too. He has a lot to say about good roads and fireproof hotels. At first we were rather skeptical and thought it bunk, but we admit we were wrong. We want good roads and fireproof hotels and must have them if we succeed. He is also interested in other matters as you will see upon reading the following letter:

Seabreeze, Jan. 6.

Courier, Charlevoix, Mich.
Dear Sir—"This will be my last communication for some time to come as I have had quite a strenuous season furthering my three big hobbies, 'America for Americans,' 'fireproof hotels,' and 'the building of good concrete roads.' Now I need to take considerable time to rest up, but before doing so I want to send you a reprint from the Grand Rapids Press, also some timely comments and suggestions which I will ask you to hold and use to such extent as they may be worthy of space in your paper.

"My writing may not be elegant, but my intention is to deal strictly with facts. After many years of active business life (and I am nearly 80 years old,) during times when this country was increasing its production and always forging ahead it is a little puzzling to see how shortsighted a whole lot of people are these days.

"It is time for the employer to understand that the vital need of today is increased production.

"It is time for wage workers to understand that the good things of life can only come from hard work, in other words, increased production.

"It is time for the public who pays the bills to understand that back of high prices, back of wage demands, back of the reduced buying power of the dollar, back of the vicious spiral of larger income and still larger output, is a fundamental economic principle.

"You cannot eat the cake and have it too.

"In the same measure that work contributed to the winning of the war, work must contribute to a stable peace.

"If you wish to be happy, be optimistic; if you wish to be unhappy and miserable, be pessimistic. People who do nothing except what they are compelled to do, never get much ahead.

"America for Americans—good red-blooded Americans—Americans not afraid to work—the kind that have built up our country and have made it what it is.

"Fire-proof hotels. In the future it ought to be compulsory to build all hotels fireproof. It is criminal to put guests into rooms of the majority of hotels. After some of your family or friends lose their lives in a hotel fire you may give this question more consideration, for hotels burn just the same as other buildings. Take notice of it in the next trip you make. What about the hotel in your town?

"And now about roads. I know of nothing that will bring greater efficiency, that will be of greater benefit to the United States or that will reduce the U. S. L. more than good, permanent, hard surface roads. Building of roads is very much like buying a pair of shoes. A $2.00 pair of paper soled shoes is much more expensive than a $6.00 pair with oak leather soles.

"Lincoln and Dixie Highway—north and south—east and west. It has been my pleasure for the past four years to work for the building, both the Lincoln Highway and the Dixie Highway. The latter is 5221 miles in length, traversing 171 counties of eight states and extending from the southern part of Florida to the Soo in Michigan. The Lincoln Highway extends from coast to coast, from New York to San Francisco.

"Both of these roads are being improved as fast as possible, and when we consider that the Dixie Highway was laid out only four years ago and the Lincoln Highway six years ago, and that during the war little work was done, it must be admitted that great progress has been made. Much money naturally has been wasted in order to make them merely passable, but now with war restrictions removed, work of a permanent character, that is, concrete or brick laid on concrete foundation, is going on rapidly and will increase as time goes on until the entire trip can be made over both routes on a dustless, even surface, free from chuck holes, 'turkey' nests or bump the bumps. Good concrete roads when they're built right ought to last 100 years with but little upkeep, judging as I do from the record of a concrete road built ten years ago in Charlevoix, my summer home. It has cost only $14.00 for upkeep and that has been for filling cracks with tar, making on average of $1.55 per mile per year.

NINETEEN SHIP AND 74 LIVES

LOST ON THE GREAT LAKES
DURING PAST YEAR

Disasters Result in Greatest Loss
Since Year 1913—Missing Boats and Tonnage

Nineteen ships, sixteen steamers, and three barges, were lost on the great lakes during the season just closed and seventy-four lives were lost on boats that foundered or pounded to pieces, the greatest life and property loss on the lakes since 1913 when 29 vessels, valued at $3,313,000 and 254 lives were lost, most of them in the big gales that swept the lakes from November 9 to 11, including "Black Friday" six years ago, according to figures just received here.

The greatest loss of life during the past season was when the steamer John Owen with a crew of 22 and the steamer Myron with seventeen men went down both on Lake Superior. Nineteen lives were lost when the passenger steamer City of Muskegon hit the pier at Muskegon and pounded to pieces. The steamer Homer Warren was lost on Lake Ontario with a crew of nine and seven lives were lost on the barge Dundurn and Quebec which were wrecked on Lake Erie and at Port Colborne.

The greatest property loss during the past season was on the steamer D. R. Hanna which was sunk on Lake Huron last May in a collision with another steamer. The Hanna which had a carrying capacity of more than 10,000 tons had a cargo of about 380,000 bushels of wheat when she went down. She was insured for $430,000.

The boats that were lost in 1919 were valued at $1,336,500, the D. R. Hanna being the only modern ship lost during the season, the tonnage of the other lost ships ranging from 500 to 4,200.

The boats that were lost in 1919, their capacity and valuation, follow:

Ship	Lives	Tonnage	Value
Steamer	Lost	Age
Cherokee	1,800		$25,000
D. R. Hanna	10,200		430,000

MEN INVESTIGATE NEWBERRY CASE

IN THIS SECTION SEEKING OUT INFORMATION.

New Investigation May Result From Findings of These Men in Various Cities.

Two federal agents have been working in the northern part of the state for the past week in connection with inquiry into the Newberry election campaign and have been seeking information from many sources. They seem to have no interest in the men who have already been summoned before the grand jury at Grand Rapids, but are busy working collecting the loose information missed in the previous combing. This fact adds weight to the intimations from Grand Rapids that a new grand jury may re-open the probe of the Newberry campaign.

Possibility that the inquiry into the senatorial election might extend further than the Newberry activity and turn to the study of the Ford campaign has been widely discussed.

Frank C. Daily, the special assistant attorney general who is prosecuting the Newberry men, asked about the possibility of another grand jury, smiled and said: "Well you know there has been something of a tendency on the part of certain persons who were not mentioned in the indictment to become unduly loud in their remarks and unnecessarily active. It is within the realm of possibility that the Newberry case will be subject for further grand jury probe. Beyond that I do not care to say."

It is known to all those who followed the grand jury's investigations which led to the indictment of Senator Newberry and 134 others that the jury finished its work under high pressure and in order to finish with in the term for which it was called, went through its summing up so hurriedly that several persons prominently mentioned in the evidence gathered were not given consideration.

It is rumored that at least one man prominent in the state escaped an indictment rather than delay the jury's report and carry its investigation over into the next week and the next term and that this man's activities since the true bills were reported without his name on the list have not met entirely with the approval of the government prosecuting officers and the department of justice agents who did the investigation work in the field and questioned witnesses before they appeared before the grand jury.

Mr. Daily admitted following the report of the grand jury that the investigation had little more than touched the edges of the possibilities of the probe. "We could keep on bringing in witnesses for another six months," he said, "and still not complete the evidence. There seems to be no limit."

That the question of going further into the case with the old or the next grand jury is under consideration there can be no question. The significant statement has been made on several occasions that the matter may not end with the verdict in the trial scheduled for Jan. 27 before Judge Sessions.

MAYOR GIVES CITY INFORMATION

ENDEAVORS TO ENLIGHTEN LIGHT PROBLEM

Goes Into Detail on Some Subjects Barely Touched in Last Week's Courier.

The following communication has been received from the mayor of this city, who requests that it be published in an endeavor to make clear to the public the present electric light situation as it actually is:

January 13, 1920.

Editor Charlevoix Courier,
Charlevoix, Mich.

Dear Sir—In the issue of the Courier of January 7th, appeared a comment upon the proposed removal of the steam power plant from Bellaire to Charlevoix, and I take it that it was intended as an item of news to your readers and for the information of the people. However, some of the statements did not go into details and I wish to offer some needed information, that the public may not misconstrue their meaning.

The Richardi plant at Bellaire consisted of an hydro-electric power and a steam auxiliary in connection. In making the purchase the city was looking for the water power primarily as the cheapest method. The steam plant was looked upon as merely an auxiliary. It was never for a moment understood that the water plant could develop sufficient power for our needs during the heavy months of July, August and a part of September. Richardi was not able to make it do so and the city did not expect to make it. The city did increase the efficiency of the plant by the installation of improved equipment.

Now the city has not used the steam plant to any extent for the reason that the plant of the Village of Bellaire furnished extra power when needed. Doubtless very few understand this relationship between the two plants. The Village of Bellaire plant is located some distance east of our plant and has been built recently. During the period of building the Village of Bellaire plant, and before, we have supplied electric current and pumped water for the Village of Bellaire whenever we had a surplus power. This was done as a neighborly act. It cost us very little in a way, and the Village of Bellaire appreciated the courtesy. In return, it has supplied us with current. No charges have been made either way, and none will be made. If emergency should arise through break down of either plant, the other should and will "hook-on" to the extent of any surplus power it may have. It is a reciprocal understanding between the two plants. Therefore, you will see that the article is incorrect in saying that we have paid for current procured from the Village of Bellaire plant.

In your article it was stated that the water power plant is sufficient only for our present needs. This may mislead some of your readers. The water plant is much more than sufficient for our present needs. In fact, we are not using at present more than 35 per cent of its capacity. It is only when the peak summer load comes on and the water is below normal level, that we need auxiliary power and then it is necessary to use only the required amount of excess. It is by no means certain that the city will not continue to avail itself of the surplus power of the Village of Bellaire plant so long as the mutual agreement is continued in effect. But, we need an auxiliary as a safety measure. Now you understand that it is not good business for us to operate a steam plant 38 miles away. The line loss is considerable, the engineers making various estimates, some going as high as 25 per cent. The city has reduced the line loss by the installation of improved and larger insulators on the pole line.

It has always been my view, and I think the view of all of the council, that sometime the steam plant should be moved here. The only question has been as to when it should be moved. The present Electric Light Committee, after thorough investigation and computation, is unanimously of the opinion that the sooner it is moved the better. Accordingly, plans are under way. It is estimated that the building will cost around $7,000. It will probably cost more. The dismantling of the boilers, engine and equipment and the installation here will cost an additional amount, not yet approximated. It is quite a job. There will be no additional expense to secure trackage from the old D. M. Ferry stub line, and a dock should be built so as to enable the city to buy coal on water shipments. I believe that it is the duty of the city to have on hand such a reserve supply of coal purchased in the spring that in case of coal shortage, our people will not suffer. In addition to this I wish to offer the suggestion that people living in a lake port should have the benefit of their location and not be compelled to pay railroad freights on coal shipments.

I suppose the people will understand that it is not intended that the cost of this removal project will add to the tax roll or increase the taxes. It is intended that the revenues of the light plant shall take care of this cost and I believe they will without any increase in the light rates. When we get on our feet and have some of these additional expenses, there is no reason why a large reduction in light rates should not be made. They cannot be made now.

I hear now and then some criticism of the purchase of the Bellaire plant. I don't believe such criticism can be serious. I know it is not war. (Continued on page 8)

MAKES CITY FINE PRESENT

BOYNE CITY PRESENTED FINE PARK SITE

W. H. White Company Deeds Over
Property With No Strings Attached to It

A warranty deed signed by Messrs. W. H. White, James A. White, and Thomas White, gives to Boyne City, without strings attached or hint at reciprocal favor, a parcel—or rather two tracts—of very valuable real estate estimated from a standpoint of municipal importance says the Boyne Citizen.

One donation consists of twelve lots with all land, natural or artificial, lying between them and the lake, extending from the north shore of Boyne River to the intersection of the G. VonPlaten property, reserving only a railroad right of way. This property comprises about twelve acres and gives the city a magnificent Pine Lake frontage.

The second gift of land embraces a little over five acres paralleling Spring street and the Pond, or Mud lake as it is sometimes called.

Our "City Dads" and several civic organizations including the Chamber of Commerce, the Boyne City Business Girls Club and the Monday study Club, are already enthusiastically making plans for beautifying our city by improving these properties and developing them into handsome, attractive parks and play grounds for the children.

Mayor J. S. Bergy deserves considerable credit for his long and patient striving and eventually landing for the city these valuable park sites. And too much praise and appreciation of the magnanimous spirit which prompted the W. H. White Company to deed the land to our city cannot be expressed.

CHARLEVOIX STILL GOING DRY

Forty-three Barrels of Apple Cider
Were Seized

The country wide fight against the sale of intoxicating liquor reached Charlevoix last week when Federal officers Campbell of Traverse City and Tubbs of Grand Haven and a Mr. Bradley of the State Food and Drug department of Lansing, arrived in the city. They obtained a search warrant and with the assistance of Sheriff Weaver seized forty-three barrels of cider held in the basement of the pool room owned and operated by J. J. Fagan of this city.

Samples were taken of each of the forty-three barrels and sent to the headquarters of the State Food and Drug department at Lansing and the officials are now waiting for the report of the findings on the confiscated liquor to return. Meanwhile the state seal has been placed on the barrels and none of the liquor can be touched until the report has been returned. Undoubtedly if the report that the cider is intoxicating prohibition will follow.

FINE BASKET BALL SCHEDULE

FIRST GAME FRIDAY NIGHT AT RINK

High School Boys Meet Team From Bellaire—Fast Game is Expected

The Charlevoix High School Basketball team will open their schedule at the rink Friday night when they meet the Bellaire high school team.

The boys have been working hard for the past two weeks and seem to have developed a strong combination and the game Friday night is expected to be a fast one.

Considerable work has been done on the high school gymnasium in the skating rink making it ready for the season's games. Stoves have been installed and an effort made to fill up the cracks found in the walls of the building and they now announce that the building will be comfortable for those attending the games.

Support is needed to produce a successful team in any branch of athletics and so it must be in this case if the people of the town want to see us have a winning team. The boys will try and do their best and ask you to help them win by your presence at the game.

This is the list of players and their position from which the team that will meet Bellaire Friday night will be chosen: Forwards, Halverson; Krulick, and Cartier. Guards, Jones, Smith, Hammett and Hallett. Centers, Wexstaff, Jacobs and Ackert. Others who may play are: Bugbee, Brown, Paddock and Burns.

Coach Loomis announces the following schedule for the season:

January 16th—Bellaire at Charlevoix.
January 23rd—Petoskey at Petoskey.
January 30th—Bellaire at Bellaire.
February 6th—Harbor Springs at Harbor Springs.
February 13th—Boyne City at Boyne City.
February 20th—Manistee at Manistee.
February 27th—Petoskey at Charlevoix.
March 5th—Traverse City at Charlevoix.
March 12th—Harbor Springs at Charlevoix.
March 17th—Boyne City at Charlevoix.

Turn out and give the boys a good send off.

ATTEND MASONIC POT LUCK SUPPER

To Be Given At Hall Tuesday
January 20th

The annual meeting of the Masonic Building Association will be held at the Temple on Tuesday evening, January 20th, at 8:30.

A potluck dinner will be served at 6:15. You may be advised of what you are to furnish, and you may not. Anyhow, you will contribute what you like, but please don't bring pickles. All Masons, Stars and their satellites are invited, in fact, commanded to be present. In addition to those present, there will be baked beans and brown bread, plain salad and salad that is not so plain; bunny rolls and bunny rolls; mashed potatoes and escalloped mushrooms; doughnuts and peanuts, layer cake and frosted cake; pink cakes and brown cakes; one-egg cakes and no-egg cakes, but we draw the line on all panekes (too smoky). There will be lemon pies and pumpkin pies; apple pies and mince pies, and pies that you cannot mince about (but there will be no CUSTARD pies) If, C. L. There will be hot coffee for the strong hearted, tea for the Stars and city water for the "moderate drinkers." Then for the grand march, the highland fling and old Dan Tucker. All the proletariat and school teachers will be there. TAKE NOTICE.

Building Ready for Bowling Alley

Some time ago it was announced by Glen Beard that he would open a bowling alley in the Washburn building on Bridge street. The week following the building was damaged by fire and operation suspended.

The building has now been repaired and the equipment shipped here from Boyne City and will soon be ready for use.

Benj. Brown is offering a pair of wool socks to every customer. See his adv. on page 8.—Adv. 211

MAPLE GROVE SCHOOL NOTES.

Cleanliness roll this week was 96 per cent.

The 7th grade have nearly completed their history.

The 2nd grade are drawing pictures of animals and telling stories about them.

The 8th grade are reviewing Michigan history, civil government and agriculture.

The 6th grade have only one more lesson in their geography before reviewing their work.

The roll of attendance for week ending January 9 was 96 per cent. Five absent, Ethel Monty, Frank Keogh, Willie Keogh, Ruth Pant and Neva Webster.

The 5th grade are taking home geography. They have completed their language book, "Life of the Red Children," and are writing stories from memory.

Some of the children are forgetting the care of the finger nails, which count in the roll. Let us all remember that clean hands as well as clean faces go toward the 100 per cent mark.

Teachers meeting at Maple Grove 100 per cent in attendance. Miss Redfield re-elected chairman of the meeting. School Day to be held Wednesday, May 26, 1920, at Maple Grove. The teachers were served hot postum with cream and sugar, also cake, doughnuts and apples by Lottie and Ruby Webster.

BAY SHORE

Mr. Evers is hauling wood for the school this week.

Agnes Armstrong began school this week. She is our only eighth grader.

Fifth graders are reviewing Asia and making product maps of the continent.

School was closed Tuesday P. M. on account of the Teachers' meeting at Maple Grove.

We are much pleased with the new series of Historical Geographical maps which just arrived.

Third and fourth language classes are illustrating with magazine pictures the poem, "The Land of Story Books."

Second graders are much interested in their hygiene booklets. Besides practicing hygiene rules themselves, they keep track of others in the school who do not practice them.

COUNTY NORMAL NOTES.

Lillian Thorne substituted in the canteen room Monday afternoon, Miss Morrison being ill.

Miss Bates is continuing her art talks for Monday morning chapel. We are at present studying Greek art.

Miss Farnum, state supervisor of county normals, visited the Normal rooms Friday. She gave a very interesting talk.

Miss Hutton, assistant leader of boys and girls clubs, talked to the Normal class Tuesday afternoon and Wednesday morning. Tuesday after school a social hour was enjoyed.

during which Miss Hutton taught games especially adapted to rural schools. After which all enjoyed tea at Mrs. Auld's home.

THREE BELLS DISTRICT.

In our issue of December 31st there was an item stating that Miss Anne Jardine was ill with scarlet fever. In some way a mistake was made in our copy as Miss Jardine is in very good health as far as we know, and we wish to rectify this mistake.

STILL BOOSTING FOR GOOD ROADS

"If all concrete roads contracted for in this country during this year were put into one road it would make a road 18 feet wide from New York to San Francisco and up to Seattle and then some. Are you getting your share of these roads, and if not, why not?"

"I am frequently asked what I get out of this work of advertising fireproof hotels and permanent roads, as well as advertising the beautiful state of Michigan for summer vacations and Florida with its balmy-winter days. Well, I do get a whole lot out of it and that is the satisfaction of doing good. They all pay me the same price. I have no axe to grind, no favors to ask. I am nearly 80 years old and my name and reputation are made, so a few more remarks, either good or bad, will not upset me." Yours for America, VanPelt.

AT THE MOVIES

Do you know that a jury of twenty-four cowpunchers judge every Harry Carey production before even the cutting editor sees them? Any flaw in the action—any detail that conflicts with the West as it really is, must be corrected, or if that is impossible, must be cut out of the continuity entirely.

It was Harry Carey himself who thought of this unusual method of insuring perfect atmosphere in his plays, and the men he selected to sit in the unique jury are all of them sons of the West—the real West that lies beyond the boundaries of the Mississippi. They have ridden the ranges and have known the bitterness of the days when the cattle and sheep men were constantly warring against each other. They have scoffed at tenderfoots—is it any wonder that the inconsistency conceived in the brain of the Eastern scenario writer stands little chance before their relentless inspection?

It was through this scrutiny that Harry Carey's latest production, "Bare Fists," which will play at the Palace Theatre, Saturday, January 17th, had to pass before the versatile Western star felt satisfied with his latest venture. To a man the twenty-four pronounced it the best yet, and not an inch of celluloid was eliminated. The story is full of unusual little twists which make it deviate from ordinary and there is an abundance of heart interest.

The scenario was written by Eugene B. Lewis from a story by Bernard McConville, Jack Ford directed. An exceptional cast supports the star, including as it does, Betty Schade, Anna May Walthall (Henry R.'s sister), Molly McConnell, Vester Pegg, Joe Harris, and Howard Enstedt.

But how much good would Colonel House's support do Mr. Underwood? It was Byran, not House, who nominated Mr. Wilson.

QUIT MEAT IF YOUR KIDNEYS ACT BADLY

Take tablespoonful of Salts if Back hurts or Bladder bothers—Drink lots of water.

We are a nation of meat eaters and our blood is filled with uric acid, says a well-known authority, who warns us to be constantly on guard against kidney trouble.

The kidneys do their utmost to free the blood of this irritating acid, but become weak from the overwork; they get sluggish; the eliminative tissues clog and thus the waste is retained in the blood to poison the entire system.

Competition for Capital

The money for plant extensions of the Telephone Company must be obtained through issuance of stocks, bonds or notes.

Reconstruction projects and new or expanding industrial undertakings are in the market for new capital.

Foreign governments are seeking loans for the rehabilitation of their devastated domains.

The competition for capital was never so keen and borrowers must show, beyond question, their ability to earn and pay interest and dividends.

The rate schedule is the index to the borrowing power of the Telephone Company. It should be liberal enough to demonstrate conclusively that the company will promptly carry out its obligations to stockholders and bondholders.

The Wise Man Takes Precautions

The foolish take chances. Don't speed. Don't try to make records. Don't risk the lives of other people in your car. Don't do anything that's going to injure you or your car. But if anything DOES happen to it, let us know, over the wire. We'll come out and fix it, or tow you home.

Don't envy the smooth running qualities of another man's car. Your's ought to be in the same class. If it isn't, there's something that should be looked into. The remedy may be simple if applied early.

Right now is the time to have your car overhauled and placed in good running order. Overhauling cars is our business and we claim to know how to do this class of work. Try us and see.

Men Who Live Above The Fog

The trend of times indicates that out of all this stress and turmoil which the country has been going through, that men may yet carry into execution the threat of doing the sensible thing, by accepting tribunals and courts in which the reasoning processes of the human mind will supplant violence and passion that have had their outlet in industrial strikes. The preliminary statement of the President's Industrial Conference came at the close of the year, and it still indicates that there are still "Tall men, sun-crowned, who live above the fog in public duty and in private thinking."

The second conference has proceeded in wholly different manner from the first one, which went on the rocks when the Carys and the Gompers disagreed, as naturally should have been expected, upon the subject of "collective bargaining." The new conference profited by the errors of its predecessor, and refused to permit itself to become a debating society, recognizing the fact that industrial problems present irreconcilable points of view, and serve to prove that the minds of men are in some instances as far apart as the poles.

Lord Grey, in reviewing the days before the outbreak of hostilities in Europe, brushed aside all "ifs" and "ands" of prior causes and told the Gridiron Club, that if there had been something like the League of Nations to turn to, that the war could doubtless have been averted. Lord Grey is one of the "tall men, sun-crowned, who live above the fog," and his prescription for prevention of the war, is in principle exactly the same as the method recommended by Secretary of Labor Wilson, Herbert Hoover, ex-Governor Martin H. Clyn and Samuel W. McCall, former Attorney General Wickersham, Oscar S. Straus, Julius Rosenwald, and their associates in the Industrial Conference, who have proposed that there be created a federal industrial court, with headquarters at Washington, with a dozen regional boards of inquiry and adjustment throughout the country, to investigate, try and determine disputes arising between employers and employees.

And in order to insure confidence in these tribunals the men composing them are to be selected through nominations which will be made in a way satisfactory to both the employing and the employed classes, with due regard for the public—that same public which Carlyle said was "an old woman"—and which is sure to be satisfied if two such contending classes as employees can be brought together in harmony.

Hindenburgs in Industry

The statement of the President's Industrial Conference passes rather easily over the relations of the public utilities, but the spirit of the document is to create machinery that will make strikes unnecessary. But it does not forbid strikes except among government employees, policemen and the like. The purpose is to establish a sort of league of industry, where aggrieved mortals can bring their grievances and get justice.

It is not surprising that the Hindenburgs of American industrial affairs should have thus early aligned themselves against the constructive plan set forth by the Industrial Conference, and the first voice of opposition comes from Mr. Gompers' office, from whence many substitutes for work have emanated. "Any plan to establish or maintain anything like fair relations between workers and employers must avoid compulsory features," says Mr. Gompers; to which Secretary Morrison adds that the report offers "no hope to lovers of industrial peace who see the necessity of abolishing autocracy in industry." Which interpreted into American-English speech means that these autocrats of labor's council board insist that any laws that prohibit strikes are unacceptable to them—possibly because strikes are their "life and trade." The Comperites have repeatedly denounced the "radical" workers of the country, and in turn "radicals" in their conventions accuse the Comperites of being hopeless "conservatives." Assuming that their differences are of the fifty-fifty variety; and passing by all the Hindenburgs of industry, whether they are found in the employing or the employed class, there ought to be little question about the principle recently voiced by Attorney General Palmer in the coal strike when he asserted that "there is involved the right and power of the Government to vindicate its own authority and sovereignty."

As the wild men of the forests, the vigilance committee of the wild and woolly, and the autocrats kings of 1914, fell before the onrush of advanced civilization, so must the illogical weapon called "strike" take its place with the dodo birds, and give away to the people's judicial procedure. In taking positive steps in this direction the men in the President's Industrial Commission have given splendid proof that they "live above the fog in public duty and private thinking."

Do We Owe Europe Money?

Europe owes the United States ten billions of dollars, to which is to be added a billion and a half dollars interest. On top of this comes the notice of certain American financiers and statesmen that we should loan Europe ten billion dollars more, "to rehabilitate them," and to keep them from starving.

The total debt of the United States when we entered the war was less than one billion dollars. The liquidation of thirty-two billion dollars, upon which interest charges must be paid, within a period of twenty-five years, is a practical problem to which the country's financial minds are now being bent.

The extravagance of "Conk Oil Johnny" and the recklessness with his money of the famed "Drunk Sailor" are incomparable to the openhanded munificence of Uncle Sam in his role of stage manager to the whole world, and "angel" for all the actors.

In consequence, with every means of taxation and revenue now in force being utilized, the American people will face a total deficit by June 30, 1921, of approximately six billion dollars.

The ultimate reasoning is that

KANE DECLARES HE IS POWERLESS TO CHECK GOUGERS

Handicapped by Cooke's Refusal to Reorganize Wartime Fair-Price Board, He Says

ATTORNEY'S DUTY TO STOP PROFITEERING, SAYS HEINZ

Prosecutor Has No Time to Answer Questions Concerning Action in Other Cities

With the housewives of this city clamoring for direct, vigorous action against the food gougers, who hold responsible for the undernourishment of their children, Francis J. Kane, United States district attorney, declared yesterday he was powerless to check profiteering.

Mr. Kane complained he was handicapped by the refusal of Jay Cooke, formerly food administrator of Philadelphia, to reorganize the fair-price board. That of public duty, ought to be of profiteers, he said.

But Howard Heinz, attorney for Pennsylvania, said Mr. Kane on that point. Mr. Kane said that point of view with the Public Law of 1917, which last night Mr. Heinz, although he was making every effort to have fair-price boards re-established, that would not relieve the federal authorities from their duty to stop profiteering.

The district attorney said that the lever food control act, which he believed to be effective in cases of profiteering, was difficult to prove. Mr. Kane acknowledged that prices were inordinately high. Ignoring the price of meat, regarding which Robert M. Rimmer, agent of the State Food and Dairy Department and government food and drug inspector, has given him a mass of evidence, he said that the prices of green vegetables are terrible.

Mr. Kane said that he had no time to answer questions concerning action in other cities. He said that he had no time to answer questions concerning action in other cities. He said that he had no time to answer questions concerning action in other cities.

Great Quantities of Food Seized by Federal Agents in Big Cities

INDICATIONS of the real pinch in the high cost of living were given in many cities. While Attorney General Palmer announced that he intended to proceed under the food control act, in Chicago 1282 tubs of butter, 284,180 pounds of coffee, wheat and in Birmingham 100 barrels of flour were seized.

Who said H.C.L.?

LAST season's suit still holds together and we can half-sole our shoes. And you can still buy a big generous tin of the jolliest old pipe tobacco that ever came down the pike, without mortgaging the old homestead. Hooray!

Good old Kentucky is still growing Velvet's honest fragrant leaf. We're still ageing Velvet in the wood. Velvet's just as smooth and mellow and mild as it ever was. The quality's there and the quantity's there just the same.

Take the "cost" out of the "high cost of living" and what do you get? Why, "high living" of course. Well, sir, that's what Velvet does.

It's like Velvet Joe says: "Anybody can tell you how much Velvet costs. But only yo' old pipe can tell you how much Velvet is worth."

There's goodness knows how many pipe loads in every tin of Velvet. Or if you want the mildest cigarette ever—there's 45 big ones in every tin.

Cooke Reiterates Refusal to Return for Food Fight

Howard Heinz, food administrator of Pennsylvania, in an interview with the "Inquirer" over the long-continued fight, said he is in his power to induce the administrator to reorganize the boards, as requested by the State attorney general, as his opinion, that the boards will be set up upon the high cost of food. It rests with the administrator to assume regulatory power over the entire system of food.

The refusal of Jay Cooke, food administrator for Philadelphia, to return to this city from New York to reorganize the fair-price board, Mr. Heinz expressed that Mr. Cooke may yet be induced to return. Mr. Cooke, in a talk over the phone last night said he was in his determination not to return to his duties as food administrator.

War Is Over, Says Cooke. "The war is over," said Mr. Cooke. "I don't see why I should come back to this city from New York to reorganize the fair-price board. The present situation may be an improvement, but I can't see how it would return and ask me to do the work that would be a burden."

WYETH'S SAGE TEA IN FADED OR GRAY HAIR

Mixed with Sulphur it Darkens so Naturally Nobody can Tell.

Grandmother kept her hair beautifully darkened, glossy and attractive with a brew of Sage Tea and Sulphur. Whenever her hair took on that dull, faded or streaked appearance, this simple mixture was applied with wonderful effect. By adding at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," you will get a large bottle of this old-time recipe, improved by the addition of other ingredients, all ready to use, at very little cost. This simple mixture can be depended upon to restore natural color and beauty to gray hair.

A well-known downtown druggist says everybody uses Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound, now because it works so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied—it's so easy to use, too. You simplyampen a comb or soft brush and run it through your hair, taking one strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears; after another application or two, it is restored to its natural color and looks glossy, soft and beautiful. This preparation is a delightful toilet requisite. It is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.

THE COUNTY FAIR AND SCHOOL WORK

Preparations Under Way for Next Year's Exhibit.

In the olden days teachers used to complain that exhibits at the county fair or any kind of closing day exhibits were not truly representative of the school work. It was merely display work, was extra work, and was selected work. To some extent this still holds true, but there has been a big improvement.

In olden days the text book formed the basis of amount to be learned in any one subject in a given time. Now we know that this would be poor policy and the course of study plans the synopsis of work to be done. Thus it is possible for a number of schools to be using different texts but following the same line of work. Their daily work may differ, but the sum and total represents pretty much the same standard and usually about the same in amount.

If one of the old fashioned premium lists were given to the teachers, any one could get up some sort of an exhibit, but it would interfere with the regular work, and would no doubt—even though helpful to some extent—be open to all the criticism above given. But with a new list based on the course of study, which all schools are following, all teachers may present a display of the written work of the school which is both representative and helpful.

How much more true is this when the teachers add to this list their own suggestions and interpretations of the course of study and revise this list with the little individual experiments which have proven successful in their own schools? This is what the teachers have done during the past month. The rural teachers have taken last year's list compiled from the course of study and combined war work, have crossed out the entries that are not of practical value to their own pupils, have added suggestions that they wish to see incorporated, and sent the lists to Miss Stewart. A new list was then made, following the majority of suggestions and was during the past week mailed to all rural teachers for planning township display days in May and June.

The three city superintendents, Mr. Craig of Charlevoix, Mr. Keyworth of East Jordan, and Mr. Metcalf of Boyne City, have made similar corrections on last year's city lists. They have taken the lists to the heads of the departments in the different subjects and asked for entries that will show just what is being done. With such a plan next year's exhibit should be truly representative and valuable.

DEATH TAKES FORMER RESIDENT

Leaves Husband, Three Daughters Two Sons

Word was received Tuesday by Colon McKenzie of this city that his mother, Mrs. Chas. Burroughs had died in Cleveland, Ohio, and he left at once for that place.

Mrs. Burroughs was formerly a resident of this city also of Barnard, where she lived for a number of years. She was well known and held in high esteem by all those who knew her and many sympathies are extended to the bereaved family.

The body will be taken from Cleveland to Sarnis, Ontario, where the funeral will take place Friday, January 16th.

Besides her husband the departed woman leaves three daughters and two sons among which are Mrs. Chas. Novak and Colon McKenzie both of this city.

Health Officer Tweedle of Cheboygan has reported to the Cheboygan city council that during December there were nine cases of influenza and one death from that disease in Cheboygan.

One of the caterpillar tractors successfully used in Europe during the war is being turned to commercial use at Kalkaska by the Stearns Salt & Lumber company in its logging operations. Driven by Russell Harris a former soldier, who operated a tank in France, the crawler is hauling thousands of feet of logs daily. Its capacity is five sleighs loaded to the limit. The caterpillar crawls over the highest drifts, packing the snow and making a fine track for the following sleighs.

For the first time within the memory of those connected with the county clerk's office, bounty has been paid on a wild cat killed in Grand Traverse county. "Smith Brewer, a resident of Interlochen brought in two of them, one weighing twelve and a half pounds, last week, receiving five dollars for each. Brewer stated that he had trapped them near his home in Green Lake township and that both put up a stiff fight when caught."—Record Eagle.

Hereafter any person who takes stolen automobiles from one state to another may be prosecuted by the federal government, fined $5,000 or imprisoned for five years, or suffer both penalties.

This bill, recently passed by congress, became a statute without the president's signature. It had been before the chief executive ten days since its adoption.

It was shown during debate on the measure that automobiles stolen in the United States in 1918 had an aggregate value of $27,000,000, and the automobile thieves cleared at least $5,000,000 on these thefts.

Under the bill as originally proposed by Representative Dyer of Missouri and endorsed by the American Automobile association, it was not only a federal offense to steal an automobile but also to participate in the sale or transportation from one state to another of an automobile known to have been stolen.

The law directs that "any person who steals, or by fraud, false pretense, or deception, obtains possession of an automobile, and who shall remove or cause it to be removed from one state, territory, or the District of Columbia, to any foreign country, or who has in his possession any automobile, knowing the same to have been stolen," may be punished to the limit of the penalties prescribed. It also directs that "any person violating this act may be punished in any district in or through which a stolen automobile may be taken."

Help the Mail Carrier

It has been requested by our city mail carriers that in order to assist and insure quick mail service during this bad weather that the people of the city shovel paths to their front door in order that they may be easy to reach. While it may seem foolish to think that wading through a little snow to one's door is hard, just stop and consider that when a mail man has a couple hundred of such trips to make it is some job and slows up the delivery.

WOULD CONNECT CHICAGO WITH NEW YORK

The Type Used in One Year to Publish Endorsements of Doan's Kidney Pills.

Of the many kidney remedies on the market today, none other is recommended like Doan's Kidney Pills. Fifty thousand benefited people gladly testify in the newspapers of their own towns. Forty-five hundred American newspapers publish this home proof of Doan's Kidney merit. The type used in one year tells this wonderful story would make a solid column of metal twice as high as the world's highest mountain. Placed end to end the lines of type would reach from New York to Chicago. These miles of good words told by 50,000 tongues sound glad tidings to any Charlevoix sufferer who wants relief from kidney and bladder ills. Here's a Charlevoix case. Don't experiment. Use the remedy endorsed by people you know.

John McCall, 905 Bridge St., says: "My back was so lame I could just about move. My kidneys were weak and acted irregularly. Dizzy spells bothered me and I would often have to grasp something to keep from falling. I was in awful shape when a friend recommended Doan's Kidney Pills. I tried them and they cured me."

Price 60c, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mr. McCall had. Postre-Milburn Co. Mfgs., Buffalo, N. Y.

Out of accumulated capital have arisen all the successes of industry and applied science, all the comforts and ameliorations of the common lot. Upon it the world must depend for the process of reconstruction in which all have to share.
—JAMES J. HULL.

The Successful Farmer Raises Bigger Crops and cuts down costs by investment in labor-saving machinery.

Good prices for the farmers' crops encourage new investment, more production and greater prosperity.

But the success of agriculture depends on the growth of railroads—the modern beasts of burden that haul the crops to the world's markets.

The railroads—like the farms—increase their output and cut down unit costs by the constant investment of new capital.

With fair prices for the work they do, the railroads are able to attract new capital for expanding their facilities.

Rates high enough to yield a fair return will insure railroad growth, and prevent costly traffic congestion, which invariably results in poorer service at higher cost.

National wealth can increase only as our railroads grow.

Poor railroad service is dear at any price. No growing country can long pay the price of inadequate transportation facilities.

Those desiring information concerning the railroad situation may obtain literature by writing to The Association of Railway Executives, 61 Broadway, New York.

Running a Household is a Business

Is yours run on business principles

Wise buying is the first step to success in any business. So is it the first requirement for a household to be well conducted on an economical basis. Big business concerns have purchasing agents who are experts in knowing what, when and where to buy. They watch the markets. They read carefully the advertisements of concerns in their particular lines.

The manager of the household must be purchasing agent for a large proportion of the family needs. She should be familiar with stores and merchandise. She should run her business on business principles in order to make the most of the family income.

Information is the basis for intelligent purchasing. And the right way to get the greatest amount of necessary information is to read advertisements.

Advertising today is the voice of business. Advertisements tell you what is new and good in merchandise; they reveal improvements and inventions; they give you information about things that are useful and interesting.

Every manager of a household—every person in the household who shares the responsibility for the family's welfare—should make a practice of reading advertisements.

DEATH CAUSES PROFOUND SORROW

Mrs. Lew VanSkiver a True Friend and Loving Wife.

Clara Rhodebach was born at Wapkeseta, Ohio, April 9, 1863, and died at the Potoskey Hospital at Potoskey, Sunday, January 11, 1920, aged 56 years, nine months and two days.

She was married in 1882 to Lewis VanSkiver and with him came to Michigan in 1900 and located in Ellsworth, shortly afterwards purchasing the New Orient Hotel which place they have owned and operated ever since.

Mrs. VanSkiver had been in poor health for a number of years, but owing to her ambitious, uncomplaining nature, the seriousness of her condition was unsuspected even by her closest friends. Last week, however, her condition became such that she decided to undergo an operation, hoping that by so doing she would regain her health, but it was of no avail and she only lived three days.

Deceased was well known and highly respected here and will be greatly missed.

She was one of eleven children, six boys and five girls, two brothers and two sister of whom survive and who with the husband and countless numbers of relatives and friends are left to mourn the loss of a woman who was a loving wife and a true friend. The body was taken to her old home in Ohio for burial and the deepest sympathy of the community goes to the bereaved husband.

CONVENIENT ROOM FOR MILK

Separate Apartment Should Be Provided to Relieve Oftentimes Overcrowded Kitchen.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture)

Where even a few cows are kept, a separate room for handling milk should be provided to relieve the oftentimes overcrowded kitchen. Well houses frequently have a room which, with the addition of a concrete floor, shelves, and windows, makes a very convenient milk room.

Announcement

I, Ernest R. Harris, being of sound mind (after eleven years work in this office) and being desirous of serving another term, hereby announce, very informally, that I will be a candidate on the Republican ticket at the August primaries for this important office. So many who seem interested in this matter, have asked me as to my intentions, that I take this early date for placing this matter before you. Later on, if necessary, I will try and make a showing by the eleven year's record that is on file and duly recorded that I have given to all people of this county a fair square business administration of affairs. In doing so I surely have the support of all thinking citizens in the interest alone of a good government of affairs, and I have done my best to be Good and Make Good in this work. With the Season's greetings to you and yours I am Respectfully yours, ERNEST R. HARRIS.

THE YEAR IN PROBATE COURT

JUDGE E. HARRIS MAKES SUMMARY OF YEARS BUSINESS.

Two Hundred and Twenty-four Hearings on the Calendar Heard at Regular Sessions.

During the year there were 224 hearings on the calendar and they were heard at the regular sessions of this court, held on each Monday during the year, unless Monday came on a holiday, then the hearing would be the following day. The matters that came before this court were divided as follows: The following appointments were made: 24 administrators, 16 executors, 16 guardians of minors, 7 guardians of mentally incompetents, 0 special administrators, 17 determinations of heirs, 28 sales of real estate, 22 hearings on claims, 24 final counts, 3 adoption cases, 5 insane cases, 3 insane cases returned to hospital after being out an trial or parole, 3 feeble minded were sent to Lapeer, 33 afflicted children were sent to the university hospital at state expense with fine results, 2 afflicted adults were also sent to this hospital at county expense and several such cases to the Potoskey hospital. There were 21 juvenile cases filed and heard, and one boy sent to the industrial school at Lansing; no girls were sent to Adrian; 7 children went to Coldwater school as dependents, all from one family. Two epileptic cases were cared for and are on the waiting list for admission to a state institution. There are now seven mothers with families receiving "mothers' pension," running from $1.00 to $10.00 per week. There are seventeen children in these families and they receive an average of $1.26 per child per week. Four such cases were dropped during the year, and four applications for pensions were refused. Thirty-four orders were drawn on the county treasurer in the total amount of $283.40, the most of this being for expense in handling and caring for insane cases. Twenty estates were fully closed and discharges made. Inheritance taxes were determined in five estates and the tax paid to the treasurer. One estate was declared intestate and $512.40 paid to the state. One appeal was taken, the first in eleven years, and no doubt will be up for hearing in the circuit court at the next term. One hundred and forty-eight full days were spent in the office. An inventory of the office and everything pertaining to it was filed with the board of supervisors at the October session. Comparing this with the one filed eleven years ago is very interesting. The board at the October session took action on certain recording matters in the probate office that will save to the taxpayers many hundred dollars. Only one book of the law library has been lost in ten years. No. 66 Michigan Reports is missing. Will some person please bring it in; it's marked "Probate Office."

Real Time-savers Gasoline Engines

The farmer who figures his time worth anything is never found wasting hours each day pumping water by hand or pulling on the end of a cross cut saw. He has a gasoline engine. The engine pumps the water and drives the buzz saw that cuts the wood. His work is accomplished in a short time. Do YOU own a gasoline engine?

FAIRBANKS-MORSE AND INTERNATIONAL GAS ENGINES

LAST YEAR IN PROBATE COURT

JUDGE CORRELL MAKES HIS YEARLY REPORT

Forty Three Estates Probated in This Judicial Branch during Year of 1919

The chief business of the Probate courts, originally, was the settlement of estates, and matters incidental thereto. By virtue of various statutory enactments the jurisdiction of these courts has been greatly extended, until at the present time it reaches the various activities of the community life in many ways, and as a result, the people are more or less interested in knowing what it does. Out of this desire, to know on their part, has come the custom of an annual report of its work.

During the year nineteen hundred and nineteen, the probating of forty three estates was begun in Charlevoix county; five were testate estates and thirty-eight intestate. Thirteen of the thirty eight were by the short method, by determination of heirs.

Guardians have been appointed for nineteen minors, and two for Feeble Minded persons.

Six children have been adopted by residents of this county, and one proceeding had for the change of the name of an adult person.

Two adult afflicted persons sent to the University hospital, at Ann Arbor for treatment, at the expense of the county, and five afflicted children sent to the same hospital for treatment at the expense of the State of Michigan.

One person sent to the State hospital at Traverse City for treatment for the excessive use of drugs.

There have been eight hearings or investigations as to the sanity of persons, with the following results: five have been found insane and admitted to the State hospitals for treatment, and in three cases the petitions were dismissed, there being no evidence of insanity. The lowest number of commitments for any of the six years immediately preceding the year A. D. 1919 is ten, and in that same period, the longest time without a commitment for insanity was two consecutive months. Whereas during the past year the last commitment for insanity was on July seventh, making an interval of nearly six months.

Dr. Blue of the National Health Department is authority for the statement that there is a marked decrease in the death rate for the year A. D. 1919, which he attributes to the fact that the people have been relieved of the war strain.

I had been thinking that the decrease in insanity was due to that cause. But there comes to my attention the following article:

Baltimore, Dec. 24th, 1919. "War Increased Lunacy, Asylum head reports."

Dr. J. Percy Wade, Superintendent of the State hospital for the insane, explains an increase in the number of patients admitted to the State hospital during the last year as the result of war strain.

If that explanation is to be accepted, it would look as though the decrease in Charlevoix county might be the result of some other cause. Our prohibition friends might claim that it was the logical result of the abolishing of intoxicants. I leave the reader to draw his own conclusion; but the fact remains, that there have been less commitments for insanity from Charlevoix county during the past year, than in any previous year for a long time.

In the Juvenile division of the Probate court thirty-five children have appeared during the year. Twenty cases of dependent children and fifteen delinquents. In seventeen of the dependents relief was furnished or conditions remedied by the court or local authorities. Three children sent to the State Public School at Coldwater, Michigan. Out of the fifteen cases of delinquency, three boys were committed to the State Industrial School, at Lansing, Michigan, and the others placed on probation or the matter adjusted by the court. To the credit of the girls of Charlevoix county it is to be said that none have been before the court for delinquency during the year past.

The charges of delinquency in the past year have been of less serious nature than in previous years, and would indicate that the churches, schools, and homes, the three great factors that are largely responsible for the life and character of the child, are doing better work than formerly. I hope this is true and the good work may continue.

The amount paid on probate orders is as follows:

Expenses in Insane cases..	$229.80
Board and Lodging of juveniles	20.50
Transportation of Adults to:
Hospitals.....	14.00
Transportation of Children	16.80

Total..... $287.10.

The last item, $16.80 for the children will be refunded to the county, which will make the total expense to the county on probate court orders $260.30.

I have before me the report of the court for the year A. D. 1919. The amount paid on court orders for the insane is $337.74, and the total amount for the year was $373.76.

In these days of over increasing expenses and being confronted with the H. C. L. on every hand, it may be a surprise to the tax-payers of the county to know that one department of public affairs is costing less than formerly.

anted. We paid $85,000 for the plant. We have expended somewhere around $25,000 in improvements, mind you, improvements which were contemplated and deemed necessary when we bought the plant. We had no idea that we were buying an up-to-date modern plant in any sense. We are paying approximately the same amount that we would have paid in rental and less than we would have to pay in the purchase of current. The only addition is the cost of operation and maintenance. We have paid the first annual installment and retired the first series of bonds out of the earnings, and there is no reason why the city cannot continue to meet the payments.

It seems to me that this information should be given the people and I ask that you publish it. I have tried to cover everything. I have not tried to give exact figures, but will give them to you if you would like them.

Passing to another subject while I am writing. I wish to say something regarding the taxes we are now paying. Much to my astonishment I learned a few days ago that the City Council was being charged with the responsibility for the high taxes assessed on the December tax roll now being collected. I would

An examination of the receipt given by the city treasurer will show you that the taxes levied at this time are state, county and school taxes. The city taxes appear on the July roll.

Later on I shall want to avail myself of the use of your columns for the purpose of giving information to the public regarding some other matters of public interest, not having the space to do so now.

COURIER, CHARLEVOIX, MICH., WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 21, 1920

PRICE $2.00 PER YEAR

ANNUAL INCOME TAX NOW DUE

MUST BE PAID BEFORE MID-NIGHT MARCH 15

Forms Have Been Sent Out From Office of Collector For This District

The federal income tax season opened last Wednesday with the distribution of the forms for personal returns from the offices of Collector of Internal Revenue, E. J. Doyle, Grand Rapids, Michigan.

From now on until the bell rings on the night of March 15th, the annual returns covering income for 1919 will be figured out and filled by citizens and residents, together with payments of tax due.

The burden of fulfilling this obligation is laid by law squarely on the shoulders of those who are American citizens or residents. Every person must determine for himself whether his net income for 1919, figured according to the revenue law, was sufficient in amount to require a return.

If he is single, return is required if his net income for 1919 was $1,000 or over. A widow or widower is classed as a single person. A man or woman living apart from his wife or husband is also classed as a single person.

If he was married and living with his wife on December 31, a return is required if his net income for 1919 was $2,000 or over. In his income he must include that of his wife and minor children if any.

If a tax is due on his income, he must make payment with his return. This payment may be made in whole or in part of the tax due. At least one quarter of the tax must accompany the return.

The filing and paying must be done before midnight of March 15th, or he is classed as a delinquent and is subject to severe penalties.

Two forms are being distributed for personal returns. Form 1040A is intended for use by a person whose net income does not exceed $5,000. A larger form, 1040, is intended for each person having an income in excess of $5,000. Both of these forms are now obtainable at Internal Revenue offices and at some banks and postoffices.

It is urged by the Internal Revenue Bureau that taxpayers obtain their blanks at once. Failure to have a blank form at hand for an eleventh hour return will not relieve a person of penalty for failure to comply with the law.

Each form contains instructions for preparing and filing the return, and those should be carefully read and strictly observed.

There is also provided a "work sheet" which should be used for making the original computations, and which should be retained and preserved by the taxpayer.

Any person who is in doubt on points affecting his particular case, should bring such matters to the attention of the nearest Deputy Collector or Revenue agent, who will render every necessary aid without charge.

When the return is completed, it should be properly executed and immediately filed. Any Revenue office will administer the necessary oath without charge.

It is pointed out that accuracy in compiling the return is absolutely necessary. Mere guesses and estimates as to income and deductions should be avoided, and actual facts and amounts should be set forth. And this is equally important in considering the question of whether a return is required.

NO NEWSPAPERS FOR CANADA

News Print Held By the Ottawa Controllers

Parts of Canada are now without newspapers, especially Manitoba, due to the refusal of the great Fort Frances Pulp and Paper company to supply print paper to the newspapers on the order of the news print controllers at Ottawa.

All shipments of news print to the United States are held up at the mills by Canadian Customs officers. No shipments will be allowed until the company resumes supplying Canadian newspapers.

Officials were preparing for the seizure of the mill unless the company receded from its attitude by Saturday.

MUSICAL PROGRAM AT CONG. CHURCH

Selections Are to Be Furnished By Local Talent

The third Monthly Musicales will be given by our local artists at the Congregational church on Sunday evening, January 25th, at 7:00. There will be no admission, and the public is cordially invited. Following is the program:

Organ prelude—Mrs. LaLonde. Solo—"In the Great Somewhere"—Burleigh, Mr. Charles Hamlin. Chorus—"There's A Green Hill Far Away"—The Cecilians.

Reading—"The Happy Prince"—Wilde-Lehmann. Miss Nita Mayne, Mrs. A. A. Swinton, accompanist. Solo—"The Ninety and Nine"—Camtton, Mrs. Livingston.

Duet—"Jesus, Thou Joy of Loving Hearts"—Mrs. Livingston and Mr. Poole.

Chorus—"Love Shows the Way." The Cecilians.

(The audience will feel free to leave after this number.)

Postlude—Mrs. LaLonde.

"We will only add, that music must take rank as the highest of the fine arts—as the one which, more than any other, ministers to human welfare. And thus, even leaving out of view the immediate gratifications it is hourly giving, we cannot too much applaud that progress of musical culture which is becoming one of the characteristics of our age."

SCHOOL EXAMINATION NOW ON

TESTS BENEFICIAL TO SCHOOL CHILDREN

County School Work Has Been Held Up the Past Week Due to Winter Storms

This is the week when country boys and girls hold their breath and wonder what is to be the outcome. The teachers cheer Johnny and Nellie by telling them that the test isn't quite so hard this time, even though it is hard enough.

True, the conclusion of the first term is at hand and the tests are held January 22. Questions are based on the Course of Study and will help to serve as a standard in the grading of pupils. The tests are even more beneficial, however, in helping the child to organize his thoughts and form a mental summary of his term's work so that he may later command it at will.

Extension work in the county clubs was impossible last week because of the storm. Miss Hutty completed her work in the county normal Wednesday noon and drove through to Ironston, arriving there after dismissal. The teachers were very much interested in the arm lunch project and wished the matter presented in the right manner to the children's parents. It was impossible for Miss Hutty to reach East Jordan. Her driver found the roads utterly impassable.

Mr. Turner, State Club Leader, was to have reached Bay Shore Wednesday morning on the north bound Pere Marquette. He wished to help the Hindcraft Boys in their projects and planned on driving from there to Rock Elm on a similar mission. He would need to take a G. R. & I. midnight south bound in order to reach his Allegan appointment Thursday A. M. But the weather played havoc with this, too, and Mr. Turner spent both day and night stalled in a snowdrift at Kaleva.

Miss Stewart started for Charlevoix Wednesday morning to confer with Mr. Turner and to accompany Miss Hutty in her visits. The train went Bellaire, but as there were neither north or south bound trains, she could only return to her office. She next made arrangements to have Miss Hutty come on the first train to East Jordan in order that Ranney, Rock Elm and Walker, near East Jordan, might at least be visited.

The Rock Elm mothers came to the school house and awaited patiently all day for the winter visitors. They wished to have a lesson on the drafting of patterns at the same time it was presented to the sewing clubs. The lunch club even prepared an extra dish for the occasion, but they waited in vain. Word came at night that, because of the storm, Miss Hutty had returned to Lansing, and later came the sad word that her mother's death that evening made her return imperative.

NOW OUT OF RECEIVERS HANDS

W. H. WHITE COMPANY MAKES BIG INCREASE

Went Into Hand of Receivers in November 1913 to Protect Interests

On Thursday, January 15th, at twelve o'clock noon, the Michigan Trust Company, acting as Receiver for the W. H. White Company, was discharged by Judge Sessions of the United States Federal Court and the management of the large property held by the company was turned back to its owners, W. H. White, Thomas White and James White of Boyne City.

It was November 19th, 1913, when the W. H. White Co., petitioned the court for a receiver to facilitate financing the business of the company in Michigan. The need of more capital to carry on the business at that time was caused by the heavy purchases of three large tracts of western timber in Vancouver and the northwestern states. The timber was secured not for immediate manufacture but to provide timber for the company when their Michigan timber had been cut. The carrying charge proved to be burdensome but the White brothers decided to hold on to the timber and secured funds by bonding their Michigan property to carry their western enterprise.

Events have proven the wisdom of their decision for they have paid all indebtedness and have an abundance of capital for all needs for the present business. The holdings of the W. H. White Co., in Michigan and the timber resources of the White brothers are valued at several million dollars at the present time. A meeting of the W. H. White Co., was held in their Boyne City offices last Thursday which resulted as follows:

W. H. White, President. James White, 1st Vice President and Assistant Manager.

Thomas White, 2nd Vice President and General Manager.

Claude Hamilton, Treasurer.

The following board of directors were elected:

W. L. White, Secretary; W. H. White, James White, Claude Hamilton, L. H. White, V. H. White.

FORMER RESIDENT DEAD IN MILWAUKEE

J. P. Partridge for Years a Lake Captain Here

Word was received here Tuesday of the sudden death in Milwaukee of J. P. Partridge, formerly a resident of this city and for years a tug captain of the great lakes.

Mr. Partridge was born October 10, 1844, in St. Charles, Michigan, and came to Charlevoix in the year 1889, at which time he moved his tug-boat here and engaged in towing schooners in and out of this port.

In 1900 he left for the west and has not made this place his home permanently since. He was a charter member of the local Knights of Pythias lodge, and his body was under the auspices of that order after his death in Milwaukee.

He will be buried Thursday, January 23, at Montague, Mich. He is survived by his wife, Mrs. J. P. Partridge, and son, Henry, both of this city.

HISTORICAL SOCIETY FRIDAY EVENING

Will Meet at the Home of Mrs. L. B. Bartlett

The Charlevoix Historical Society will meet Friday evening, January 23rd, with Mrs. L. B. Bartlett at her home on Park Avenue.

The following program has been arranged for the evening:

Instrumental Music—Miss Nettie Correll.

Paper, "Prominent Men of Michigan"—Mr. W. E. Hampton.

Vocal Solo—Miss Muriel Waterhouse.

Paper, "Top of the World, Rocky Mountain Park"—Miss Anna Lombard.

Reading—Miss Neta Nynne.

The committee of North side ladies of the Order of the Eastern Star will serve a fifteen cent tea at the Masonic Temple on Wednesday January 28th, from three to six o'clock. Come to our little party, bring your friends and your work and have a nice social time. Everybody invited.

POINTERS ON INCOME TAX

SOME INFORMATION FOR THE GENERAL PUBLIC

Will Help Avoid Any Misunderstandings in the Filling out and Filing Blanks

Unmarried men who are bread winners for others are granted special exemptions on their earnings before figuring the income tax now being collected. Although a return must be filed by every unmarried person, and by every married person living apart from wife (or husband), who had a net income of $1,000 or more during 1919, recognition is made in the law of the home burdens carried by millions of such persons, and relief from excessive taxation is especially provided for.

In addition to the ordinary personal exemption of $1,000, an additional exemption of $1,000 is granted to "heads of families," and there is also provided an exemption of $200 for each dependent under 18 years of age or who is mentally or physically defective.

The $200 for each dependent may be claimed by any taxpayer who is the chief support of such dependent. This is not confined to dependents who are members of the family or relatives. On the other hand it does not include servants or others who are earning their living. And it does not apply to the wife or husband of the married taxpayer, even though such persons may have become a total burden.

It should be remembered that the person who claims exemption as "head of a family" must qualify for it. Two single persons who divide between them, more or less equally, the financial and other responsibilities of a household cannot claim that either one is the head of the family. But if a single person actually assumes the total responsibilities of the household and is aided by having one of his brothers or sisters support himself and contributing an amount that could not practically be considered more than his board, such trivial circumstances must not be allowed to interfere with his clear claim for exemption.

A single person is the head of a family if by December 31st he had become the sole support of close relatives (by blood, marriage or adoption) living in the same house with him and looked upon by them to exercise a greater or less amount of control in the matters affecting the support and maintenance of the household.

The phrase "sole support" is here in the sense that there is no other person to whom the dependents are looking for a substantial portion of their support. There may be another source of income (such as interest on bonds, dividends on stocks, pension) which, if meagre enough to still leave the recipient dependent, should not interfere with the claim for exemption. Such meagre income of dependents, as well as the inconsequential profit on the board of any self-supporting member of the household, must however be included in the return of the head of the household.

But a division of responsibility will in every case exclude the parties from the claim for the additional exemption. Article 302 of regulations 45 defines that a head of a family is "a person who actually supports and maintains in one household or more individuals who are closely connected with him by blood relationship, relationship by marriage, or by adoption, and whose right to exercise family control and provide for these dependent individuals is based upon some moral or legal obligation."

Once the existence of the fact that a taxpayer is the principal cause for the creation or maintenance of a home is established it cannot be destroyed by his mere temporary or unavoidable absence from it. If a father is left with a young child to whom he cannot give the proper attention himself, and he places this child with relatives or elsewhere, he should still be considered the head of a family even if yet further force of circumstances would oblige him to live elsewhere; provided that he still exercised fatherly control over the well-being, education, and filial feelings of the child, and did not (while furnishing the support) allow the child to become a virtual orphan.

If, however, without necessity the dependent continuously makes his home elsewhere, his benefactor is not the head of the family, irrespective of the question of support.

WORK ON LOEB OF FICE UNDER WAY

Adam's Pool Hall Now Moved Into Klooster Building

The work of moving the Adam's tobacco store and billiard parlor to the newly acquired Klooster building has nearly been completed and business has been resumed in the new stand. But for a little painting and arranging of fixtures, the work is entirely done.

In the building just vacated by Adam's, work is in full swing. A new hardwood floor is being laid and the interior redecorated prior to the installation of the new office fixtures. It will make a fine downtown office for the Loeb Farm, also headquarters for the Charlevoix Abstract & Engineering Company.

CHARLEVOIX COUNTY BANK MAKES GAIN

Statement Shows Wonderful Increase of Business

A marked gain in business was made in 1919 by the Charlevoix County Bank, according to their banking statement issued January 1st.

The total resources of this banking institution are now over the $500,000 mark, a big gain over last year at this time.

The savings deposits have made a big increase, now totaling over $200,000.

FARMERS MEET AT EAST LANSING

CHARLEVOIX COUNTY MEN TO ATTEND

Movement to Better Farming Conditions and Put Farming on Sound Basis

Frank Bird, R. V. Otto and Elmer Ingalls of Charlevoix, secretary, respectively of the Charlevoix County Farm Bureau are expected to attend the meeting of the newly formed state farm bureau at East Lansing February 6th, in connection with farmers' week at the Michigan Agricultural college.

This will be the first general session of the Michigan Farm Bureau since its organization. Important questions bearing directly upon problems in Charlevoix county are likely to come up.

Of unusual significance will be the presence of H. J. Howard, president of the national farm bureau, and former Congressman A. F. Lever, now member of the farm loan board. These two men have been among the most influential in steps of recent years toward putting the farmer on a sound business basis. While in Congress Lever introduced the bill in 1914 which provided for the extension work now being done by land grant colleges. During the war he was the author of the Lever act controlling food, fuel and other necessities.

Ten other men and women of prominence, including Gov. Frank D. Lowden of Illinois, Dean Alfred Vivan of Ohio State university, and Cecil Roberts, English poet and war correspondent, will be speakers during farmers' week.

Arrangements are being made to care for a record number of visitors. Those who cannot be accommodated in East Lansing will be quartered in Lansing homes. Guides and signs in sufficient numbers will prevent anyone from losing his way on the winding campus walks.

THE STATE BANK ELECTS OFFICERS

Same Officers Will Hold Positions This Year

The Charlevoix State Savings Bank held a meeting of stockholders for the purpose of a business meeting and the election of a board of directors for the coming year.

The persons elected on the board of directors was the same as in the past year. The following officers were elected for the year of 1920:

J. L. Crane, president. H. S. Harsha, vice president. A. A. Swinton, vice president. A. D. Crimmins, cashier. Archie Livingston, assistant cashier.

A goodly increase in business during the year ending January 1, 1920, was marked and as good prospects for the coming year of 1920.

WINS FIRST GAME OF THE SEASON

C. H. S. BEATS BELLAIRE H. S. TEAM BY SCORE 55-5.

Visiting Team Outclassed From the Beginning—Home Team Displays Fine Team Work

The Charlevoix High School basketball team opened their season at the roller rink Friday night by taking the high school team from Bellaire into camp by the score of 55 to 5.

From the opening whistle the Bellaire team was completely outclassed and never once during the game did they show any form that would compete with the work of the local boys. They were able to count but one field basket during the entire period of play, their other three points being made through free throws.

Starting the game off with a rush, the home team began through superior team work, speed and basket shooting to pile up a lead of such size that there was no chance of its being overcome. The Bellaire boys were bothered somewhat by the low beams in the rink, but put up a good fight against too heavy odds.

The game was featured by the basket shooting of Krulik, Woxstaff and Halverson, while at guards Hlammett and Jones did not allow their men a single counter. The Bellaire basket was made by their center in the first half of the game. Hallett and Smith were substitutes for Krulik and Jones in the second half and displayed a good brand of basket ball.

The game, next Friday night will be with Petoskey high school at the Petoskey gymnasium. Petoskey is reported to have a fine team and due to their well equipped gymnasium have had a great deal more practice, which adds a handicap for our boys to overcome.

As a preliminary to last Friday's game, two teams of girls from the high school opened the evening in a game of very close score.

The two teams, "The Old Gray Mare" and the "Yellow Dog Blues," battled for some time before either side secured a score. Due to the work of Miss Flanders of the "Yellow Dog Blues," the final score was 13-4 in favor of the Blues.

MASONIC BUILDING ASSOCIATION MEETS

Annual Meeting Held Tuesday Night at Hall

The annual meeting of the local Masonic Building Association was held Tuesday night at the Masonic hall.

This meeting was one of both business and social nature and was attended by Masons, Eastern Stars and their families. A pot luck supper was served at 6:15 p. m., after which the business meeting was held.

The same officers that held in the past year were elected again for 1920. The reports of the finance committee showed the financial condition of the organization to be in the best of condition.

Later in the evening those present enjoyed themselves by dancing. Both old and new dances were participated in and everyone had a good time.

Grange Installs Officers

Charlevoix Grange met at their hall on Antrim street Friday night with a good attendance. The officers for the year were installed by Past Master John Bugbee, assisted by A. J. Usher.

During the lecture hour Worthy Master E. B. Ward, in a few well chosen words, presented the worthy secretary, in behalf of the grange, a beautiful ring as a token of their appreciation for past services.

The next meeting will be held Friday evening, January 30, and the first and second degrees will be conferred. At the close of the meeting a fine pot luck supper was served. Visitors were present from Marion Center grange.

The Lady Maccabees will hold a baked goods sale and serve lunches and hot vegetable soup on Saturday, January 24, beginning at ten a. m. and serving throughout the evening at the Blanchard Hardware Co. 222 Ellsworth—Adv. 362

IF BACK HURTS USE
SALTS FOR KIDNEYS

Get tea meat if Kidneys feel like lead or Bladder bothers you—Meat forms uric acid.

Most folks forget that the kidneys, like the bowels, get sluggish and clogged and need a flushing occasionally, else we have backache and dull misery in the kidney region, severe headaches, rheumatic twinges, torpid liver, acid stomach, sleeplessness and all sorts of bladder disorders.

You simply must keep your kidneys active and clean, and this moment you feel an ache or pain in the kidney region, get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any good drug store here, take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salt is made from the acid of lemons and lemon juice, combined with soda, and is harmless to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to normal activity. It also neutralizes the acids in the urine so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is harmless; inexpensive, makes a delightful effervescent lithia water drink which everybody should take now and then to keep their kidneys clean, thus avoiding serious complications. A well-known local druggist says he has lots of Jad Salts to folks who believe in overcoming kidney trouble while it is only trouble.

Miss Muriel Kerry visited Mrs. Earl Clark and Mrs. Chas. Dean Saturday.

Miss Elizabeth Seiler, Wm. Sanderson and Lois attended the social at Ironton Friday evening. They report a small attendance on account of the stormy weather.

Wm. Scott called on Earl Clark Monday afternoon and found him very cheerful and doing nicely. We hope he will soon be able to be about again.

Unusual Value—In Tires for Small Cars

Not only is characteristic Goodyear merit conspicuous in Goodyear Tires for small cars but ordinarily the first cost is found to be not greater than that of other tires; often it is actually less.

The combination of unusual value in first cost and very low final cost, of course, is a result of Goodyear experience, expertness and care employed as insistently in the making of 30x3-, 30x3½- and 31x4-inch tires as it is in the construction of the famous Goodyear Cord Tires used on the highest-priced automobiles.

For this reason more cars using these small sizes were factory-equipped last year with Goodyear Tires than with any other kind.

Get this unusual tire value to enjoy on your Ford, Chevrolet, Dort, Maxwell, or other small car, at the nearest Goodyear Service Station. Get these tires and Goodyear Heavy Tourist Tubes at this station.

30x3½ Goodyear Double-Cure
Fabric, All-Weather Tread $20.00

30x3½ Goodyear Single-Cure
Fabric, Anti-Skid Tread $17.65

Goodyear Heavy Tourist Tubes are thick, strong tubes that reinforce casings properly. Why risk a good casing with a cheap tube? Goodyear Heavy Tourist Tubes cost little more than tubes of less merit. 30x3½ size in water—$3.90 proof bag.

Customers' Co-operation

The equipment of all public service enterprises in Europe, whether publicly or privately operated, disintegrated terribly during the Great War.

There were not funds sufficient to keep them up to standard.

As a result the service of public utilities was greatly impaired and much time and money will be required for their restoration.

In the meantime the public is inconvenienced.

America has been more fortunate. Her wire using companies have been excellently well maintained. This has been due to untiring effort and vigilance upon the part of operating officials and the public's willingness to pay liberal rates. The Telephone Company must continue to charge rates sufficient to maintain good service, since every element entering into that service costs more than it did six months ago, and costs are still advancing.

The successful telephone company must have the cordial co-operation of its patrons, particularly with respect to the payment of fair rates.

NEW NATIONAL PROHIBITION ACT

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS PERTAINING TO ACT

What a Person Must Do to Obtain Liquor and Where it Can Be Obtained

The Courier is publishing the following article of the local W.C. T. U. It covers all points of the new prohibition act and will prove interesting reading.

Q.—What is liquor, or intoxicating liquor, under the terms of the Act?

A.—Alcohol, brandy, whisky, rum, gin beer, ale, porter and wine, and in addition thereto, any spirituous, vinous, malt, or fermented liquor, liquids and compounds whether medicated, proprietary, patented or not, and by whatever name called, which contain one-half of one percentum of more of alcohol by volume, and which are for the use for beverage purposes.

Q.—Does the Act permit any sign or bill-board advertising liquor to remain upon any one's premises?

A.—No; anyone allowing any such sign or bill-board to remain upon his premises is subject to heavy fine penalty.

Q.—By whom shall intoxicating liquors carried in violation of law in wagon, buggy, automobile, water or air craft, or other vehicle, be seized?

A.—By the Commissioner, his assistants, inspectors, or any officer of the law.

Q.—Does this include state officers, such as sheriff or constable?

A.—Yes.

Q.—Is it permissible to manufacture non-intoxicating cider and fruit juices for exclusive use in the home?

A.—Yes. Such manufacture may be made without permit, and persons so manufacturing are not subject to penalties.

Q.—Upon whom is the burden of proof to show that liquor is lawfully acquired, possessed and used?

A.—Upon the possessor.

Q.—Who are required to investigate and report violations of the Act?

A.—The Commissioner, his assistants, agents and inspectors.

Q.—To whom shall such officers report violations for prosecution?

A.—To the United States Attorney for the district in which the offense was committed.

Q.—Who is required to prosecute violators of the law?

A.—The United States District Attorney.

Q.—Who are authorized to swear out warrants for the apprehension of violators?

A.—The Commissioner, his assistants, agents and inspectors.

Q.—By whom shall such warrants be issued?

A.—By any United States Commissioner or other officers, or Courts authorized to issue the same.

Q.—How shall the provisions of this Act be construed?

A.—Liberally, to the end that intoxicating liquor as a beverage may be prevented.

Q.—What articles and preparations are subject to the provisions of the Act?

A.—(a) Denatured alcohol and denatured rum.
(b) Medicinal preparations manufactured in accordance with the United States Pharmacopoeia, National Formulary, or the American Institute of Homeopathy formulae, and which unfit for beverage purposes.
(c) Patented, patent and proprietary medicines that are unfit for use for beverage purposes.
(d) Toilet, medicinal and antiseptic preparations and solutions that are unfit for beverage purposes.
(e) Flavoring extracts and sirups that are unfit for use as a beverage or for intoxicating purposes.
(f) Vinegar and preserved sweet cider.

after having been manufactured and prepared for market, are not subject to the provisions of this Act provided they are not used or sold unlawfully?

A.—(a) Denatured alcohol and denatured rum.

(b) Medicinal preparations manufactured in accordance with the United States Pharmacopoeia, National Formulary, or the American Institute of Homeopathy formulae, and which unfit for beverage purposes.

(c) Patented, patent and proprietary medicines that are unfit for use for beverage purposes.

(d) Toilet, medicinal and antiseptic preparations and solutions that are unfit for beverage purposes.

(e) Flavoring extracts and sirups that are unfit for use as a beverage or for intoxicating purposes.

(f) Vinegar and preserved sweet cider.

Q.—Does the misuse of wins for sacramental purposes, subject persons to the penalties announced in the Act?

A.—Yes.

Q.—Who is authorized to issue prescriptions for liquor?

A.—No one excepting physicians holding permits issued by the Commissioner to prescribe liquor.

Q.—What conditions shall exist before physicians can issue prescriptions for liquor?

A.—After careful examination of the person for whose use the prescription is sought, or if such examination is found impracticable, then upon the best information obtainable, the physician must in good faith believe that the use of such liquor as medicine by the patient is necessary and will afford relief to him from some known ailment.

Q.—What limitation is placed on the quantity that may be prescribed?

A.—Not more than a pint of spirituous liquor to be taken internally, may be prescribed for the same person within any period of ten days.

Q.—What is required under the Act of a physician who issues prescriptions for liquor?

A.—He shall keep a record, alphabetically arranged in a book prescribed by the commissioner.

Q.—What shall the record show?

A.—(a) Date of issue.
(b) Amount prescribed.
(c) To whom issued.
(d) Purpose or ailment for which it is to be used.
(e) Direction for use.
(f) Amount and frequency of dose.

Q.—What are the duties under the Act of a carrier of liquor?

A.—The carrier shall make a record at place of shipment of the receipt of the liquor; he shall deliver liquor only to persons who present to him a verified copy of permit to purchase, which shall be made a part of the carrier's permanent record at the office from which delivery is made.

Q.—What is required of the agent of the common carrier?

A.—He is authorized to administer this oath to the consignee in verification of the copy of the permit presented, and if not known to the agent, he must be identified before delivery of liquor is made to him. The name and address of the person identifying the consignee shall be made part of the record.

Q.—Is it lawful to advertise liquor, or the manufacture, sale, keeping for sale or furnishing the same, or where, how, from whom or at what price the same may be obtained?

A.—Yes, but manufacturers and wholesale druggists who hold permits to sell liquor may furnish price lists, with description of liquor for sale to persons permitted to purchase liquor. Such persons may also advertise alcohol in business publication or trade journals circulating generally among manufacturers of lawful alcoholic perfumes, toilet preparations, flavoring extracts, medicinal preparations and like articles.

Old Friends are True Friends

The man, who loves a dog and a pipe, has two staunch friends that never fail him in good luck or in bad. They give all and ask nothing in return. Day by day they become nearer and dearer to him. The man who has not a dog and a pipe has missed two of the greatest things this good old world can give.

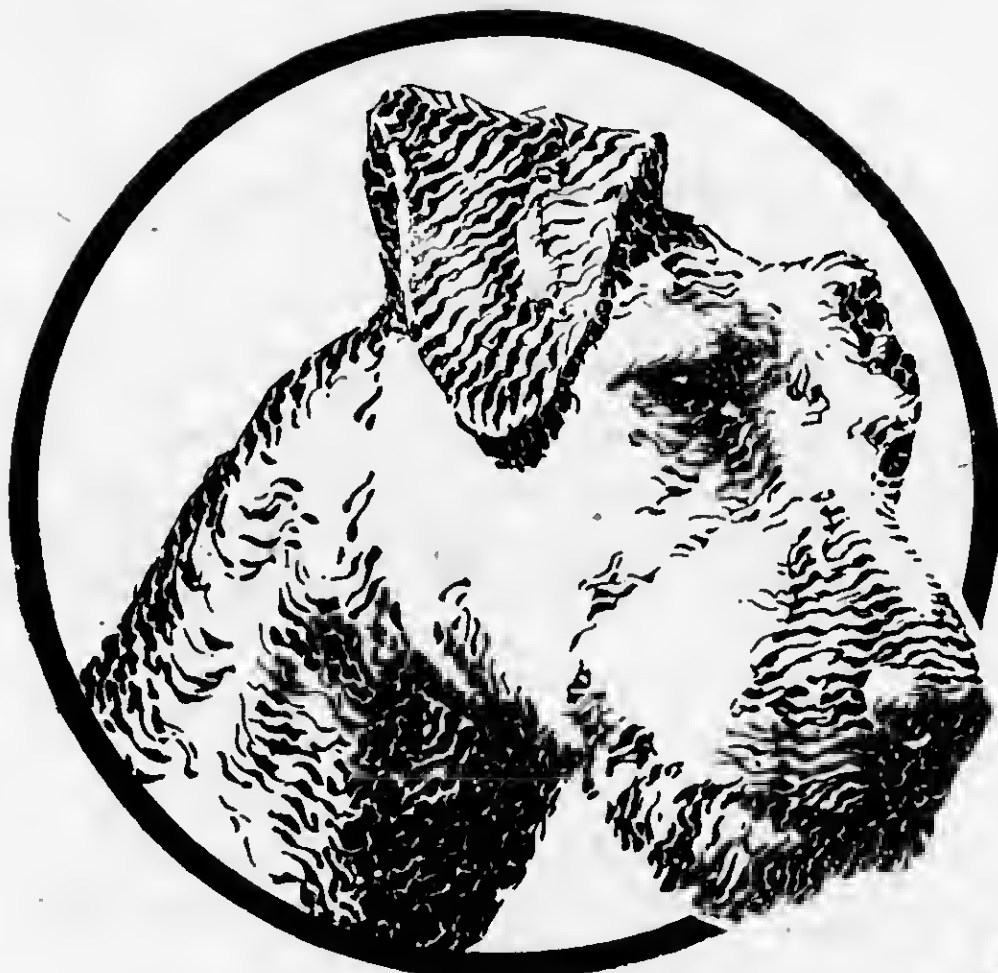

Every man who loves his pipe should know Velvet, the one tobacco that brings out all of a pipe's best and sweetest qualities. Your pipe takes on an added friendliness from Velvet's choice Kentucky leaf aged in the wood to a mellowness that's rich and smooth as cream.

Your pipe takes on a mild sweetness that is Velvet's natural tobacco sweetness. And around you hovers the real tobacco fragrance that all good pipe smokers love.

Never did Velvet Joe say a wiser, truer thing than this:

"Folks say you can't buy friendship. You can buy a dog and a pipe and good old Velvet—and I reckon no man ever had three better friends."

Liggett & Myers Tobacco Co.

There's a lot of pipe-loads in every big generous tin of Velvet, and every pipe-load is good tobacco at its best.

SAGE AND SULPHUR DARKENS GRAY HAIR

It's Grandmother's Recipe to Restore Color, Gloss and Attractiveness.

Almost everyone knows that Sage Tea and Sulphur, properly compounded, brings back the natural color and lustre to the hair when faded, streaked or gray. Years ago the only way to get this mixture was to make it at home, which is messy and troublesome. Nowadays, by asking at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," you will get a large bottle of this famous old recipe, improved by the addition of other ingredients, at a small cost.

Don't stay gray! Try it! No one can possibly tell that you darkened your hair, as it does it so naturally and evenly. You dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy and attractive. Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound is a delightful toilet requisite for those who desire dark hair and a youthful appearance. It is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.

THE FARMER'S ATTITUDE TO LABOR ORGANIZATIONS EXPLAINED.

I am a Democrat and never thought the day would ever come when I would vote any other ticket. But if Governor Coolidge or any other man who will do what he says is nominated on a platform which means justice to all and special privileges to none—not even brotherhoods and unions—I will vote for that ticket against my own party philandering with the organizations now tyrannizing our country.

I am a farmer and all I have is what I make out of land. I formerly sympathized with organized labor; I believed in Government ownership. But we have already had too much of both and we are evidently not advanced far enough in our civilization for either.

Farmers pay the greater part of all the freight and the economical management of railroads is of the utmost importance of them. Every dollar added to the transportation is a tax on the farmer and an increase in the high cost of living. I now pay more to ship less than 12 miles than I formerly paid to ship the same products 300 miles to New York.

A young man handsomely dressed from the crown of his head to his expensive shoes, with his gold watch and chain, had driven up in his automobile. He had formerly worked on my farm, but was now a railroad man and in talking to me complained in an injured way that he made only $6 per day and couldn't buy a shirt for that. I told him I was wearing a dollar and a half shirt. The engineer on his train had been getting $6,000 per year for a short day's work and the brotherhood said it was too much and a change was made at its dictation, though not in the interest of economy; two men did thereafter what one did before and each had $3,000 or more. One brotherhood man recently got a back pay check for $2,000 and in the same town another man drew $1,000, and yet both had all the time been receiving every two weeks the highest wages ever paid for such service. And all the time, also, the railroads were losing money by the millions of dollars and the reductions in freight and passenger rates that Mr. McAdoo and Mr. Hines had promised failed to materialize. Instead they grew.

But all this is necessary, the brotherhood say. Why tax me heavily to enable a former hand of mine to buy $6 shirts and an automobile? Why should farmers be taxed to pay railroad men more than they are worth; or to help politicians in their vote-getting? The merchants will tell you that the railroad men and their wives are the best customers, buying extravagantly and paying high prices for luxuries.

The coal workers say they can not live on what they make by working six days a week, therefore work five days. Union men can not make a living by working eight hours, so they must have a six-hour day. A fine sample of I. W. W. logic. And we farmers are asked to unite with the brotherhoods and unions in such demands and to join with the I. W. W.'s who have been burning our wheat stacks, and who would nationalize our railroads, mines, factories and women. This is where their logic leads. There is no eight-hour day or five-day week for the farmers, no back pay envelopes, and when the farmers do meet the brotherhoods there will be head-on collision.

A. VIRGINIA FARMER.
Charlottesville, Va., Dec. 22

A welcome Christmas gift to a long-suffering nation was the judgment of the Federal Court at Kansas City in the case of a gang of twenty-seven potential traitors. These "I Won't Work" scoundrels had been conspiring to break the laws of the country and to defeat their operation, to deprive the people of food and fuel, to cause the defeat of our army and navy in the war, to promote the success of Germany and the German conquest of America, and the overthrow and destruction of the United States as an independent Republic. Every one of them richly deserved to be stood between a blank wall and a firing squad, and probably would have been thus treated in any country but this. As it was, seeing that the law did not provide for such disposition of them, the court had to be content with sending them to prison for from three to nine years apiece and, in the case of the head devil of the gang, until the costs of the prosecution are paid. It was a good day's work; entirely appropriate to the season which promises "Peace on earth to men of good will." There can be no better way of assuring peace to men of good will than by putting men of evil where "the wicked cease from troubling." Now, if only there could be a few more such days' work, including some such summary disposition of the infernal fools who will presently be weeping and howling for the release of these "political prisoners!"

Anyway the public should thank John D. for the privilege of getting in on the generous donations. It only costs us a additional cent a gallon.

Secretary Baker stands better with the conscientious objectors than with the boys of the American Legion.

M. E. CHURCH NOTES

Forty new members were secured for the Epworth League at the regular devotional service last Sunday night. Seven visitors were present. The "Blues" were seven points ahead of the "Reds."

Miss Ethelyn Morrison gave a very interesting talk on "A Worth-while Life," and presided over the service very acceptably. Orson Everts is the leader for next Sunday night, the topic is: "Telling Others About Jesus." At these devotional services the Sunday school subject for the following Sunday will be studied.

The tea given by the ladies of the church at the home of Dr. and Mrs. Auld was very generously patronized despite the inclemency of the weather, about 50 being present.

The Literary and Sewing Club held its annual meeting last Friday night at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Marshall. A large number were present. A very fine supper was served after which a literary program was given.

Judge Correll was the special teacher of the Men's Bible Class last Sunday morning. His interpretation of the lesson was much appreciated.

Miss Helena Bates' Bible Class held its monthly social and business meeting in the parlors of the church last Tuesday evening. A large company were present and a very enjoyable time spent by all.

At the annual election of officers and teachers for the Sunday school, which was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Allen last Monday night, the following were elected teachers:

Misses Morrison, Bates, Miller, Marshall, Nordrum and Crandell. Mesdames Campbell, Ager, Auld, Beers, Poole, Candler, Metcalf and Edwards.

Mrs. E. A. Stewart, superintendent; C. Beers, assistant superintendent; Irene Auld, pianist; Dottie Sickles, missionary superintendent; Kenneth Jacobs, librarian; Pearl Duran, secretary; Mrs. Alcox, temperance superintendent and C. Beers, choirster.

CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH

The theme for the morning service of Sunday, January 5th, will be "The Returns of Genius." The hour is 10:30 a. m. and the public is cordially invited.

Our new officers have taken over the work of the Sunday school. Of course we wish them a most successful year. Then let's manifest our intentions by giving them our individual and hearty support! Following are the newly elected officers:

Our New Philosopher

That was a good one Hod Stivers got off yesterday about the slaughterhouse. He said he never paid no attention to it turning his stomach because it has been turned so durned many times it wuz just as good on one side as 'tother.

If people would only keep their durned mouths shet about how high and how scarce sugar is, I could get along without more'n two heapin' teaspoonsful in my coffee to anet.

When we find sum terbacker that tastes as good in our pipe as it smells in th' other felle's, then we are goin' t' begin thinkin' up what t' say to St. Peter.

Th' story th' other gink tells would have a much finer pint if we weren't so confounded occupied in thinkin' which one we air goin' tell next.

As far as we kin see there ain't no spechul difference between 1920 and 1919 exceptin' that they's a little mite more air in th' hard cider barrel.

Found It Somewhat Depressing. I had taken little nephew with me to a funeral at the home of one of our neighbors. He was very quiet during the music and singing and subdued weeping of the mourners. But gave a sigh of relief when the services were over. On our way home he looked up at me and remarked: "It wasn't a very lively party, was it, uncle?"—Chicago American.

Pilny and the Rose. Pilny wrote of the rose at the beginning of the Christian era. "It is a flower known to all nations equal with wine, myrtle and oil."

COUNTY NORMAL NOTES

A person who has completed the county normal course satisfactorily is granted a county normal certificate which qualifies the holder to teach in any rural school of the county for a period of three years without examination. At the end of that time if the person has proven a successful teacher, the certificate will be renewed for a period of three years. The certificate may again be renewed for a period of three years, if in the meantime, the holder has completed a course of study of twelve weeks, all of which must be in advance of the work done in the county normal. A county normal certificate, therefore, is practically good for nine years. Also a county normal certificate may be transferred from one county to another, with permission of the Commissioner of Schools. A county normal certificate therefore, is usually valid in any county of the state.

The members of the Normal Class are all working for a Palmer Method certificate. The work is showing up very well this far.

Readers of the County Normal notes may be interested to know that the class motto is: "Thus ends our Second Lesson." Class colors, Purple and Pearl, class flower, "Forget-me-not."

Picture In Your Mind

If you are really in earnest in your desire to save money you can do it.

Living expenses may be high, and it is a poor policy to stint too much, but there are many little extravagancies and self-indulgences that you can chop off, and you will be surprised how much they amount up in a year's time. By far the easiest way to save is to put your money right in the bank as soon as you get it and only draw out what you actually need. Get out of the habit of carrying a roll of bills in your pocket—it is a foolish and expensive habit, for it invariably leads to spending on "unconsidered trifles."

Highway Commissioner Bradford
Make Interesting Report on Traverse City Meeting.

Township Highway Commissioner Geo. Bradford attended a district meeting of township and county road commissioners at Traverse City on Tuesday and Wednesday of last week and reports a very interesting and instructive meeting.

A large share of the time was taken up in discussions of the state and federal aid on trunk line roads and in this connection Mr. Bradford was informed that Banks township could not hope to obtain any satisfaction by correspondence along this line until a regular blank farm, furnished by the state highway department,

STEADFAST CONFIDENCE

The Following Statement Should Form Conclusive Proof of Merit to Every Charlevoix Reader.

Could stronger proof of the merit of any remedy be desired than the statements of grateful endorser who say their confidence has been undiminished by lapse of time? These are kind of statements that are appearing constantly in your local papers for Doan's Kidney Pills. They are twice told and confirmed, with new enthusiasm. Can any reader doubt the following? It's from a Charlevoix resident:

Mrs. R. M. McKeel, 214 Mason St., says: "I suffered for several months with kidney trouble. I was bloated quite badly and had a weak and lame back. Doan's Kidney Pills, procured from Metcalf's Drug Store, brought me relief."

FIVE YEARS LATER Mrs. McKeel said: "All I have said in praise of Doan's Kidney Pills holds good today."

Doan's completely cured me of kidney trouble and the cure has lasted. Price 60c, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mrs. McKeel had. Foster-Milburn Co., Mfrs., Buffalo N. Y.

ment, is filled out by the township board, specifying the boundaries of the road for which the federal aid is required and filed with the state highway commissioner. This blank will be by him forwarded to the federal aid department at Washington.

There are at present two prospective routes for the federal aid road through Banks township. One starts at the water tank, north of Central Lake, and runs west to form a junction with the state road at Eastport, and the other route, and the one most favored with this vicinity, starts at the same point near Central Lake and runs north to the state reward road through Ellsworth and then west to the state road at Atwood.

Arrangements were also made at this meeting for $500.00 to be given by the state for gravel on the pike to be placed in the spring as soon as possible and where most needed to stand the heavy traffic.

Another matter taken up which it seems would be a good thing, is in the handling of snow roads. Agitation has been started and bids fair to be put through as a law, to regulate the width of sleighs the same as wagons, thus leaving a track which may be used by autos.

State Highway Commissioner Rogers was scheduled to address the meeting but was unable to be present on account of the railroad blockade.

ELLSWORTH AS A PRODUCE CENTER

Gaining Notoriety as a Buying and Shipping Center.

The past week has placed Ellsworth on the map as a trading and shipping center.

The Ellsworth Produce Co. on Saturday bought six cars of potatoes from the Central Lake Marketing Association and on the same day bought two cars of potatoes from the Banks Township Marketing Association. These eight cars will be run, with what is held by the Ellsworth Produce Co., through the Chatterton & Son selling system direct to the consumer.

As an illustration: A recent shipment accompanied by Mr. Nelson, was run to its destination, placed on siding and in less than two hours the car was unloaded and in the consumer's hands. Mr. Nelson, remaining in the city six hours, was assured at the hotel that he was eating from the same potatoes he brought from Ellsworth. The above can be verified by anyone.

This is a system that will place the Chatterton interests in the lead as a marketing power. Combining this with their plan of "soon as you weigh, you get your pay," makes the future of the energetic farmer look exceedingly bright.

WAS FATHER OF FIFTEEN CHILDREN

Isaac Tornga Located in Ellsworth in 1899.

Isaac Tornga was born in the province of Drenth, Netherlands, May 24, 1857, and died in Petoskey, Mich., January 12, 1920, aged 62 years, seven months and 19 days.

At the age of 20 years he was married to Miss Jessie VanPolen and with her came to America in 1892, first settling at Grand Rapids. He came to Ellsworth in November, 1899, and settled on the farm three miles west of Ellsworth, where he lived until the time of his death.

Deceased was the father of fifteen children, nine boys and six girls, six boys and one girl of whom are living. Mr. Tornga was a member of the Christinn Reform church of Ellsworth and during his long residence here earned a reputation of being an honest, God fearing man, a loving husband and father, and a good friend and neighbor. Besides the widow there are left to mourn their loss the six sons, Herman, John, Joe and Albert of Banks township, Nicholas of East Jordan, and Jacob of Conrad, Montana, and the daughter, Mrs. Henry VanderSlick of Banks township.

Owing to the large number of friends and the almost impassable condition of the roads, two funeral services were held, the first being Thursday p. m. at the M. E. church at Ellsworth, and again on Friday at the Reformed church near Essex, and the body was placed in the Holland cemetery near Atwood. Rev. H. K. Beute, officiating at both services in the English tongue, while Rev. Wichenga preached in Holland at the Reformed church. The entire neighborhood joins in sympathy with the bereaved family.

ANNOUNCES STEADY BUSINESS INCREASE

Marketing Association Handling a Large Amount of Cream

The office at the Banks Township Marketing Association ware house is being remodeled and shelves and desks are being installed, which will make it both comfortable and convenient. Wm. Drenth is doing the work.

Manager Elzinga of the association announces a steady increase in the amount of cream being handled each day, as well as a steadily increasing business in the handling of pork and veal, there having been nearly five hundred dollars worth of the latter shipped during the past week at very satisfactory prices.

Potatoes are quoted at better than two dollars per bushel and the two or three car loads of beans already on the floor will be shipped as soon as cars can be secured, as the embargo on these products has been lifted recently.

Card of Thanks

We wish to thank the friends and neighbors for their kindness and sympathy, both at Ellsworth and in the Essex neighborhood, during the illness and death of our dear husband and father. We particularly thank those who gave their help and those who sang as well as the pastors for their kindly words. Mrs. Isaac Tornga and Children. Stipd.

ATWOOD

Winter in earnest. Edna Jolliffe goes to Grand Rapids next Friday for the winter.

Dr. McMillan of Charlevoix is a frequent visitor here in his profession.

Henry Klooster and wife will go to Holland this week to visit relatives.

Mrs. Ed. Blow is on the sick list. Hope nothing serious—look out for the gripple.

Mrs. Walter DeGroot, who has been very sick, is reported as having shown much improvement.

Mrs. Henry VnnDusen of Norwood, who has been at the George Parsons home for two weeks, returned home last week.

INTERESTING BITS OF INFORMATION CLIPPED FROM OUR EXCHANGES

Will someone kindly explain to us why the Michigan senatorial investigation is confined exclusively to Newberry and his backers and those who perfected an organization to defeat "Peace Ship Ford"? Candidly, we would like to know, for, as the Detroit Times, and independent democratic daily newspaper, recently said "Mr. Ford had an organization that looked like a million" to his opponents. One thing is undisputed, he and his backers spent more than the "corrupt practices" statutes permits. To many it looks like a "jug-handle" affair—as if it was a piece of partisanship intended to bring one party into disrepute and "white-wash" the other. Such investigations are supposed to be judicial and unbiased and to unearth the facts, but thus far it has been one-sided. Again we ask, why isn't the Ford campaign gone into?—Elk Rapids Progress.

William Gilbert of Cross Village, is at the county jail in Petoskey, on a charge of violating the state liquor laws. So far he has failed to secure bonds.

Gilbert is said to have had a good sized supply of "home brew" on hand, and that the stuff contained a regular kick. Several jars of this home made liquor were found by the officers. What all it contained is not yet known, but an analysis showed it had more alcohol than the law allows.

Three heavy freight locomotives known as the consolidated type have been added to the power of the White Road. Two of these engines left Chicago last week for Boyne City and the third engine will start this week. This heavy power is now needed to move the freight that seek the rails of Boyne City's road at Alpena which consists of leather, paper, forest products, gravel and cement in train load lots and is hauled to Gaylord for the Michigan Central and to Boyne Falls for the G. R. & I. railroad. The officers of the B. C. G. & A. railroad advise that the volume of the business at the present time depends largely on the ability of the road to move it, hence the additional engines for service.

Central Lake has recently organized a board of trade that is busy getting good things for the community. The Holland-St. Louis Sugar Co. will establish a station there for the coming season and the farmers will engage in the growing of sugar beets, which is considered a mighty paying agricultural industry for farmers. The village expects to see a new hotel built there and ready for occupancy by the time the resort season opens, and it has other things in view.

The bean crop in Michigan for 1919 is estimated at 4,030,000 bushels or approximately 850,000 bushels less than last year. While the acreage was only 60 per cent of last year's the yield was 13 bushels as compared with nine produced last year. At an average of $4.20 per bushel on December 1, the crop was worth $16,926,000.

When a Manistee clothing merchant threw a stick of dynamite into the furnace along with a shovelful of coal, the furnace, the coal bin, and the floor immediately above were blown to pieces, and when they carried the man out, although he was still alive, he must have felt a good deal like a customer does when he has tried on suits till he finds one that exactly satisfies him and then looks at the price tag.

William Hite, a farmer who resides near East Jordan, took nine 8 months old pigs from one litter, that dressed 1679 pounds to a Boyne City meat market last week. As this was considered unusually good pork Mr. Hite received $302.22 for it. It pays to raise good stock and dispose of it at a good market.

FACTS ABOUT THE NEW LIQUOR LAW

Has Now Been Made Amendment to Constitution

Section 33 of the National Prohibition Act contains the following provision:

"Every person legally permitted under the title to have liquor shall report to the Commissioner within ten days after the date when the Eighteenth Amendment of the Constitution of the United States goes into effect, the kind and amount of intoxicating liquors in his possession."

Blank copies of this form, as soon as received by Collectors, will be sent to all wholesale and retail liquor dealers in their districts; all parties holding permits in accordance with T. D. 2788 or T. D. 2940, to use or sell spirits or wines for non-beverage purposes; all distillers having spirits in their free ware-houses; under Section 3297 R. S. as amended, and all parties having in their possession wines intended for sacramental purposes, as well as any other parties known or believed to have liquor in possession or in storage.

The National Prohibition Act does not require a report of liquor possession in a private dwelling while the same is occupied and used as a dwelling only provided such liquors are used for personal consumption of the owner thereof and his family residing in such dwelling, and of his bona fide guests when entertained by him there in.

That term private dwelling is construed by the Act to include the room or rooms used and occupied, not transiently, but solely as a residence in an apartment house, hotel or boarding house.

Distilled spirits in distillery bonded warehouses, general bonded warehouse and special bonded warehouses need not be inventoried and reported.

Liquors in custom bonded storeroom need not be reported.

Any liquor required to be reported and which is not included in this inventory and report is subject to seizure.

Heavy penalties are prescribed for failure to make report or for making false report required by the National Prohibition Act.

Carriers are not required to make this report and inventory if liquors in their possession in the capacity of carriers.

Parties who receive blank copies of this report and who have no liquor in their possession should note that fact thereon, and return the form to the collector of the internal revenue.

Advance Story No. 1

Concentrated, logical action, admirable photography, and terrific punch drama, are promised in "Rider of Vengeance," Harry Carey's latest screen victory, which will be shown at the Palace Theatre on Saturday and Sunday.

Mountain wilds and the monotony of the deserts of the West of New Mexico, form the setting for picture, and Jack Ford, director, made an exhaustive study of the methods and manners of the period that is depicted.

The story is of mighty craving for revenge which was sweetened by the love of a young plainsman for a

Death Exaggerated

"Say," exploded Bill Ansoorge of the Cement Co. waiting his turn in a local barber shop, "that's a good joke I read in the paper about a fellow named George Brown, of Watertown, N. Y. George went to war and got killed—officially. George had a hard time keeping the government from paying his life insurance to his folks and now the Red Cross has written from France asking his relatives what they want done with the body. Brown's says it's his carcass and he refuses to let himself be buried. And besides, he wants to be alive officially so he can get $200 Uncle Sam owes him. It's almost as bad being buried in red tape at Washington as in the old orthodox way."

ARRESTED FOR USING MAIL TO DEFRAUD

Farmer Taken By Federal Officers
For Bogus Deal

Charles Y. Schaffer, a farmer residing between Ellsworth and Charlevoix was arrested Wednesday on warrant sworn out by Postoffice Inspector H. N. Graham of Atlanta, Ga., charging him with using the mails to defraud. Under the name of C. M. Shaw, Schaffer is charged with having defrauded W. A. Winn of Atlanta out of $1,200 by selling him half interest in an alleged bogus concern, the Southern Portrait Co. He was trailed to Kansas City, thence here and a warrant was issued by United States Commissioner C. L. Dayton of Traverse City.

The inspector charges Schaffer secured by swindling a $600 diamond and a $100 trunk in Atlanta and worked several similar deals in Kansas City, Jerseyville, Ill., and other cities. It is believed he operated all over the country hiding after each operation on his farm near Charlevoix where he was considered a retiring and respectable farmer.

CATTLE QUETIONS AT 5 MILE CREEK

WORK OF THE CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

Members Tells Experiences With "Hole Steens, Curry Comb Diet and Mikerobes."

The Five Mile Creek chamber of commerce recently voted on the important question of Cows, and by almost unanimous vote decided in favor of the short horns.

The "minits" of the meeting were carefully taken by Jonas Wabadick, "minute man," and are herewith published for the benefit of the cattlemen of this region.

Minits.

Joe Tabasash open Chamber with form. Executing committee make report on what best kind cow to grow for Five Mile Creek.

Jonas Wabadick now say about two or four years ago I go to Farmer Institute at Petoskey. Pale face mans from Lansing he make big talk about Hole Steen cow. I think heap good kind. So two or three days I buy one that have one black horn, one white one, have black tail, rest of cow all white only where he have red, yellow or black on him.

I think by what that Lansing mans say he Hole Steen all right. So I take him home. That mans say want plenty light and air for Hole Steen. My barn have no windows so I take roof off so can get plenty sun and air, light also.

He say too that curry cow with comb, good like one feed. Now I have plenty time, not much feed so I curry two times day, feed one time.

That mans say also something get in stable and feed. Call him Mikerobe. So I look at corn stalk see where something eat him. Can see Mikerobe. So I go get Angeline he my wife, he also wear glasses on eye so think he see better. Angeline come and look at corn stalk, he say he no see Mikerobe. Smell like mouse been chew corn stalk.

Angeline now say where roof on barn gone to. I tell him I take him off so sun and air kill Mikerobe. He say kill Mikerobe alright, cow also. He was right. Cow die. I think too much curry also too much sun and air. So I don't think much good Hole Steen, too tender. I think all better join Short Horns, they stand more not so tender.

Chamber now take vote. All vote to join Short Horns but Susan Tahio. He say he going to be Hole Steen all time.

Bill for $1.05 allowed for two jugs, one five gallon eider jug for use of members, one two gallon jug to hold "home brew for use of officers. This made smile on officer's face, no can cover with two hand.

All now go home after very dry meeting. Net so dry next time I think.

Jonas Wabadick,
Minut Man.

Sum Each Year

William J. Pearson, of Boyne Falls, chief forest fire warden, says in his annual report now awaiting the printers: "While unprecendented conditions made 1919 an abnormal year for forest fire tendencies and consequent loss, it is conservative to say that our positive and indirect loss as a result of fires, not considering tourist revenues, is, when minimized, hardly less than $2,000,000 annually."

Mr. Pearson's view strikes a new feature in analyzing the annual fire loss. He is determined to bring home to Michigan the great and unnecessary losses occurring annually by reason of careless fires. That fire prevention is better than fire fighting is his belief, and that if Michigan is kept green the summer through it must be done by close adherence to safety first principles with fire brands, he says.

"Cloverland," which in reality is the upper peninsula, was hardest hit last year. Its loss rated at $302,936.75 for fires and fire fighting expenditures of $37,396.21. The lower peninsula suffered to the extent of $103,919 with fire fighting expenditures of $23,969.75. The figures represent only the loss suffered by stand timber, forest products, camp and railway equipment, farm buildings. No estimate is placed on loss of humas, the great fur traffic, to game cover, and to tourist traffic.

Scarcity of labor, coupled with the small per diem wage paid fire fighters imposed serious handicaps on the district wardens charged with their various territories. Township supervisors, fire wardens by virtue of their office, in many cases required imporingtuning to care for lesser fires. This laxity is now under investigation by the department, the report says.

Patrols established by lumberman, co-operation of the federal forest service, private timber interests, railway executives, the state constabulary and other agencies helped suppress fires.

Henceforth the ten district fire wardens will be answerable for their districts. Each district man will select his own men and will be expected to produce results. Thereby no cry that incompetents have been forced on him will be raised. Attention is called to the great annual loss of valuable sapling growth in the Christmas tree waste. Recommendations also are made that the fire law be amended so all claims of impressment labor in forest fire fighting be paid by special state script or voucher as soon as certified to by the signatures of the district fire warden, township clerk and supervisor. The pay is recommended to be increased to $3 daily and provision made for plow, team, auto and other necessary items.

MAY BE SENT TO PRISON AT IONIA

Stanley King Will Be Forced to Support Children.

Action is being taken by local authorities to compel Stanley King of Boyne City to support his children.

King was brought here January 14 by Sheriff Weaver from Dollar Bay, Michigan. On the same day about an hour before his arrival his wife died at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Garson Baker, at their home on the Boyne Falls-Deer Lake road, leaving the children uncared for.

King was arraigned before Prosecutor Rueggesser on Monday, January 19, and was unable to furnish the bonds asked, so at the present time he is in the county jail, and Prosecuting Attorney Rueggesser proposes to recommend to the court that King be sent to Ionia and his earnings there applied upon the support of the children.

The children were taken to the State Public School at Coldwater last Saturday by Superintendent of the Poor Cole.

HAVE NO CHOICE IN THIS MATTER

CHILDREN UNDER 14 MUST AT-TEND SCHOOL

Truant Officers Have Powers of Sheriff and Teachers Must Report
Those Absent.

Many city schools are receiving requests from parents and occasionally from merchants and employers in various sections of the state, that children be allowed to remain away from school to assist in work at home or elsewhere. While the teachers and officials have much sympathy with many of the requests, they have no choice in the matter, and the co-operation of the parents and citizens everywhere is necessary in securing the regular attendance that good school work demands. The state law pertaining to the compulsory attendance was passed to protect the children. It does inconvenience others at times. For the information of the public the summary of the law as compiled in 1917 is given:

Every child between the ages of seven and sixteen must be in school each day of the week as long as school is maintained in the district. The following do not have to attend schools:

a. Any child who is being taught in a private or parochial school. (See g.)

b. Any child who has passed the eighth grade and is regularly employed at some lawful work if physically able to do so. (See g.)

c. Any child who is physically unable to attend school, a physician's certificate being required if the truant officer demands it.

d. Children over 14 years of age whose services are essential to the support of the parents may be excused by the county commissioner or city superintendent if such children have completed the sixth grade. (See h.)

g. Any child claiming exemption from attendance at school under subdivisions a or b hereof shall secure such permit as may be required under the statutes of Michigan covering the employment of minors, and shall be regularly employed at some lawful work if physically able to do so.

h. The commissioner cannot excuse a child under (d) unless the board recommends it, and may not when the board does not recommend. The superintendent of a graded district has no authority to excuse unless it is a city district.

It is the duty of the truant officer to see that notice to the parents is complied with. If the notice is not complied with the truant officer within three days after having that knowledge must make a complaint against the parent or person in parental control. Upon conviction the guilty person is fined from $5 to $50, imprisoned from two to 90 days, or both, but the justice of peace or judge cannot suspend sentence.

Children whose hearing or eyesight is defective come under the compulsory law and if they cannot do school work at home they must be sent to the state or private schools.

A truant officer has the powers of a deputy sheriff in the exercise of his duties.

Failure of the teacher to make reports of absences is neglect of duty and would be grounds for the annulment of his or her certificate.

WILL OPEN GA- RAGE REPAIR SHOP

Loren Hart Will Start Shop in Van-Pelt Place

Loren Hart a well known Charlevoix boy announces that he will open a garage repair shop in the Van-Pelt building number five about the first of February.

Mr. Hart is well known and respected in Charlevoix and vicinity having spent most of his life here. He is a graduate of the local high school and during the recent war served first with Motor Repair Unit 305 Fort Bliss, El Paso, Texas. Later he went overseas and served with the Motor Repair Unit 308 until the close of the war. He was also in charge of the quartermaster construction department Atlanta, Ga.

Mr. Hart will handle all auto repair work and in connection will handle accessory parts for automobiles. He welcomes automobile owners to give his shop a trial.

MONARCH TRACTOR USED IN WOODS

Homer Sly Auto Company Buys a Large Type Caterpillar.

A four ton Monarch caterpillar tractor was unloaded last week at Petoskey for the Homer Sly Auto company and has later been taken by them to Pellston for the McLin and Willaman company. This powerful tractor will be used for hauling logs and wood from the woods around the northern part of Emmet county.

The tractor is the largest and most powerful ever brought in that section and will work in snow as well as on land. It will top the hard drifts in good shape, its weight per square inch of traction surface being only four pounds.

These machines are used extensively in the west on the big farms for hauling farm machinery and have already proven their worth in Northern Michigan for winter as well as summer use.

The tractor is equipped with electric lights so that it can be operated at night as well as during the day.

East Jordan Wine Debate

The debating team from East Jordan high school defeated the opposing team from Petoskey in a debate held at East Jordan, last Friday evening. The count was 3-0. Petoskey's team was composed of Rowan Fausque, Archibald Gray and Albert Wshburne, while East Jordan was represented by Paul Fransoth, Carl Ellison and Conrad Hughes.

The subject was: "Compulsory Military Training for the United States."

CHARLEVOIX DEFEAT- ED AT PETOSKEY

PETOSKEY TAKES CLOSE GAME
BY SMALL SCORE

Strange Floor Prove Too Large a Handicap—Halverson Star of Very Fast Game

In one of the closest played games of the season thus far, Petoskey defeated Charlevoix by the score of 16 to 10 in one of the fastest basket ball games seen in this part of the country for some time.

From all reports received thus far Petoskey was out-played but due to the fact that they were on their home floor they were able to pile up a winning score.

Charlevoix had no trouble solving the Petoskey defense but seemed unable to make the short throws that were necessary for counters. Nearly every play the ball immediately went into Charlevoix territory for good basket shots only to be missed. Petoskey's men were full of fight and on the job every minute, and every point scored was made only after a hard fight.

At the end of the first half the score stood Petoskey 5, Charlevoix 3. Charlevoix then took the lead in the middle of the second half, 10 to 9 and the score remained thus until near the end of the game. Captain Ruggles of the Petoskey team scored three field baskets in succession giving the game to Petoskey in the last few minutes. Ruggles is a big man weighing around 200 pounds and when he starts a line smash through the center of the hall something has to go. He was by far the biggest Petoskey point winner.

Petoskey's team was composed of Ruggles, C. Miller, Benyas, Hamill and D. Miller. Charlevoix used Jones and Hammet as guards, Wexstaff, center, and Halverson, Krulick and Cartier as forwards. Krulick was forced from the game thus Charlevoix lost one of her star men. Halverson was also injured later and forced to stop because of the rough playing.

Each team had six fouls called on them and made good two out of the six chances for free baskets. Field baskets were made as follows:

C. Miller 1, Ruggles 6, Halverson 4, D. Miller 2, Wexstaff 2. Referee Lee. Timekeeper, Dean. Score, Lee. Timekeeper, Dean. Scorer for Charlevoix, making eight out of the ten points.

This week Charlevoix plays Bellaire at Bellaire and expect to find no difficulty in beating them. They are waiting anxiously for the return Petoskey game here, and have resolved to come out on the long end of the score next time.

LAKE STEAMERS FAST IN THE HEAVY ICE

Illinois and Sidney O. Neff Battle
Ice at Chicago

The Northern Michigan Transit Co.'s steamer "Illinois" has been reported fast in the ice with part of her steering cable torn away by the ice which is eight feet thick and has wirelessly to Chicago for aid.

The boat is eight miles from shore east of Chicago and is being shoved by the ice, the tugs striving to aid her are helpless.

There is a crew of thirty aboard her but no passengers. The Illinois makes this port during the summer run.

The barge Sidney O. Neff is also reported to be fast in the ice off from Chicago and so far all efforts of the coast guards has been with out avail. It has been planned to use aeroplanes to aid the helpless men aboard her.

TRAINS AGAIN STUCK ON PERE MARQUETTE

In Snow Banks Near Thompsonville and Williamsburg

The Pere Marquette passenger trains again experienced difficulty in getting through the huge drifts that blocked the tracks.

South bound train No. 6, became stuck fast in the snow Monday morning and much trouble was met in getting out. North bound train No. 1, also got stuck at Thompsonville but was finally dug out and got as far as Traverse City Monday night. Train No. 6, did not get out until sometime during the night Monday. There was no trains Tuesday on schedule but all got through at later hours.

Earning Power

The return of the telephone properties to their owners means that they must be financed, in the future as in the past, by private capital.

To make this possible the Telephone Company must be able to show an earning power that will produce revenue sufficient:

- To provide modern equipment;
- To maintain the property in perfect condition;
- To pay fair wages to experienced and skillful employees;
- To provide reserves to replace worn-out property;
- To pay the heavily increased taxes;
- To pay bond interest and a fair dividend to stockholders.

The earning power rests on the rate schedule. If costs increase, rates must correspondingly increase. If, later on, costs are lowered, the rates will be lowered also.

Those Graves in France

In Flanders field the remains of American heroes lie. Their graves are marked and every attention and care is exercised in making the resting places fitting memorials to the deeds of our boys who died for their country. The mother and father whose son lies in that hallowed spot has every reason to feel that it is fitting and proper that the remains should forever rest with the comrades who died with them in battle. A little reasoning, and an acquaintance with the gruesome facts, ought to convince any relative that it would be little short of ghastly to disturb these graves in France. For the fact cannot be evaded that men who died in battle were often dismembered and parts of their bodies were scattered, and often entirely missing. The identification tags served their valuable purposes, and quite commonly a number of bodies were placed in the same grave. To exhumed one body for shipment to the United States would mean that it would be necessary to disturb the remains of all of these.

Miss Myrtle Stinson of Washington, who spent eighteen months in volunteer war service with the Polish and French, as well as the American armies and who was wounded in action, and decorated for gallant service, throws light on this important subject. She recalls her experience at a hospital in the south of France where boys were sent to recuperate after being worked among the graves of their comrades, and in exhuming the bodies. Miss Stinson talked with a thousand of these boys who did this work, and she says that in every one of their countenances there lingered expressions of horror, and their eyes were windows of sufferings of the anguished souls. A great many of them had lost their minds, while others were prematurely aged by their experiences. Miss Stinson says that she knows from her own experiences that if the dead soldiers buried in the fields of Flanders could speak that they would cry out against the attempt to have their comrades dig up the remnant remains that have been interred. She says that if American parents could see, as she has seen, the beautiful places where their sons were buried, and where loving care vies with the bright sunshine of France in cheering the spots where our heroes lie, they would not want their sons to have any other final resting places.

The removal of bodies from the graves in France cannot be accomplished with any degree of absolute certainly. The army and the government has used every precaution to properly mark the graves, and it is certain that the remains of our heroes are buried in the spots that are indicated. It is not certain, however, that they could be exhumed and transported overseas with any positive assurance that the right remains would be delivered.

And then again, it is claimed that organized propaganda for the removal of these bodies has been instituted by the undertakers of the United States, and their trade journals are reminding the men, in that profession of the great volume of business that would come to them if the bodies of dead soldiers were brought from overseas.

Mothers and fathers who will allow the fullest sway to their sentimental feelings, and who will at the same time view this momentous question in its practical light, can hardly fail to answer with a positive and emphatic "no" when the question is asked of them as to whether they wish the remains of their loved ones brought from overseas.

"Watered Railroad Stock"

Samuel Rea, the head of the Pennsylvania railroad system, which ranks as the biggest transportation system in the world, seems to have thoroughly exploded the popular delusion as to watered railroad stock. He says that it is conservative to state that the actual cash investment in the railroads exceeds, by at least $3,000,000,000, the issued bonds and stock. He points to the Pennsylvania system, which has put more than $600,000,000 in the upbuilding of its lines in excess of the securities that have been issued. "That," he says, "is the result of seventy-five years of prudent financing. Mr. Rea also points to the fact that more than one-third of the capital stock of the railroads of the country, or $3,250,000,000, does not pay any dividends at all and that in addition there is a considerable amount of bonds upon which no interest is being paid.

Since 1907 the railroad accounts have been very thoroughly scrutinized by the Interstate Commerce Commission and during this time $6,500,000,000 of new capital has been devoted to the development and extension of the railroads of the country. No one, Mr. Rea says, can have any doubt as to the actual investment of this cash, dollar for dollar. Any doubt as to the assets behind the railroad securities, Mr. Rea points out, must refer to the $13,000,000,000 of property investment on the books of the companies in 1907. But the sum represents an average per mile of $39,730. A mile of track, he says, requires right of way, grading, track, switches, signals, bridges, etc., but the investment also includes all the big terminals, station ere yerd structures, locomotives, freight cars, and passenger cars. He calls attention to the fact that $39,730 today would purchase only about one-half of a modern locomotive.

Including the capital expenditures which have been made by the government in the past two years the average capitalization of all American railroads today per mile of finished line, including everything from the big terminal to the last spike, is about $80,000. Railroad authorities estimate that the railroads could not be duplicated for less than $150,000 per mile. One authority points out that a first-class concrete and asphalt highway today—just a bare road—cost about $36,000 a mile.

The Senate As a Club

John Sharp Williams is a sage among Senators. He came to Washington from Mississippi in the days when Stars and Stripes were still distasteful to his Confederate views. But like multitudes of others of the Southland he has come to be so intensely loyal to the union, and its institutions, that decline of any feature of our government is painful to him. The Honorable John Sharp was the Democratic leader in the House for years, and then he came to the Senate after a brief spell spent on his farm. Now he is going to retire voluntarily, for the reason that he gives that he has "long since lost interest in the ordinary machinery of politics." To make his point clear he says: "I condemn and despise it."

On an important occasion when the water power measure was under consideration Senator Williams called the attention of the Senate to the fact that eleven Senators had listened to the argument, and he commented: "This is a fair sample of utility of the United States to the people of the United States. Eleven Senators, five on one side and six on the other side, represent the two great parties here who are undertaking to determine very important industrial propositions." Two additional Republican Senators came in at this point in Mr. Williams' speech, and he called attention to their presence, and then went on to say that the attendance indicated that "this is about the way the United States Senate, the fifth wheel in the government of this country, is carrying itself. It is not paying any attention to its public business; I am not paying any attention to mine as a member of this august body; nobody else is. Old Benjamin Franklin was about right when he said this was the fifth wheel and ought to be dispensed with. The American people are gradually rising to the height of demanding the abolition of the United States Senate simply because the United States Senate does not function; it does not operate. Do you know Mr. President, I feel almost tempted to demand the presence of a quorum in order to determine the pending proposition? I will not do so, because that would be unclimatic, and I am a member of this club.

Facts about sugar, edited by E. W. Mayo, is the leading publication in the country, and it is regarded as the particular friend of the domestic sugar producer. Under the heading "The Blight of Government Control," Mr. Mayo says, editorially: "The experience of many years has demonstrated that when sugar gets into politics or when politics gets into sugar it is the sugar industry that suffers." Mr. Mayo takes hope in the raising of "The Blight," and continues: "Under government control American sugar production has not progressed, but it is hoped that the announcement of a policy of non-interference by the government during the coming year will be made sufficiently definite and authoritative to remove, in part at least, the stifling influence of continued power to control."

Lines to Be Remembered.

I have seldom known anyone who deserted truth in trifles that could be trusted in matters of importance.—Paley.

IS IT "JUST A COLD" ?

Charlesvoix People Should Ask Themselves This Question.

Don't say: "It's just a cold." It may turn into backache, rheumatic aches, achy joints. Or other serious sickness that comes from weak kidneys.

Colds are due to congestion. Congestion makes the kidneys overwork to filter the blood. Colds often leave the kidneys weak.

First break the cold. Then use Doan's Kidney Pills to avert the kidney dangers. Let this Charlesvoix resident tell you about them.

Mrs. Albert Lemieux, 704 State St. says: "A heavy cold settled on my kidneys, causing me much suffering. My back got so sore I could hardly get around. Spots appeared before my eyes, blurring my sight. I can never forget how badly I felt. I had dizzy spells, also. Morning I felt more tired than upon retiring. On the advice of a druggist, I tried Doan's Kidney Pills and three boxes removed the trouble."

Price 60c. at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mrs. Lemieux had. Foster-Milburn Co., Mfrs., Buffalo N. Y.

Goodyear Leadership— and Tires for Small Cars

Enormous resources and scrupulous care have produced in Goodyear Tires for small cars a high relative value not exceeded even in the famous Goodyear Cords on the world's highest-priced automobiles.

In addition to its larger sizes, Goodyear manufactures an average of 20,000 small car tires a day in the world's largest tire factory devoted solely to the 30x3, 30x3½, and 31x4-inch sizes.

Last year more small cars using these sizes were factory-equipped with Goodyear Tires than with any other kind.

Their extreme worth is available for your Ford, Chevrolet, Dort, Maxwell, or other small car, at the nearest Goodyear Service Station. Go there for these tires and Goodyear Heavy Tourist Tubes.

30x3½ Goodyear Double-Cure Fabric, All-Weather Tread..... $20.00
30x3½ Goodyear Single-Cure Fabric, Anti-Skid Tread..... $17.65

Goodyear Heavy Tourist Tubes are built to protect casings. Why endanger a good casing with a cheap tube? Goodyear Heavy Tourist Tubes cost little more than tubes of less merit. 30x3½ size in waterproof bag..... $3.90

GOODYEAR

SAGE TEA DESTINES AND DARKENS HAIR

Don't Stay Gray! It Darkens So Naturally that Nobody can Tell.

You can turn gray, faded hair beautifully dark and lustrous almost overnight if you'll get a bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound" at any drug store. Millions of bottles of this old famous Sage Tea Recipe, improved by the addition of other ingredients, are sold annually, says a well-known druggist here, because it darkens the hair so naturally and evenly that no one can tell it has been applied.

Those whose hair is turning gray or becoming faded have a surprise awaiting them, because after one or two applications the gray hair vanishes and your locks become luxuriantly dark and beautiful.

This is the age of youth. Gray-haired, unattractive folks aren't wanted around, so get busy with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound to-night and you'll be delighted with your dark, handsome hair and your youthful appearance within a few days.

This preparation is a toilet requisite and is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.

HERE'S only one kind of service here, and that is the sort we'd look for if we stood in your shoes.

We serve as promptly as we would ask to be served. We give the sort of advice we would value as to the care of your car. We make repairs as carefully as we would ask to have them made.

CONSPIRACY

Houghton Mining Gazette: If memory serves us properly the charge against Senator Newberry is conspiracy. Conspiracy is a funny kind of a thing, legally. When the multi-millionaire automobile manufacturer, Mr. Ford, started his libel suit against the Chicago Tribune the newspapers throughout the country were offered a "plate" service of the proceeding without charge.

When a newspaper is offered something for nothing a suspicion reasonably is created. Newspapers are like ordinary folks in this regard. Many country newspapers, dailies as well as weeklies, use what is known as the plate matter. It saves composition in the office. It "kills" a lot of space when the advertisers don't buy it. Some weeklies have "patted insides." That is all plate stuff. It is made in bulk at small cost.

So, when the newspapers were offered this plate service without cost to themselves there was a deal of curiosity among the brethren as to the nigger in the woodpile. When the first few plates began to make their appearance the evidence was conclusive that the Chicago Tribune was not paying for that service. The whole series was tainted. It was propaganda of the cheapest kind. The result was secured without paying the advertising rates. Yet it is surprising what a lot of newspapers fell for the stuff. Of course they may be excused in a measure because of the fact that these are days when it is difficult indeed to make a profit out of the business that depends on news-print for a living.

Now the same trick is to be played on the news from the Newberry trial. The country newspapers are offered the same kind of a plate service, without cost to themselves, regarding the progress of the trial. It costs a great deal of money to furnish this service for all of the papers who will take it. The man who does this job has some object in view. He ought not to hide behind a fake bureau name. The Western Newspaper Association is very particular in informing its customers that it simply acts as an agent in the matter.

Getting back to conspiracy. If this a conspiracy to prejudice public opinion through the press (not in the interest of the present senator from this state) what is it?

Clothing prices, it is announced by one of the apostles of the universal hold-up, are to advance from 25 to 40 per cent next spring. We maintain that this wolf note is not as startling as would be announcement to the effect that there will be no spring.

If President Wilson be seeking a third term, which seems to be the logic of the present situation he is in a way to be known as the man who was elected because he kept us out of war and was defeated because he kept out of peace.

Secretary of War Baker has a brand new idea. And whenever Mr. Baker has an idea it is time for the country to sit up and take notice.—Evansville (Ind.) Journal News.

There is nothing that will make the President well quicker than the spectacle of Willie Byrnn making off with his treaty.

Wilson probably thinks Byrnn is taking mighty mean advantage of a sick man.

M. L. CHURCH NOTES

We are sure that if the people of Charlevoix knew of the excellent music which may be heard every Sunday morning at the Methodist Episcopal church that more would come. A large choir spends hours in preparation every Thursday evening and new music from one of America's leading houses is used.

The Epworth League contest is proving a huge success. Last Sunday night fifteen new members were added, making 45 received during the last two weeks. The lecture rooms of the church were so crowded that the auditorium of the church will have to be used next Sabbath. The "Reds" were far ahead of the "Blues" in the number of points secured. Earl Shapton is the leader for next Sunday. Topic, "Peter's Rebuke of Hypocrisy."

The subject for the Thursday night service is "Our Opportunities." This will deal with our opportunities for winning others to Christ at home, in business, in social circles and among strangers. The pastor makes an earnest plea that as many as possible attend this meeting.

A house is not a home. A home needs religion and religion needs a church. If you live here, why not have a church home? This church offers its fellowship to you.

CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH

The theme for the morning of Sunday, February 1st, will be "Self-abnegation and Self-realization." The time is 10:30 a. m., and the public is invited to share in the joy of our service.

Have you older folks attended any of the Young People's meetings of late? (6:00 p. m. Sunday evening.) Do so—you'd be interested. But make arrangements as to whose car you'll occupy, else some other speeding driver might pick you up.

The theme for the evening hour will be "Congregational Shrines." This will be precluded by Mrs. Lalonde at the organ. There are over 70 fine slides in the set; and it should be most interesting to the large majority of us who are none too sure of the splendid traditions of our early church. A missionary offering will be taken.

The Cecilians will meet at 7:00 p. m. under the direction of Miss Bennett. Promptness is desirable.

"Prayer, and Divine Goodness," is the subject for the mid-week service convening at 8:00 p. m., on Thursday evening. All are invited to share in its benefits.

Particular thanks and acknowledgment are due those who contributed to the success of the Third Monthly Musicales. It was thoroughly enjoyed by everyone in the most attentive audience.

CLARION

T. L. Belding came down from Petoskey on Saturday. The infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Ecker was quite sick last week.

John Ward and son, Earl, have purchased the store building and stock of Mrs. Lynn Clark, and will continue the business.

Ten Clarion ladies enjoyed a pot luck dinner at the home of Mrs. S. E. Hass on Saturday, January 24, it being the anniversary of Mrs. Hass' birthday.

Cleaners to Meet

The regular meeting of Quality Arbor has been postponed until Saturday evening, January 31st. They will meet at the home of George Megelson. Everybody is urged to attend as delegate Elmer Ingalls will read his report of the bi-annual meeting held at Kalamazoo this week.

Composer's Peculiar Method

The world's masters of art and music and literary geniuses have used different means for arousing inspiration and stimulating imagination, an exchange recalls. Thus, Greg, the musician, when he was about to compose, used to heat his head for several days, whereupon he would lose his appetite and his eyes would become inflamed and his imagination thereby stimulated.

There Are Many Bettys

Betty was an aggravating child, and the children would seldom play with her long at a time, but got out of patience with her and left her to herself. Bettie returned from a call on Betty one day and was asked why she came home so soon. "Why," Bettie replied with some vehemence, "It hurts any one's temper so to play with Betty."

AN OLD PIONEER RESIDENT PASSES AWAY

Mary A. Ainslee Dies at the Home of Her Daughter.

Mary A. Lowrie was born in Edinburgh, Scotland, March 16, 1831, and came to America with her parents while still an infant. Her father settled in Michigan while this state was still a territory.

She was later married to Nelson Ainslee and resided at that time in Oakland county, in the southern part of the state. Mr. Ainslee was a Civil war veteran, enlisting at the outbreak of the war and served until the end. After the war he moved with his family to Grand Traverse county. Here he was employed carrying mail from Cheboygan to this place, then called Pine River. This work necessitated the moving of his family here, which he did in the spring of 1867.

Mrs. Ainslee shared the hardships of pioneer life with her husband while the settlers were striving to bring civilization to this section of the country.

She was a member of the Baptist church since its organization and for many years was an active member of the W. R. C.

She is survived by three daughters, Mrs. F. W. Mayne and Mrs. Flo Lewis of this city, and Mrs. Clara Kenyon of Mackinaw Island, at whose home the deceased passed away. There were three sons, all of whom have met their deaths in accidents. Two of the boys were drowned in 1855 when the steamer Sunnyside sank in Traverse bay, and the other, Ward Ainslee, met his death by accident in 1916.

The remains were brought here from Mackinaw Island, Wednesday. The funeral was held from the home of Judge P. W. Mayne, Wednesday afternoon, Rev. Charles Rice of the Baptist church officiating. Interment in Brookside cemetery.

Picture In Your Mind

If you are really in earnest in your desire to save money you can do it.

Living expenses may be high, and it is a poor policy to stint too much, but there are many little extravagancies and self-indulgences that you can chop off, and you will be surprised how much they amount up in a year's time. By far the easiest way to save is to put your money right in the bank as soon as you get it and only draw out what you actually need. Get out of the habit of carrying a roll of bills in your pocket—it is a foolish and expensive habit, for it invariably leads to spending on "unconsidered trifles."

INTERESTING BITS OF INFORMATION CLIPPED FROM OUR EXCHANGES

County politics, it is understood, will begin this week. Report says that Judge C. L. Bailey of Bellaire is to be candidate for the office of probate judge. As to the truth of this report the Turch has no definite knowledge.—Central Lake Torch.

Emmet county supervisors have prepared to sell authorized road bonds to secure $100,000 for road work this year. A similar amount will be sold for each of the next three years, giving the county $400,000 for good roads. The state will complete the Mackinaw Trail through Petoskey from Charlevoix countyline to Mackinaw City and the West Michigan Pike.

Big land deals across the Straits last week include the transfer of fourteen hundred acres near Strong's from W. B. Mershon and C. H. Morley to The H. M. & M. company. The consideration was $450,000. Another deal was for seven thousand, nine hundred and twenty acres near St. Ignace from Smith & Howe to The Cadillac Lumber and Chemical company. The consideration was $369,500. This land is covered with hardwood timber.

Every newspaper in the country is having its troubles right now and unless conditions are speedily bettered, many newspapers in the United States will be forced to quit. Unless the government finds a means of regulating the price of print paper $10 a year for a daily and $3 a year for a weekly paper may be looked for soon. Print paper that sold for $2.50 per hundred pounds in 1914, now is $13 per hundred. Advertising rates will no doubt be advanced in an endeavor to meet the increased costs. Every person who is interested in maintaining his home newspaper and keeping it on a sound financial basis, should take warning from the above announcement and see to it that his subscription is paid for a year in advance as publishers cannot afford to carry subscribers who are in arrears for their paper.—Petoskey News.

While citizens are being urged to keep six hens and prevent eggs from going to $1 a dozen, let us pause to ponder the remarks of a Saugatuck man who keeps a dozen, and writes of his success in the Commercial Record: "My wife found one (1) nice fresh egg—the first of the season. I took it to the store and traded it for groceries then paid my taxes with the balance of the egg money. What's the matter with the poultry business for profit eh? Of course I haven't stated what that egg cost me. I did intend to frame it, but my taxes had to be paid and with all my money tied up in scratch feed, I thought best to part with that egg."

Petoskey fishermen are using more care in making trips to and from their fish shanties on the bay, especially in the case where shanties are on the outer beds.

Recently a party of men encountered considerable difficulty in locating the home base and wandered about on the bay for sometime before finally reaching shore near Bay View.

They started for their shanties during a hard blow which carried clouds of snow in their faces. Turning to escape the wind they unconsciously drifted from their course and became lost.

Most of the fishermen are now equipping themselves with compasses and are better able to lay a straight course over the rough ice during the stormy weather.

According to Bunn Bros., who fished these waters commercially for more than a quarter of a century, the bay closed between here and Old Mission Sunday night, January 18th. It had frozen across south of the cement mill three or four days earlier. Two years ago it froze over on the 17th of January. According to records kept by Loie Bunn, the earliest date of freezing since he came into this country was the 13th of January, a number of years ago. Usually it freezes in February or March.

The law requires candidates for office to file a report of all expenditures. A patriot of Missouri ran for office and turned in the following absolutely truthful report of what it cost him to get elected:

"Lost 1349 hours' sleep thinking about the election. Lost two front teeth and a lot of hair in a personal encounter with an opponent. Donated one beef, four shoats and five sheep to country barbecues. Gave away two pair of suspenders, four calico dresses and $5 in cash.

"Kissed 126 babies. Put up four stoves. Kindled fourteen fires. Walked 4076 miles. Shook hands with 9508 people. Told 10,101 lies and talked enough to make in print 1,000 volumes. Attended sixteen revivals and contributed $50 to foreign missions. Made love to nine widows—five grass, four sod. Hugged forty-nine old maids. Got dog bit thirty-nine times—and was elected by 353 majority."

Using gasoline by mistake for kerosene nearly cost the life of Carl Frenberg, of Cadillac, last week. Both Mr. and Mrs. Frenberg were seriously burned, and their home badly damaged by the fire which resulted when Mr. Frenberg tried to start the kitchen fire with gasoline. The four children of the couple were thrown from a second story window into a snow bank by the parents when the fire in the lower rooms became serious.

While Petoskey census enumerators have not yet entirely completed their work, it is believed that the final result will show a decided increase in population in this city over that of 1910.

Those who have had the work in charge say that January is a hard time to take the census as during the winter so many people are away for the winter—Florida, California and the nearby cities, getting several hundred from Petoskey. June, say the workers, would be a much more favorable time for taking the census as at that time the people are all back home again.

In the last census the totals of population in the city by wards was as follows: First ward 1,203, second ward 1,323, third ward 1,018, fourth ward 1,234. Emmet county $18,561.

Traverse City's ghost story has gone glimmering, and now the city is without a single ghost. For a week or more Traverse City people, or at least those in the section of the city near the "haunted" house had creepy feelings at certain times of night, when the ghost was said to have appeared. Strange noises were heard in a certain house and for a week the whole city was more or less "worked up."

Now come two young men who testify before the police department that the story is a hoax and that the "ghost" has departed for parts unknown.

And anyway the people feel lots better for having the story turning out this way, for even though no one in Traverse City believes in ghosts, they feel much better when the ghost stay away.

is a representative of our firm of investment bankers who comes to this city at regular intervals. His service is to suggest safe investments to persons with unemployed funds. He brings our latest list of sound bonds purchased for our own account and the benefit of our customers. These are always well assorted securities—some long term bonds, some short; some first mortgage investments, some government bonds; ranging in size from $100 up.

He will be glad to call, without obligation, and offer sound investment counsel gained from close touch with the financial world. Often he is able to suggest changes in bonds that increase the safety of your funds and earn you more interest. If you will mail coupon below, he will call and see you soon.

FOUR GOOD INVESTMENTS

Whether you have $100 or $10,000 to invest—you want it absolutely safe, and earning you a good income. These four investments are typical of our entire list of sound, dependable securities.

First Mortgage Gold Bonds to Yield 7%

Like all first mortgages, these bonds are secured by the property itself. They mature in five years. Semi-annual coupons are attached. These bonds are in amounts of $100 and up.

An Income Check Every Month

This is a 7% investment in debentures issued by a great oil producing and refining company whose remarkable earnings have increased the market value of its common stock to over four times its par value. This investment carries the chance to participate to a limited extent, without risk, in future earnings.

Our allotment of these very desirable investments will soon be sold. We suggest that you write or phone reservation at once, or clip coupon for further particulars.

25 Year General Mortgage Bonds Yielding over 6.3%

A sound investment in the property of a great Southern California electric light and power company, assuring you a better than 6% income steadily for a quarter of a century.

Foreign Government Notes Yield 7%

These are Kingdom of Belgium gold notes maturing in one year and five years, affording a steady 7% income, and likely to increase materially in value as the exchange rates shift in the next year.

Running a Household is a Business Is yours run on business principles

Wise buying is the first step to success in any business. So is it the first requirement for a household to be well conducted on an economical basis. Big business concerns have purchasing agents who are experts in knowing what, when and where to buy. They watch the markets. They read carefully the advertisements of concerns in their particular lines.

The manager of the household must be purchasing agent for a large proportion of the family needs. She should be familiar with stores and merchandise. She should run her business on business principles in order to make the most of the family income.

Information is the basis for intelligent purchasing. And the right way to get the greatest amount of necessary information is to read advertisements.

Advertising today is the voice of business. Advertisements tell you what is new and good in merchandise; they reveal improvements and inventions; they give you information about things that are useful and interesting.

Every manager of a household—every person in the household who shares the responsibility for the family's welfare—should make a practice of reading advertisements.

Clerk's office. Carried by the following aye and nay vote: Ayes, Alds. Benton, Genett, Hiller, Levinson, Washburn and Wood. Nays, none. No further business appearing, the Council adjourned. Archie Livingston, Clerk.

COMMUNICATIONS

The following communication was received from a farmer living near Ellsworth, who is interested in the new road that is to be built through Banks township, and who makes some comment on the proposition.

"We note with interest the report of Com. Bradford in regard to the 'Rainbow Trail,' but are a little puzzled, and cannot see how the prospective road running from the watering trough north of Central Lake to Eastport, and the other proposed route starting at the same place and running north to Ellsworth hence to Atwood, would bring one back onto the pike.

"Now, what I would propose, is that the trail start from Central Lake, on the east side of the lake, and run north to Ellsworth, hence to Charlevoix, and join the pike there.

"By that route one would have practically a lake level, scenic road, following the lake shore the entire distance to Ellsworth, and the route from there to Charlevoix is much more level than any other route available. Also this route, with the exception of a very short piece of road, is already good gravel road and yearly nearing completion.

"Hoping this may receive some consideration, I am,

Very respectfully yours,
James A. Wilson.

VOTERS ATTENTION

The question of a township unit High School for Banks township will probably come before the voters at the next regular election and it is up to them to look the proposition up.

Watch this paper for next week's issue as the matter will be fully covered at that time.

FARMER'S CANDIDATE FOR GOVERNOR

MILO D. CAMPBELL MAKES HIS ANNOUNCEMENT

Campbell Republican Candidate—States His Platform and Principles Indorsed By Him

To the People of Michigan:

I have just received from a conference committee appointed by farm organizations an urgent request that I become a candidate for governor, in a letter containing a statement of principles which I heartily endorse.

I have previously received pressing invitations to the same effect from organizations in other lines and from widely different sources.

As a result I have decided and now announce that I am a candidate for the Republican nomination for governor.

In doing so, I wish to say that I shall endeavor to become the standard bearer of certain great principles which I regard as vital, and in their interest shall devote all my energies to a vigorous campaign, not merely in the hope of becoming governor an honor which I do not covet but in the hope of furthering these principles, which is the highest ambition of my life.

There will be no pussy-footing in my campaign. I shall, from time to time, in accordance with the spirit of the primary law, make plain statements of my position on public questions, realizing that I may thus invite serious opposition but believing the people are entitled to know what to expect from me.

I shall stand on the following platform:

1. Americanism.
2. Republicanism. Subject to my duty as an American, I shall adhere to the principles of the Republican Party, of which I have been a life-long, active member.
3. The right of collective bargaining for both farm and industrial labor.
4. Improved conditions and an adequate wage for labor.
5. A basic eight-hour day in industry but not a shorter day. With the present pressing need for production we cannot prosper on half time.
6. Against the demands of the "red" element in labor unions and for the apparently successful effort of constructive leaders to prevent their domination.
7. Proper relief for disabled soldiers and sailors. Where the federal government has failed to function adequately for this purpose, I believe the state should supplement its work.
8. Reduction in the number of state boards by combining groups of related activities along the lines successfully worked out in Illinois.
9. The proper recognition of women in matters of government.
10. Certain reforms in insurance laws which, without injury to insurance companies, will greatly benefit the insured. But not state insurance.
11. Good roads and such internal improvements as will make Michigan a better state.
12. Official independence. I shall make no promises in advance of the election, either of positions or policies except as contained in my public announcements.
13. Vigorous enforcement of the criminal laws with special reference to liquor laws.

Hoping my platform and candidacy will win your approval, I am,
 Sincerely,
 Milo D. Campbell

SUGAR SHORTAGE WILL LAST A YEAR

Retailers Told That 25 Per Cent Product is Coming Soon

That the nation is destined to cope with the shortage of sugar during all of the present year, and that retail prices for the product will range from 22 to 25 cents a pound is the prediction made by large Chicago wholesale dealer in a letter to the trade.

"According to the wholesaler's communication, about one-third of the Cuban sugar crop has been purchased by European countries and sugar cane owners are now asking fifteen cents a pound for raw material they have on hand. Between this price and the household consumer there must be figured the three and one-half cents a pound asked by sugar refiners for their compensation in putting the product on the market and also wholesalers' and retailers' commissions, in addition to freight charges. All this is expected to result in 25 cent sugar within a short time.

Three months ago the government could have bought the entire Cuban crop of raw sugar for five and one quarter cents a pound, but no action was taken and in the meantime Cubans found they had a good market in Europe so they have become more independent and are now demanding practically three times this price for their product. Had the administration been disposed to help the people the present serious sugar situation would not exist.

Merchants who are able to get sugar from wholesale houses are making scarcely nothing on their sales of the product, but they make up for this by insisting that the customer buy a specified amount of other goods before he can obtain the sugar.

Many people think that this practice is illegal, due to the passing of a federal law some short time ago, but this law merely states that it is illegal to practice this system and at the same time tell the customers just what they have to buy to get the sugar.

When the purchases have their choice of what they must buy to get the sugar the grocer is entirely within the law.

AT THE MOVIES

Earl Metcalf, who is co-star with Virginia Hammond in the latest World Picture, "The Battler," served with distinction with the 165th infantry in France, receiving a citation from General Pershing for his gallantry.

Metcalf was commissioned in 1917 and went overseas in October of that year. He returned to this country on a special mission to the war department some months ago.

Metcalf's citation reads: "Second Lieutenant Earl K. Metcalf, infantry, for exceptionally meritorious and conspicuous service at Base Section No. 5, France, American Expeditionary Forces. In testimony thereof, and as an expression of these services, I award this citation."

"Awarded on April 19, 1919. (Signed) John J. Pershing, Commander-in-Chief." Mr. Metcalf and Virginia Hammond will be seen in the latest World Picture, "The Battler," at the Palace Theatre next Wednesday.

The Reds. In these days the term means the misguided maniac who seek to aear When the purchasers have their of anarchy.

The Reds. A decade ago the term meant the rank and file of the Royal Northwest Mounted Police, the greatest police organization in the world.

Into the trackless white immensity of the snow country the scarlet-coated riders of the King's "long-arm" rode after offenders against the peace and dignity of his majesty's colonial government.

Sometimes they returned; more frequent they didn't.

There was only one code in the Royal Northwest Mounted in those days; it was:

"Get your man!" The motto of the organization was:

The hazardous work of the old Northwest Mounted is the basis of "The Man in the Moonlight," a Universal photo-drama starring Monroe Salisbury, which comes to the Palace Theatre on Saturday and Sunday.

As Rossignol, the Nightingale, Salisbury is tracked to capture by a sergeant of the old police band made famous in the history of the north.

The story is rich in color and gripping in dramatic action. William Stowell, Colleen Moore and Alfred Allen support the star.

"The Big Three"

Here are the cars that are making the "BIG NOISE" in automobile circles this year. Service, comfort, durability in every line and part, combined, are the factors that have made these cars the three biggest sellers in the automobile industry, and have won for them recognition throughout the country. They can be had in any model, from a closed Sedan to an open Runabout. TO SEE IS TO BELIEVE! Prospective car buyer, stop and let us demonstrate the superior qualities of these "super" cars.

If You Haven't the Money to Invest in a New Car

Our "Used Car" department is the place for you to find a solution for your car problem. The cars we handle in this department have been rebuilt, thoroughly over-hauled and repainted, and are as nearly new as it is possible to make them, and they are being sold at prices that will astonish you. In this department we have:

BUICKS
OVERLANDS

FORDS

Due to the shortage of labor in the automobile centers and the decrease in production, combined with the increased demand, cars for the season of 1920 are going to be hard to get. Don't wait until the last minute to buy your car. Start to size things up now while you have plenty of time, and while doing so take advantage of our SALES DEPARTMENT in choosing your new car.

The opportunities we are offering to the public are obtainable at our garage headquarters in Charlevoix, also at our new garage in East Jordan, to be opened early in the spring.

CHARLEVOIX WINS FROM BELLAIRE

MOST OF POINTS MADE IN LAST HALF OF GAME

The Small Floor Proved a Handicap at First.—Girls Team Defeated 30 to 6

The Charlevoix High School basketball team hung another scalp to their belt last Friday night by defeating Bellaire, score 31 to 7. The game was played at Bellaire and was much more interesting than the score indicates. At the end of the first half Charlevoix was in the lead by only two points.

The floor upon which they played was a great deal smaller than the boys had been used to and it took quite a while for them to get their bearings, but when they did they displayed a burst of team work that piled up a lead in a few minutes.

The work of Hammet and Jones at guards for Charlevoix was the most prominent feature of the games as neither of these men allowed their men a single basket during the entire game. The only field basket made by a Bellaire man was made by Dickinson their center. Halverson and Kruklick for Charlevoix caged a number of fine baskets being aided by the fine team work of Weststaff.

Following is the lineup of the two teams for the evening

Bellaire	Charlevoix
Akens	R. F. Halverson
Densmore	L. F. Kruklick
Dickinson	C. Weststaff
Bacon	R. G. Jones
Smith	L. G. Hammet

Field goals—Halverson 5, Kruklick 6, Weststaff 2, Dickinson 1.

Goals from fouls, Weststaff 3 out of 7, Dickinson 5 out of twelve.

The Charlevoix girls team were defeated by Bellaire girls by a score of 30 to 6. They all played well for their first game out of town and the small amount of practice that they have had so far, but lost to the more experienced Bellaire team.

GERMAN MARK IS WORTH ONLY ONE CT.

Another crash of international rates have caused British, French and other forms of foreign exchange to drop to new low levels of depreciation. Bankers and other dealers in foreign bills expressed no surprise at the further demoralization, accepting the situation as an inevitable and logical outcome of conditions from which no immediate relief is promised.

Offerings for account of American interest were said to comprise only a small part of the whole, most of the pressure being traceable to London. According to bankers' reports, French and Italian selling, via London, helped to congest the local market.

Demand sterling dropped to $3.58 1-2 or 1 1-2 cents under the previous low record or slightly more than 26 per cent under the par of $4.86 5-8. Francs sagged to the equivalent of 8 cents against the normal of 19 1-3 cents, a depreciation of 58 per cent. Lire checks quoted as $14.60 represented a shrinkage at 70 per cent.

The German mark was quoted at slightly above one cent as against the pre-war rate of 23 3/4 cents. Austrian crowns, once of the same value as francs and liras, were almost out of sight at a fraction under 1-3 of one cent.

INSPIRED WRITER WRITES DEATH NOTICE

Indicates a Depth of Advertising Foresight in Account.

Clipped from an Illinois newspaper the following article on the accidental shooting of a small boy in that state indicates a depth of advertising foresight in describing the account:

"Billy Dingbats, ten years, two months, one day and seventeen ticks old, (Wilson time), son of old Illinois Dingbats, the well known and popular junk man, had his side fatally punctured yesterday while playing in front of Hawkin's large and up-to-date lumber yard by a 22-calibre revolver just bought of Al McClain, the good-looking and accommodating clerk in Charley Auer's complete hardware store.

"The bullet entered his left side made a bad powder burn in a new suit recently purchased at Reineimer's big sale now in progress (see ad elsewhere in this issue.)

"The lad was attempting to open a 11-cent box of Mike Poulos' delicious crackerjack with the barrel of the gun when the sad accident happened. As Billy fell to the ground he almost busted an expensive never squirt fountain pen, sold only by Engle, it being saved only by a triple composition rubber case furnished each purchaser without extra charge.

"The funeral was held in the commodious undertaking parlors of our well-known and flowing-haired Sipe, and the service was in charge of that eloquent and tear-producing pulpit pounder and sob artist, Rev. L. M. Mournful. It was a very sad affair and many handkerchiefs were in evidence, among which were several of those beautiful lace-edged ones which Crane is now selling at $1.38. The remains were laid to rest in one of Coggins' imperishable concrete vaults in the beautiful planting ground just north of John Hall's alfalfa patch, which, by the way, is one of the finest pieces of alfalfa ever grown on the chin of any human being."

CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH

The theme for the morning of February 8th, will be "The Night of the Heart." The time is 10:30 a. m. This church extends a most cordial welcome to all, especially to any in this community who are strangers or who have no church home. Our parish is the community. We stand for the universal brotherhood of men. We emphasize no distinctions whether it be of creed, social position, or nationality. We aim to preach and to practice the gospel of joyous service. We strive to raise the fallen, to cheer the disconsolate to strengthen the weak, to focus the energies of the strong, and to bring all under the away of the spirit and example of the greater Master. We heartily invite you to share in the blessedness of our fellowship and the blessedness of our labor. Welcome!

How the Young People's Society grows! Had there been just one more in attendance last Sunday evening we should have moved out into the auditorium and how we appreciated Miss Catton's splendid leadership of the meeting. Special leaders and topic for next Sunday. Plan to be there!

Preceded by Mrs. LaLonde at the organ, the pleasant Sunday evening will center about "four French Chateaux." This is the lecture planned for two weeks ago. Art Institute slides will be used.

The regular meeting of the Ladies Aid Society will be held at the home of Mrs. L. J. McCann on Wednesday afternoon February 4th.

The Cecilians will meet for regular rehearsal at 7:00 p. m. at the church under the direction of Miss Bement.

The theme of the Mid-week Meeting be "Progressive Prayer." These meetings are proving helpful. Plan to attend.

All teachers and officers of the Church School are invited to attend a potluck supper in the church parlors on Friday evening February 6th. Mrs. Cross will have direction of the "eat"—just ask her what to bring. Our new Superintendent has big plans for the larger usefulness of our Church School. You want your class work to count for the most. Here is one way. Plan to be there!

And—didn't the orchestra put a lot of pep into the opening hour of the Church School last Sunday? We heartily appreciated it.

CHIPPEWA FOR DEER HUNTING

BOARD OF SUPERVISORS TAKE BACK TRACK

Declare Themselves Not in Favor of Closing Upper Peninsula. Ask State to Reconsider

Chippewa county has been taking a second thought about the closed deer season, says the St. Ignace Republican-News. The supervisors look with suspicion upon the activities of the deputy game warden in the matter. Houghton county, too, shows no enthusiasm.

The background seems really to be the idea expressed often enough by the Republican-News in the past, when we seem to be alone in the thought; it is, plainly and bluntly, that if we are to protect deer merely for a gang of outside invaders to over-run the territory and kill them off, there is no object for us in protecting the deer at all.

The Marquette Mining Journal had this to say Tuesday:

The Chippewa county supervisors have taken the back track on their petition asking the state game commissioner to call a hearing on the question of closing the county to the hunting of deer. By formal resolution, they have proclaimed that the signatures to this petition were obtained by misrepresentation. They ask that it be returned and that note be taken of the fact that they do not favor the proposed ban on deer hunting. They further record their opinion of the game department to secure employment for more deputies, and that it might be in better business. They also make the naive proposal that Chippewa county charge outside hunters an increased license fee, so that Chippewa deer may be reserved for home folks.

As the Mining Journal understands it, the county has no power to enter on license fee legislation on its own behalf, but this power resides in the state legislature, and is exercised in general legislation. Chippewa will have to continue amenable to the general law.

The Chippewa supervisors charge that signatures to the petitions sent to the state game department were obtained by two deputies, and that these officials misrepresented the nature of the petitions. They ask, rather pertinently, why state officials should display so much zeal for the organization of what seemed to be a local demand.

Altogether it may be taken that the Chippewa board is at present unfriendly to the proposal that the deer season be closed for an indefinite period. As the Mining Journal related the other day, the Houghton board adjourned at its meeting last week without displaying much interest in the subject, and such was displayed was not sympathetic. There appears to be much latent sentiment against the plans for a closed season. The fiasco of the attempt in Chippewa to commit the supervisors to it will be of a nature to increase the opposition, it seems.

Of course a county can't impose a special license. But the legislature can impose a license that will discriminate against the man who goes hunting out of his own county. That is one way of accomplishing the purpose. There may be other ways that do not occur to us.

But, it is urged, the lower peninsula legislators will never consent to pass such a license law.

"Very well," is our reply. "Then we up here won't lift a finger to help preserve deer for you to hunt, so what are you going to do to help yourselves?"

NEW DOG LAW PROMOTES REVIVAL OF INDUSTRY

License Fee Largely Increased and County and State Officials Must Enforce Law

The new dog law will be as stringent, if enforced, which it will be, as the former dog laws were lax and ineffective.

The act provides that the county treasurer must secure licensees and tags from the State Live Stock Sanitary commission, and township and city treasurers must make application for them on or before December 1 of each year. They should have their tags by January 1. While on their assessment tour supervisors can issue licenses, after which they must report to the county treasurer the names of all owners of dogs on which no license has been paid.

The county treasurer then makes his report to the State Live Stock Sanitary commission, which latter body has protection and supervision over live stock and poultry from dogs and may employ all proper means for the enforcement of the act, and all police officers of the state municipalities or townships shall be at their disposal for that purpose. Supervisors make their report not later than June 10, and supervisors and treasurers receive 15 cents for each license issued.

A person who acquires a dog after that date must procure a license but if ownership of a licensed dog is transferred the license can be transferred. Township and city treasurers issue licenses up to January 26. They are then required to turn over their blanks, etc., to the county treasurer.

Supervisors on taking the assessment must make diligent inquiry as to the number of dogs in their district and on or before June 1 they must report to the county treasurer the name of each owner who has neglected to secure a license.

The list of such dogs and their owners are then sent to the State Live Stock Sanitary commission who in turn instructs the prosecuting attorney to immediately commence proceedings against such owners. It shall be the duty of the sheriff, or any member of the constabulary to locate and kill such unlicensed dogs, and failure to do so on the part of the sheriff shall constitute malfeasance in office. He shall also on complaint of the prosecutor kill any unlicensed dogs found running at large. It shall be the duty of any police officer to kill any such dog, where unaccompanied by its owner and running at large in a field or enclosure, such dog being considered a private nuisance. Counties pay for attack or sheep killed by dogs, and there are provisions for ascertaining the damage.

Counties may sue and recover for such damage also, if the dog owners are financially responsible. All dogs must be confined during the hours from sunset to sunrise.

Boards of supervisors may pay up to $100 for horses killed by dogs; $40 per head for cattle, and $12 per head for swine.

W. C. T. U. STARTS NEW CAMPAIGN DRIVE

Will Endeavor to Increase Membership throughout Country

The National Woman's Christian Temperance Union was organized in November, 1874, and within a few years there was organized in almost every hamlet and city in the United States, a band of women pledged to work for temperance. The children of the communities were gathered into Bands of Hope, a quarterly temperance lesson was placed in the International Sunday School course, and in almost every state laws were passed providing for scientific temperance instruction in the public school. The children who came under these various forms of temperance instruction when they grew to manhood voted national prohibition into the constitution of the United States.

The departments of work of the organization have increased with the years and include today all the great moral issues which are the foundation of our national and home life. Plans have been made to fittingly celebrate the 50th anniversary of the organization of the Union. Jubilee plans they are called, the goals of which are one million members and one million dollars.

The local union deems it wise to give to the public through the press, a reason for the continued existence of the organization in order to secure the co-operation of the community.

Many people are under the impression that the coming of national prohibition, which has been the goal for so many years, the temperance forces can rest from their labors. But the liquor interests have no intention of abandoning their fight. They fought the ratification of the amendment to the end and now they are trying various ways to make it non-effective. They seem to count on the temperance people going to sleep after their victory. There is only one safe policy to pursue and that is to see that from president to policeman, only men outspokenly in favor of the eighteenth amendment and its rigid enforcement, are elected to office. So if the sole aim of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union was the abolition of the liquor traffic, we could not call our work finished; and more and more we have to work our other departments dealing with moral welfare problems in our local communities and industrial centers.

As to the jubilee goals. Three hundred thousand of the million dollars is to be used for world prohibition, and the balance for reconstruction work in the United States. The Woman's Christian Temperance Union is organized in over forty countries and appeals are coming from our sisters in these other lands to help them, either in prohibition campaigns, or in their attempt to keep American brewers and distillers from taking their equipment to other oriental countries. We are all reading about reconstruction problems and this fund will finance woman workers in helping to solve the problems of Americanization, child welfare, health, morality, women in industry, etc., which are confronting our country. The local apportionment is $305.00 and about $100.00 is already in hand.

As to the other goal of one million members. To do our share we must have 122 jubilee members paying dues to the local union. At present we have 101 names on the roll. Now that the women have the ballot, just such an organization is needed, open to women from every walk of life, for the discussion and solving of all kinds of community problems. Does it not seem that a million Christian women engaged in community welfare work will be able to accomplish wonders? May we not hope for your co-operation and sympathy in our jubilee plans?

Mrs. P. D. Campbell,
Mrs. John Burns,
Mrs. Brayton Saltonstall,
Committee.

LAMPHEAR SELLS ICE CREAM FACTORY

New Owners to Take Possession on March First

A deal which has been under consideration for some weeks was finally closed this week, when Charles H. Lamphear, owner and operator of the Charlevoix Ice Cream Co., disposed of his factory on Clinton street to the Northern Cream & Cold Storage Co., of Traversa City, the new owners to take possession March 1st.

Mr. Lamphear, who purchased the plant from W. F. Johnson some eight years ago, has enjoyed a rapidly growing business and the cream he made is known through out this section as being as good if not better than usually placed on the market. The new owners are men of experience and have a large ice cream and cold storage plant in Traversa City. The Charlevoix plant will be operated in connection with their other holdings.

Ill health and close confinement to business was the chief reason for Mr. Lamphear disposing of his holdings. However, he will immediately open a grocery store in what was formerly the Burdick store, corner Antrim and Grant streets as soon as the building is placed in readiness.

No Evening Session

There will be no evening session at the regular meeting of Pomona Grange to be held on February 5. All business will be transacted during the all day session. Grangers are asked to come early and be at the opening of the meeting.

SEEK NEWS OF 50 MICHIGAN MEN

REPORTED MISSING IN NORTH RUSSIA DURING WAR

Reported Held Prisoners By Bolsheviks But Nothing Reliable is Yet Known

The mystery of approximately fifty Michigan soldiers of the 339th infantry, who fought the "Bolos" in north Russia, will be put up to the self-styled "ambassador" of the bolsheviks when he is brought before the senate committee Friday morning.

During the rain of shells and ice last year fifty Michigan soldiers in Russia were captured by the bolshevik forces and nothing has been seen nor heard of them since.

Senator Lodge, Republican, chairman of the senate foreign relations committee, has asked Senator George H. Moses, chairman of the sub-committee examining Ludwig Martens, the soviet ambassador, to ask Martens if he can furnish a list of the American prisoners taken at the Archangel front, with statement of their state of health and whether or not they were executed or put to work.

Considerable anxiety has been expressed by friends of the missing Michigan soldiers to members of congress. Senator Charles T. Townsend and Congressman Charles E. Nichols are asking relatives for information about the missing soldiers.

Theodore W. Noble, secretary to Congressman Nichols, a veteran of many Russian battles, stated today that he knew personally some of the men captured by the bolsheviks. He averred that several were missing and it was not known whether the men were frozen to death or whether they were taken prisoners.

A number of men from Charlevoix and this vicinity saw service with the 339th Infantry during their service in north Russia.

GIVEN SURPRISE BIRTHDAY PARTY

Friends of Mrs. Fred Butler Gather at Her Home Sunday

Mrs. Fred Butler was very much surprised on an arriving home from church last Sunday to find nineteen of her friends gathered there prepared to help celebrate her birthday.

A splendid dinner was served including of course the birthday cake after which many presents were presented Mrs. Butler in honor of the occasion.

Equip Your Small Car With Goodyear Tires

If you own a Ford, Chevrolet, Dort, Maxwell or any other car using 30x3-, 30x3½-, or 31x4-inch tires, you can well take advantage of the high relative value built into all Goodyear Tires.

You can well do so because you can secure in the small Goodyear Tires the results of such skill and care as have made Goodyear Tires the preferred equipment on the highest-priced automobiles of the day.

You can well do so because these small Goodyear Tires are easy to obtain, being produced at the rate of 20,000 a day, and because their first cost usually is as low or lower than that of other tires in the same types and sizes.

Go to the nearest Goodyear Service Station Dealer for these tires, and for Goodyear Heavy Tourist Tubes. He supplies many other local owners of small cars.

30x3½ Goodyear Double-Cure $20.00
Fabric, All-Weather Tread.....

30x3½ Goodyear Single-Cure $17.65
Fabric, Anti-Skid Tread.....

Goodyear Heavy Tourist Tubes are thick, strong tubes that reinforce casings properly. Why risk a good casing with a cheap tube? Goodyear Heavy Tourist Tubes cost little more than tubes of less merit. 30x3½ size in water- $3.90 proof bag.....

MURRAY SCHOOL NOTES

A chart of History Maps was received a few weeks ago.

Two new pupils, Esther Winegrakik and Glenn Eveitt, entered school this week.

William Preiss and Cecil Murray have visitors at school this week.

Three beginners, Viora Ferguson, Lillian and Rose Mindel, have begun work in the first grade.

We liked the semester examinations. Everyone have received their standings. We haven't heard of a single failure.

Seven pupils were neither absent nor tardy during the first semester. The percentage of attendance is 94; the enrollment 38.

Twenty new books selected from the Young People's Reading Circle List, have been added to our library this week. None of them are lying in the bookcase.

The Spirit of Unrest

Reaction from the stress of war, the High Cost of Living, and the disturbed conditions in industry throughout the world have combined to lower the morale of workers in many lines.

In the factory, in the mill, the high degree of pep and enthusiasm is lacking and production lags. Even domestic service has caught the contagion, as every housewife knows.

We think the claim none too broad that employees of the Bell System have been less affected by the spirit of unrest than the majority of other workers. Yet its effects have been felt and will continue to be felt until the world begins to swing back to normal.

The telephone management is doing all in its power to remedy conditions and restore service to pre-war standards. It asks the patience and co-operation of the telephone users.

Atlantic City in Winter Time

It may have all started with that "See America First" stuff before the war, or possibly the later difficulties of travel either by rail or water, induced the pioneers of discovery to investigate Atlantic City's energetic claim that it is a winter resort, as well as a summer playground, that has finally made this famous New Jersey ocean front the haven of rest and refuge for people who want to play, and for tired men and women. We stopped at The Breakers, a great big beautiful hotel with salons, lounges, corridors and glass-enclosed balconies, in which there was something like a half acre of Oriental rugs to lighten up the lamps of the soul. The spaciousness was dotted everywhere with restful davenport, comfortable chairs and cozy corners into which one's frame sinks with ease and comfort which no Chiropractor or Osteopath could improve with his skill of adjusting things to fit the back. And we lapsed into luxury and comfort of the place just as though we had been raised on it, or had forever known of this "show place of Atlantic City."

The Board Walk was being patronized by the ladies on parade, who wanted no one to miss having a look at their thousand dollar coats, and others of both male and female varieties, singly, in pairs, and in groups engaged in filling their lungs with the bracing air of the old Atlantic as they paced this distinctive pathway beside the ocean. Still others, "sons of Mary?" glided by in rolling chairs propelled by the stolid "sons of Martha," at seventy-five cents and a quarter tip per hour.

Now that the war is over expressive phrases from all languages are again permissible, which makes description easier for writers; and therefore let it be chronicled here that it rained like "dunder and blitzen" part of three days at Atlantic City. But we were riding on "The Breakers," the first land-grounded craft of the ocean, that ever faced waves, tides, winds, sunshine or storms. It was quite like that eventful trip across the sea, for the deep roar that came from unfathomed depths was the same; and the wind slashed by, moaning its plaintive wail and seeking sail, awnings, or whatever else might be in its pathway. All the symptoms of a storm at sea were present—did I say all—well then, save one, for the Breakers returned none of the inconveniences of seasickness or ship-rocking. However, to emphasize the reality of the dream, we occasionally turned on the spigots in the bath and the salt water same right in from the ocean to cover the naked body and soothe the nerves. The Gulf stream the hot water faucet of the Atlantic, always insures an even temperature for the New Jersey coast.

Poets have scattered the choicest nectars of words about "storms"—and so would I if I were a poet. But being simply a journalist it is my province to relate facts, simply and clearly. Therefore, is suffices to say that I wouldn't have missed riding out that storm on our good landship "The Breakers" under any consideration. But suddenly the clouds broke way and the skies cleared, and Mr. Sunshine kissed the waters and they ceased their tumultuous race, and the angry roar became a soothing rhythm whose tones spoke peace and happiness and comfort to those on shore.

Then Atlantic City broke forth again in midwinter splendor. The ladies with their thousand dollar coats sallied forth again to join the good-natured throng, and everybody from the Colonel's lady to Jady O. Grady flocked to the board walk or went down on the beach to get more ozone into their lungs—and they enthusiastically agreed that the elixir of life had been discovered.

By thousands and tens of thousands, happy mortals gather far and recreation at Atlantic City in the good old winter time, as well as in the glorious summer days. The battle to make Atlantic City an all-year-round resort has been fought and won. And with my own lungs full of pure sea air I could answer all who might desire my opinion as to whether it is the greatest of all resorts upon the Atlantic coast with that expressive phrase of the garage, "I'll say it is."

Wonderous Days at the Seashore

When you have been saving up your money to go to Atlantic City, and decide to go by automobile, and then skid over the 120 feet wide boulevard that leads to the darlingest resort of all the ocean, you are likely to have moments of retrospection in which you wonder why you didn't go by train in the first place. But your chains dance on the glare ice, and as you watch the antics of obese Pierce Arrows with their horn of plenty lamps and behold the flocks of pouchily-differe-tiated Fords, you decide that after all the 'rip on the icy-way lends thrills of adventure to vacation time. Once landed safely, you take up the life of winter-vacationing as naturally as the parlor-reformers do your time.

I read once that we are—all the creatures of environment, and I believe it is so. In Washington, for instance, the habit to settle the problems of industry likely results from the fact that the city is almost nude of real industries. We analyze the ills of the country, and find fault with the international policies of the administration and senate. But we do it with an ease and lack of concern that belongs exclusively to the environment of our great capitol city. In New York we talk of the same things and get "hot in the collar" about politics—and entirely forget religion until some modern preacher quarrels with his bishop about the propriety of running an open forum in an Episcopal church. There's more for environment.

Environment plays a different hand at Atlantic City, and in the restful ease of the place you are surprised at the number of people who acquire an interest in "the ponies" and such things. After a day or two the mind seems to function as easy as the rolling chairs on the board walk or the iridescent flashes of light upon the sea—and you find yourself philosophizing with ease upon all the problems of the universe. With a Jewish banker I discussed the merits of Sir Oliver Lodge's philosophy, and that fine fellow told me that he believed that Christ was the greatest teacher the world had ever known. I was not surprised after that when a financier from Wall street insisted that there should be better laws and better conditions for the "downtrodden masses." With convincing candor he said that "labor is not a commodity, and that the social rights of the wage earner must not only be recognized, but provided for in the country's industrial system." After that one is prepared to spend an hour with a Democrat who defends Lodge for "Americanizing the treaty," and it is perfectly natural that a Republican who has joined in the conversation should give the opinion that the Massachusetts senator is only "trying to Republicanize the document of Versailles." Here is another chapter in environment.

I don't know how far this thing might go on, but my own reaction was that it was the first place I had been since 1914 where there was an environment that induced men and women to relax their mental tension even to the point of not reading the newspapers. Or possibly there is something of magic occultism in environment. In any event the process gets the cobwebs out of the mind—which is better than anything that can be done for the liver—for the democracy of your headpiece constitutes an ideal that beats all these other things in life for which we fight, bleed and die.

And so, gentle reader, I who write daily and weekly of the hoi polloi of political Washington, having been baptised for four whole days in the nectarial grandeur and grandness of Atlantic City, appeal to you in this letter in a way that "sounds different"—since I have revelled in a new environment and thou and thine should go and do likewise, as it is a great thing to get entirely away from the serious problems of life now and then.

The Velvet tin is twice as big as shown here

"No Rheumatics" is a Mighty Poor Reason for Wearing a Wooden Leg

NO sting or hot burnin' is a mighty weak-kneed recommendation for tobacco. But when tobacco is mild and cool, and yet as full of "fun" as a barrel of monkeys—well, that's another story—that's Velvet.

And 'cause why?

'Cause Velvet is brought up—not jerked up by the hair. It's raised as carefully as a favorite child. It's cured in the big fresh air. And it mellows away for two years in wooden hogsheads 'til it's smooth and rich as cream. The wonder would be if Velvet wasn't a whacking good pipe smoke.

"Let Nature mellow yo' tobacco an' that tobacco will shore mellow yo' nature," says Velvet Joe. And he's pretty nearly right.

NATURE-AGEING in the wood does more to make tobacco friendly than any camouflage you can cover it with—and don't you forget it. See, taste, smell, feel the "real tobaccoess" in Velvet. Why, you can almost hear it. Velvet's the tobacco you can judge with your eyes wide open and specs on.

There's a whole lot in Nature's way of making good tobacco better. And it's all in Velvet.

Here's to a full pipe and a friendly one.

KEEP YOUR BONDS

Uncle Sam is paying owners of Liberty bonds close to $900,000,000 a year in interest, which means about $8 for every one of the nation's 110,000,000 inhabitants.

How many members of your family are getting these $8 pickups? Or are you one of those who "let go" of their Liberty bonds?

Don't get us wrong we are not preaching a sermon. All we want you to do is to crank up your old think tank.

Now, if you are tempted to sell your bonds or War Savings Stamps, who do you suppose will buy them?

Won't it be the person who prefers to have Uncle Sam pay him instead of his paying U. S.?

In order to pay Liberty bond owner $900,000,000, the government must levy taxes. If you have bonds of your own, you cut the coupons and pay your taxes, if you sell your bonds to the rich man he collects the interest money—and you pay the freight.

All Liberty bonds will be paid in full at date of maturity. Some are now selling below par. There never will be a better time than right now to buy more Liberty bonds; there never was a poorer time to sell.

THE FLU AND COMMON SENSE
fluenza and the public, the medical profession, and public health officials are so alive to its danger that it is unnecessary to fear that the epidemic will reap the heavy toll it took last winter or the winter before.

Precautionary measures are best. Clean living, avoidance of exposure, temperance in eating and drinking, proper clothing and plenty of clean, fresh air will do wonders in rendering the individual immune. Unlike the situation during the war there now is no shortage of medical aid and those stricken can secure the proper medical attention. Although a specific remains to be discovered, physicians know more about influenza than they did when it first invaded the country and an illness from this cause is to be preferred to illness from many other diseases. Proper medical attention, careful nursing and the shunning of quack nostrums and the ill-advised advice of the ignorant are important. There are high authorities so heartless as to maintain the copious draughts of whiskey are entirely unnecessary, in spite of the very common belief that Prohibition is an ally of the flu germ. Whiskey, if needed, can be secured on a physician's order, so no one will die from its lack.

There is no occasion for panicking in fact, common sense will do more than any other one thing to pull a patient safely through a siege of influenza.

MADE $3.60 BY READING PAPER

An exchange reports that a man called at his office the other day to pay his subscription, and remarked that he made a good deal more than the paper cost him, by noticing prices. The paper cost him 15 cents a week, and by noticing the ads that week, he had saved $3.75, by buying from the stores that offered special values. He found he made savings in that way every week.

The same thing is true of the people who read the Charlevoix Courier, many of whom will gladly testify that they find many bargains announced there which otherwise they would never hear of.

The presiding officer at the first meeting of the league of nations in Paris said: "A new world is born today." Unfortunately, however, new worlds are not born in a day. The world is what is in the minds of the people of the world, and the pretense that humanity can lift itself into a millennium by any mere change in political arrangements is a snare and a delusion.

Colonel Bryan's respect for majority seems to be a little stronger now than when Champ Clark had a majority of the votes for the presidential nomination in the Baltimore convention and he and Dr. Wilson hung on under the two-thirds rule until Champ was put out of the running.

The allies, after drawing their support from the military force battling with the bolsheviks in Russia, have now arranged to open up trade in bolshevik territory. Maybe Russia can't be saved for democracy, but it's good to see that it can be saved for somebody's exports.

The "supreme council" allocated two per cent of the indemnity imposed upon Germany on account of the Scapa Flow sinkings, to the United States. And that's about the per cent of influence allocated to the United States in the original covenant of the league of nations.

Maurice Materlink, the Belgian writer, announced in New York last week: "There is such a thing in the world as brainless thought." Sure; that's the kind of thought that has been responsible for most of the big talk at Washington for the past seven years.

Colonel Bryan is now being backed for the Democratic presidential nomination on the ground that he is the man to "dry up the world." The chance of drying up the world by that method is about as good as the chance of drying up Colonel Bryan.

British critic of the American Senate complains that "the country President Wilson represented at the peace conference has failed to back him up." That all depends. What country did he represent?

Japan is said to have invited China to enter a "parley" for the return of Shantung. If Japan wants to return Shantung, it will not be necessary to "parley," will it?

Two physicians are candidates for the Democratic nomination for governor in Indiana. What the Indiana democracy needs is not a doctor, but an undertaker.

A subscriber asked why they are pasturing sheep on the White House lawn. Raising more wool to pull over people's eyes, maybe.

Three of the eight weeks have passed with the "reds" considerably ahead in number of points secured. But the "blues" are not nearly as blue as their name would indicate and are determined to eat that chicken supper at the expense of the other fellow.

Miss Doty Siekles is expected to lead next Sunday evening. Come and don't forget to wear your colors.

RUNNING A NEWSPAPER

Dear folks:—Now I know why editors go mad. I ben trying to run this paper while the editor is on his yakashun. For three (3) days and nites I ben reading questions and trying to answer them, and if I don't quit I'll be going around talking to myself.

I'm going to answer a few more and go to the ball game—Jimmy the office boy.

What is a limberneck? J. Jonea. Limberneck in the country is a strange disease of fowls and chickens. In the city it is a disease of humans persons caused by watching fowls and chickens.

2. Do small cows give condensed milk? Mabel B.

No, Mable, Condensed milk is made by trying to get a quart of milk into a pint bottle.

3. Please tell me how hash is made. W. W.

Hash is not made; it accumulates. 4. Is it all right to feed corn in the ear? G. K.

No, put it in a trough and let them help themselves.

5. I am in love with a homely girl who works for us but she don't seem to care for me, while a pretty girl with lots of money wants to marry me. What shall I do? Will M.

Mary the one you love and send me the name and address of the other one.

6. My hair is beginning to fall out. What can I do to keep it in? A sack.

7. Please tell me how to raise a nice fat hog of about 500 pounds? Get a derrick.

8. How can I tell when the water is the right temperature for bathing baby? Young mother.

If the kid gets red and hollers, the water is too hot. If he gets blue and hollers, its too cold.

9. I am 40 years old, have a nice little farm, and am thinking of taking a wife. What would you advise? Old batch.

I would advise you to be careful about whose wife you take.

10. Our red bull is chasing me around a 40-acre field. What shall I do?—Mike.

I don't know, but don't give up, Mike; the editor will be back in a week.

The Junior Class of the C. H. S., will hold a baked goods sale and serve hot lunches in the Blanchard hardware store, Saturday, February 14th.

Attention

All members of the Leslie Shnpton Post American Legion are requested to be present at a special meeting to be held in the office of R. L. Lewis, Friday evening, February 13th. The matter of obtaining club rooms for the Legion will be the matter under discussion and as several prospects are in sight it will be necessary to have all of the members there in order to have this new proposition agreed upon properly.

Insurance.

Of the three kinds of insurance, marine is probably the oldest. The object of this insurance contract is to indemnify against loss of property in the course of navigation. A ship, her cargo, and the ship's earnings are insured against fire and the many perils of the voyage. Marine insurance was practiced by the Venetians in the fifteenth century. In England it was an active operation in the sixteenth century.

Don't Choose the Easy Tasks.

It is well for young people to choose the life work which accords with their tastes and qualifications, but never make the mistake of supposing that any work will be altogether pleasant. There is no occupation without some drudgery. There is no success without sacrifice. You will never do anything of consequence without doing something you don't like.

FUNERAL SERVICES SATURDAY FORENOON

Charlevoix Pioneer Resident in Mrs. Rosana Hines

Mrs. Rosana Hines, mother of Frank and Isabel Hines, died at her home on Clinton street, Thursday evening, January 29, at the advanced age of 79 years, after an illness covering several months.

Deceased was born in Ontario, Canada, September 9, 1840, and came to Charlevoix from Ohio, 22 years ago and has since lived here. She is survived by a son, Frank G. and one daughter, Isabel, both of this city.

Mrs. Hines was a member of the Eastern Star, also of the Congregational church. She was a woman who possessed rare womanly charm and was greatly beloved by all who knew her.

Funeral services were held from the home of her son, Frank, on Park avenue at 10:00 p. m., Saturday, conducted by the Rev. H. Van Kirk. Interment at Brookside cemetery.

Picture In Your Mind

If you are really in earnest in your desire to save money you can do it.

Living expenses may be high, and it is a poor policy to stint too much, but there are many little extravagancies and self-indulgences that you can chop off, and you will be surprised how much they amount up in a year's time. By far the easiest way to save is to put your money right in the bank as soon as you get it and only draw out what you actually need. Get out of the habit of carrying a roll of bills in your pocket—it is a foolish and expensive habit, for it invariably leads to spending on "unconsidered trifles."

CONFIRMED PROOF

Residents of Charlevoix Cannot Doubt What Has Been Twice Proved.

In gratitude for relief from aches and pains of bad backs—from distressing kidney ills—thousands have publicly recommended Doan's Kidney Pills. Residents of Charlevoix, who so testified years ago, now say the results were permanent. This testimony doubly proves the worth of Doan's Kidney Pills to Charlevoix kidney sufferers.

Mrs. John Hull, 102 W. Lincoln Ave., Charlevoix, says: "I gladly recommend Doan's Kidney Pills for they have done me worlds of good. I suffered from an attack of Lumbago. I tried various remedies but got no relief until I used Doan's Kidney Pills. In a short time they entirely removed the trouble. A short time ago my back and kidneys troubled me again but Doan's Kidney Pills brought me relief promptly."

FIVE YEARS LATER, Mrs. Hull said: "I can speak just as highly of Doan's Kidney Pills as I did when I recommended them before. I use this medicine occasionally and it keeps my back and kidneys in good condition."

Rapids, who has been informed by Colonel John S. Berscy, of Lansing, that tentative plans have been approved by the war department. Grand Haven has already completed the organization of one company under Captain George Olson, who served with the 126th Infantry, and Big Rapids has nearly recruited the unit to be maintained there. East Jordan and Cheboygan may have companies.

One of the most obstructive features of progress in the smaller towns is jealousies by people in the same line of business. In making my rounds for advertising I've discovered a surprising amount of this. They exist elsewhere unless the right sort of a community spirit has been developed. When the commercial club meets some fellow will get up and tell us what we need is to forget all our local differences and pull together for the general good of the town. We applaud vigorously, shake hands all around—and next morning go about with our hatchets ready for action, same as usual.—Exchange.

Michigan tourists in Florida are said to be leaving those summery climes in droves and returning home because the natives are robbing them by charging unreasonably high prices for everything they want. It seems, then, that we stay-at-homes rather have the edge on the tourists, after all, for we are charged unreasonably high prices for everything we want, and, besides, in this climate, we want more.

Miss Ethel Hough, of Ozark, MacInaw county, who is taking the census in the scattered villages and camps of her county, sometimes walks 15 miles a day on snowshoes through blinding storms—going armed, too of course—and personally we were going to refuse to answer any questions we would much rather face a man, as we never like to do anything that will offend a tender woman.

The appointment of George Matthews of Alba to fill vacancy of County treasurer of Antrim county in place of Robt. Morrow, deceased, meets the approval of everyone. He has served his township as supervisor for several years and has always been on the right side of all public questions in which the best interests of the county was concerned.—Elk Rapids Progress.

Jazz music as an incentive for hens to lay a new departure from the staid old methods. When ordinary powers of persuasion no longer bring results a few snappy tunes may go a long way toward increasing production and bringing down the price of hen fruit.

This was the solution of the problem as outlined by Frank Hagig of Howard City. He decided, after intensive thought, that what his hens needed was exercise. However he found it a hard matter to stir them out of their accustomed inactivity. As a last resort he put a phonograph in the corner of the yard and after playing several selections found that the jazz had the desired effect.

The hens were visibly restless, and the result of their restlessness is two eggs a day.

CORRESPONDENCE

PHELPS

Mike Laganeck was a business caller in Ellsworth, Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Stevens are the proud parents of a son, born January 24th.

Miss Mary Himebauch spent Sunday last in Charlevoix, visiting friends and relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. F. R. Klooster and children took Sunday dinner with Mr. and Mrs. George Everts.

Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Himebauch were visitors at the Stevens home Thursday evening of last week.

Miss Hazel Walker of Charlevoix, is visiting at the home of her sister, and family, Mr. and Mrs. Dick O'Neil.

Mrs. Clara Mascho spent last week in Charlevoix caring for her daughter, Mrs. H. L. Francisco, who was quite ill with pneumonia.

School is at last running steadily, after about six weeks or more of vacation. Mrs. Latchbrook of Central Lake is the new teacher.

There are several cases of the "flu" in our neighborhood. All who are and have been victims of that dreaded disease are much better at the present writing.

Mr. and Mrs. Tony Clark were business callers in Phelps, also visited at the Stevens home Friday last. They were accompanied home by Miss Lela Stevens.

Andrew Klooster passed through here Thursday of last week on his way to Traverse City to visit his brother, who is confined in the state hospital there, but was not permitted to see him as influenza was raging there.

Mr. Andrew VanderYaeth, was calling on F. R. Klooster and family Saturday, after visiting friends in and around Barnard. Mr. VanderYaeth and family are visiting northern Michigan as it was formerly their home, but for the past eight years they have made their home in the state of Washington, where they expect to return about February twentieth.

NORWOOD

H. Wagner made a business trip to Charlevoix last week.

Vanco Swartout of Charlevoix is spending a week visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Swartout.

The much dreaded "flu" seems to be again spreading over the country. Several in this vicinity are suffering from hard colds which can hardly be called "flu" but are nevertheless troublesome enough.

Mrs. Joe Holecheck received news Friday that her son, Whitley, was ill with pneumonia at a hospital in Chicago and left Saturday for that place. The family stated that word reached them Sunday saying he was some better.

Fred Simons, a resident of Antrim City for a number of years passed away at his home, of pneumonia last Friday. This was a great surprise to the community, as it was not generally known he was ill. The friends extend their sympathy to the bereaved wife and brothers. Funeral services were held Monday with burial in Antrim City.

the national joy smoke

ROLLING your own cigarettes with Prince Albert is just about as joyous a sideline as you ever carried around in your grip! For, take it at any angle, you never got such quality, flavor, fragrance and coolness in a makin's cigarette in your life as every "P. A. home-made" will present you!

Prince Albert puts new smokenotions under your bonnet! It's so delightful rolled into a cigarette—and, so easy to roll! And, you just take to it like you been doing it since away back! You see, P. A. is crimp cut and a cinch to handle! It stays put—and you don't lose a lot when you start to hug the paper around the tobacco!

You'll like Prince Albert in a jimmy pipe as much as you do in a home-rolled cigarette, too! Bite and parch are cut out by our exclusive patented process. You know P. A. is the tobacco that has led three men to smoke pipes where one was smoked before. Yes sir, Prince Albert blazed the way. And, me-o-my, what a wad of smokesport will ripple your way every time you fill up!

Running a Household is a Business

Is yours run on business principles

Wise buying is the first step to success in any business. So is it the first requirement for a household to be well conducted on an economical basis. Big business concerns have purchasing agents who are experts in knowing what, when and where to buy. They watch the markets. They read carefully the advertisements of concerns in their particular lines.

The manager of the household must be purchasing agent for a large proportion of the family needs. She should be familiar with stores and merchandise. She should run her business on business principles in order to make the most of the family income.

Information is the basis for intelligent purchasing. And the right way to get the greatest amount of necessary information is to read advertisements.

Advertising today is the voice of business. Advertisements tell you what is new and good in merchandise; they reveal improvements and inventions; they give you information about things that are useful and interesting.

Every manager of a household—every person in the household who shares the responsibility for the family's welfare—should make a practice of reading advertisements.

HIGH SCHOOL FOR BANKS TWP.

MAY BE PUT BEFORE VOTERS AT NEXT ELECTION

Would Give Children of Township Greater Educational Advantages in Many Ways

Plans are under way throughout Banks township to convert District No. 9 into a rural high school and petitions are being circulated for the signatures of the necessary number of voting taxpayers to bring the issue before the voters at the next regular election, and for the benefit of those who do not thoroughly understand the rural high school system. The following may diffuse some light.

First, let it be entirely understood that the proposed rural high school is in no way a kind to be consolidated high school system and will in no way interfere with the regular schools throughout the township. The idea is to furnish a place at home where the children may have the advantages of a high school education without the expense and inconvenience of living among strangers while receiving the benefits of the upper grades. The plans as formulated consists of the finishing of the extra rooms of the Ellsworth school building by District No. 9 and then cost of teaching of the first eight grades to be borne by District No. 9 the same as the other schools of the township.

As for the grades above the eighth the cost to the taxpayers of the township is estimated at from $2,500 to $3,000 per year. Deduct from this amount the amount paid annually by the different districts for tuition and spread the balance over the $900,000 assessed valuation of Banks township and the cost to each person would be so small as to be hardly noticeable.

The laws governing these township or rural high school are fully explained in the general school laws of the state and are so plain that they may be fully understood by all.

The high school will be run under the supervision of the County School Commissioner the same as other schools, but will be governed in so far as the hiring or firing of teachers, the expulsion or suspension of pupils, etc. by a board of trustees elected by the voters of the township.

This board of trustees will consist of the township treasurer, township clerk and three others elected at the annual township election.

If in any time in the future it should be deemed advisable to discontinue the school, the same process of petitioning the township board and bringing the matter before the voters for a decision may be followed as the one used to organize the school at the start.

We sincerely believe that every resident of Banks township is a good citizen to want to see every child in the township have a fair start in the battle of life and this start can only be secured through education, and we as sincerely believe that any one who opposes the rural school system does so through misunderstanding which can be easily explained away.

CARE AND ATTENTION NEEDED BY TERRACES

Should Be Looked After Before Loose Soil Settles.

Weak Places Should Be Inspected Immediately After Each Rain and Breaks Repaired—Sow Some Kind of Cover Crops.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Terraces require considerable care and attention, especially during the first year, before the loose soil has had time to become settled thoroughly. All apparently weak places should be visited after every heavy rain, and any breaks should be repaired immediately with a shovel. It is best not to cultivate the terraces the first year, but to seed them to some kind of cover crop.

It is advisable to run the crop rows parallel to the terraces, one row being planted on top of the terrace. The cultivation of the top row tends to keep the top of the terrace at the proper height. Where the rows are run across the terraces, as is done commonly on moderate slopes, the top soil is moved down the side slopes by cultivation. As a result, the terraces are more liable to break, and much more maintenance work is required than where the rows are run parallel to the terraces.

All terraces that are cultivated should be plowed at least once a year, and the soil should be thrown to the center. In this way the height of the terrace is kept up and the base may be broadened each year.

Steep land that washes badly between the terraces should not be cultivated. The terraces should first be well built and the entire field seeded to grass and used for pasture or meadow.

When it is found necessary to cross a farm road in terracing a field, the building of the terraces should be continued across without regard to the road. Where the terraces are as much as 20 feet broad, no provision need be made for passing traffic across them, but they should be carefully maintained to prevent possible breaks. Where the terraces are not more than ten feet broad, considerable inconvenience to traffic and injury to the terraces generally results where no provision for crossing is made. Sometimes the water is carried under the roadway by a culvert, but the principal objections to this are that the capacity of the waterway is greatly reduced and the free flow of the water through the culvert is often obstructed by stalks or other trash washed from the field. A wooden bridge spanning the channel, so as not to reduce very much the cross-sectional area of the waterway, makes a more desirable and satisfactory crossing.

FOR HOME GARDENERS

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Home gardeners will find that all of the most common insects and diseases attacking vegetables are catalogued in the United States Department of Agriculture's Farmers' Bulletin 859, which will be sent free on request of the department. This bulletin tells how to detect the presence of destructive insects and diseases and how to prevent and fight them.

HAND SPRAYER VERY USEFUL

Especially Handy in Applying Remedies for Control of Garden Insects and Diseases.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Control of insects and diseases affecting garden crops has been made so simple that it is little trouble nowadays to apply the remedies. It is not necessary to have a lot of expensive apparatus. A cheap hand sprayer or a sprinkling can may be used to apply all of the remedies that are used in liquid form. Poisons in the dry or powdered form can be applied by dusting them upon the plants by means of a cheesecloth or gunny sack. The entire cost for equipment with which to fight the common garden insects and diseases need not be more than a dollar.

AT THE MOVIES

Elmo Lincoln, who gained fame in screen annals as the star of the wonderful "Tarzan," and who added to his fame in such pictures as "Intolerance" and "The Kaiser, the Beast of Berlin," makes his bow as a serial star at the Palace Theatre Feb. 7th and 8th.

"Elmo the Mighty" is the name of his first serial, which is released by Universal. The first episode, is called "The Mystery of Mad Mountain."

The story deals with Capt. Elmo Armstrong, a forest ranger, who meets Lucille Gray, whom he knew as a Red Cross nurse when overseas. Lucille is the daughter of Richard Gray, Western manager of a timber syndicate, who has been 'framed-up' by a gang of swindlers until it appears that he defrauded the government out of half a million dollars on a tie contract.

Episode Two of Elmo Lincoln's great serial, "Elmo the Mighty," will be shown at the Palace Theatre Feb. 11th. This continues the first pace set in the opening episode.

The famous star of the "Tarzan" pictures is riding to the rescue if his sweetheart, Lucille Gray, who has been abducted by the villains. The mystery action is heightened, and after many thrilling adventures, Elmo, after rescuing Lucille, is himself cornered by a timber swindler along with the girl. Both take refuge in an abandoned mine, which is blown up by the villains, entombing Elmo and the girl.

"Buried Alive" is the title of this episode.

Spectacular snow scene revolving around a thrilling toboggan accident on a steep hillside, in which one of the principals really was badly bruised, are a feature of "The Blinding Trail," the new Monroe Salisbury film play coming to the Palace Theatre next Saturday and Sunday. Dougherty are on the sick list at

Paul Powell directed the picture which deals with the Northwoods and its people, among whom are Big Jim McKenzie, boss lumberman, his employer, Halverson, the millionaire lumber dealer; Halverson's daughter, Helen, a city product in every luxury-loving essential; and the latter's "poor cousin."

The triangle formed by McKenzie and the two girls passes an another character, Jean DuBrey, impersonated by Arthur Maude, the eminent character actor, enters. It becomes a quadrangle with McKenzie, Helen, who becomes his mis-mated wife; Adele, "the poor relation," and DuBrey, the assistant camp boss; as the characters.

The story written by Stuart Paton, who produced "Twenty Thousand Leagues Under the Sea," and John B. Clymer is an unusually powerful one and the execution in such capable hands is praiseworthy.

One of the most appealing screen fights ever witnessed is the climax of the play. In it Salisbury, as the blind McKenzie, Maude and Claire Anderson, and Helen Halverson of the story, participate and bring the plot to a smashing logical culmination.

Alfred Allen, the character actor; Johnnie Cooke, comedian, and others have strong parts in the pictures.

CHARLEVOIX MEN TOOK STAND
THIS WEEK

Evidence Taken During Grand Jury
Session Used Against J. M.
Harris of Boyne City

The trial of the men indicted by the grand jury in their recent meeting in connection with the Senator Truman H. Newberry election fraud case is on in full swing in the United States Federal court before Judge Session in Grand Rapids this week.

Two Charlevoix county men indicted have been called to take the stand thus far. They are Lisle Shanahan of Charlevoix and J. M. Harris of Boyne City.

Following is the procedure concerning Shanahan.

He said he supported Truman H. Newberry and did some work for the Newberry committee. He was asked to tell of a conversation with Judge John M. Harris, of Boyne City.

He said Judge Harris asked him if he was a Newberry man. He replied in the affirmative. He said the judge suggested that they should have a Charlevoix county committee.

"Did you talk about expenses?" "As I recall, I suggested to Judge Harris that nine precincts, my part of the county, would require some $35 or $40 for expenses."

"Did Judge Harris tell you about a trip to Detroit?" "He did not."

"Subsequently Judge Harris handed me $40."

"Did you make any statement or accounting expenses?"

"Only once. I told him I spent $5 for a challenger. That was after he turned over the $40."

"What use did you make of the other $35?"

"I made one or two trips to Boyne City. I used my own car. I took the returns over and there were telephone calls. I had my office cleaned."

"You paid for it out of the money Judge Harris gave you?"

"I don't know. I am giving you a statement of my expenses."

The witness then volunteered:

"Understand, I have no knowledge that the money Judge Harris gave me was Newberry committee money."

The government objected and the statement was stricken from the record.

The following is the city report of the progress of the trial concerning John M. Harris of Boyne City:

Since the beginning of the trial one of the chief questions among respondents and newspaper men, at least, hinged on whether grand jury evidence would be offered in the proofs by the government. So on after the noon recess yesterday, without a moment's warning, the name of C. R. Higbee was called and the clerk of the grand jury which indicted Senator Newberry and the other respondents in the case, took his place on the stand. Mr. Higbee said his home was in Benton Harbor and that he was a real estate and automobile dealer.

He was asked whether he knew the defendant Judge John M. Harris of Boyne City and whether the judge appeared as a witness before the grand jury. He replied in the affirmative.

There followed a determined attempt on the part of Attorney Littleton for the defense, to prevent Higbee's testimony. The court conceded only that anything testified to by Judge Harris and reported by the clerk of the grand jury on the stand could not be used by the jury against any of the indicted men except Judge Harris.

"Can you tell the jury what Judge Harris testified to before the grand jury," asked Mr. Dailey.

"Mr. Harris stated that he received word, as I remember it, some time about the middle of April, 1918, from Paul H. King of Detroit, to come to Detroit at his earliest convenience to see him regarding some work that he wished him to do for the Newberry campaign," began the witness. "Mr. Harris did go."

Mr. Higbee then quoted Judge Harris' story before the grand jury: "I did go to Detroit very soon after and saw Paul King at the senatorial headquarters and had a talk with him, and he asked me to interest myself in the Newberry work, wishing me to organize the county committees in the immediate neighborhood in which I lived, and I said I would. He offered me for that work $200 a month and my expenses and I returned to my home, and the first thing I did was to organize the county work in my own county."

"I talked with Henry Myers and I suggested that he be appointed chairman of the county committee and I also interviewed men in Antrim county, Kalkaska county, Presque Isle and I think Emmet county and perhaps two or three other counties where he found that the men already had been selected by some one."

CHARLEVOIX 19 HARBOR SPRINGS 15

HARBOR DEFEATED ON OWN FLOOR IN FAST GAME

Wilson of Harbor and Halverson and Kruklick of Charlevoix Were the Star Performers

The Charlevoix High School basketball team jumped one more notch closer to the championship last Friday night when they took the fast Harbor Springs team into camp by the score of 19 to 15 on Harbor's own floor. The Friday previous to this Harbor Springs defeated Petoskey high school.

The game was very close through out the entire period of play and not until the last minute could one ascertain the winner. The evening's performance was featured by excellent basket shooting from long ranges and hard angles and by the stellar work of the guards.

Of the Harbor Springs player Kenneth Wilson was by far the best netting during the game four field baskets and by his work keeping his team in the running. He made several of the baskets from the center of the court.

The work of the Charlevoix guards Jones and Hammet was exceptionally good and they were at all times in position to stop any advance of the ball into their territory. Their work was one of the main features in the winning of the game. Halverson and Kruklick play their usual fine game at forwards and each netted four field baskets, from difficult angles.

Following is the line-up of the two teams:

Charlevoix Harbor Springs
Halverson R. F. Kenneth Wilson
Kruklick L. F. W. Kruklick
Weststaff C. W. Weststaff
Jones R. G. Judd
Hammet L. G. R. Kruklick

Field goals K. Wilson 4. Lamkin 1. Judd 1. Kruklick 4. Halverson 4. Weststaff 1. Goals from foul: Wilson 3 out of 5. Weststaff 2 out of 6. Subs Hallett, Smith. Referee, Cutler, Petoskey.

The next game will be next Friday night with Boyne City at the Boyne City gymnasium. Boyne City is said to have a very fast team and a hard game is expected.

Surprised By Friends
About 25 friends of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Rogers surprised them last Wednesday afternoon about dusk at their home beyond the cemetery, taking with them a pot luck supper. COUNTY SCHOOL OFFICERS MEETING

HELD AT BOYNE CITY FREE LIBRARY FEBRUARY 4th

Various County School Problems
Thoroughly Discussed.—Discussion
On Shortage of Teachers

On Wednesday, February 4th, in the assembly hall of the Boyne City Free Library, as had been previously announced, the school officers of Charlevoix county met for instruction in school law. Mr. Coey, Assistant State Superintendent, was present to present the substance of new laws and to answer questions on any law affecting the school interests of this state.

In his summary of new school legislation of 1919, Mr. Coffey explained the full-year school term, the act requiring all furnace plans to be submitted to the department, and prohibiting the placing of a stove in any school room and requiring ventilation as well as heating, the physical training law, the act requiring the printing of itemized statements of all expenditures for the school year in graded school districts, requiring all instruction in subjects needed for eighth grade diplomas to be given in the English language in all schools, and the act providing for vocational education for school children, from 16 to 18 years of age.

Miss Stewart discussed the shortage of teachers as the most serious problem facing the county at the present time. The most serious danger is, however, not the danger of being compelled to close half of the schools because of inability to find teachers. We are facing the graver danger of hiring incompetent teachers who are employed merely because of the low wage offered to teachers does not attract enough applicants so that we have any choice in the matter. Teachers must be self-supporting, and must save enough to continue their professional training. They should start on a definite wage scale and should have the wage increased according to training and experience. At the present time, this is not true of the employing of teachers and present practice is not conducive to progress. The purchasing power of a dollar has decreased fifty per cent, but the wages of teachers have not advanced accordingly. Since wages have increased along other lines it is almost impossible to induce men and women to enter the teaching profession. To save the future of our boys and girls, the only solution is the rapid increase in teachers' wages. These, and not selfish reasons, were the arguments which lead the teachers of the county in institute assembled to adopt a resolution establishing $100 as the minimum wage for Charlevoix county.

So many questions were asked concerning consolidation that it was with difficulty that Mr. Coffey kept the discussion of this topic for his last address. He then explained the rural agricultural act indicating that whenever two or more districts combined, employing three teachers and meeting the provisions of the law in regard to the teaching of agriculture, manual training, and domestic art, state aid would be allowed to the extent of $600 toward teacher's wages, and $200 for each bus used in transportation. He described several consolidated schools in the upper peninsula, dwelling upon the advantage of longer recitation periods with fewer grades for each teacher to manage, more competition with several children of an age in each class, health in protection from storms in warm buses, better average attendance as shown by annual reports of such consolidated schools, more eighth grade graduates, and more entering and finishing high school. He was urged to explain the operation of the old simple consolidation act, still in force, also the township unit, and the new consolidation act with provisions for state aid.

BIG VARIETY OF CANDIDATES

UNPRECEDENTED NUMBER EN-TERING CAMPAIGN.

Byran After Democratic Nomination—Champ Clark Oldest Man
In the Race

Holiday displays of presidential candidates this year offer the fastidious voter an unprecedented variety in the matter of age and equipment. Probably never in the nation's political history have there been so many aspirants for the presidency, each with a considerable following, and representing so many different kinds of business experience. Ranging in age from 45 to 70 and in training from stock raising to diplomacy.

The leading republicans and democratic candidates for their respective party nominations are:

Republican
Maj. Gen. Leonard Wood.
Gov. Frank C. Lowden of Illinois.
Senator Hiram Johnson, California.

Democrat
William Gibbs McAdoo.
Attorney General Palmer.
Gov. James M. Cox, Ohio.
James W. Gerard.
Senator Atlee Pomerene, Ohio.
Representative Champ Clark, Missouri.

Senator Robert L. Owen.
William J. Byran.

Herbert Hoover, classed as an "independent," is the youngest potential candidate, at the age of 45 years. His equipment is world wide experience in engineering and various projects including world food relief, calling for executive and administrative ability.

Clarke Oldest in Race
The oldest candidate to thus far is Congressman Champ Clark aged 65 years, with a long career as a lawyer and politician.

Between these two extremes we have the following:

Gen. Wood, aged 59, whose activities have included the duties of surgeon in the United States army, service in the Indian wars of 1886, military governorship of Cuba and foremost trainer of American troops in the late war.

Gov. Lowden, Illinois, aged 52, lawyer, scientific farmer and politician.

Senator Sutherland, West Virginia, aged 54; lawyer, former editor of weekly newspaper in Missouri and new dealer in coal and timber lands.

Lawyers Well Represented
Senator Johnson, California, aged 53, trained early to be shorthand reporter, but studied law and had brilliant career as lawyer before entering politics.

Senator Poindexter, aged 51, lawyer.

William Gibbs McAdoo, aged 56, small railroad executive, builder of the first tunnel under the Hudson river, former member of President Wilson's cabinet.

Attorney General Palmer, aged 47, lawyer and director in many institutions from banks to gas and water companies.

Gov. Cox, Ohio, aged 49, born on a farm, followed first the printer's trade, then taught school, then became a reporter on a newspaper, editor and finally publisher. He also is a stock breeder and a politician.

James W. Gerard, lawyer and diplomat, mine owner and author, aged 52 years.

Senator Pomerene, Ohio, lawyer, bank organizer and politician.

Byran Again Mentioned
Brother Byran, aged 59, is the country's most experienced candidate for president, having been defeated as the democratic nominee in 1896, 1900 and 1908.

Senator Owen, Oklahoma, aged 63 years, of Scotch Irish and Indian parentage, and experienced as a teacher, lawyer, banker and business man.

Ohio thus far is a banner state in the matter of candidates, offering three potential possibilities: Gov. Cox and Senator Pomerene both seeking the democratic leadership and Senator Harding pursuing the republican.

The central west has the most candidates, the far west has two and the east four.

The newspaper profession is represented directly or indirectly through past or present experience, by Cox, Harding, Byran, Owen, Sutherland, Lowden, Palmer and Hoover. The farm, the law, the diplomatic service and numerous kinds of business from bank director to stock breeding are to be found in the experience of this various candidates.

With the exception of Hoover, who makes a public speech all the candidates mentioned as topnotchers are orators of considerable ability, assuring plenty of forisais when the race gets going.

HEN PROBLEM AT FIVE MILE CREEK

TRIES SCRATCH AND CACKLE
FEED TO NO AVAIL

Committee Thinks Maybe Hens Will Get Better Feed From Neighbors' Garden in Spring

The Five Mile Creek Chamber of Commerce in their last meeting were unanimously in favor of continuing the endeavor to better the conditions of the community. The question of "Hens" caused considerable debate when brought before the executive committee.

Jonas Wabadick the reliable "Minuteman" submits his report to the minutes herewith so that the region hereabout may benefit by the findings of the meeting.

Minutes
Mary Sawbush open meeting alright. Joe Tabasash who open meeting before drink to much home brew so get the flu, no can come. Executing committee make report on what will make hens lay eggs for Five Mile Creek.

Susan Tobio he say make hens cackle to get eggs, but hens all got pip no can sing. He say he saw in last Charlevoix Courier that Argo, Milling have cackle feed that makes hens sing like Caruso. Susan he think maybe cackle feed be alright. He say he feed hens scratch feed one time and hens scratch up all his garden guess maybe she work alright with cackle.

So Susan Tobio he buy some cackle feed from Argo Milling. He feed hens for one week but hens no cackle much but rooster cackle whole lot in the night. Susan no can sleep, rooster not lay eggs. Think cackle feed alright for hens, no good for rooster.

Joe Wabadick she say try oyster shell make hens lay. She feed hens for two weeks. At last find egg but had like atone no can break. She think oyster shell make eggs alright but eggs all shell. Joe Checonas he laugh up sleeve maybe some thing up.

She think oyster shell no good so try ash for hen to roll. She put in lots of ash in coop no put out fire so hen house burn up.

Committee make vote. All vote to let hens run out doors, plenty to scratch in neighbor garden. Neighbor he get mad so chase hen so plenty of cackle maybe in spring plenty of eggs.

Committee make vote to fine Joe Tabasash $1.12. He drink all home brew meant for officers. Officers go dry. Have new two gallon jug but nothing but water to fill with. All go home dry but maybe do better next time.

SAGE TEA BENEFITS AND DARKENS HAIR

Don't Stay Gray! It Darkens So Naturally that Nobody can Tell.

You can turn gray, faded hair beautifully dark and lustrous almost overnight if you'll get a bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound" at any drug store. Millions of bottles of this old famous Sage Tea Recipe, improved by the addition of other ingredients, are sold annually, says a well-known druggist here, because it darkens the hair so naturally and evenly that no one can tell it has been applied.

Those whose hair is turning gray or becoming faded have a surprise awaiting them, because after one or two applications the gray hair vanishes and your locks become luxuriantly dark and beautiful.

This is the age of youth. Gray-haired, unattractive folks aren't wanted around, so get busy with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound to-night and you'll be delighted with your dark, handsome hair and your youthful appearance within a few days.

This preparation is a toilet requisite and is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.

Mr. and Mrs. Allen and Mrs. McMullin, went to Boyne City Wednesday to attend the school officers meeting.

Mr. and Mrs. Emerson Price returned home Saturday from a month's visit at Lima, Ohio, and Peoria, Illinois.

Ross Alexander and William Steward was pleasantly surprised Wednesday evening when the young folks gathered in to spend the evening. A pot luck supper was served.

EVELINE

John Cooper has had a telephone installed.

Robert Sherman and Benj. Clark went to Boyne City to attend the meeting of school officers Wednesday.

John Cooper hauled Mr. Joe Courrier a load of hay. He reports the whole family very sick with the influenza.

Quite a number are spending their time in the fish shanties near Eveline orchards dock, but without much success so far.

Miss Bertha Clark went to Ironton Saturday to see her brother, E. H. Clark, who has been laid up all winter with a broken leg.

The Harnden family are expected to return early this spring, perhaps this month. They have been gone two years and tried their fortune in both in northwestern Canada and in the state of Washington and are now satisfied to return to Charlevoix county. We will all welcome them back.

MOUNTAIN DISTRICT

Arthur Gaunt spent Sunday at home.

Mrs. William Sanderson spent Saturday with her sister, Mrs. John Seiler.

Mr. and Mrs. Loren Duffey spent Sunday evening at the home of William L. Scott.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Coblenz spent Sunday with their daughter, Mrs. Ervin Nowland.

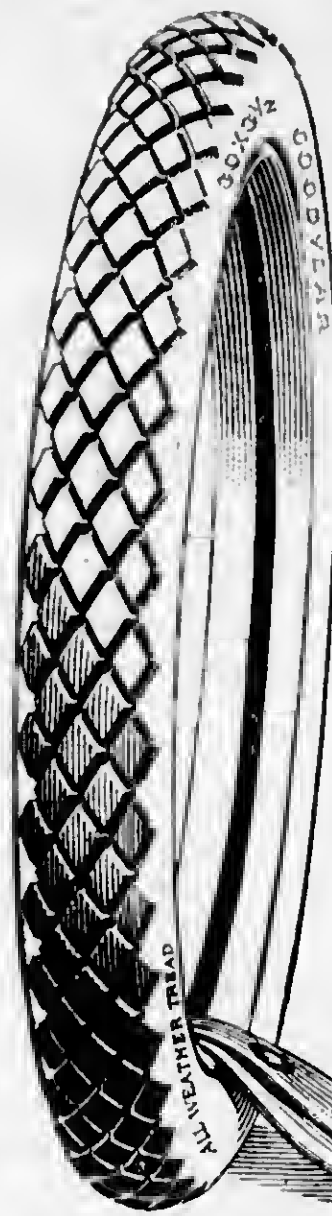

Mr. and Mrs. William Scott and Edward Dunlop attended the school officer's meeting at Boyne City Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. John Seiler are the proud parents of a ten pound baby boy which arrived Saturday, February 7th. Both mother and babe are doing nicely.

A change has been made in the date of the oyster supper at the Mountain school house, which was announced last week as being Friday evening, February 13. It will be Saturday evening, February 14th instead, so as to accommodate a greater number of people. The proceeds will go to our Missionary, Mr. Weaver.

Big Value in Tires for Small Cars

Back of the manufacture of Goodyear Tires for small cars is the same purpose to supply high value in the product that is behind the manufacture of the Goodyear Tires that equip the most expensive automobiles built.

This purpose is expressed by the enormous resources, extraordinary skill and scrupulous care applied to the manufacture of Goodyear Tires in the largest tire factory in the world devoted solely to the 30x3-, 30x3½-, and 31x4-inch sizes.

The effect of this endeavor is noted in the fact that last year more cars using these sizes were factory-equipped with Goodyear Tires than with any other kind.

It is also noted in the fact that, if you own a Ford, Chevrolet, Dort, Maxwell or other car requiring the sizes mentioned, you can secure Goodyear Tires and Goodyear Heavy Tourist Tubes at the nearest Goodyear Service Station.

30x3½ Goodyear Double-Cure Fabric, All-Weather Tread..... $20.00

30x3½ Goodyear Single-Cure Fabric, Anti-Skid Tread..... $17.65

Goodyear Heavy Tourist Tubes are thick, strong tubes that reinforce casings properly. Why risk a good casing with a cheap tube? Goodyear Heavy Tourist Tubes cost little more than tubes of less merit. 30x3½ size in water..... $3.90 proof bag.....

War and After War

For one year the Bell Telephone System, as well as other telephone, telegraph, cable and radio systems, was under control and supervision of the government of the United States. This was a war measure, designed to give the war agencies of the country the fullest use of all facilities of communication.

During this time the normal development and expansion of all telephone systems was necessarily subordinated to governmental needs. Materials and equipment had to be utilized first in the construction and maintenance of lines for war purposes. Ordinary development and expansion waited.

The Bell Telephone System is making headway in its effort to overtake the demand for service which developed during this period of suspension, but some time will yet be required before the expansion of the business can proceed at normal speed.

TEACH THRASHERMEN TO SAVE ALL GRAIN

Department of Agriculture Plans Conservation This Year.

Schools Will Be Opened to Give Instruction on Operation of Machines and Adjustment—Many Owners Are Inexperienced.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Grain saving last year filled 11,000,000 two-bushel sacks with wheat which otherwise would have been wasted in straw stacks or over fields. To increase this conservation record this year and to facilitate more efficient operation of thrashing machines, the United States department of agriculture, in co-operation with the directors of extension work in state agricultural colleges, will conduct schools of three and four days for thrashermen. Instruction will include studies of the proper operation, adjustment, repair and maintenance of separators and gas and steam engines.

Approximately 250,000 thrashing machines are in the United States. Many owners are not thoroughly experienced in their management and repair. All are expected to be benefited Reduce the Waste of Grain at Thrashing Time.

If they attend the thrashermen's school in their localities. Every thrasherman who is interested in saving grain, reducing idle time when his machine is out of commission, and lengthening the active service of his separator, should attend a thrashermen's school where he will be taught the when, why, where, and how to operate a thrashing outfit and keeping it in the pink of working condition.

The purpose is primarily to improve thrashing conditions. Instruction will cover the theory of the separator, the operation, care and adjustment of the machine, and sufficient laboratory work to give students skill in adjusting and operating. It is contemplated to hold schools immediately after or prior to the one-day grain standardization schools, directed by the federal department's bureau of markets.

Necessity for practical education of American thrashermen was brought out strikingly by results in Minnesota last year recording the normal waste of grain in thrashing. Comprehensive tests, which included the work of the more than 6,500 machines in the northern state, showed that the average avoidable loss in thrashing wheat was 4.69 bushels a day, worth approximately $9.64; while the avoidable loss in

LESS MEAT IF BACK AND KIDNEYS HURT

Take a glass of Salts to flush kidneys if bladder bothers you—Drink lots of water.

Eating meat regularly eventually produces kidney trouble in some form or other, says a well-known authority, because the uric acid in meat excites the kidneys, they become overworked; get sluggish; clog up and cause all sorts of distress, particularly backache and misery in the kidney region; rheumatic twinges, severe headaches, acid stomach, constipation, torpid liver, sleeplessness, bladder and urinary irritation.

The moment your back hurts or kidneys aren't acting right, or if bladder bothers you, get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any good pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to normal activity; also to neutralize the acids in the urine so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts cannot injure anyone, makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which millions of men and women take now and then to keep the kidneys and urinary organs clean, thus avoiding serious kidney disease.

thrashing oats was 9.1 bushels daily, worth then $5.46. Some of the separators wasted as much as 50 bushels of wheat a day, worth, on the basis of the October market, $103. Twenty-five per cent of all the machines tested in Minnesota showed an avoidable loss, due to the machines being out of repair or improperly adjusted, of 16 bushels a day. Therefore, Minnesota today is a staunch advocate of teaching thrashermen the three R's—run, plug, repairing and readjusting their thrashing outfits.

COW TESTING IS PROFITABLE

Tennessee Dairymen Expresses Appreciation of Benefits of Cow-Testing Association.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

"I would not take four times what my testing work has cost me for what it has been worth to me," is the way a Tennessee dairymen expresses his appreciation of the benefits he gained as a member of a cow-testing association which was organized by the United States department of agriculture in his community. "The cow which has proved to be the best one in my herd was the one that I considered poorest before the tests were made. I priced one of my cows at $125 before she was tested, but now I price her at $350."

The test showed that the nineteen-year-old cow which this dairymen had used for the foundation cow of his herd made 68 pounds of butterfat in November. The average production for the herd during this month was over 40 pounds of butterfat.

BARNARD

Ladies Aid Society meeting is postponed until Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Shank spent Sunday with her parents, Walter Ball and family in Charlevoix.

The Sunshine Workers is the name of the sewing club organized among the larger girls of Barnard school. Here's to their success.

Dorothy Lewis celebrated her eleventh birthday last Friday afternoon with a party of girls near her own age. Refreshments including a fortune cake, were a pleasing feature of the entertainment and the usual good time was enjoyed by all.

This community was shocked to hear of the death of Lloyd Gregory in Flint last week. The funeral to be held at his home and burial in the Barnard cemetery on Wednesday. His family have the heartfelt sympathy of all Barnard friends.

The remains of Andrew Klooster were brought home from Traverse City last Wednesday. The funeral was held on Thursday and the interment in the Empey cemetery near Atwood. The family have the sympathy of the entire community in their bereavement.

HAYES

Milo Kane came home sick last Saturday from Flint.

George Howe and Alice, went to Boyne City last Thursday.

Born, last week to Mr. and Mrs. Henry Baker, a daughter.

Bert Wightman took two loads of hay to Boyne City last Friday.

Wade and Alice Howe spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. John Gray.

Mr. and Mrs. Armstrong spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. John Gray.

We were shocked last Saturday when the news came of Loyd Gregory's death in Detroit.

Mrs. E. E. Stroud, Mrs. Webster and Mrs. Pant attended Pomona Grange at Deer Lake last Thursday.

A small gathering was had last Saturday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Kane. A good time was reported.

Harold Webster came home sick from Petoskey last Monday. He has a bad cold and the gas in the paper mill made him worse.

Hard Luck, indeed.

The Velvet tin is twice as big as shown here

There's a World of Solid Comfort In the Rich, Red Tin

YES, sir, we mean that same warm red and gold tin that smiles a welcoming "Howdy" to you in every tobacco store. Know what those colors mean?

The red is for the friendly warmth, the mellow cheeriness, that Velvet puts into your old pipe. And the gold is where the Kentucky sunshine, that ripens good old Velvet, has just sort of soaked through.

Remember what Velvet Joe said about it?

"You've met canned meat and canned music. Ever see any tinned sunshine? Well, look into any Velvet tin."

And think this over:

We don't have to hide Velvet's taste or smell with a lot of this, that and the other thing. Because Velvet has naturally what pipe smokers want—real simon-pure tobacco taste and fragrance. It's just good, honest Kentucky leaf, made still more friendly and mellow by two years' ageing in wooden hogsheads. Just good tobacco. That's all. But it's mighty near enough for the man who wants a pipeful of tobacco and not a box of bon bons.

The picture of a pipe on the tin needn't keep you from rolling a jim-dandy cigarette with Velvet.

How's the Velvet holding out in your old red tin?

AT THE MOVIES

Episode 3.

"Flames of Hate," the third episode of the serial which introduces Elmo Lincoln as a serial star—"Elmo the Mighty,"—will be shown at the Palace Theatre Wednesday, February 18.

At the end of the last episode, the hero of the "Tarzan" pictures, who is cast as Capt. Elmo Armstrong, a forest ranger, was entombed in an old mine, along with Lucille Gray, his sweetheart. By his wonderful strength he succeeds in forcing his way into an underground stream, running beneath the mine, and both escape.

Only for a time, however—for Armstrong is recaptured and is bound to a stake in the middle of a deserted cabin, which is set on fire. "The Phantom Menace," the mystery character who appears from now-where, apparently, riding a motorcycle, is again seen in this episode.

The ethical relations between a railroad engine driver, familiarly known as engineer, and the fireman who stokes the engine, are interestingly portrayed in Vitaphone's new picture, "The Wreck." This picture will be shown at the Palace Theatre Theater on Friday, February 13.

It is revealed that the engineman is master of his locomotive, and that his word is absolute law—until he shows signs of drunkenness. When the fireman notices this, it is his duty to overpower the engineman and take charge of the steel steed.

Frustration of a plot to defraud the United States government of half a million dollars is shown in "Elmo the Mighty," which introduces Elmo Lincoln of "Tarzan" fame as a serial star. The serial is now current at the Palace Theatre. Line coln plays the part of a forest ranger.

Catarhal Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure Catarhal Deafness, and that is by a constitutional remedy. HALL'S CATARRH MEDICINE acts through the blood on the mucous surfaces of the system. Catarhal Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result. Unless the inflammation can be reduced and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing may be destroyed forever. Many cases of Deafness are caused by Catarrh, which is an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces. A TROUBLED GOVERNMENT

We cannot understand the German government's desire to be relieved of the necessity of giving up the war criminals. Junkerism is not yet dead in Germany. At least one party exists which boldly and frankly labors for the restoration of the monarchy. A large section of the population is determined not to accept the fact of the Fatherland's defeat. Orators continue to work upon the old passions, to recite the glories of German arms, to speak of German destiny as if it involved a crusade. At a meeting in Berlin wherein the treaty was denounced and the allies were execrated, the crowd called for "revenge." The position of the German government amid this tumult is precarious. If it attempted to carry out the terms of the treaty to which it had set its hand it may destroy itself. The question arises, is it expedient for the Allies to press their point—obtaining perhaps a few hay-owners of babies for trial and, at the same time, a civil war in Germany to deal with?

M. E. CHURCH NOTES

"The Christianizing of National and International Life," is the sermon subject for next Sunday morning at the Methodist Episcopal church. In the evening at 7 o'clock a splendid stereopticon entertainment will be given. The complete program was published in last week's local press. It consists of fifty fine slides of summer and winter marine views from Detroit to Marquette and Chicago. There will be illustrated songs and recitations. A special invitation is extended to the Coast Guards and to all sailors. The girls' choir will sing a special selection.

One half of the time allotted to the Epworth League contest is past with the "reds" well in the lead. Discouragement is missing in the vocabulary of the "blues" and with grim determination they are moving forward.

Sixty new members have been received into the League since the beginning of the contest, let us make it one hundred before the close, we will, no doubt about it.

Under the able leadership of Miss Dotty Sickles a service of fine spirit and interest was enjoyed by a crowded house last Sunday.

Mrs. Rena Edwards is the leader for next Sunday.

Special features in the near future fuller announcements later. "The New Emancipation," a Lincoln Day Program; "The Heart of the Nation," a stereopticon program illustrating the work of the Red Cross.

The monthly meeting of the Sunday School Board was held at the parsonage last Monday night. Following the business meeting, refreshments were served and a social time enjoyed.

There will be a St. Valentine's social next Friday evening, February 13, under the auspices of the Epworth League. There will be refreshments and much merriment. Come young and old and bring the smallest piece of silver in your possession.

LLOYD GREGORY DIES IN FLINT

Death Occurred Saturday From Pneumonia

Lloyd Gregory, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Gregory died in Flint, Saturday night, February 7th, of pneumonia, after being ill but a few days.

The remains were brought to this place and burial took place at Barnard cemetery, Rev. Henry Candler officiating.

The deceased was very well known throughout this section of the country and held in high esteem by all those who knew him.

He is survived by his wife, his father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Gregory, one sister and one brother and a host of friends.

There will be a Valentine Box Social at the Marion Center Grange Hall, Saturday evening, February 14th. Everybody come. Adv. 6t.

NEWSPAPERMAN'S EXPERIENCE

Some of the Characters the Publisher Rubs Up Against

The country newspaper man has as good an opportunity as a man in any business to study human nature and learn dispositions in reference to business wherein small amounts of money are involved. His subscription list covers the entire community, or should, but there are always a number who borrow from their neighbors. In our experience in the country newspaper office we have met many kinds of people—good, bad and worst.

We recall coming in contact with a business man who boasted that he did not advertise; he was like Mr. X, who never advertised, when Mr. X was at that time on the verge of a business failure, which was not long in coming. This party was not loyal enough to take his home paper. When a death occurred in the family he came into the newspaper office and between sobs expressed his desire to thank the people; also to request his creditors to come in and settle, as he needed the money, etc. After we had written up a card of thanks and a notice to creditors, after preparing a long obituary, he had the nerve to inquire if he owed us anything. He also wanted some copies to send to relatives.

SURPRISED BY FRIENDS ON BIRTHDAY

Friends of Jesse Allen Gather at Her Home

Miss Jesse Allen was pleasantly surprised Tuesday afternoon by thirteen of her young friends. The occasion being her ninth birthday. Games were played which were greatly enjoyed by the young visitors. A supper was served including a beautiful birthday cake fitting the occasion.

A pleasant time was enjoyed by all and they went home giving the young hostess their best wishes.

STRANGE WAYS OF MAN WHEN HE GETS SICK

"The devil was sick, the devil a saint would be" should be applied to a woman devil only, for no man when he is ill is saintlike in any way.

Men, when they fall ill, fall into a sort of childish state that is most unreasonable and trying for the well members of the family. Illness affects them differently, but it always takes some grouchy form.

One man will retire into a speechless rage, wrap himself up in all the bedding, and refuse to speak or answer questions for hours at a time. His silence is only accepted by deep and mournful groans.

Another man will demand more service in fifteen minutes than the best hotel could furnish in a fortnight. He will want water and ice, broth and hot water bottle and more covers, and a clean pillow slip and interesting literature, all in one breath.

A man who nags his wife to distraction will turn into a honeyed Sir Galahad the minute a trained nurse appears to relieve her.

Then there is always the obstinate man, who will not let a doctor be called until he is at death's door, or thinks he is. When he has invested heavily in medical attention, the next difficult thing to accomplish is to get him to take medicine or follow the doctor's orders, especially in the matter of diet. If he is put on soups and broths, he forthwith demands beef-steak and onions. If nourishing food is prescribed all he will feed upon is hot water and salt.

Women should be grateful for all such evidences of peevishness in sick relatives, however, tiring they may be. For a man who is sick and saintly is fatally ill. Such is the lore of the old ladies. Gentleness is too much for men to indulge in and good nature proves too much for them. They never recover from any attack of holiness.

KNIGHTS OF PYTHIAS ENTERTAIN FAMILIES

Over Eighty Enjoy Fine Six O'clock Supper at Castle Hall

The Courier is compelled to take advantage of that old adage, "better late than never," in mentioning the good time had at the K. P. hall on Thursday evening, January 29th. We can only say that last week was a trying one, part of the force "under the weather," and in the rush to get the paper out on time, we overlooked entirely this item of news which should interest every Knight of Pythias and their friends.

The K. of P.'s are noted as entertainers, and all must admit they lived up to that reputation on this occasion. The supper was all that could be asked for, and as one of the older members stated, "brought one back to the good old days" when an occasion of this kind was a semi-monthly affair.

After the supper (and they were obliged to set a second table to feed all the bunch) dancing, games, etc. were indulged in.

"The best time ever" was the expression voiced by all as the hour of departure came. The committee in charge are to be congratulated on the manner in which they conducted the affair.

High Prices During Civil War.

The cost of staples were extremely high during the four years of the Civil war, and a decline in prices began to set in in 1863 and 1867. The following are the prices of staples which prevailed in 1867: Coal, $8.50 per ton; flour, $11.25 per barrel; sugar, 14 cents a pound; butter, 40 cents per pound; fresh beef, 10½ cents per pound; eggs, 42 cents per dozen.

Picture In Your Mind

If you are really in earnest in your desire to save money you can do it.

Living expenses may be high, and it is a poor policy to stint too much, but there are many little extravagancies and self-indulgences that you can chop off, and you will be surprised how much they amount up in a year's time. By far the easiest way to save is to put your money right in the bank as soon as you get it and only draw out what you actually need. Get out of the habit of carrying a roll of bills in your pocket—it is a foolish and expensive habit, for it invariably leads to spending on "unconsidered trifles."

The DAIRY

MILK STRAINING IMPORTANT

Utensils and Strainer Cloths Should Be Thoroughly Washed and Then Sterilized.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Strainer cloths containing 35,000,000 bacteria per square inch have been found in use on dairy farms.

The average strainer cloth, of which about 36 square inches is in contact with the milk, is likely to contain fully a billion bacteria if it is not washed and sterilized after each milking.

If the cloth is folded, the number of bacteria is likely to be still greater.

Milk produced under conditions where utensils were not sterile was found to contain more than 600,000 bacteria per cubic centimeter.

When all utensils were sterilized, the average bacterioid count was only about 31,000 per cubic centimeter or less than one-twentieth as many.

Bacteria in milk are not necessarily injurious to health, but they reduce its keeping quality. Certain kinds of bacteria, if too numerous, also affect its palatability. For the production of clean milk the department of agriculture urges strict sanitation in every dairy operation.

Utensils and strainer cloths should be thoroughly washed with warm water and washing powder, then rinsed in clean water and sterilized by boiling or steaming for five minutes. After sterilization, the utensils, including pails, cans, strainers, and strainer cloths, should be hung in a clean place where they will be protected from flies and dust. Milk as it leaves the udder of healthy cows is clean and pure and may be kept so by following the methods outlined.

CANS BETTER THAN BUCKETS

Much More Convenient for Handling Milk and Cream in Transferring to the House.

Milk and cream from even a few cows can be much more conveniently handled in regular milk cans than in the shallow pans and wide-mouthed buckets commonly used.

Cans are convenient for collecting the milk at the barn and transferring it to the house.

These cans may be bought in various sizes. For handling cream and skim milk where separators are used, or even where cream is set to sour for butter making, the "shotgun can" is very convenient. It can be easily covered and set in water and is convenient to handle.

Glass of Hot Water Before Breakfast
a Splendid Habit

Open sluices of the system each morning and wash away the poisonous, stagnant matter.

Those of us who are accustomed to a dull and heavy when we arise; pitting headache, stuffy from a cold, foul tongue, nasty breath, acid stomach, lame back, etc., instead, both look and feel as fresh as a daisy always by washing the poisons and toxins from the body with phosphated hot water each morning.

We should drink, before breakfast, a glass of real hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it to flush from the stomach, liver, kidneys and tea yards of bowels the previous day's indigestible waste, non-bile and poisonous toxins, thus cleansing, sweetening and purifying the entire alimentary tract before putting more food into the stomach.

The action of limestone phosphate and hot water on an empty stomach is wonderfully invigorating. It cleans out all the sour fermentations, gases, waste and acidity and gives one a splendid appetite for breakfast and it is said to be but a little while until the roses begin to appear in the cheeks. A quarter pound of limestone phosphate will cost very little at the drug store, but is sufficient to make anyone who is bothered with biliousness, constipation, stomach trouble or humors a real enthusiast on the subject of internal sanitation. Try it and you are assured that you will feel better and feel better in every way shortly.

CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH

The theme for the morning of Sunday, February 15th, will be "Ambassador." The hour is 10:30, and the public is invited most cordially, especially such as have no church home.

We know too little of the comparative merits of the Christian faith as compared with non-Christian religions. And for this reason the minister will give the first of a series of three lectures on "Non-Christian Religions" on next Sunday evening at 7:30 p. m. The theme will be "Hinduism: The Religion of 333,000,000 Gods." These lectures are intended to meet the increasing demand for the study of comparative religions and to do it in a popular way. Instead of requiring people to read voluminous treatises on the non-Christian faiths, the lectures follow the method on travel. It is as if you were taking a journey through India, China, Japan, and Turkey, and learning the strange beliefs and practices of the people first hand. You will see with your own eyes the on-going of Hinduism, Buddhism and Mohammedanism, and will learn how these cults have expressed them-

The Young People's Society will meet in the church parlors at 6:00 p. m. Miss Leone MacNeill will lead. And last Sunday evening we had to move out into the main body of the church—what next Sunday evening?

The Mission Study Class will meet at 4:30 p. m., Thursday, in the church parlors. This will be followed at 5:30 with a Friendship Supper, and the monthly business meeting of the Endeavor Society.

Regular rehearsal of the Cecilia under the direction of Miss Bement at 7:00 p. m. Thursday.

The mid-week meeting will be held at the usual hour Thursday evening. Topic: "Pause—and Prayer."

We are happy to extend our hospitality to the W. C. T. U., who will meet in the church parlors at 2:30 Friday afternoon. The topic will be "Community Problems." This should be an interesting subject.

The officers and workers of the church school enjoyed a splendid "pot luck" and business session in church parlors on Monday evening last. It was marked by a spirit of splendid fellowship, and plans were broached for making more effective the work of the church school in our community.

Reserve the evening of February 24th—and watch for further announcement.

MARY A. STEPHENS CALLED BY DEATH

Body Taken to Freesoil, Mason County For Burial

Thursday morning February 5th, death claims another well esteemed resident of this city when Mary A. Stephens passed away at her home on Robinson Ave.

Mrs. Stephens was born in Schi-octa, Wis., June 23rd, 1869. She was married to John Stephens January 20th, 1890, coming to Charlevoix county from Mason county Michigan in 1903 settling first on Beaver Island, where Mr. Stephens was connected with the Beaver Island Lumber Co. In 1915 they moved from Beaver Island to this vicinity where they have remained until now.

The deceased was a member of the Lady Maccabees and is survived by her husband, John Stephens, a daughter, Mrs. Reuben Pearl of this city, a son, Rex Stephens of Manistiquette, three sisters, one brother and a host of friends.

The body was taken to Freesoil, Mason county, her old home for burial.

LIVE STOCK

STOCK LISTED BY COUNTIES

Most Desirable for Communities to Concentrate on Production of Few Breeds.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

In the nation-wide campaign to promote the general use of purebred sires and better live stock, the United States department of agriculture will keep records of the agricultural counties according to the breeds of live stock which predominate in them. Practical experience has demonstrated the desirability of communities concentrating on the production of only a few breeds and types of the different classes of live stock. Such management not only enables the individual farmer to add each other in improving and upgrading their stock, but also gains for the communities wide reputations as centers for certain breeds. The raising of several dominant breeds in any community makes that locality the mecca for prospective purchasers who are desirous of buying animals of those breeds, and also makes it possible for buyers to obtain stock in large quantities.

For the service of persons interested in examining or selecting live stock, the department will keep a record of the dominant breeds and varieties of the different kinds of live stock in each county where such information is obtained from accurate and dependable sources. Pending future developments in this work, a breed or variety will be considered dominant if 100 or more good purebred sires of that breed or variety are owned and used for breeding in a county. Sources of information concerning these farm animals will include county agents, officials of state agricultural colleges, and representatives of state boards of agriculture. The department requests that state and county live stock associations transmit figures and all data available on the purebred sires of their region to their local county agent or the state agricultural college. This material should include a statement of the number of purebred sires in the county, together with the date when the information was gathered. Initiative in collecting sons wishing to purchase any kind of live stock may ascertain readily what counties in the United States, according to the records, have purebred sires of the various breeds in which they are interested. Naturally where as many as 100 purebred sires are used in a community, these herd headers will stamp their quality to a considerable extent on the live stock of that county and lead to the production of many desirable grade females, as well as purebred stock of both sexes. Furthermore, in counties where a certain breed is considered dominant, even though there are less than 100 purebred sires, such facts should be reported and will be kept as supplementary records.

BEST AGE FOR WEANING PIGS

Good Plan to Let Parkers Nurse Until Twelve or Fourteen Weeks of Age—Keep Them Growing.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Too many farmers follow the practice of weaning pigs when ten young, many being weaned at six and seven weeks of age. A good brood sow properly fed has a good flow of milk when the pigs are of this age. There is no better feed for growing pigs than their mother's milk, consequently it should be used to the greatest extent possible. When the pigs are of suckling age the sow should be on full feed. Unless there is some extraordinary reason for earlier weaning the pigs should not be weaned under the age of ten weeks, and it is better to let them nurse until they are twelve or fourteen weeks old.

Often serious results follow weaning at too early an age. An entire change of feed following weaning may create serious trouble. If, however, pigs have access to corn, shorts, middlings or truckage, or fish meal in a self-feeder placed in the open where they can eat at pleasure without being disturbed by other hogs, they can be weaned at the age of twelve or fourteen weeks, with very little change in their feed, by allowing them to continue on the self-feeder.

To obtain the best results pigs should gain continuously until they are ready for market. The best results will not be obtained unless pigs have access all the time possible to good forage crops, alfalfa and red clover preferred. If these feeds cannot be procured rye, oats, barley, cowpeas, rape or any other grain or grasses that will produce good forage in the locality should be sown. The pigs should be watched closely to see that they are on their feed. If they are not the feed should be changed, replacing corn with barley and using skim milk or buttermilk if possible. The pigs should be kept free from lice by the use of crude or good black oil. They must have access at all times to good, pure water. Shade must be provided during the hot summer months. Natural shade is always best, but where this is not obtainable temporary shade may be provided by setting posts and nailing boards on poles about three and one-half or four feet from the ground and covering with straw or grass.

FEEDING AVERAGE DAIRY COW

Certain Amount of Clover Hay, Corn Silage and Grain Required for Winter Feed.

An average dairy cow that is capable of producing 250 to 300 pounds of butterfat a year, will require a ton of clover hay, three tons of corn silage, and around 1,500 pounds of grain for her winter feed or for the time she is fed indoors. If the hay is of first-class quality and the corn silage has considerable corn, the hay may be increased and the amount of grain decreased.

Appropriations from general fund Agricultural Society

Leaving an indebtedness on this building of

This deficit has been cared for temporarily by loans which we hope to repay from future contributions to this building fund.

The work of the fair of 1919 completed all attention was turned to the work of the fair for 1920. It is the object of the fair committee to make the next year's fair the biggest and largest in history. The mere fact that it can be done was shown this year. During the fair period of 1919, there were two days of dry weather, but during these two days a record gate receipt was taken in. It was enough to cover the operating expenses of the fair, but not of the improvements.

The fair of 1920 will be a five day fair, adding one day to the fairs of heretofore, thus giving more time in case of bad weather, as was the result this year. The fair for 1920 will be held September 13th, 14th, 15th, 16th and 17th, from Monday to Saturday, and all entries to the 1920 fair will be closed Tuesday of the fair week.

Improvements will be made on the grounds and buildings in general. A big increase will be made in the amount of premiums to be awarded and everything possible will be done to make the fair bigger and better. Charlevoix county at the present time spends more money for free attractions to entertain its patrons than any other fair in northern Michigan.

The Educational building is one of the biggest features of the Charlevoix County fair. This building is the only one of its type in the state of Michigan and was erected for the use of the school work and the teachers and pupils. It is their building and the success of this enterprise depends upon the work that they do to insure its progress. The county is interested and will do all they can to aid, this fact being shown by their award $500 in premiums for school work.

The Night fair that was curtailed by weather condition in 1919 will again be in force at the 1920 fair and three days of fair week will be devoted to the night fair. On every night there will be entirely different fair program from that given during the day and it is the desire of the fair committee to incur more interest into this form of fair amusement.

In order to make the fair of 1920 the biggest in fair history co-operation of the county is necessary and this is the only thing asked of the people.

Republican State Convention

The republican state convention will be held at Kalamazoo, and May 5th has been fixed as the date. The main business to come before the convention will be the selection of four delegates at large to the republican national convention to be held in Chicago. Charlevoix county will be entitled to six delegates.

RETURNS SHOW GOOD WORK

SCHOOL COMMISSIONER'S REPORT OF MID-YEAR EXAMS.

Marked Improvement Noted in the Work of the Different Schools of the County This Year.

Return are now at hand from every part of the county on the rural school mid-year examinations. The commissioner has received all but five reports, three if these from schools in which the teacher has been unable to give the test because of enforced vacations due to illness in the district, and the remaining two in which the questions did not arrive and it was necessary for the teacher to ask for a second supply. In these schools the examination is being given this week with an extension of time for report from the school.

The teachers liked the questions this year better than ever before. During the war, the rush of campaign work made necessary a number of shortcuts and the questions were purchased from a state agency that did not quite conform to our local conditions. In spite of the fact that school work in the office has more than trebled, Miss Stewart wrote the questions this year and had them printed locally, managing also to have them printed in half day leaflets, in quantities such that each child might have a set of questions for his personal use. This obviated the extra work of writing on the blackboards and of dictating the questions and the teachers were able to manage the two day test better than ever before. The teachers were particularly pleased with the great amount of oral work, with the summaries, and the the special features that were food for thought. Never did an old time painful mid-year operation become a modern school pleasure more in reality than on January 21-22, 1920.

It is scarcely fair to rate a school on the results of the examination alone. Standards vary, bases of judgment vary, and the teacher in charge is the only one who actually knows the rating of her pupils and her school. A few schools however, stand out in marked contrast for the good returns found in reports of the test. These schools are: Horton Bay, Cramer, Boyne Falls, Ilmarin, Forest Hill, Major, East Chandler, Wildwood, Advance, Mountain School, Walker, Star, Murray, Maple Grove, Hoffman, Nowland, Clarion, Howard, Walloon Lake, Hilton, Wilson School, and Pleasant Valley.

The following students made unusually good records as indicated by the general average reported: Arthur Temmerman, Irving Coykendall, Fay Martin, Ruby Teboe, Olga Hipp, Ina Hutton, Dorcas Hipp, Daniel Green, Wilma Wells, Hilda Cook, Marguerite Sherck, Olga Jensen, Charlie Sherck, John Older, Mary Holmberg, Gretchen Webb, Alice Colton, Clifford Hunkins, Willis Ecker, Eva Hime, Jennie Kent, Arthur Lloyd, Clinton Older, Alice Ecker, Viola Fine, Clara McDonald, Laurence Milne, Anna Sevanski, Ruby Webster, Neva Webster, Frank Burnett, Viora Ferguson, Roscoe Wright, Daniel Reich, Winifred Meggison. MILLIONS TO GO FOR HIGHWAYS

STATE ROAD PROGRAM INCLUDES 1,350 MILES.

Many Cities Are Applying for State Aid to Construction of Roads—Work to Be Pushed.

Michigan's road program for this year includes construction of 1,350 miles of improved highways, Frank F. Rogers, state highway commissioner, announced at the annual meeting of the State Association of Supervisors.

Contracts have already been let for building 367 miles of trunk line highway at a cost of $4,600,000. During the next few weeks bids will be sought for construction of 350 miles of hard-surface roads, mostly concrete and brick; 150 miles of macadam and 300 miles of gravel.

Contracts for 236 miles of Federal aid roads had been let up to the first of this month. The cost will be $3,074,000. Michigan's share of the two Federal road apportionments is $7,052,000. The state has completed 27 miles of Federal aid roads. This is more than has been done in any other except Ohio and Pennsylvania.

The government has furnished upwards of a million dollars' worth of road-building equipment, formerly the property of the army. This consists of 313 motor trucks, some cement-mixing machinery, explosives, office furniture, drafting and engineering instruments. Besides trucks now being equipped with dump boxes at the state's plant in Charlotte, 126 already equipped have been distributed to 71 counties.

The new law permitting the highway department to build roads through municipalities that are willing to turn streets over to the state has caused 149 cities and villages to apply. Many of the streets affected lie between improved sections of the trunk line system and have hitherto been in poor condition as to hinder traffic on the state roads.

Many of the older state road and trunk line roads are becoming rutty through lack of attention, Mr. Rogers pointed out. A maintenance engineer has been placed in charge of these roads and the patrol system will be extended and improved this year.

Care of roads will be greatly improved, Mr. Rogers pointed out, under the county road system. During the last year 15 counties adopted this system, making a total of 78 operating under it. The five that still have the township system are to vote on the question of changing this spring.

The state has improved 2,000 miles of its 5,500-mile trunk line system besides constructing 5,000 miles of other roads, mainly highways bringing the farmer within easier reach of his markets.

The State Highways Advisory board at its last meeting approved the policy of the highway department with regard to construction of gravel and macadam roads where the traffic is not heavy. Although the upkeep of these roads is expensive, the commissioner said it would not be feasible to build only cement and brick roads. The cost would be upward of $30,000 a mile and the money available under the Good Roads Amendment would not be sufficient to improve the rest of the trunk line system to say nothing of the market roads so important to the farmer.

The only difficulty in the way of carrying a record breaking highway program this year, Mr. Rogers told the supervisors, is an evident reluctance on the part of contractors to submit bids at reasonable figures. All bids on four roads recently advertised have been rejected as too high.

HIGH SCHOOL GIVES PROGRAM

In Honor of Lincoln's Birthday February 12th

A very interesting program was given in the high school assembly room last Thursday in honor of the birthday of Abraham Lincoln. The following program was rendered by different members of the high school.

Program
1. Chorus—Patriotic Selection.
2. Stories of Lincoln's Boyhood—Margaret Milner.
3. America—By School.
4. Pictures and Stories of Lincoln—Marjorie Myers.
5. Rendering "The Perfect Tribute"—M. R. S. Andrews—Helen Mason.

BIG FORTUNES MADE BY WAR

RICHEST MAN PAYS TAX ON $35,000,000 INCOME.

One Thousand Four Hundred and Seventy-six New Millionaires Made in 1916.

America's millionaires increased by 1,476 in the first year of the war in Europe. During the second year the increase was twice as great, for in 1910 there were 2,809 more millionaires than in 1915. And in 1918, while the net growth was only 31, the true situation rests in the old saying, "Him who has—gets!" The increase of that year were in increased incomes of those included in the totals of years gone by.

The figures come from the statistical compilations made by Uncle Sam from the income tax returns. These figures for 1916 have only recently been computed and the general statistics from the 1917 returns are still in process of tabulation.

Distribution of these new millionaires throughout the country shows them thickest where war activities were greatest, with New York state alone carrying 2,388 of these individuals within her borders. Nevada was the only state that didn't claim a millionaire resident in 1917, but the millionaires who have been made from Nevada's mineral deposits live elsewhere, that's all.

When this analysis is brought down to a distribution by occupation the war comes up again. Of American millionaires, capitalists as a group made up 3,383 of the total; manufacturers who made war material 920, and the producers of food, 120. An other group closely related to the war included corporation officials, among whom were 716 millionaires. The largest income in 1917 was $34,936,604. The man who paid tax on that much pin money claimed to be unmarried, which makes it appear to be Standard Oil's daddy, J. D. Rockefeller, since widowers are single men under the income tax law. Still another of these great incomes was reported by a "single woman," who received $5,794,559. It may have been Mrs. E. H. Harriman, widow of the railroad magnate. Again this "richest woman" may not have been Mrs. Harriman. The internal revenue department takes every precaution to keep these things secret.

In 1917 there were four incomes of more than $5,000,000 on which taxes were paid. Illinois' richest man pays taxes on an income of $3,000,000.

The official view of a millionaire these days is one whose income exceeds $100,000 a year.

Pennsylvania is next to New York in claiming these extremely wealthy. She had three taxpayers who received more than $2,000,000 during the year, 33 who received more than $1,000,000, and graded along the scale to 456 men and women whose incomes were more than $100,000 and less than $150,000.

Little Delaware, with her wealthy Du Ponts, had one person who paid a return on an income more than $3,000,000 and another who paid on more than $4,000,000. Seven people there enjoyed incomes of more than $1,000,000 for the year. There were 62 of these millionaire people in the state.

In this great group of excessively rich over the United States there were 227 classed as "single women" who were in the $100,000.

The most successful business man in the country, whoever he is, reported an income of $10,826,318 from his work, and the most expensive "hired man" comes from Michigan, according to the latest returns. He paid a tax of nearly $3,000,000, indicating that flippers may have helped him out. He had a rival in Delaware, who paid a tax of $2,766,808, which is figured by government statistics as having been at the rate of 55.82 per cent, suggesting an income tax of $4,777,474 for "being hired." There is no industry in Delaware outside of the great Du Pont organization at Wilmington that could think in such figures. By "hired man" it means that he was listed among "employees, superintendents, office men, etc."

This income tax business is Uncle Sam's right hand hower in getting rid of public debt. From the latest available figures it is shown that individuals through the income tax returns contributed in 1918 on their 1917 incomes a great total of $361,486,177, while corporations in the same period of time yielded Uncle Sam's strong boxes just $2,142,446,709.

WELL KNOWN SUMMER RESORTER DEAD

Occupied Paddock Cottage For Past Five Seasons

A letter just been received by R.W. Paddock, announcing the death, on January 4th, of Victor Abraham, a lawyer of Cincinnati, Ohio, who with his wife, his daughter, Mrs. Teresa A. Strauss and two children, have occupied the Paddock cottage for the past five summers.

Mr. Abraham will be remembered as having conducted the Jewish services on Friday evenings during two or three seasons at such times when a rabbi was unavailable. His addresses will long be remembered as highly religious in character and skillfully oratorical.

Although well along in the seventies he was physically active and alert in mind. A book lover and student, a frequent visitor to our public library to which he contributed several volumes.

HIGH SCHOOL LECTURE COURSE

NEXT NUMBER TO BE GIVEN THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 26th

Montague Light Opera Company Will Furnish Entertainment at Next Number of the Lecture Course

The well-known Montague Light Opera Company, which appear here on the Lyceum course Thursday evening, Palace Theatre, has made a record for substantial artistic achievement. This company has made several tours of the United States and everywhere has been wonderfully received.

Newspaper comments of the Montague Company are unfailingly enthusiastic. The following from the Lansing, Michigan State Journal is at typical newspaper notice:

"Memories of the best and most tuneful light operas of bygone days were called to the minds of the elders and new appreciation of 'Robin Hood,' the 'Mikado,' 'Cisha' and others of their type, was had in the minds of the younger ones who, with the elders, made up the large audience which heard the Montague Light Opera singers at the Prudden auditorium.

"The first half of the program consisted of solo numbers, and scenes from several light operas. Of the solos Haydn Thomas' basso, number, 'When I Myself Was Young,' greatly pleased the audience and he was forced to respond to two encores, the last of which was 'Rocked in the Cradle of the Deep.' John Eichenberger, tenor, sang the part of 'Nicola' from Victor Herbert's opera, 'The Red Mill,' in excellent style. Mr. Eichenberger has a sweet tenor voice.

"The last half of the program consisted of an operetta given by all four members of the company, 'A Japanese Romance.' This consisted of numbers from 'Madam Butterfly' and the 'Mikado.' It was given in costume. Mr. Thomas in the role of the Lord High Executioner, did some very clever acting.

"Miss Altha Montague read a eulging from J. M. Barrie's play 'Quality Street,' in a manner that pleased."

This is an especially strong number, and single admissions will be 75 cents.

MRS. O. A. SEARS CALLED BY DEATH

Passes Away Sunday Morning at 10:30 A. M.

Mrs. O. A. Sears and old resident of Charlevoix passed away Sunday morning, February 15th, at 10:30 a. m., at the home of Mrs. L. B. Bartlett where she has been making her home.

Mrs. Sears was seventy-nine years of age and has resided in Charlevoix for a number of years. The remains were taken to Saginaw for burial and were accompanied by the son of the deceased, Frank Sears of this city and a daughter, Mrs. Sears Thomas. The funeral will be held at Saginaw Thursday afternoon, February 19th.

CHARLEVOIX DEFEATS BOYNE CITY

BY THE SCORE OF 22 TO 12 AT BOYNE CITY

Reserve Team Won From Central Lake 36 to 13—Girls Team Victors Over Central Lake Girls

The basket ball team of the Charlevoix high school made a grand clean up last Friday night all three of the teams playing coming out on the long ends of the score.

The big game of course was the first team with Boyne City at the Boyne City gymnasium. The boys scored their third consecutive victory on foreign courts by defeating Boyne 22 to 12.

Charlevoix started the game off with a rush and by fine team work piled up a lead of thirteen points in the first half. The rest of the game was hotly contested but Charlevoix held their big lead until the final whistle.

Speltz was the most consistent player for Boyne City scoring ten of her twelve points and he was ably assisted by Poquette at guard.

For Charlevoix, Weststaff at center played a fine game securing the tip off from his opponent nearly every time although the Boyne City coach used three men against him during the game. Capt. Krulick and Halverson at forwards display some wonderful team work and netted seven field goals. They were highly commended from the side lines. Hammet and Jones at guards offered their usual stonewall defense and the opposing forward secured but two field baskets.

Charlevoix has now defeated Belaire, Harbor Springs, Boyne City on their home floor and have been defeated once by Petoskey who in turn was defeated by Harbor Springs previous to Charlevoix's victory over Harbor thus giving Charlevoix the edge on Petoskey and a real claim to the Northern Michigan title.

Following is the line-up of the two teams Friday night:

Charlevoix	Boyme City
Halverson	R. F. Speltz
Krulick	L. F. Vogg
Weststaff	C. Scott
Jones	R. C. Poquette
Hammet	L. C. Myers

Goals from field; Halverson 4, Krulick 3, Weststaff 2, Speltz 2, Myers 1. Goal from fouls; Speltz 2 out seven. Weststaff 4 out of 6. Substitutes; Charlevoix, Smith, Hallett. Boyne City, McIntyre, Swift. Referee Cutler, Petoskey. Time 20 minute halves.

Central Lake Teams Both Defeated

While the first team was taking Boyne City into camp at Boyne, the reserve team was busy, defeated the Central Lake high school team by the score of 36 to 13 on the local court. The week previous Central Lake defeated this team by a large score and the boys were evidently out for revenge.

The game was interesting from the start to finish and both sides played good basket ball. Hallett, Aekert, and Jacobs starred for Charlevoix while Brown and Geiken played good games at guard, allowing the opponents a single field basket. Following is the line-up of the two teams: Charlevoix—Aekert, R. F.; Hallett, L. F.; Jacobs, C.; Ceiken, R. (Continued on page 8)

DAGO DOINGS IN CHICAGO

The following is copied from the Grand Rapids Press:

Chicago, February 9th—"Mary one or die." Said Giacoma Mirabello to Angelina Costanzo. Angelina told her father. He killed Giacoma with a butcherknife.

Giacoma has a record as a killer the police say.

Set to music by a local anonymous Shakespeare it reads:

SALTS IF BACKACHE AND KIDNEYS HURT

Drink lots of water and stop eating meat for a while if your bladder troubles you.

When you wake up with backache and dull misery in the kidney region it generally means you have been eating too much meat, says a well-known authority. Meat forms an acid which overworks the kidneys in their effort to filter it from the blood and they become sort of paralyzed and lazy. When your kidneys get sluggish and clog you must relieve them, like you relieve your bowels: removing all the body's urinous waste, else you have backache, sick headache, dizzy spells, your stomach sour, tongue is coated, and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine is cloudy, full of sediment, channels often get sore, water seals and you are obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night.

Either consult a good, reliable physician at once or get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to clean and stimulate sluggish kidneys, also to neutralize acids in the urine so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is a life saver for regular meat eaters. It is innocuous, cannot injure and makes a delightful, effective lithia-water drink.

Why More Small Cars Come Equipped With Goodyear Tires

Last year, more small cars, using 30 x 3-, 30 x 3½, or 31 x 4-inch tires, were factory-equipped with Goodyear Tires than with any other kind.

This is plainly a result of the high relative value produced in these small-car tires by Goodyear's enormous resources and scrupulous care.

They represent the same intense endeavor to supply utmost satisfaction in tires that has laid the basis for the marked preference which exists everywhere for Goodyear Tires in the larger sizes.

This real Goodyear value in tires is available for your Ford, Chevrolet, Dort, Maxwell, or other small car, at our nearest Service Station. Go there for these tires and Goodyear Heavy Tourist Tubes.

The educational world is turning its attention to the problem of rural education. There are great opportunities ahead for those who take up this work and qualify themselves now by the proper training. The rural schools of Michigan are paying better wages every year and there is always a demand for good rural teachers. Every teacher in Michigan must have normal training of some kind. The County Normal aims to give the right kind of training for rural teachers. Only a limited number of students can be taken care of in the County Normal each year. Persons who wish to enter the County Normal for the next year should make arrangements now.

AT THE MOVIES

Episode 4.

Another smashing episode of "Elmo the Mighty" is to be shown at the Palace Theatre February 25, the fourth installment of this big Universal serial, which introduces Elmo Lincoln, star of the "Tarzan" pictures as a serial star.

Cast as a forest ranger, Lincoln, aided by Lucille Gray (Grace Gundard) continues his operations against the gang of swindlers who have ruined the good name of Lucille's father. The episode works up to a thrilling climax, which leaves the spectators in great suspense.

Coming at the Palace Theatre March 6th, Douglas Fairbanks in the first United Artists Corporation picture "His Majesty the American."

The picture itself is said to be the most magnificent production that Fairbanks has ever undertaken. Eight weeks were devoted exclusively to the preparation of the scenario. Joseph Henneberry who created the part of "Lincoln" in the Birth of a Nation and who assisted D. W. Griffith in producing "Intolerance," and also directed Douglas Fairbanks in "The Man from Painted Post," "Say Young Fellow" and other noteworthy successes, developed the scenario with assistance of Elton Banks. Mr. Henneberry, of course, is the director of "His Majesty, the American."

In addition to a company of high-salaried actors that in themselves guarantee splendid support for the agile "Doug," "His Majesty, the American" is said to have cost a fortune in point of actual production.

Mr. Fairbanks has set a mark which it will be hard to approach in settings for his new picture. Money has been spent lavishly in providing the atmosphere necessary for the successful portrayal of the story but the results have completely justified the tremendous outlay.

Its presentation at the Palace Theatre should be a genuine event among the motion picture enthusiasts of the city.

It can be said that Saturday night is not what it used to be.

Carrying a Ton a Mile for less than a Cent

Freight rates have played a very small part in the rising cost of living.

Other causes—the waste of war, under-production, credit inflation—have added dollars to the cost of the necessities of life, while freight charges have added only cents.

The average charge for hauling a ton of freight a mile is less than a cent.

A suit of clothing that sold for $30 before the war was carried 2,265 miles by rail from Chicago to Los Angeles for 16½ cents.

Now the freight charge is 22 cents and the suit sells for $50.

The cost of the suit has increased 20 dollars.

The freight on it has increased only 5½ cents.

Other transportation charges enter into the cost of the finished article—carrying the wool to the mills and the cloth to the tailors—but these other charges amount to but a few cents more.

The $10 pair of shoes that used to sell for $5 goes from the New England factory to the Florida dealer for a freight charge of 5½ cents—only one cent more than the pre-war rate.

Beef pays only two-thirds of a cent a pound freight from Chicago to New York.

American freight rates are the lowest in the world.

THE NATIONAL CAPITAL
By J. E. Jones

The Doctrine of Good Will

In the Senate recently there was a sort of post-mortem on the "Daylight Saving Law," and through statements that were introduced into the Congressional Record it is plain that the commonly repeated charges against the "lighting interests" that they were actively opposed to daylight saving law, cannot be sustained. Senator William M. Calder of New York, stated he had investigated and found no evidence to warrant the accusation that the gas companies of the country had been spreading propaganda among the farmers. More directly bearing upon the subject is the letter of Oscar H. Fogg, Secretary-Manager of the American Gas Association, to Senator Calder, in which he says that "the effect of the daylight saving law upon gas companies has been so negligible as to be unworthy of consideration and in several large situations which the writer personally examined, the difference in sale of gas due to daylight saving, was so small that it could not even be definitely established."

Incident to this subject an electric light man at Denver has produced a classic that should be framed and hung in the office of every mayor, on the walls of all city council chambers, and everywhere about the operating establishments of public utilities, since the sentence in a few words defines with absolute correctness the ideal relations that should exist in every locality. Says the Illuminating Board of Denver:

"An electric light company may lose a little temporary revenue, but the prosperity of the utility corporation is dependent upon the prosperity and the good will of the community it serves, and it will benefit in the long run from any condition that helps the community."

Overhead Costs

A new member has come into the President's cabinet, and in assuming his portfolio in the Agricultural Department Mr. Edwin T. Meredith, the Iowa farm paper editor, has expounded some very good philosophy to the effect that business men must look to the operation of their establishments, no matter in what line they may be engaged, and see that no useless employee is retained to add to the cost of distributing what the farmer now produces.

Mr. Meredith starts well, and if he continues he may prune down the "useless employees" of the Department of Agriculture, of which he is the head. He is likely, if he investigates, to find that the common talk in Washington that there are 40,000 too many government clerks in the Capital, is an entirely conservative estimate, and it would be very strange if some of these were not loafing in his department. Thousands of war workers have become mere parasites upon the government, and attempts to get rid of them usually result in their transfer from one branch of the public business to another. The "political pull" is working overtime.

Overhead costs in distributing "what the farmer now produces" might likely be cut in the matter of transportation itself, since General W. W. Atterbury, who operated the American railroads in France put his finger on one of the sources of trouble in the Pennsylvania shops, when he told the employees that "prior to our entrance into the war you were on a piece-work basis as well as working on a ten hour day. When the government took over the railroads, piecework was stopped. The output per man per hour fell 25 per cent. The shops were put on an eight-hour schedule. This cut the output an additional 15 per cent, so that the output per man per hour in our shops is but 60 per cent of what it was before the war."

This is concrete case, and it seems to verify the statement that the railroads with immensely increased numbers of employees have not been carrying on a larger volume of business than under the days of privately controlled railroads. Mr. Meredith can do no better work in Washington than to help deflate things in the interests of the farmers. For he knows that the men who till the soil, and who have stuck by their jobs while farm help has been flocking to the city, lured, as a farmer has put it to the government, by "the promise of shorter hours, high wages, and the promise of a good time," deserve every consideration that the United States can extend to the basic industry which raised the food for humanity. But Mr. Meredith is apt to be shocked at the number of men in his department who are not unlike other government employees, since they are eager champions of the policy that Gompers and others have attempted to popularize to the detriment of industry, since "short hours, high wages and a good time" do not furnish the remedy for the remedy for the ills and evils in social and industrial life that are crying for a cure.

Insurance Comes Up in the Senate

There has been an endless amount of complaining over War Risk Insurance, notwithstanding that it is the best bargain from the point of view of dollars and cents that Uncle Sam had on his war-bargain counter. Under the direction of Colonel R. G. Cholmeley-Jones the War Risk Bureau has tackled the monumental task of establishing a complete identity of each and every farmer soldier. If this could have been successfully done earlier in the proceedings before so many of the men who were in the army and navy became so thoroughly out of patience with the way their affairs were muddled, the standing of the Bureau would have been far better than it now is. Every inducement has been extended to former service men to continue their insurance, and everyone who is familiar with life insurance and the purposes of the government is united in advising all former service men to keep up their policies, or to have them reinstated if they have lapsed. Senator Overman on the floor of the Senate furnished proof of the feasibility of the government plan, and indicated how it has been demonstrated by a private company. "I was once insured in a company, which I think is one of the most successful insurance companies in the world," said Senator, who related that in the instance of the privately operated company that "they wrote an immense volume of insurance without agents. It is a strong company and is conducting a great business in this country," he continued; "it is known as the Postal Life Insurance Company." The Senator said that "instead of employing special agents at $5 a day and expenses or $1600 or $2,000 or $2400 a year, they use the mails and printed matter." Senator Overman expressed himself as convinced in the belief that a full explanation of the government's plan "would bring each soldier and sailor back onto the government's rolls." Life insurance without agents was first put into successful operation in the United States by the Postal Life, with regards to which Senator Overman enlightened the Senate. William R. Malone, its president, was at one time an agent for the New York Life Insurance Company. In 1905 he started in to back up his conviction that life insurance could be written without agents, thereby saving immense sums to the policyholders. Today the company is headquartered in its own building, which is one of the finest to be found on Fifth Avenue in New York City. Under the guidance of Mr. Malone this company has achieved a monumental success as a private enterprise, along the lines which the government has tried to imitate. The great difference is that the privately operated company has satisfied policyholders, while there are something like 3,000,000 "sore policyholders" in the government concern. It seems to be a reputation of the same class of failures that were recorded in the government operation of railroads and telegraph lines. Notwithstanding this condition there is a reason to believe that War Risk Insurance can still be "pulled through." This belief rests largely upon the fact that the plan is basically correct, as has been pointed out by Senator Overman. And in every community there should be built up a strong local sentiment in favor of bringing the former service men back into the fold.

Catarrhal Deafness Cannot Be Cured
by local applications as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure Catarrhal Deafness, and that is by a constitutional remedy. HALL'S CATARRH MEDICINE acts through the blood on the mucous surfaces of the system. Catarrhal Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result. Unless the inflammation can be removed and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing may be destroyed forever. Many cases of Deafness are caused by Catarrh, which is an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces. ONE HUNDRED DOLLARS or any case of Catarrhal Deafness that cannot be cured by HALL'S CATARRH MEDICINE.

Now All You Good Fellows, Come Fill Up Your Pipes

15c

The Velvet tin is twice as big as shown here

If ever men are "Torn" and "Bill" to each other, it's when good pipes are a-going. If ever good pipes go their best, 'tis when Velvet's in the bowl.

For Velvet is a mighty friendly smoke. Kentucky Burley is the leaf that Nature made for pipes. Wholesome and hearty, honest as the day. And Velvet is that same good Burley leaf, brought to mellow middle age.

For eight long seasons Velvet "meditates" in wooden hogsheads, throwing off the rawness of "young" tobacco—truly "ageing in the wood." Out Velvet comes—cool, calm and generous—the tobacco Nature made good, kept good and made better.

Velvet's sweetness is the sweetness of good tobacco, not "put on" like "frosting" on a cake. Its mildness comes from natural ageing, not from having the life baked out. Its fragrance is true tobacco fragrance, not a perfume. And Velvet makes an A Number One cigarette. Roll one.

As good old Velvet Joe says:

"Fill yo' heart with friendly thoughts,
Yo' mouth with friendly smoke—
An' let the old world wag."

THE INDUSTRY "GONE CRAZY."

An organ of the Michigan grange speaks of the automobile trade as an "industry gone crazy." Assuming that this is so, then the great American public is loony too. The automobile trade is building factories and introducing new machinery and spurring up its organizations to more and more expenditures of energy because of the vast demand for its products, the widespread fondness for the whirr and foot and snort and chain-rattling of these same products.

A statistical person has figured it out that at the close of 1919 there were 7,555,269 motor cars and trucks running at large in this country. By the end of the present year, so he promises, the count will be ten millions. A compilation of registration records show that there are now more motor driven vehicles in New York, Illinois, Ohio, California and Pennsylvania than in the confines of the continent of Europe, throwing in the United Kingdom and Ireland for good measure. There is now a car for about every fifteen inhabitants of the United States. A few more years of this general prosperity, the escape of un-toward conditions which might interfere with the production of raw materials, and the ten million mark will be far in the background, eclipsed by statistics which indicate a garage in every backyard and a man changing a tire in every block.

There are times, we may suspect, when the automobile trade is even readier to admit it has "gone crazy" than our grange paper is to charge it—as for instance on the days that orders and production seem just about balanced. The industry isn't used to such a thing, and is naturally bound to think it is seeing the production figures doubled.

HOW WE WON THE WAR.
In view of the current revelations by Admiral Sims on the witness stand before congress regarding the errors in the naval conduct of the war and with our memories still full of the strictures against the conduct of the army affairs which have filled the columns of the press since the day of armistice, the question naturally arises—

How did we win the war, anyway? For a while we thought we knew; now it appears to be very much of a mystery. If the other allied nations have similar reports of action, lack of co-operation and wasted effort to give, then yet another bomb has been placed beneath the fiction of "German efficiency." For if Germany couldn't win under such circumstances, it must have been because her efforts were even less co-ordinated than our own.

However, for our part, we are going to shut our eyes and make just one guess as to who won the war. The American doughboy; not to mention the gob. While cabinet members, generals, admirals and other executives of high or low degree messed things up with petty jealousies, red tape and perhaps bona fide inefficiency here and there, the doughboy and the gob, having nothing else to do and having enlisted for the purpose of licking the kaiser, minded their own business and finished the job. So far as we are concerned, that's how we won the war.

BACKS.
Old-fashioned folk used to speak of a woman's beauty as if it related simply to her face. Times change. We gather from the stage, pictures in society columns, magazine covers and the "Movies" that beauty involves a much larger area than the face, taking in no less than the entirety of a woman's back from neck to waistline together with such moles and freckles as nature has generously thrown in for good measure. No doubt all this represents the progress in good taste for which artists have so strenuously been appealing. But we must say it entails—in our opinion—a simply frightful extension of the duties of the face powder.—Detroit Journal.

The North Dakota Democrats who have endorsed the "leadership of Woodrow Wilson and William J. Bryan" may find themselves in the position of a man tied to two wild horses that have different feeding places.

When their navy fights on land the American people turn aside in disgust. Better that it follow the old Hardsell Baptist's dictum: "Don't go 'round and about the water, but go right into the water."

Anyhow the row over the treaty ratification is teaching the Europeans a lot of things about the machinery of American government they might never have otherwise learned.

One man says Europe owes the United States eighteen billion dollars and that eighteen billion dollar "Owen Moore went away, owing more than he could pay."

Time brings many changes. Lots of merchants, when small boys, had difficulty learning the multiplication table. Now, they're too proficient with it.

William J. Bryan was not among those seated at the speakers' table at the banquet given to Homer S. Cummings, chairman of the Democratic national committee.

Another view of the case, Holland may want to keep, the kaiser so she will know whether the kaiser is. He was at one time one of her worries.

"Sir Oliver Lodge says the next world may be just like this. Sir Oliver talks like a real estate man exploiting a new sub-division."

Profiteers seem to be inspired by the same emotions that animated the German kaiser throughout the big war. They are after loot.

Senator Reed is pawing up the sod in front of the flaming bit of color the New York World has flung across the political fence.

Berstorff says he isn't afraid to stand trial in France? But would he dare to come to America if America had demanded him?

LENTEN SEASON BEGINS WEDNESDAY

Lasts For Forty Days—Easter Comes on April Four.

Lent, that forty days' season of sackcloth and ashes, was ushered in this year Wednesday, Feb. 18, two weeks earlier than last year and five days later than on the year previous.

With the return of this period of self abnegation and humility, all Christian people will make preparations for the feast of Easter. In all of the churches of the city, special Lenten services will be observed, but most particularly in the Catholic and Episcopal churches will the time of repentance and penance be kept.

The method of determining the time of Lent dates back to medieval times, when after much argument and discussion, it was decided that the first Sunday following the first full moon after March 21—the vernal equinox—should be Easter Sunday. And the forty-day period before that date exclusive of Sundays, should determine Ash Wednesday.

The forty days is significant of the forty-days fast of Christ. During this period the church asks her people to practice self-denial and penance in commemoration of the Savior's forty days in the mountains.

Ash Wednesday, Feb. 18; Palm Sunday, March 28; Maundy Thursday, April 1; Good Friday, April 2; and Easter Sunday April 4, are the days that are particularly observed.

Ash Wednesday is so named as a reminder to the people that they sprang from dust, and into dust they will return; Palm Sunday is the day upon which palms brought from the Holy Land are blest and distributed; Maundy Thursday commemorates the institution of the Holy Eucharist at the last supper; Good Friday is observed in memory of the Savior's passion and crucifixion and Easter of course, is celebrated in honor of His resurrection.

SOLDIER'S AND SAILOR'S RECORDS

For Ex-service Men of Charlevoix and Vicinity

To all service men of Charlevoix and vicinity:

This is an urgent message to you from the State War Board, asking you to fill out the service record blank which has probably been furnished to you by someone in charge of the work in your county. In filling out the blank you are asked to make the copy directly from the discharge papers and add the other items asked for upon the blank. Be sure to give your identification number, and mother's maiden name. You are further asked to write something upon the back of the blank concerning your individual experiences while in service.

In asking you for this record there is nothing behind the request other than the desire to pay a tribute to you, individually, and to preserve for your descendants and other children who will live many years from now, the historical facts connected with yourself and your service in this greatest of all wars.

The record is not a matter of idle curiosity or of present use. It is solely to preserve the part played by our splendid Michigan men in the late war and to save for the future all matters that may become of interest or value.

Every county in the state is making a record like ours and we want to make the best possible showing from this county. Won't you fill out and send in your record now?

If no blank has been furnished to you, apply to Dr. F. H. Wilkinson of this city.

To replace the worn out parts of your car means

Money Saved

That little rattle or knock may be nothing serious now, but if left unrepaired it will soon develop to such an extent that a breakdown will result.

Attended to now the cost will be small, but when the break comes, you will have a large repair bill to contend with. Repairing your car before greater damage is done is as good as money in the bank.

Lowden E. Andrew, rural mail carrier at Ludington, says he has traveled 28 miles per day for the last 19 years, making a total of 140,849 miles, or a distance equal to six times around the earth and 849 miles on the seventh trip. Andrew is a good traveler, and if he doesn't fall out with the administration, he may be selected to open the first mail route to Mars.

George Smith, a farmer residing on the Prescott farm near Old Mission, is under arrest for operating a whisky still at his home, and other arrests will probably follow, the result of an investigation of the state department, which has been in progress for over a month. The arrest was made last week when State Inspector David R. Campbell and Inspector Tubbs, with the assistance of Sheriff Taylor and Deputy Courtade all of Traverse City, raided the farm, confiscated the liquor and still and put an end to what Campbell believes was a "fence" that had been supplying whisky to several Traverse City men.

James Boley, Antrim Iron company employee at Mancelona, had one arm terribly mangled late Tuesday of last week when it was caught in the machinery of a log loading equipment. The man was taken to Petoskey hospital Tuesday night on a G. R. & I. freight train, and his arm was amputated just below the shoulder. He died Thursday night.

The man was working on the log loading outfit when something went wrong with the machinery. He made an effort to make repairs and his hand was caught and his entire arm ground into the machine before the engine could be stopped.

DRINK HOT TEA FOR A BAD COLD

Get a small package of Hamburg Breast Tea at any pharmacy. Take a tablespoonful of the tea, put a cup of boiling water upon it, pour through a sieve and drink a teaspoon full at any time during the day or before retiring. It is the most effective way to break a cold and cure grip, as it opens the pores of the skin, relieves congestion. Also loosens the bowels, thus driving a cold from the system.

Try it the next time you suffer from a cold or the grip. It is inexpensive and entirely vegetable, therefore safe and harmless.

RUB BACKACHE AND LUMBAGO RIGHT OUT

Rob Pain and Stiffness away with a small bottle of old honest St. Jacobs Liniment

When your back is sore and lame or lumbago, sciatica or rheumatism has you stiffened up, don't suffer! Get a 30 cent bottle of old, honest "St. Jacobs Liniment" at any drug store, pour a little in your hand and rub it right into the pain or ache, and by the time you count fifty, the soreness and lameness is gone.

Don't stay crippled! This soothing, penetrating oil needs to be used only once. It takes the ache and pain right out of your back and ends the misery. It is magical, yet absolutely harmless and doesn't burn the skin. Nothing else stops lumbago, sciatica and lame back misery so promptly!

Justice Turner, of Muskegon, has rendered a decision to the effect that an automobilist must give a dog a fair portion of the highway for passing and has fined one man $50 for killing a dog through failure to show this courtesy. Of course it wasn't within the province of a justice to do so, but he might have suggested incidentally that women and children should always be accompanied on their walks by a faithful dog.

At Sand Lake, where the teachers quit work because the school board refused them a 40 per cent raise in salaries, the board intimated that unless the teachers consented to compromise, they, the board, would hire a new corps of teachers. Up to this time, however, the board has refrained from carrying out the threat, due to its unwillingness to ruthlessly sacrifice the old teachers, or to hire new ones when there ain't any.

The pupils of our schools are now being given the opportunity to win prizes by writing essays on the subject, "What are the benefits of an enlistment in the United States Army?" Some of the clever ones are said to be digging up essays written by their older brothers and sisters a few years ago, on a slightly different subject, where they find the reason that, along with the expense for chewing gum, cigarettes and liquor, it will greatly increase the difficulty of getting enough money to run the schools.

Marysville, the new automobile town between St. Clair and Port Huron, is commencing to show signs of activity. It is planned to make the town a model in the way of engineering, sewage topography, etc. South Park, Port Huron is not within three blocks of the Marysville limits and it is just raising gold all through that section. Wills, the steel expert who has been with Ford for many years is the mentor of the new car that is to be manufactured at that point. Marysville is to be governed by the commission form of government and the first election was held last week.

CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH

The theme for the morning of February 22, will be "The Portrait of a Gentleman." Have you no church home? Ours is yours!

Special announcement is called to the Church School Hour. In addition to the splendid music given us by the orchestra, two new classes will be inaugurated. One will be a Men's Class, with Judge S. A. Correll as teacher for the 22nd of February. Further announcements to be made later. The other a Young Men's Class, with Mr. R. L. Lewis as teacher.

er. A regular text-book will be used. Mr. Lewis will make a splendid teacher, and this should be a live class for the discussion of young men's problems.

The Young People's Society will meet at 6:00 p. m. in the church parlors. That auto race is drawing nearer the goal. Help your side by your presence!

The Cecilians will meet at the usual hour next Thursday evening, under Miss Bement's direction.

The theme for the Thursday evening meeting will be "A perspective for prayer." The public is invited.

The Christian women of America if every denomination are asked to observe Friday, February 20, as a nation wide day of prayer for Missions. The women of this church are urged to respond to this call to prayer by attending the Missionary meeting at Mrs. Sloan's home Friday, afternoon at 2:30. After devotionals Miss Clark will have charge of the usual monthly program.

The Board of Deaconesses will meet at the close of the Missionary meeting. There is important business to transact.

The public is cordially invited to attend the supper to be given by the Ladies Aid Society of the church in the church parlors on Tuesday evening, February 24th, at 6:00 p. m. There will be a modest charge of 35c and many times its worth in fun, and fellowship.

A special Union Service is planned for the evening of February 22nd. See announcement in another column.

M. E. CHURCH NOTES

"The New Emancipation," a Lincoln Day program, will be given at the Methodist church next Sunday morning. A program of fourteen pages will be given to each person present at this service.

"The Heart of a Nation," a stereopticon program illustrating the world work of the Red Cross Society will be given at six o'clock. The program will begin promptly.

This church will unite with other city churches in the special service to be held at the Congregational church at seven o'clock. This service is under the auspices of the American Legion.

The Epworth League will meet in the auditorium at six o'clock at which time the stereopticon will be given. The contestants in the contest will be counted and points given as usual. Last Sunday the "Blues" were fifteen points ahead of the "Reds." Only three more Sundays until the close of the contest.

Although there were numerous counter attractions the largest number of young people present at any social for several years attended the valentine party given at the church last Friday night. Games, music, instrumental and vocal, and refreshments were greatly enjoyed by all.

The Ladies' Literary and Sewing Club will meet at the home of Mrs. W. B. Marshall, 300 Clinton street, Thursday night. Roll call to be answered by items of interest from the life of George Washington.

The religious census of Charlevoix under the direction of the local churches, has been delayed on account of so much sickness in the city.

Subject for the prayer meeting Thursday night, will be "Suggestive Thoughts on Prayer."

Rev. Henry Candler expects to spend several days at Lansing next week attending the Inter-church convention.

VALUABLE ADVICE

Charlevoix Citizens Should Profit By The Following Statement.

Doan's Kidney Pills were used by this Charlevoix resident.

Their merit was shown—the story told. Now comes further evidence. The testimony is confirmed. The remedy was tested—the results lasted.

Could Charlevoix residents demand stronger proof? It's Charlevoix testimony. It can be investigated.

Mrs. W. L. Cowan, 210 Antrim St., says "I suffered from a severe backache and pains across my kidneys. The action of my kidneys was irregular, also. Doan's Kidney Pills procured from Metcalf's Drug Store, fixed me up in good shape."

FIVE YEARS LATER, Mrs. Cowan said: "Since Doan's Kidney Pills cured me of kidney trouble, I have recommended them to many people. Doan's Kidney Pills certainly are worthy of endorsement."

Price 50c, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mrs. Cowan had. Foster-Milburn Co., Mfrs., Buffalo, N. Y.

PRINCE ALBERT
the national joy smoke

PUT a pipe in your face that's filled cheerily brimful of Prince Albert, if you're on the trail of smoke peace! For, P. A. will sing you a song of tobacco joy that will make you wish your life job was to see how much of the national joy smoke you could get away with every twenty-four hours!

You can "carry on" with Prince Albert through thick and thin. You'll be after laying down a smoke barrage that'll make the boys think of the old front line in France!

P. A. never tires your taste because it has the quality! And, let it slip into your think-tank that P. A. is made by our exclusive patented process that cuts out bite and parch—assurance that you can hit smoke-record-high-spots seven days out of every week without any comeback but real smoke joy!

Running a Household is a Business
Is yours run on business principles

Wise buying is the first step to success in any business. So is it the first requirement for a household to be well conducted on an economical basis. Big business concerns have purchasing agents who are experts in knowing what, when and where to buy. They watch the markets. They read carefully the advertisements of concerns in their particular lines.

The manager of the household must be purchasing agent for a large proportion of the family needs. She should be familiar with stores and merchandise. She should run her business on business principles in order to make the most of the family income.

Information is the basis for intelligent purchasing. And the right way to get the greatest amount of necessary information is to read advertisements.

Advertising today is the voice of business. Advertisements tell you what is new and good in merchandise; they reveal improvements and inventions; they give you information about things that are useful and interesting.

Every manager of a household—every person in the household who shares the responsibility for the family's welfare—should make a practice of reading advertisements.

vention to which all pastors of all protestant churches in Michigan have been invited.

FARM ANIMALS

VERMIN ON HOGS EXPENSIVE

One Cent Per Pound Is Added to Cost of Producing Pork by Presence of Insects.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Lice add a cent a pound to the cost of producing pork. This has been found in tests just completed at the experiment farm of the United States department of agriculture at Beltsville, Md. Twenty-four lousy hogs were secured and divided into two lots as nearly equal as to quality of animals as possible. The two lots were managed and fed the same way with the exception that one lot was treated to prevent lice. The animals were weighed at regular intervals and at the end of the fattening period it was found that the hogs infested with lice cost a cent a pound more to fatten than those which were free of the troublesome pest. The officials who had charge of this experiment also an interesting side light in connection with securing the lousy animals. They communicated with some of the department's field men, asking them to locate lousy hogs. It was some time before a reply was received to this surprising order. After the lousy hogs were purchased the owner learned why, and he immediately built a slipping vat and began to treat the animals to prevent lice.

COUNTY BREED DIRECTORIES

Catalogues Are Valuable in Identifying Owners and Effective in Promoting Sales.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Indexing counties as to dominant breed of live stock maintained, through the use of county breed directories, has won great favor in Iowa, where several years ago this county inaugurated this work. Such catalogues are valuable in identifying the owners of different breeds and are effective in promoting sales and in attracting prospective purchasers to the locality. They constitute a relatively permanent form of advertising, as ordinarily they are kept for future reference by those who receive them. The directories are best issued under the authority of a county live stock breeders' association or the local farm bureau. Ordinarily the expenses of these booklets are raised by the sale of advertising space to breeders. Practically any rural printing office can put out creditable productions of this class.

Chinese Leather Novelties.
The finest and most expensive leather goods are produced at Chan-Chau-Foo, in China. The leather is made from lizard, snake, dolphin and snake skins, which are very strong and durable. Snake skins are used for numerous articles, such as canes, pipes, purses, pocketbooks, etc.

COMMUNITY BREEDING PLANS

Farmers in Certain Section Agree to Stick to One Breed and Use Purebred Stires.

Community breeding simply means that the farmers in a certain community agree to do two things:

First, to breed but one breed of cattle, sheep or hogs.

Second: They agree to use none but purebred sires, these sires being owned either individually or collectively.

Everyone is absolutely free to do as he pleases just as long as he sticks to one class of stock and uses a purebred sire. These ideas can best be carried out if the farmers are organized to a body and get together at stated periods.

AFTER THE WAR PRICES OF YEAR 1877 COMPARED WITH PRESENT TIME H. C. L.

Many people are constantly talking of the high cost of living in these after war days. Some claim that prices are higher now than they ever were and some maintain that the days following the Civil war showed such increases as seen at this time, both in commodities and necessities of life.

History shows that after that war prices fluctuated to a great extent and on the other hand wages took a rapid increase which made conditions similar to what they are now.

Old settlers in this city recall the days when exceedingly high wages were paid and when goods were high as well. They claim that this state of affairs continued until the panic of 1873 when the market saw a crash and prices came down with a thump.

Thousands of men were thrown out of work because of industries being forced to close and consequently hard times were the result.

Comparison Compiled.

A local business man who resided near Peshtigo Harbor in his boyhood days had found an old statement of prices from April, 1877, twelve years after the close of the Civil war. Housewives are asked to make a comparison with the present prices which are published below. The different grocers in the cities.

Clothing is not included although it is a conceded fact that the prices of clothing today are higher than they were at any time in the history of the country with regard to wages and other conditions.

CAR FERRY CREW GO ON A STRIKE

Employees Walkout On Account of Delay of Back Pay

More than a hundred people were delayed at Mackinaw City last Wednesday and even more at St. Ignace, and were unable to continue their journeys because of a strike among the engine room crew and deck hands of the car ferry Chief Wawatam. The big boat tied up at the dock at St. Ignace at nine o'clock Tuesday night, the men demanding back pay long promised them by the railroad administration under which the Mackinaw Transportation company is operated. The matter has been referred to Superintendent C. E. Little of the D. S. S. A. at Marquette, and in the meantime the people waited at Mackinaw City and St. Ignace. Included in these crowds were many people hurrying home because of death or serious illness in their families, and many are nearly Flanders and Meggison were the Charlevoix stars, netting most of the points, but the other girls played fine ball and the Central Lake team did not score a single point, their score being made from free throws.

The next game will be with Petoskey, and as Petoskey has defeated Charlevoix once this season, they will be out after a victory this time to wipe out the defeat. It will without a doubt be the best game of the season.

GRANDMA USED SAGE TEA TO DARKEN HAIR

She mixed Sulphur with it to Restore Color, Gloss, Youthfulness.

Common garden sage brewed into a heavy tea with sulphur added, will turn gray, streaked and faded hair beautifully dark and luxuriant. Just a few applications will prove a revolution if your hair is fading, streaked or gray. Mixing the Sage Tea and Sulphur recipe of home, though, is troublesome. An easier way is to get a bottle of Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound at any drug store all ready for use. This is the old-time recipe improved by the addition of other ingredients.

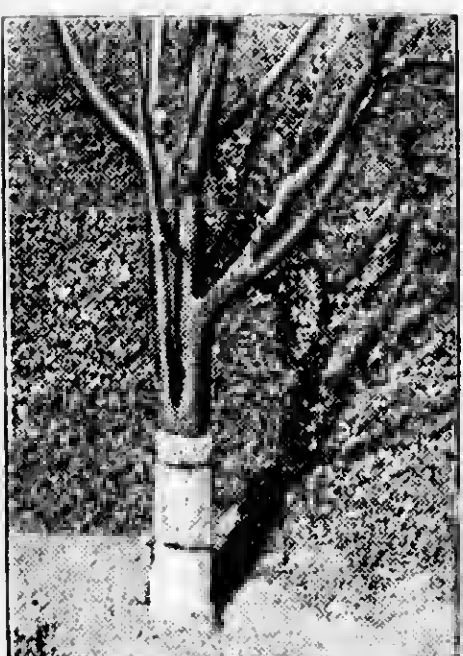

Whiskers, gray, faded hair is not sinful, we all desire to retain our youthful appearance and attractiveness. By darkening your hair with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound, no one can tell, because it does it so naturally, so evenly. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning all gray hairs have disappeared, and, after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy, soft and luxuriant.

This preparation is a delightful toilet requisite and is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.

RODENTS HARM FRUIT TREES

Rabbits and Mice Gnaw Bark Near Surface of Ground and in Some Cases Girdle Trees.

Each winter considerable damage is done to young fruit trees by rabbits and field mice. They gnaw the bark near the surface of the ground and in extreme cases the trees are entirely girdled. Often such injured trees may be saved if suitable measures are taken promptly; but a much better plan is to protect the trees from injury in the first place. This can be done by placing around each one a tree protector, made of closely woven galvanized iron wire or of thin wood veneer. The wire protectors are cheaper and are much more generally used, says V. R. Gardner.

Tree Wrapped for Winter With Paper to Protect Against Rodents.

of the University of Missouri college of agriculture. They can be obtained from almost any firm dealing in berry boxes or baskets or general horticultural supplies. They cost from $1 to $1.25 a hundred and last for several years. A few trees in the home orchard can be protected from rabbits and mice by wrapping their trunks with heavy paper and tying it in place. This, however, is too slow and expensive to be practicable in large commercial plantations.

SMALL ORCHARD IS FAVORED

Every Farm Should Have at Least Twenty Fruit Trees and Some Berry Bushes.

Every man who lives on his own farm should have a few fruit trees and in a fenced orchard or yard. As here it little enough, but at least any farm should have ten apple, five peach and five cherry trees. These cost but a trifle, but if cared for properly will supply a family with fruit in some form for the entire year. Then a row of raspberries, blackberries, currants and gooseberries will add much to the happiness of the family.—Extension Department University of Arkansas

Hopes Women Will Adopt This Habit As Well As Men

Glass of hot water each morning helps us look and feel clean, sweet, fresh.

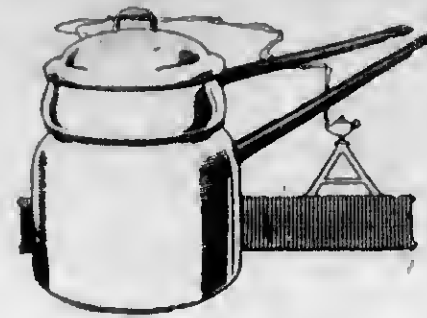

Happy, bright, alert—vigorous and vivacious—a good clear skin; a natural, rosy complexion and freedom from illness are assured only by clean, healthy blood. If only every woman and likewise every man could realize the wonders of the morning inside bath, what a gratifying change would take place.

Instead of the thousands of sickly, anemic-looking men, women and girls with pasty or muddy complexions; instead of the multitudes of "nerve wrecks," "run-downs," "brain fags" and pessimists we should see a virile, optimistic throng of rosy-cheeked people everywhere.

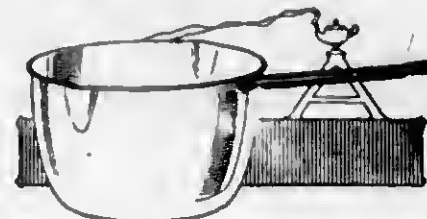

An inside bath is had by drinking, each morning before breakfast, a glass of real hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it to wash from the stomach, liver, kidneys and ten yards of bowels the previous day's indigestible waste, sour fermentations and poisons, thus cleansing, sweetening and freshening the entire alimentary canal before putting more food into the stomach. These subject to such headache, biliousness, nasty breath, rheumatism, colds, and particularly those who have a pallid, sallow complexion and who are constipated very often, are urged to obtain a quarter pound of limestone phosphate at the drug store which will cost but a trifle but is sufficient to demonstrate the quick and remarkable change in both health and appearance awaiting those who practice internal sanitation. We must remember that inside cleanliness is more important than outside because the skin does not absorb impurities to contaminate the blood, while the pores in the thirty feet of bowels do.

LIQUOR TAKEN FROM OFFICERS

FORTY FEDERAL OFFICERS GO TO THE UPPER PENINSULA

Authorities Forced to Give Up Liquor Seized by Them in Raid at Iron River

A small size rum rebellion broke out in Iron River, Iron county in the upper peninsula Monday and forty federal prohibition officers have left for that place to stop the unlawful manufacturing of alcoholic liquors that has been carried on at that place for months.

The liquor taken from the authorities was seized in a raid Monday at a mine about two miles from the village of Iron River by Leo J. Grovo a prohibition inspector and Lieut. R. G. Strobe and Troopers Masters and Kind of the State Constabulary, and was alleged to have been made by two Italians, John Peters and Steven Scalucci wealthy merchants of Iron River.

The officers loaded the liquor into a sleigh and started to move it to Caspian, headquarters of the State Constabulary. When the sleigh reached Iron River it was met by Prosecuting Attorney P. A. McDonough, Deputy Sheriff Chard and Jesse Allen and members of the Iron River police force.

These men told the party transporting the liquor that they were under arrest for carrying liquor and ordered that the wine be seized which was done. The party put up a fight but were overpowered and the wine was returned to the Italians. Orders were given to post an armed guard over the state men and to shoot any federal agents that should endeavor to seize the liquor again.

This wine has been under observation for some time and when tested by federal authorities proved to contain 14 per cent alcohol.

It is alleged that unlawful distillation of liquor has been going on in this section of the upper peninsula every since the new prohibition law went into effect and that local authorities have made no attempt to curtail it.

Some time ago the state constabulary started to clean up this county and at that time Captain Marsh of the state troops was shot by a boot-legger. Requests have been sent to Washington for federal aid in dealing with this situation and warrants for men involved will soon be put into effect.

THE FLU.

When your back is broke and your eyes are blurred, And your shin bones knock and your tongue is flurred, And your tonsils squeak and your hair gets dry, And you're dog-gone sure you are going to die, But you're skeered you won't and afraid you will, Just drag to bed and have your chill, And pray the Lord will see you through, For you've got the Flu, boy, you've got the Flu, When your toes curl up and your belt goes flat, And you're twice as mean as old meat to, And life is a long and dismal course, And your food all tastes like a hard boiled hearse, When your lattice aches and your head's a buzz, And nothing is where it ever was, Here are my sad regrets to you, For you've got the Flu, boy, you've got the Flu, What is it like, this Spanish Flu? Ask me, brother, for I've been through, It was my misery, what despair, It pulls your teeth and cuts your hair, It churns your blood and brays your bones, And fills your head with moans and groans; And sometimes maybe you may get well, You call it the Flu, boy, but I call it H—l.

WILL GIVE BOX SOCIAL AND DANCE

To Be Held in the Bank Hall Friday Evening

Charlevoix Post No. 226, of the American Legion will make their first bow to the Charlevoix public as entertainers Friday evening, February 27. They are giving a good old fashioned Box Social and Dance combined which promises to be one of those rare occasions where everyone goes home satisfied.

The American Legion was but recently organized here and is composed of Charlevoix's ex-services men. Being no longer connected with the military or naval forces they are now putting things across in civil life with the same old push that carried things along while in service.

If you don't care for a regular good time stay to home for you would certainly be lost at the Box Social Friday night and those coming want to be prepared to enjoy themselves every minute.

CHARLEVOIX 34 TRAVERSE CITY 13

HOME TEAM WINS A VERY ONE-SIDED GAME

Traverse City High School Was Completely Out-Classed.—Petoskey Here This Week

Due to the influenza epidemic the basketball game that was scheduled to be played last Friday night, at Traverse City between the high school team of Traverse City and Charlevoix was played here at the skating rink and the outcome of the game added one more victory for Charlevoix and moved them still closer to the championship of this region.

Traverse City was completely out-classed the final score being 34 to 13 with Charlevoix on the long end of the score. Never during the game was there any danger of Traverse taking the lead. Charlevoix won by superior team work and cleaner handling of the ball.

Westfall at center for Charlevoix and Halverson at forward were the stars of the game, netting six field baskets each while Capt. Krulick was a close second, adding four field baskets to the score. Hammet and Jones played their usual strong games at guards. These two men are without a doubt the strongest pair of guards in northern Michigan.

The lineup of the two teams was as follows:

Charlevoix	Traverse City
Halverson	R. F. Ewing
Krulick	L. F. Chervinka
Westfall	C. Flagert
Hammet	R. G. Harsch
Jones	L. G. Burgett
Substitutes:	Charlevoix, Smith, Reynolds, Goals from field, Halverson 6, Westfall 5, Krulick 4, Ewing 2, Chervinka 2. Goals from foul, Westfall 2 out of 5, Burgett 5 out of 8. Referee Powers.

This week Friday Charlevoix meets the Petoskey high school on the local court in the most important game on the schedule. Petoskey defeated Charlevoix in their only game this season and by winning this time Charlevoix will have an undisputed claim to the northern Michigan championship. Come out and help the boys win.

SERIOUS FIRE AT LEVINSON HOME

Contents of Residence Saved From Flames

A fire broke out in the home of M. A. Levinson on Clinton St., last Saturday morning which was of very serious nature at the nut break and could have easily done much damage. The blaze started in the basement of the house following some repair work that had been done by a plumber earlier in the day. It soon spread and the whole back portion of the building was in flame.

As soon as the fire department arrived the new chemical apparatus was used and in a short time the flames were under control. Most of the furniture was saved and the most serious damage was done to the building.

MAYOR ROSE STATES REASONS FOR BECOMING THIRD TERM CANDIDATE

Condition of City Affairs in Most Satisfactory Condition—Believe Steps Should Be Taken to Protect People in Regards to Shortage of Coal

To the Voters of the City of Charlevoix:

Contrary to my first intention, I have again become a candidate for the office of Mayor. It is my duty to inform you of this reason. I am sure that none of you will believe that I am seeking this office because of any personal ambition. I think that I have done about my share of this kind of public work which so many of our representative citizens seem unwilling to undertake. I stood ready to support any candidate who would carry on the work in hand and do things which the welfare of the city and its people demands. I signed the petition of another candidate who refused at the last moment to become a candidate. When I was represented to me by a large number of men and women that existing conditions demanded that I become a candidate, I consented. I understand that some have criticized me for coming in at the last moment. I know that these persons did not fully understand the situation, and I cannot see where there was injury to anyone. There was no politics in it nor any secrecy or underhandedness of any kind. I insisted on not being a candidate and it was only when other candidates had withdrawn and refused to run, that I consented to accept the nomination if the voters wanted it that way. That is all there is to it.

The City Business.

The business of the past year has been satisfactory. Conditions are not perfect and never will be, no matter who is mayor. The council has been diligent and economical, without being shortsighted. All of the promises made to you one year ago have been kept to the best of my ability. I have tried to do my duty by keeping informed of the affairs of every department. I know of no serious mistakes. I have been criticized by some and expected it. I want criticism if it is honest and just. The increased cost of everything we had to buy, demands for increased wages and salaries and many other things have caused difficulties and a somewhat increased tax burden. They could not be entirely avoided.

I haven't the space to go into details, but some of the figures as given me by the city clerk may interest you. I have informed you before that under the seven and ten mill taxes of former years the finances of the city ran behind. This meant that the council ran out of funds during those years and constant borrowing from the banks on short time loans was resorted to and deficits were carried over into succeeding years. This was bad policy and it could not go on. There was only one way out of it. An amount must be raised to meet the demands and square these accounts. When the deficits were met, a reduction could be made for another year. An extra 2 3-4 mill tax was raised, which means that the taxpayer was asked to pay an additional $2.75 on each $1000 assessed valuation. Not a large increase when we consider the increased cost of everything, but it meant $6266.48 more revenue and means that we have not had to borrow money or pay interest on short time loans. According to the figures as given me by the city bookkeeper, we had on hand on February 1st, 1920, in the general funds for which appropriation is made each year and money raised by general tax, the sum of $5980.73. This balance will, it is hoped carry the city through without borrowing a dollar. I leave it to you whether or not this is good business. Bear in mind that the electric light and water funds are not included in these figures. On February 1st, the balance in the electric light fund was $7983.52. On January 1st, 1920, the beginning of the quarter for water, there was a debit balance of $1564.14. The water fund is, and always has been, a disappointing proposition and it is being investigated. It may be that the council is not charging enough for hydrants, or there may be leakages. Some leakages have been found and if there are others, they will be detected if possible to do it.

Old Bonds.

We have a number of old bond accounts, of which the old bridge bonds commonly known as the Railroad Bridge Bonds are an example. The city has paid interest more than the original principal of these bonds.

I have advocated an interest and sinking fund for the purpose of getting these old bonds off our records. We now have a balance in the interest and sinking fund of $2180.36.

The Fire Engine.

Last year I advocated the purchase of proper equipment for the protection of the city against fire. The council investigated the matter carefully and thoroughly. A chemical engine has been purchased costing $3500. Payments are to be made in installments. This engine has twice demonstrated its efficiency and I believe that it will continue its good work. The protection of our homes from damage by fire and the incident damage by water used in putting it out, will prove the wisdom of this purchase. I am well satisfied with it and think you will be.

During the past year several important projects for improvement have been put under way but I do not presume to say that it is necessary that I be elected Mayor to carry them out. If such were the case, I would have a lifetime job on my hands and I am not hankering after any such job. I would not like to see these projects killed off however, and they must not be. There is one undertaking under way which I believe in heart and soul and because of it more than any other one thing, I have consented to take this office another year.

Coal.

I believe that something must be done to take care of the coal situation in this city. During the past shortage the city has been loaning coal to the dealers to keep the people from suffering. Right now the city is doing the same thing. Unfortunately, the supply is not large enough to meet the demands. That a lake port town should be compelled to pay railroad freight rates on all of its coal when much cheaper rates can be obtained through water shipments looks like an outrage. I believe a saving of from $2 to $3 per ton can be had by proper management. Even though it would be a saving of only one-half that amount, the people are entitled to that saving. Understand I am not blaming the coal dealers, if they haven't the facilities, or cannot get the coal. It takes a considerable amount of money to buy a cargo of coal, but I tell you The People Have Been Paying The Freight and the dealers cannot buy coal at the most advantageous price, the people must co-operate to do it.

You ask me how I would go about this thing. I am not entirely sure, but if all other plans fail, a reserve supply can be put in for the benefit and use of the people. As I say, I have no grievance against the coal dealers. It would be far from my desire to put any of them out of the business, but they must understand that they are dealing in a commodity that is indispensable to the people. I see no difference between coal and electric lights and water in this respect. We could get along without electric lights on a pinch, and we could exist without some of the foods we demand, but we must have protection from the cold. I propose the steps be taken to secure a place for the storage of coal—Water Shipment Coal, mind you, that will operate our municipal plants and be sufficient to provide for the wants of the people of this community. I did think at one time that it would be feasible to build a wharf on city owned property, but do not favor extending a large amount of money for this purpose. There is already available wharfage for the purpose.

I hope you will understand that I am not putting this matter before you for selfish campaign purposes. You are entitled to know where I stand on all matters. If your views do not agree with mine you will be able to cast your vote accordingly and there will be no misunderstanding about it. I shall be glad to answer questions and discuss any matter with you at any time. I think I will be able to give you some figures and some interesting information if you are sufficiently interested to ask for them. I say again, I am not attempting to manufacture a campaign slogan. There is no "glory" to be had, nothing except hard work. If some other man or some woman who has a desire to do something for the good of this city and the welfare of its people and is sincere about it, will become a candidate for this office, I will take off my coat and whoop it up for him or her to a finish.

Yours for Cheaper Coal and several other things,
S. M. Rose

WILL OPEN DANCE HALL AT PETOSKEY

Glen E. Beard Announces Extension of Charlevoix Business

G. E. Beard owner and manager of the Happy Home bowling alley and partial owner of the Lakeside pavilion of this city announces that he will extend his places of amusement to wider fields and the coming summer will open a dancing hall of the same type as the Lakeside pavilion in Petoskey.

Mr. Beard has purchased a three piece electric piano and expects to mix this music with the regular orchestra through the weeks dances.

The new dance hall will be opened early in the spring as will the hall in Charlevoix.

NEXT NUMBER LECTURE COURSE

NEXT ENTERTAINMENT FRIDAY MARCH 5th.

Maude Ballington Booth, Noted Prison Worker, Will Talk on Her Work in France.

High among the names of women who have appeared upon the lecture platform is that of Maud Ballington Booth who will lecture here at the Palace Theatre, Friday, March 5th, and who has gained wide fame because of her work among the unfortunate in the prisons.

Her story in prison work is always interesting but this year Mrs. Booth comes to her audience with still other experiences to tell about. During the great war she went to France and worked among the American soldiers and her lecture is sure to be enriched by this background.

Most people know of the work which Mrs. Booth has done under the auspices of the Volunteer Prison League which she founded and sustains. More than 85,000 while serving prison sentences have ascribed their complete regeneration to the work carried on by the League and are still its loyal supporters.

National prison reforms have been promoted and a number of splendid and valuable rural properties in widely separated states, temporary homes for discharged prisoners, have been acquired, equipped and are now in operation. To these, friendly prisoners go immediately when discharged, remaining until they or the League can find employment where they can win back that which was lost. Well has Mrs. Booth named these homes "Hope Halls," and the homes established for sick and starving, helpless and blameless wives and children of prisoners, "Rainbow Houses."

Many thousands of "graduates" from "Hope Hall" have become useful and respected citizens. Practically none have returned to crime. Hundreds have their own happy homes. Some are in positions of great trust and responsibility, and two are earning over $10,000.00 per year.

We want the Charlevoix people to hear Mrs. Booth, so we are placing the single admission within the reach of all, 50 cents.

MARION YOUNG MEN BOTH MARRY

Both Prominent and Well Known in This Vicinity

Two well known young men of Marion township, sons of Mr. and Mrs. James Meggison, who have been working in Ypsilanti, and Flint during the winter months, have both married during the past month and the Courier as well as their many friends in this vicinity extend hearty congratulations.

Byron Meggison was married in Ypsilanti, January 28, to Miss Gladys Rohinette, formerly of Central Lake. They will make their home in Ypsilanti.

Elmer J. Meggison was married February 4th, at Flint, to Miss Grace McGaffigan, formerly of Boston, but now a resident of Flint. Elmer is working for the Buick Motor Co., and will probably return to Charlevoix to live early in the spring.

NEW WORK IN RURAL SCHOOLS

INQUIRIES BEING MADE BY SCHOOL OFFICERS.

School Officers Seek Information on Benefits Derived From Consolidation of Rural Schools.

A number of the school officers and farmers in Wilson and Boyne Valley townships have inquired about the new Rural Agricultural School Law in which provision is made for state aid for consolidated schools meeting this provisions of the law. There is such a shortage of teachers—wages are rising so rapidly, and so many advantages are to be derived from consolidation that many wish if possible to take advantage of the special act that the legislature of 1919 amended so as to enable us to meet just this situation.

Briefly stated the law provides for the consolidation of three or more contiguous districts by a majority vote of all school electors present and voting at annual or special meeting called for that purpose. The voting must be by ballot and polls remain open for seven hours. The old schoolboards remain in their official positions and districts continue to operate under old system until the next annual meeting when the commissioner of schools calls the first meeting of the new district.

There are two classes of rural agricultural schools. Class A. have less than twenty acres of land, employ at least three teachers for not less than nine months and receive state aid to the extent of $600 and $200 for each rig used in transportation of children.

Class B. schools have more than twenty acres of land used partly or wholly for agricultural demonstration purposes, employ one teacher for twelve months, and at least two others for ten months and receive state aid of $900 and $200 for each rig used in transportation of children. During the two months when school is not in session the principal must act as leader in boys' and girls' club work.

Both classes in order to receive state aid must be guided in the selection of trained and experienced teachers, with special qualifications for the principal, and must transport all children who have more than a mile to walk.

They must maintain a school building which will meet the requirements of teaching in manual arts and farming for boys, and domestic science for girls. Building must be approved by the state department.

Arguments in favor of consolidated school have been summarized as follows:

1. Better teacher, longer class periods, and larger classes.
2. Fewer classes for each teacher and a ten month term.
3. Opportunity for training in agriculture, manual training and domestic science.
4. High school privileges for every child.
5. Country boys and girls given an equal opportunity with city children for an education.
6. Better education for all boys and girls.
7. Transportation to and from school.
8. Because of larger groups more interest in school.
9. Better school attendance and less tardiness.
10. Reduces percentage of failures in each grade each year.
11. Better playground apparatus and supervision.

WILL OPEN ELECTRIC SHOP

M. R. Brady & Son Will Start Business in Near Future

M. R. Brady and son, Roy, both well known Charlevoix men announce that they will open an electrical shop in the building next to Mrs. Richard Shapton's bakery in the near future.

These two men have been in business in Charlevoix for a number of years engaged in the fishing business and have a host of friends who will welcome their entrance into the business field of the city.

The proposed shop will carry an up-to-date line of electrical equipment including light fixtures and repairs. They are also prepared to do electrical repairing and will have a storage battery service station in connection with other work.

EAT LESS AND TAKE SALTS FOR KIDNEYS

Take a glass of Salts before breakfast if your Back hurts or Bladder bothers you.

The American men and women must guard constantly against Kidney trouble, because we eat too much and all our food is rich. Our blood is filled with uric acid which the kidneys strive to filter out, they weaken from overwork, become sluggish; the eliminative tissues clog and the result is kidney trouble, bladder weakness and a general decline in health.

When your kidneys feel like lumps of lead; your back hurts or the urine is cloudy, full of sediment or you are obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night; if you suffer with sick headache or dizzy, acrid spells, acid stomach, or you have rheumatism when the weather is bad, get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate clogged kidneys; to neutralize the acids in the urine so it no longer is a source of irritation, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot injure, makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water beverage, and belongs in every home, because nobody can make a mistake by having a good kidney flushing any time.

Mrs. Kane and Mrs. Pant spent one day with Mrs. Strouds last week. Mrs. Gray and daughter, spent Sunday at George and Wade Howe's. Mrs. Pant and Mrs. Webster spent Saturday afternoon with Mrs. Frank Kane.

Equip Your Small Car With Goodyear Tires

If you own a Ford, Chevrolet, Dort, Maxwell or any other car using 30x3, 30x3½, or 31x4-inch tires, you can well take advantage of the high relative value built into all Goodyear Tires.

You can well do so because you can secure in the small Goodyear Tires the results of such skill and care as have made Goodyear Tires the preferred equipment on the highest-priced automobiles of the day.

You can well do so because these small Goodyear Tires are easy to obtain, being produced at the rate of 20,000 a day, and because their first cost usually is as low or lower than that of other tires in the same types and sizes.

Go to the nearest Goodyear Service Station Dealer for these tires, and for Goodyear Heavy Tourist Tubes. He supplies many other local owners of small cars.

30x3½ Goodyear Double-Cure Fabric, All-Weather Tread $20.00
30x3½ Goodyear Single-Cure Fabric, Anti-Skid Tread $17.65

Goodyear Heavy Tourist Tubes are thick, strong tubes that reinforce casings properly. Why risk a good casing with a cheap tube? Goodyear Heavy Tourist Tubes cost little more than tubes of less merit. 30x3½ size in water-proof bag $3.90

BACKACHE IS A WARNING

Charlevoix People Should Not Neglect Their Kidneys.

Backache is often nature's most frequent signal of weakened kidneys. To cure the pains and aches, to remove the lameness when it arises from weakened kidneys, you must reach the cause—the kidneys. If you have pain through the small of your back, urinary disorders, headaches, dizzy spells, or are nervous and depressed, start treating the kidneys with a tested kidney remedy.

Doan's Kidney Pills have been proved good and are especially for weak kidneys. Ask your neighbor, Don't have been used in kidney trouble for over 50 years. Read Charlevoix testimony:

Mrs. Chas. Myers, 204 May St., says: "I felt tired and languid all the time and my back ached continually making it hard for me to do my housework. I read of Doan's Kidney Pills and bought some at Metcalf's Drug Store. Doan's soon removed the trouble after several other kidney remedies had failed."

Our mail carriers missed four trips last week on account of impassable roads.

Several people in this district are sick with colds, and so far as is known there are no cases of influenza in this district.

Mrs. Frank Greenman is now in Boyne City caring for Kenneth, who is very sick with pneumonia. Kenneth has been attending the Boyne City high school during the winter.

They couldn't be built now for twice $71,000

When the talk turns from politics to railroads, and the traveler with the cocksure air breaks in with, "There's an awful lot of 'water' in the railroads," here are some hard-pan facts to give him:

American railroads have cost $80,900 a mile—roadbed, structures, stations, yards, terminals, freight and passenger trains—everything from the great city terminals to the last spike.

A good concrete-and-asphalt highway costs $36,000 a mile—just a bare road, not counting the cost of culverts, bridges, etc.

Our railroads couldn't be duplicated today for $150,000 a mile.

They are capitalized for only $71,000 a mile—much less than their actual value. Seventy-one thousand dollars today will buy one locomotive.

English railways are capitalized at $274,000 a mile; the French at $155,000; German $132,000; even in Canada (still in pioneer development) they are capitalized at $67,000 a mile. The average for all foreign countries is $100,000.

Low capitalization and high operating efficiency have enabled American Railroads to pay the highest wages while charging the lowest rates.

THE NATIONAL CAPITAL

By J. E. Jones

National Politics

The political situation surely is interesting. Viewed from the angle of non-partisanship the declaration of Mr. Hoover that he will support the party that stands for the League of Nations, is unique as coming from a man supported by the Curtis publications, the New York World, and other great newspapers. It is doubtful if any other probable candidate has ever refused to identify himself with any party. Among the Senators there is a perfect avalanche of candidates for the Republican nomination dates for the Republican nomination.

tion, and General Wood and a number of Governors of states have their lightning rods aloft. Among the Republicans there appears to be a cocksureness born apparently of the rout of Democrats with reference to the treaty, and the disorganization among Democratic leaders as shown in the refusal of the party caucus of Congressman to endorse the President's proposal for universal military training. That the Democrats are somewhat discouraged is evidenced by the fact that no pep is being put behind suggestions to nominate any leader in the party.

The President and Mr. Byran

In Washington the belief does not down that President Wilson is willing to run again. In fact his position with regard to the treaty is taken as an indication that he believes he can go before the people next fall and win out on that issue. But again, there is Mr. Byran—long since "the Boy Orator of the Platte," and today the grand old man of his party. Mr. Byran tried for a long time after leaving the cabinet to remain on close terms with the President, but when the coldness towards his proposals became notably marked he finally turned to his own way, and gradually he and Mr. Wilson drifted apart. No one knows of any "break" between the two. It would be better to say that the feeling has become one of indifference.

There are some Democrats who believe that Mr. Byran would like the Democratic nomination for himself, but most people are inclined to the opinion that he is seeking to dominate the next convention, principally elench the position of the Democrats as the party of prohibition. In doing these acts Mr. Byran may be expected to follow his past course of selecting his own candidates for President, just as he did at the Baltimore convention. The Nebraskan has the knife in his boot for the Chairman of the Democratic National Committee and the Governor of New Jersey.

The Boastful Mr. Gompers

The position of organized labor is a big factor to be reckoned with in the coming campaign. Mr. Gompers stands at the head of an "executive committee" of three to pass upon the qualifications of all candidates for office—from President down to members of the legislatures in the states. These three men claim that they have the authority of enough union men in the country to elect or defeat any candidate—and the prejudiced and autocratic Mr. Gompers will spend the season in "damning" and "blessing" friends and enemies. He will attempt to say who is the friend or the foe of the common citizen. Meanwhile some of the best men in the country are working on an industrial plan will afford courts and tribunals for labor disputes and proper representation of all earners in industry. Mr. Gompers once undertook such a job, at the suggestion of the President, but walked out of the conference of which he was a member, in a huff.

Soft Speech and Big Sticks

The caption borrowed above is a reminder of the Rooseveltian days and is used to remind us that it is still advisable to "speak softly and carry a big stick" since the insistent demands of railway operators made on the very eve of the passing of legislation necessary to the retiring of the railroads to their owners and the termination of the farce of government operation could have been inspired by no other purpose than that of throwing a monkey-wrench into the business of government. Just why President Wilson and the Railroad Administration should be expected, consistently, to agree to demands for wage increases three weeks before the government should withdraw from the management of the carriers cannot be explained upon any other basis than that the Brotherhoods had taken a final stand in the hopes that they could bulldoze the Administration, and through their further threat to fight the re-nomination and re-election of every congressman who oppose them, turn congress into a pack of political cowards in the face of the promised strike.

Soft speech has apparently not effected the determination of a few gentlemen who make their living as director-generals of groups of American wage-earners, and all of whom are affiliated in some manner or another with Mr. Gompers' Washington Headquarters; and therefore the sane, unfrightened judgment prevailing in congress is to apply the big stick to some of these autocrats who are constantly threatening to destroy all public men who will not do their bidding.

The Egg of Democracy

This thing called Democracy seems to be in such demand that the public utilities are asking for it in the different communities throughout the country. And since Democracy is dispensed largely through the various forms of local, State and Federal government, it has been suggested by no less an institution than the Board of Public Utility Commissioners of the state of New Jersey, from which state comes the President of the United States, and these problems should not "be juggled with to gain applause of those who give no heed to their true significance and importance, and fail to appreciate the ultimate effect of ill considered action."

The New Jersey Commission says that there are those who urge in effect that the efforts of a public utility commission should be directed, not to dealing fairly with the people and the utilities who serve them and to seeing that both are protected in their just rights, but to ascertaining what those who claim to speak for the public demand, and allow it without question or consideration of the effect upon the utility." Abraham Lincoln is quoted with reference to the judges of the courts. Lincoln said: "It is a duty from which they may not shrink to decide cases properly brought before them, and it is no fault of theirs if others seek to turn their decisions to political purposes." Utilities want this rule applied to their affairs.

Lowell is one of his essays, referred to the "egg of democracy." Since a world-full of this kind of fruit is being hatched in the nests, the public utilities evidently believe that they should have some of this Democracy—since it is being made a universal commodity.

Community Assets

The condition of the public utilities has been greatly improved during the past year, as it has been dawning on the country that the agitation favoring public ownership has been the result of socialistic propaganda. About $15,000,000,000 rep-

Velvet is made for men who think there's no smoko like real tobacco. If you are that sort of man, listen:

Velvet was born in old Kentucky, where more than one good thing comes from. It was raised as carefully as any other Kentucky thoroughbred. But the real secret of Velvet's friendly qualities is its slow natural ageing in wooden hogsheads. Ageing in the wood never hurt anything—and least of all, tobacco.

And so we say, Velvet is good tobacco—nothing more or less. It runs second to none.

by local applications as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure Catarhal Deafness, and that is by a constitutional remedy. HALL'S CATARRH MEDICINE acts through the blood on the Mucous Surfaces of the System. Catarhal Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result. Unless the inflammation can be reduced and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing may be destroyed forever. THIS MAIL ORDER BUSINESS

When you send your money to Shears and Slowbuck for goods you ought to buy at home, you take some chances on deliveries, as these houses now send notices that they will not be responsible for goods that have been shipped by them. After it leaves their hands you must accept all the risk of transportation. If the goods are lost, or broken, you have paid for them. You pay when you order, paying cash in advance. The mail order concerns take no chances. Under government operation of railroads you are pretty apt to be stung, as deliveries are mighty slow, and sometimes they do not reach you at all. It was this fact that has brought out the new order from these mail houses. They take no chances, while you have to accept all of them. So, taking good advice, you had better order from the home merchant who will deliver the goods at his own risk. —Ishpeming Iron Ore.

TRAGEDY NEAR END

The curtain is beginning to lower on the tragedy of operation of the railroads under the United States Railroad Administration. While the indication point to early enactment of the railroad measure by Congress preliminary steps toward the actual relinquishment of control of the roads by the Railroad Administration are being taken. Equipment of the different roads is being sent back the lines that own such equipment. Other changes are being made looking to restoration of the lines to their owners.

However, it will require years to straighten out the financial tangles of the roads. Altogether the monument which will be left standing and which will not soon be forgotten by the American people will be a colossal financial burden to be paid by the public.

HOUSE CUTS JOY RIDERS

The House of Representatives sliced off another $100,000 from the Agricultural appropriation bill when it was up for consideration on the floor by reducing the item of $292,000 for the treatment of hog cholera to $192,000.

Those who are responsible for this additional cut in expenditures say they cut off $100,000 worth of "joy riders" from the department men who travel around over the country lecturing on and treating hog cholera epidemics. It is asserted that the amount of money lopped off represented unnecessary train riding which has been indulged in recent years and that the amount left, $192,000, is ample appropriation for the real work that is to be accomplished by the department experts in that line.

When punishment follows the investigations the public will begin to have some faith in the administration's war on the profiteers. These thick-skinned robbers thrive on "pitiless publicity."

When politicians become as honest as the day is long they'll quit announcing that they want an office because their friends want them to want it.

History may be cited to show that a third party is about as popular on election day as a third party would be on a honeymoon.

Interest saved on the Nobel peace prize that have been held back during the war would buy the dove a new cage.

Human nature hasn't changed. There are more opportunities for acting the hog, that is all.

Sovietism doesn't want war, it wants to be in a position to do all the killing.

AT THE MOVIES

Episode 5

Elmo Lincoln, the wonderful star of the "Tarzan" pictures, continues his smashing, fighting career in the fifth episode, of his serial, "Elmo the Mighty," which will be shown at the Palace Theatre, March 3. This serial, with its bracing atmosphere of outdoors, and its thrilling succession of daring stunts, is proving a big attraction at the Palace Theatre.

"His Majesty, the American," Douglas Fairbanks' new picture and the first release of the United Artists Corporation—the so-called "Big Four"—will be featured on the screen of the Palace Theatre, March 6th.

The production demanded not only very unusual and elaborate settings, which were provided without reckoning the cost, but also called for an exceeding strong cast to support "Doug" in his journeyings through the picture.

As, in the case of the settings, Mr. Fairbanks gave his director, Joseph Henaberry, carte blanche to secure the best talent available regardless of expense.

The female lead is played by Marjory Daw who has now appeared opposite Mr. Fairbanks in six of his best productions. When it is remembered that "Doug" uses rather heroic measures to rescue damsels through distress, it will be understood that it requires some experience to play opposite him. In his new picture dauntless "Doug" performs numberless miraculous stunts for the sake of the girl and so splendidly has she carried out her part in the picture that stardom is shortly to be her reward.

Frank Campeau, probably the best known and most capably equipped of all screen and stage villains, has again been entrusted with a very important role, which he carries off with all the ability which has made him so well and favorably known.

Great interest will attach likewise to the appearance of Sam Sothern in the production. Mr. Sothern is a younger brother of the famous E. H. Sothern and this picture marks his first venture in the "movies." Mr. Sothern is known throughout England as one of the foremost actors on the speaking stage and it is said that in this, his first screen appearance, he has delivered himself of a wonderful piece of character work.

Lillian Langdon, who appeared with Fairbanks in the first motion picture that he ever made, "The Lamb" and who played with him in a number of his other productions, will be seen in his company again in "His Majesty, the American."

Jay Dwigins has a particularly happy part in the new picture. In several of Mr. Fairbanks' earlier productions Dwigins, who is short and fat and happy looking, made a very delightful roly-poly foil for Douglas. Albert McQuarrie, who is likewise not a newcomer to the Douglas Fairbanks' company, in addition to assisting Director Joseph Henaberry in the production, has an important part to play in the picture.

"Bull Montana," Will Gillis and Phil Gastrox, character men and daring riders that they are, are also prominent in this round-up of talent.

Memory.

The qualities of a good memory are, in the first place, to be susceptible; secondly, to be retentive; and thirdly, to be ready. It is but rarely that these three qualities are united in the same person. We often indeed meet with a memory which is at once susceptible and ready; but I doubt very much if such memories be commonly very retentive; for the same set of habits which are favorable to the first two qualities are adverse to the third. —Dugald Stewart.

Mixture of Many Languages.

Modern English is a composite of Latin and the language of the ancient Britons who were conquered by the Romans, together with many Scandinavian words introduced by the Danes when they conquered England, German words brought by the Saxons, and French words brought by the Normans. There is scarcely a language that has not contributed something to modern English, but these mentioned have been the largest contributors. Many technical words have been taken from the Greek.

Well, It Made 'Em Happy.

Hami-kiri, or Japanese form of suicide, was a privilege "enjoyed" by noblemen and gentlemen who would not die like common criminals.

Wonders of the Heavens.
People in the southern hemisphere see different stars, but there are some constellations which are visible at different times of the year in both hemispheres. If the earth axis kept always perpendicular to the plane of its orbit one of the northern constellations would ever be seen in the southern hemisphere, but as the axis inclines first one way and then the other, some of both sets can be seen at different times.

INTERESTING BITS OF INFORMATION CLIPPED FROM OUR EXCHANGES

The city of Ludington last week confiscated a car of coal in the yards of the Pere Marquette Railroad company there to keep the municipal water works running. The pumping station was entirely out of fuel and two cars of coal on the way since the middle of January cannot be traced. The local dealers are absolutely without coal and the situation in private homes is desperate.

Municipal ownership of the gas plant as the only means of relieving an intolerable situation is likely to be brought about here soon. The first act of the newly appointed charter commission was to recommend

OLD-TIME COLD CURE— DRINK HOT TEA!

Get a small package of Hamburg Breast Tea at any pharmacy. Take a tablespoonful of the tea, put a cup of boiling water upon it, pour through a sieve and drink a teacup full at any time during the day or before retiring. It is the most effective way to break a cold and cure grip, as it opens the pores of the skin, relieving congestion. Also loosens the bowels, thus breaking up a cold.

Try it the next time you suffer from a cold or the grip. It is inexpensive and entirely vegetable, therefore safe and harmless.

RUB RHEUMATISM FROM STIFF ACHING JOINTS

Rub Soreness from joints and muscles with a small trial bottle of old St. Jacobs Liniment

Stop "dosing" Rheumatism. It's pain only; not one case in fifty requires internal treatment. Rub soothing, penetrating "St. Jacobs Liniment" right on the "tender spot," and by the time you say Jack Robinson—out comes the rheumatic pain. "St. Jacobs Liniment" is a harmless rheumatism cure which never disappoints and doesn't burn the skin. It takes pain, soreness and stiffness from aching joints, muscles and bones; stops sciatica, lumbago, backache, neuralgia. Limber up! Get a 30 cent bottle of old-time, honest "St. Jacobs Liniment" from any drug store, and in a moment you'll be free from pains, aches and stiffness. Don't suffer. Rub rheumatism away.

MORTGAGE FORECLOSURE.

Whereas default having been made in the conditions of a certain mortgage made and executed by Oliver C. Poole and Myrtle B. Poole, his wife, of the City of Clarion, County of Charlevoix, State of Michigan, to William F. McLaughlin, of the City of Detroit, County of Wayne, State of Michigan, dated the twenty-fifth day of October, 1915, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds for the County of Charlevoix, State of Michigan, on the Sixth day of November, 1915, in Liber 52 of Mortgages, on page 464, on which mortgage there is claimed to be due and unpaid at the date of this notice Fourteen Hundred and Forty-six and 25/100 ($1446.25) Dollars, and no suit or proceedings at law or in equity having been instituted to recover the debt secured by such mortgage or any part thereof. Now, Therefore, by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage and the Statute in such cases made and provided, notice is hereby given that on Monday, the Seventeenth day of May, 1920, at twelve (12) o'clock noon (Central Standard Time) said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale at public vendue to the highest bidder at the front door of the Charlevoix County Court House, corner of State and Antrim streets, in the City of Charlevoix, County of Charlevoix, State of Michigan (that being the building in which the Circuit Court for the County of Charlevoix is held), of the premises described in said mortgage, or so much thereof as may be necessary to pay the amount of said mortgage as aforesaid, together with interest from the date of this notice, and all legal costs, charges and expenses, including the attorney fee of Thirty-five ($35.00) dollars, allowed by law in such cases, which premises are described as follows, to-wit: All the certain pieces or parcels of land situate and being in the Township of Chandler, in the County of Charlevoix, State of Michigan, and more particularly described as follows, to-wit: The north half (N. 1/2) of the South west quarter (S. W. 1/4) and the South half (S. 1/2) of the South half (S. 1/2) of the North west quarter (N. W. 1/4) of Section Two (2) in Township Thirty-three (33) north of Range four (4) West. Containing One Hundred and Twenty (120) acres of land more or less according to the Government Survey. Excepting and reserving for Cobbs & Mitchell Inc., of Cadillac, Wexford County, State of Michigan, its legal representatives or assigns, a strip of land one hundred feet wide over and across said lands, should the same be at any time required by it or its legal representatives for the purpose of constructing, building or operating a railroad or any road for logging purposes, together with hereditaments and appurtenances thereof.

Dated, February 7th, 1920.

OUR WEEKLY LIMERICK

There was a young woman named Hall
Who madly aspired to play ball
While sliding to first,
Her uniform burst,
Then her side was out, that's all.

G. C. Townsend was a Petoskey visitor on Monday of this week. Albert Elzinga is at the county seat this week serving as juror in the circuit court.

J. H. Elzinga and James Ruis are at Grand Rapids this week attending the auto show.

Mrs. R. Williams of Traverse City, is spending a few days at the E. R. Harris' home here.

Several members of the Ethan Jolliffe family near Atwood are suffering from the flu.

Mrs. William Patterson and Mrs. A. L. Ely were Petoskey visitors on Saturday of last week.

Mrs. Edward Telegenhoff has been quite ill for the past ten days, but is much better at present.

Miss Esther Parsons spent Sunday at her home here returning on Monday to her work at Charlevoix.

Ray Nelson spent Sunday and Monday at Remus, Michigan, where he was the guest of his sister.

Arthur Ruis left on Tuesday of this week to visit relatives at Grand Rapids and incidentally to take in the Auto show.

Nick Dikkinga left on Thursday of this week for Cleveland, Ohio, with a string of potato ears for the Ellsworth Produce Co.

John Hennip has rented his farm and will leave on Thursday of this week for Chicago enroute to California, where he expects to make his future home.

W. G. Patterson, who is working in Flint this winter came home on Saturday of last week to spend a few days with his wife at the home of his parents here.

Two new cases of flu were reported at the Art. Walker home here in town. Both Mr. and Mrs. Walker being down with the "disease," but neither being in a serious condition.

Ward was received last week from Detroit that Miss Emily Wieland, who has been ill with pneumonia at a Detroit hospital is much improved and is now recuperating at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Claude Smith of Detroit.

Geo. Heller has announced himself as a candidate for the office of treasurer of Banks township and his official announcement appears in this week's Courier. Mr. Heller is a No. 1 citizen and a heavy tax payer and there seems no reason why he should not receive the support of the voters.

Nearly enough names have been affixed to the petitions for a rural high school and the petitions will probably be presented to the township board with in the next few days. People from all parts of the township have signed these petitions and the prospects are that the proposition will carry with a rush when put to a vote.

Williams' Kidney and Liver Pills

Have you overworked your nervous system and caused trouble with your kidneys and liver? Have you pains in your back and loins? Have you a feeling of weariness, or the face and under the eyes? If so, you need WILLIAMS' KIDNEY AND LIVER PILLS. For sale by all Druggists. Price 50 cents. WILLIAMS' MED. CO., Prop., CINCINNATI, OHIO. For Sale by Frank N. Metcalf

A deal was closed last week by which the ownership of the Now Orient Hotel here became the property of Mr. Philip Hartman of Chicago. The new owner will take possession on or about the first of March and will endeavor to keep the hotel up to its past excellent standard. Since the death of Mrs. VanSkiver some time ago, Van has endeavored to operate the hotel but depending on all hired help has proved to much of a handicap. Van has not yet fully decided what he will do, but expects to remain in Ellsworth this summer at least and his many friends both local and among the traveling public will wish him success in any new venture which he may undertake.

ROCK ELM

The mail route was blocked by the snow again last week for a few days. Here is hoping for better weather and better weather in the near future.

Everyone is longing for the return of spring and the end of this epidemic.

Most of those who have been sick are improving but all are still quite weak. But we hope for a better report next week.

Miss Cora Metz returned home from her visit in Charlevoix on Thursday of last week and is taking her turn at the flu. Mrs. Metz is also quite sick.

School closed the 11th, on account of the influenza. Nearly every pupil in school has had it, and many of the older people as well. Some entire families being all sick at once. It has kept what few well ones were left busy to look after the sick.

Florence Elmeda Hurlbert, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Hurlbert of East Jordan was born at Sidney, Indiana, September 16th, 1890 and died at her home in South Arm township February 19th, 1920. After a week's illness from pneumonia.

She came to this state with her parents when about ten years of age and has lived most of the time in Charlevoix county. March 3rd, she was united in marriage with Mr. Bert Grosset. Two daughters were born to them, both of whom survive her. All that loving hands could do to relieve her sufferings was done.

Besides a loving husband and two little daughters, she leaves a father, mother and three brothers, and many other relatives and friends to mourn her death.

A brief service was conducted at the home and she was laid to rest in the East Jordan cemetery.

The bereaved family have the sympathy of the entire community in their sorrow.

ESSEX

George Dekkenga lost a valuable cow last week.

Mr. and Mrs. VanBeek and Gerrit visited at the Wieland home Saturday.

William Tillotson has been sick several days, he is some improved at present.

Mr. and Mrs. Tjapka and family, visited at the George Drenth home last Monday.

The Fielstra family of Pleasant Hill, visited at the Dekkenga home last Thursday.

George Drenth's young horse was laid up last week because of hurting himself in the deep snow.

Is it what they call warm days and cool nights, when it is 45 degrees above at noon, down to zero at night?

The many friends of Miss Emily Wieland are glad she has left the hospital in Detroit, and is now staying at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Claude Smith of Detroit where she is improving nicely.

FAIRVIEW-BANKS

Mrs. George Rubiagh is on the sick list.

Our teacher, Miss Neilman, spent the week-end at her home near East Jordan.

Wel Senneker left Friday for Manton, Michigan to visit relatives there for a few days.

Mr. and Mrs. John Goeman visited at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Elzinga one day last week.

Some of the farmers from here attended the Farmers' Institute at Central Lake last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Bos and son, John of Norwood, visited Saturday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harry DeGroot.

Announcement

I take this opportunity of announcing to the voters of Banks Township, Antrim county, Michigan, that I am a candidate for the office of township treasurer at the spring primaries. I am citizen of the United States and one of the heaviest tax payers of my township and if elected will perform the duties of the office to the best of my ability.

A PRETTY ELLS-

WORTH WEDDING

Mrs. Mina Donaldson and Mr. Joseph Dufore

A very quiet wedding was solemnized at one o'clock on Tuesday, February 23rd, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Slough of Ellsworth, the contracting parties being Joseph Dufore and Mrs. Mina Donaldson both of Ellsworth. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. E. E. Clark of the Ellsworth M. E. church and the happy couple will reside on the groom's farm just east of town. Congratulations are extended by the friends of both.

MILES DISTRICT

School was resumed again Monday. Miss Catherine Moblo is at home. School being closed at East Jordan.

Clarence LaLonde went to Charlevoix Monday to take treatment for rheumatism.

Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Hillman of Ellsworth, were visiting at the home of Mrs. Hillman's parents Sunday.

Our teacher, Mrs. Hutton, is now staying at the Miles home on account of sickness at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Cincush.

Dr. Dicken was called to the home of Adolph Cincush last Tuesday as their daughter, Minnie, was very ill with scarlet fever.

BEST AGE FOR WEANING PIGS

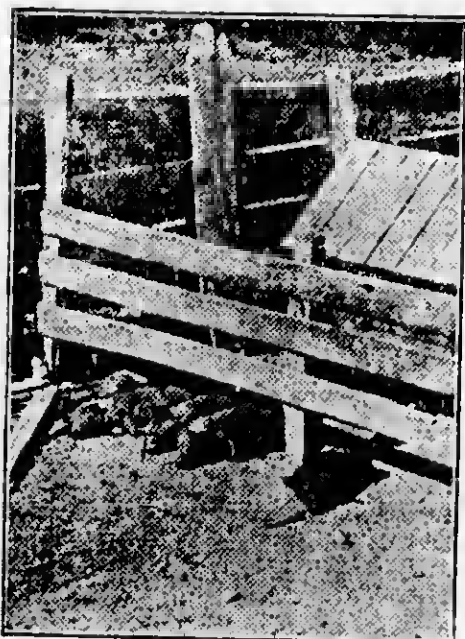

Good Plan to Let Porkers Nurse Until Twelve or Fourteen Weeks of Age—Keep Them Growing.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Too many farmers follow the practice of weaning pigs when too young, many being weaned at six and seven weeks of age. A good brood sow properly fed has a good flow of milk when the pigs are of this age. There is no better feed for growing pigs than their mother's milk, consequently it should be used to the greatest extent possible. When the pigs are of suckling age the sow should be on full feed. Unless there is some extraordinary reason for earlier weaning the pigs should not be weaned under the age of ten weeks, and it is better to let them nurse until they are twelve or fourteen weeks old.

Often serious results follow weaning at too early an age. An entire change of feed following weaning may create serious trouble. If, however, pigs have access to corn, shorts, middlings or tankage, or fish meal in a self-feeder placed in the open where they can eat at pleasure without being disturbed by other hogs, they can be weaned at the age of twelve or fourteen weeks, with very little change in their feed, by allowing them to continue on the self-feeder.

To obtain the best results pigs should be gradually accustomed until they are ready for market. The best results will not be obtained unless pigs have access all the time possible to good forage crops, alfalfa and red clover preferred. If these feeds cannot be procured rye, oats, barley, cowpeas, rape or any other grain or grasses that will produce good forage in the locality should be sown. The pigs should be watched closely to see that they are on their feed. If they are not the feed should be changed, replacing corn with barley and using skim milk or buttermilk if possible. The pigs should be kept free from lice by the use of crude or good black oil. They must have access at all times to good, pure water. Shade must be provided during the hot summer months. Natural shade is always best, but where this is not obtainable temporary shade may be provided by setting posts and nailing boards on poles about three and one-half or four feet from the ground and covering with straw or grass.

COUNCIL PROCEEDINGS

February 24, 1920.
The Common Council of the City of Charlevoix met on the above date, Mayor Rose presiding. Aldermen present, Benton, Geneit, Hiller, Levinson and Washburn.
The minutes of meeting held Feb. 9th were read and approved.
The petition of the Commercial Association, signed by R. L. Lewis and 27 other members, that the question of amending the City Charter to permit the raising of 3-4ths of one mill instead of 1-4th of a mill by taxation for advertising purposes, was referred by the Mayor to the Ordinance committee.
Moved by Ald. Geneit, seconded by Ald. Levinson, the adoption of the following resolution:
A resolution proposing an amendment to the Charter of the City of Charlevoix:
Resolved, by the Common Council of the City of Charlevoix, in the County of Charlevoix, State of Michigan, that the following amendment to the charter of said city, by the amendment of Section 1 of Chapter 30 of Act No. 215 of the Public Acts of the State of Michigan for the year 1895, entitled, "An act to provide for the incorporation of cities of the fourth class," be and the same is hereby proposed, said section as amended to read as follows:
Section 1. The fiscal year of the City of Charlevoix shall begin on the first day of March of each year.
Resolved Further, That the foregoing proposed amendment be submitted to the electors of said city at the annual city election to be held on Monday, the Fifth day of April, 1920, and that the form in which the same shall be submitted on the ballot shall be as follows:
Proposed Amendment to the City Charter.
Annual City Election to be held at the Central Polling place in the City of Charlevoix, Michigan, on the 5th day of April, 1920.
Instructions to Voters: If you wish to vote for the amendment of the City Charter relative to changing the commencement of the fiscal year from the First Monday in October, to the First day of March of each year, make a cross in the square to the right of the word "Yes." If you wish to vote against the proposed amendment, mark a cross in the square to the right of the word "No."

Vote on amendment to Section 1 of Chapter 30 of Act No. 215 of the P. A. of Michigan for 1895, entitled, "An Act to provide for the incorporation of cities of the fourth class."

Resolved Further, That upon the approval of the proposed amendment by the Governor, the Board of Election Commissioners of said city cause the ballot for the submission thereof to the electors to be printed as provided by law and in accordance with the provisions of this resolution and deliver the ballots so prepared to the inspectors of election of said city within the time the ballots to be used at said election are required to be delivered under the general election law, and that all votes cast upon said amendment shall be counted, canvassed and returned in the same manner as is provided by law for the counting, canvassing and returning the votes cast for city officers.

Resolved Further, That the City Clerk cause the proposed amendment to be published in the Charlevoix Courier and Charlevoix Sentinel, newspapers published and circulating in the City of Charlevoix, in at least two issues of such newspapers prior to said election.

Adopted at a regular meeting of the Common Council of the City of Charlevoix, held in the Council Rooms in said city, on the 24th day of February, A. D. 1920, by aye and nay vote as follows:
Ayes, Aldermen Benton, Geneit, Hiller, Levinson and Washburn.
Nays, none.
S. M. Rose, Mayor.

Countersigned:
Archie Livingston, City Clerk.

COMB SAGE TEA IN HAIR TO DARKEN IT

It's Grandmother's Recipe to keep her Locks Dark, Glossy, Beautiful.

The old-time mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur for darkening gray, streaked and faded hair is grandmother's recipe, and folks are again using it to keep their hair a good, even color, which is quite sensible, as we are living in an age when a youthful appearance is of the greatest advantage.
Nowadays, though, we don't have the troublesome task of gathering the sage and the moss growing at home. All drug stores sell the ready-to-use product, improved by the addition of other ingredients, called "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound." It is very popular because nobody can discover it has been applied. Simply moisten your comb or a soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, but what delights the ladies with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound, is that, besides successfully darkening the hair after a few applications, it also produces that soft lustre and appearance of abundance which is so attractive. This ready-to-use preparation is a delightful toilet requisite for those who desire a more youthful appearance. It is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.

ENTERTAINMENT AT WAL- LOON LAKE SCHOOL

Given in Honor of the School Receiving Standard Plate

On February 13th the Walloon Lake school became the proud possessor of an emblem that gave it a place among the best schools of the county.

A very interesting program was rendered by the pupils in honor of the occasion under the supervision of the teacher Miss Silvia Jensen. The program was also held in honor of the 14th, Valentine's Day.

Immediately after the program was finished a postman began distributing the contents of a valentine box among pupils. Ice Cream and cake were served, ending a program that was thoroughly enjoyed by all. Many of the parents of the children were present showing their interest in the school work.

ANOTHER POLITICAL LIE NAILED DOWN

Cemetery Board Take Exceptions to Misleading Statements

The Courier has been banded the following communication for publication, which we willingly do. The statement referred to is intended to reflect upon the city management and is being used for political purposes.

We believe in honest criticisms from tax paying citizens, but believe it an injustice to all to be compelled to be unjustly criticised by a person or persons who never paid a dollar in taxes and who during the primary and city election, parade the streets and circulate statements, without regard to the truth, in hopes of securing an appointment to one of the city jobs. The communication follows:

February 25, 1920.

Editor Charlevoix Courier.

Dear Sir:

Our attention has been called to a report which seems to have had some circulation in the community regarding the employment of Sexton Charles Hyers by the Street Commissioner in work on the streets, it being claimed that Mr. Hyers is receiving double pay. As this is a reflection on the Cemetery Board we wish to put the public right in the matter. Sexton Hyers is employed by the year at the rate of $75 per month. It is part of the agreement and understanding that during the winter he shall be permitted to do such other work as he may find, provided it does not interfere with his duties at the cemetery. By this arrangement the Cemetery Board is able to employ a person at a lower salary than it otherwise could. At the same time this arrangement makes it possible for the Street Commissioner to have a handy man who will work by the hour and charge for the actual time put in. It would seem that persons who circulate such reports would make an effort to inform themselves before they attempt to criticize.

Will you kindly publish this statement in the columns of your paper.

Signed: Frank G. Hines

Get the Habit of Drinking Hot Water Before Breakfast

Says we can't look or feel right with the system full of poisons.

Millions of folks bathe internally now instead of loading their system with drugs. "What's a inside bath?" you may ask. Well, it is guaranteed to perform miracles if you could hollow these hot water enthusiasts.

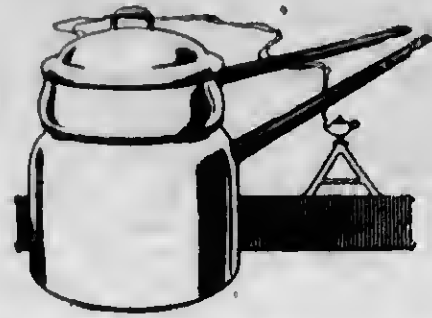

There are vast numbers of men and women who, immediately upon arising in the morning, drink a glass of real hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it. This is a very excellent health measure. It is intended to flush the stomach, liver, kidneys and the thirty feet of intestines of the previous day's waste, sour bile and indigestible material left over in the body which if not eliminated every day, become food for the millions of bacteria which infest the bowels, the quick result is poisons and toxins which are then absorbed into the blood causing headache, bilious attacks, foul breath, bad taste, colds, stomach trouble, kidney misery, sleeplessness, impure blood and all sorts of ailments.

People who feel good one day and lousy the next, but who simply can not get feeling right are urged to obtain a quarter pound of limestone phosphate at the drug store. This will cost very little but is sufficient to make anyone a real crank on the subject of internal sanitation.

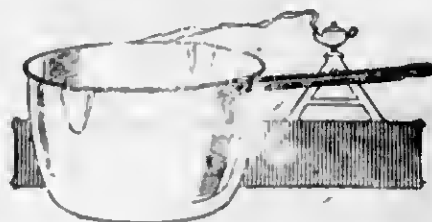

Just as soap and hot water act on the skin, cleansing, sweetening and freshening, so limestone phosphate and hot water act on the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels. It is vastly more important to bathe on the inside than on the outside, because the skin pores do not absorb impurities into the blood while the bowel pores do.

MICHIGAN MEN BACK WOOD

UNIVERSITY OF MICHIGAN MAN MAKE STATEMENT

Major General Leonard Wood Has Made a Remarkable Record Both Military and Civil

"Who is your candidate for president?"

Horace L. Wilgus, professor of law at Ann Arbor university, answered that question, put to him on the campus this week, with fifteen reasons behind his answer—and used up only 350 words in framing them—a record for "distinguished brevity," fellow members of the faculty smilingly suggest.

Here are fifteen reasons as he gave them, after answering "Leonard Wood":

"1. He is a man of action.
"2. A man of practical vision.
"3. Has made good in everything he has undertaken.

"4. What he says can be understood by everybody, and in only one way."

"5. He has had a wide and extraordinarily successful administrative experience, involving both budgets and men—including savage Moros, oppressed Cubans and disgruntled strikers—and he won all. Men are mere than budgets.

"6. He has an unusual personal knowledge of the people of all sections of the United States, both continental and insular.

"7. He is not a stand-patter, an irreconcilable or a radical, but a progressive who will meet our great problems without abandoning fundamental American principles and policies.

"8. He is big enough to call the biggest men in the country to his aid in the public service.

"9. He studies every problem with tireless energy, and is not content till every source of information is exhausted.

"10. His military knowledge and experience are likely to be of the greatest value in formulating sane, safe and reasonable policies for the immediate future.

"11. He has the courage to stand, speak and act for his country's welfare without reference to his own advancement, or indignities heaped on him.

"12. He is a American through and through, and believes in the square deal for everybody.

"13. For years he has been a close student of world affairs, and when he went to the Philippines made an exhaustive study of colonial systems and of the oriental conditions.

"14. Like an honest man, he is an avowed candidate from the beginning. He places his life record before the public and challenges his enemies to do their worst. He does not have to keep it dark so that an uninstructed convention can be stampeded into his support. He is not the candidate of any party dictator. He does not have to await the fate of the League of Nations treaty to know to what party he belongs. He has always known his own political mind.

"15. He does not live 'in nubibus,' nor is he afflicted with megalomania."

Of all the presidential timber that has been produced thus far Major General Leonard Wood looms up as the most promising and substantial. He has proven his worth as a man of good judgement over and over again both in civil and military life. From the start of his campaign he has stated his platform frankly and honestly and the stand that he has taken is one that if carried out can be nothing but successful. It is a pleasure to support this type of a man to assume the leadership of our nation at this crucial period when a strong hand on the reins is needed to guide the nation's affairs safely over the hazy bumps that are bound to come up in the next few years. The Courier heartily endorses Leonard Wood's candidacy and offer such support that it is able to give.

CAR FERRY IS STILL HELD UP

Passengers Experiencing Much Discomfort in Crossing Straits.

The car ferry which Wawatam remains at her dock at St. Ignace and passengers for upper peninsula points are making the trip from Mackinaw City to St. Ignace, or return, paying the transportation companies $2.50 per person or trunk, per trip.

Ons Mackinaw City livery has three teams on this drive, making four trips a day at $20 per trip, for each team. St. Ignace liverymen are also busy. The trip, of close to seven miles, requires about an hour and a quarter on a good day. During stormy weather it takes a little longer.

Teams leave Mackinaw City and drive on the ice near the point. The road is rather winding, necessarily so in order to escape the thin ice over the shoals. The driveway is marked with small shrubs and posts, and dangerous places on the ice are circled with posts.

Some freight was transferred last week across from St. Ignace by teams, but at the price charged this is rather expensive. Mail is being moved back and forth regularly.

BIRTHDAY PARTY AT SHELTON HOME

Leap Year Party Proved a Most Enjoyable One

Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Sheldon entertained Mrs. Wm. Shaw and daughter, Effie, also Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Knox and family on February 29, it being Mrs. Knox birthday anniversary.

The center of the table was decorated with a nice birthday cake and the spread was very appetizing. As Mrs. Knox's birthday comes on the 29th of February, she is able only to have a birthday every four years.

STATE BASKET BALL TOURNAMENT

TITLE TO BE DECIDED IN APRIL

The Local High School Team Has Fine Chance to Land Honor in Class B This Year

For the first time all Michigan high schools will be able to participate in the general tournament to decide the Class A, and B, basketball championship of the state this year through arrangements made by the Michigan Interscholastic association, state physical department, and the University of Michigan.

Preliminaries for both classes will be held at eight centers on March 25 and 26. The champions and runner up fives in each section will be sent to the finals on April 1 and 2 for Class A, at Ann Arbor and for Class B, at Lansing. Schools with more than 250 pupils enrolled are in Class A, and schools with less are in Class B.

Silver cups will be awarded the champion and runner up in each class, eight gold medals for players on the championship quintet and eight silver medals for the second team.

Cities selected for the preliminaries are Kalamazoo, Mt. Pleasant, Ypsilanti, Marquette, Grand Rapids, Houghton, Petoskey and Detroit. At the first four, games will be held in the normal gymnasiums.

M. A. C., will be host to the teams coming to East Lansing and will take care of all local expenses, such as room and board, Society houses, dormitories and private homes will be utilized to accommodate the visitors and a table will be provided at one of the large eating clubs.

University of Michigan and M. A. C., will alternate each year in the class entertained.

Charlevoix having a student enrollment of less than 250 will be in class B, and at the rate that the boys have been going so far this season will have a fine chance to grab off the state championship in their class.

They have been defeated once this year by a small score, the team beating them being class A. Since then they have defeated a team that was victorious over the top team and have decisively defeated every other team that they have met since.

The game that was scheduled with Petoskey for last Saturday was cancelled but will be played here a week from Friday night. As there has been a great deal of influenza in both towns the basketball schedules have been behind. Wednesday night of this week Petoskey meets Boyne City whom she has defeated once and Saturday night she meets Traverse City. Both games are to be played at Petoskey. Charlevoix has met and defeated both of these teams and by watching the outcome of these two games one can nearly pick the better of the two teams. The Petoskey-Charlevoix game will be a good one as it means a whole lot to each team. Don't miss it.

S. M. ROSE RE-ELECTED BY PEOPLE OF CHARLEVOIX FOR THIRD TERM

Meech For Supervisor in First—Hamilton For Alderman in Second—Miller For Alderman in Third—Rose and Geiken Hold Tie in Third Ward—Close Race.

The city primary election for the year 1920 is now a thing of the past and S. M. Rose has again been chosen by the people of the city to guide the city ship of state safely over the bumps and around the bands that threaten to undermine municipal affairs from time to time.

Rose carried the entire city by a majority of 72 votes, of this majority 29 votes were in the first ward, 43 in the second and none in the third. In the third ward the race was neck-and-neck, each of the candidates received 85 votes by the final count. This was Geiken's home ward and a very close race was anticipated.

In the first ward there was a very close race for the office of supervisor between Meech and Campbell. Meech proved winner by a small majority of 13 votes. Grover Genett was elected to succeed himself in this ward as alderman.

In the second ward H. Bodford was elected to succeed himself as supervisor being the only man for this office on the ticket. The closest race of the day was in the second ward for the office of alderman. A. J. Hamilton and A. J. Usher were the two men on the ticket, Hamilton winning by a remarkably small majority of 10 votes out 206 cast.

In the third ward Merritt Miller whose name did not appear on the ballot came out on slips and defeated James Bogart for alderman by a majority of 12 votes. Many of the voters in this ward evidently did not understand the proper manner in which to vote slips. Many thought that the only thing that had to be done was to paste the slip on the ballot. This however is only part of the operation. After the slip is pasted upon the ballot a cross must be placed in front of the name before the vote is cast for the man. Judging from the number of votes thrown out in the third ward Miller should have won by an overwhelming majority. E. B. Ward the only candidate for supervisor from the third ward was elected.

Archie Livingston candidate for city clerk and John Cook for treasurer were both elected, also Collins for justice.

Three park commissioners were elected although the vote of these three offices was very light. George Anderson was elected for this office for a three year term, John Auld for a two year term and L. S. See for a one year term.

All of the men elected to hold city offices for the ensuing year are well qualified to hold the offices to which they have been elected most of them having already proven their worth to the people of the city. The administration for the coming year should prove one of harmony from which nothing but good should be derived by the city. We will not doubt have a successful year and we must look to these men just elected to see that things are successful.

WILL HAVE AGENCY FOR GOULD BATTERY

Local Garage Man Will Handle Well Known Auto Accessory.

Henry Block, who conducts a garage at the corner of Antrim and State streets, returned last Friday from Grand Rapids, where he had been several days attending the auto show.

While in Grand Rapids Mr. Block secured the contract for handling the famous Gould batteries, his agreement with the company covering Charlevoix county. The Gould battery is one of the latest on the market and one of the few batteries today carrying a guarantee for a certain time of service. It is claimed by auto experts to be one of the best manufactured.

Mr. Block is confident of having the addition to his garage completed by the first of April and will soon open up with a full stock of tires, tubes, accessories, besides the Gould batteries and first class repair shop.

GOVERNMENT TURNS BACK RAILROADS

Private Ownership is Again Controlling the Railroads

At 12:01 Monday morning the railroads of the United States which for the past twenty-six months have been under the control of the government were turned back to the private owners who will operate them in the future.

These various roads under the government management during these twenty-six months now have a deficit of $115,500,000. It will be a long time before the confusion brought about by poor management will be overcome and the roads reach their pre-war basis once more. A general increase in freight rate of about twenty-five per cent may be expected to overcome the enormous overhead carried by the roads under government control.

BOX SOCIAL PROVES SUCCESSFUL

Large Crowd Attends Entertainment Friday

The box social given by the American Legion last Friday night proved to be a tremendous success considering that this was the first entertainment of this kind that has been given by this organization.

The floor of the Bank hall was well filled with dancers and there were a goodly number of boxes that were auctioned later in the evening netting the Legion a fine sum.

In all after all expenses had been paid there was left an amount close to fifty dollars which will go along ways in giving the local post of the Legion a financial start.

No doubt the Legion will give other entertainment of different varieties in the future and now that they have proved their worth as entertainers a good crowd and a good time is always assured.

SPARK ON ROOF CAUSES SMALL BLAZE

Fire Extinguished Before Arrival of Department.

A spark which fell on the roof of the A. L. Hart home on Clinton street was responsible for a small blaze and considerable excitement Monday night about seven o'clock.

The blaze was discovered by neighbors before it had gained much headway and was extinguished with a pail of water. Little damage was done other than a small hole in the floor and a bunch of badly frightened school ma'ams who make their home there.

The fire department made a quick run to the scene but arrived after the fire was out.

NORTHERN AUTO COMPANY EXPANDS

Headquarters at Petoskey Has Been Greatly Enlarged.

One of the largest deals that has been put across in the automobile circle of northern Michigan for some time took place last week at Petoskey, when the Northern Auto Co., with headquarters in that city, acquired the building now occupied by the Northern Auto Co., and the Sifert livery property which adjoins it.

This addition will give the Northern Auto Co. a frontage on the main street of one hundred and fifty feet, and an alley frontage of one hundred and eighty feet.

On this new property a modern building will be erected which will house a new sales department, offices and a service department.

The garages of this company now extend over this entire section of the state with stations at Charlevoix, Boyne City, East Jordan, Gaylord, Cheboygan and Onaway. The garages at East Jordan and Gaylord are being doubled in size to handle the increased business of the coming season. The first Ford contract held by the Northern Auto Co. called for twenty cars, while the contract for 1920 gives them nine hundred cars, which gives some idea of the growth of the concern in the past few years.

FRANCE HONORS FALLEN HEROES

MEMORIAL DIPLOMAS GIVEN TO NEAREST KIN

Diplomas From the French Government Are Now On Hand at Army Recruiting Office Grand Rapids

Colonel Ralph McCoy Recruiting Officer at Grand Rapids for the Western Michigan district, has sent out a call for assistance in distributing the remainder of the French Memorial Diplomas which did not reach the nearest kin of the dead American heroes on Washington's Birthday as originally intended.

These diplomas are being given by the French government to the nearest kin of every American soldier who gave up his life in the World war. They can be readily framed. Distribution has been made largely through the American Legion but in many cases it has been found impossible by this method to reach the proper addresses.

The diplomas will be mailed to the persons for whom intended if they will certify that they are the persons named, stating relationship to the deceased soldier, and furnishing full address, written plainly. This information should be sent to the army recruiting officer, 211 Monro Avenue, Grand Rapids, Michigan.

In many cases there have been changes of address of relatives of deceased soldiers, and it is practically impossible for the Recruiting Officer to complete the distribution of the diplomas unless the people of the various communities co-operate by furnishing him with all the information in such cases as possible.

Diplomas are on hand at the army recruiting station at Grand Rapids addressed to the persons listed below. They will be mailed to the persons for whom intended when the information called for is furnished. Other lists will appear later, as more diplomas are received.

Following is the list of persons from this vicinity for whom diplomas are waiting at the army recruiting station at Grand Rapids. The addresses are also printed and if any of the persons have moved and left addresses, persons having knowledge of this forward their information to the Charlevoix post of the American Legion:

List of addresses—
Henry James Debutts, Boyne Falls, Michigan.
Alicia Kemagushkum, Bayshore.
Louise White, Boyne Falls.
Joseph Saliz, Box 5, Boyne Falls.
Mrs. Mary C. Jones, Superior.
John J. Johnson, Springvale.

INCOME TAX RETURNS DUE

INCOME SCHEDULES MUST BE IN BY MARCH 15th

All Single Men Earning Over $1,000
And All Married Men Over
$2,000 Must Pay Tax

The income tax imposed by an Act of Congress on the earnings of the year 1919 are now being collected. Returns under oath must be made on or before March 15th by every citizen and resident who had a net income for 1919 amounting to:

$1,000 or over, if single; or if married and living apart from wife (or husband); or if widowed or divorced.

$2,000 or over, if married and living with wife (or husband.)

The status of the person on the last day of the year fixes the status for the year with respect to the above requirements.

Under any of these circumstances a return must be made, even though no tax is due.

Husband and wife must consider the income of both, plus that of dependent minor children, in meeting this requirement; and if sufficient to require a return, all items must be shown in a joint return or in separate returns of husband and wife.

A single person with minor dependents must include the income of such dependents.

A miner who has a net income of $1,000 or more is not considered a dependent, and must file a separate return.

Personal returns should be made on Form 1040 A, unless the net income exceeded $5,000, in which case Form 1040 should be used.

Residents of the State of Michigan should send returns and payments to John A. Grogan, Collector of Internal Revenue, Detroit, or E. J. Doyle, Collector of Internal Revenue, Grand Rapids.

The best way to find out whether one must file a return is to get a Form 1040A, and follow the instructions printed on it. That form will serve as a reminder of every item of income, and if a return is due it tells how to prepare and file it.

If in any doubt on any point as to income or deduction, a person may secure free advice and aid from the nearest internal revenue office.

Guesswork, estimates and other hit-or-miss methods are barred when a person is making out his Income Tax return. Accuracy and completeness must be insisted upon. The return is a sworn statement. As such it must be thorough and accurate.

Salaried persons and wage earners must ascertain actual compensation received. Overtime, bonuses, shares in the profits of a business, value of quarters and board furnished by the employer and other items which are compensation for services must be included.

It must be borne in mind that compensation may be paid in other forms than cash. A bonus paid in Liberty bonds is taxable at the market value of the bonds. A note received in payment for services is taxable income at its face value, and the interest upon it is also taxable.

Every partnership doing business in the United States must file a return on Form 1065; and every personal service corporation must file a similar return.

Corporations must file annual returns on Form 1120.

Trustees, executors, administrators and other acting in a fiduciary capacity are required to file returns. In some cases, Form 1041 is used; in others, Form 1040; and still others, returns on both forms are required.

Information returns on Forms 1099 and 1066, must be filed by every organization, firm or person who paid, during 1919, an amount of $1,000 in salary, wages, interest, rent or other fixed or determinable income to another person, partnership, personnel service corporation or fiduciary. These information returns should be forwarded directly to the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, (sorting division), Washington, D. C.

Marion Township Caucus

The Marion Township Caucus will be held at the Marion Township hall on Wednesday, March 10th, 1920 at 10 o'clock for the purpose of nominating the township officers for the ensuing year, and for the transaction of any other business that might come before the meeting at that time.

AT THE MOVIES

Episode 6

In the 16th episode of "Elmo the Mighty," Elmo Lincoln—the famed "Tarzan" giant—performs some of the most breath-taking feats yet seen in this thrilling serial. Aided by Grace Cunard, who has the part of Lucille Gray, he again foils the gang of desperadoes headed by Sear and Rawden, and comes a step nearer to solving the mystery of "Mad Mountain."

Mystery Surrounds Story of "His Majesty, The American."

"It's too good to give away," said Manager Moon of the Palace Theatre when he was asked to tell the story of Douglas Fairbanks' forthcoming production, "His Majesty, The American."

"Now, I am not going to spoil the anticipation of my patrons by telling the story of Douglas Fairbanks' new film, 'His Majesty, The American' in advance. But I will say this: Fairbanks has spent more money on this picture than he has ever spent before because he has made it for release direct to the theatres of the country by the United Artists—the 'Big Four'—which is made up of Mary Pickford, Charlie Chaplin, Douglas Fairbanks and D. W. Griffith.

"The story of 'His Majesty, The American' is a knockout. It gives 'Doug' a chance to do a lot of entirely new tricks and I don't hesitate to say that the picture is far and away the biggest production that he has ever turned out.

"I'll let this much of the secret out. 'Doug' plays the part of a young American who simply can't keep out of trouble. He takes a hand in all sorts of situations which lead him all over the world. We find him first in New York where he tries to show the fire department how it should be run. We find him helping the police raid the den of a king of the underworld. We find him later in Mexico showing the bandits what they don't know about their business and then we find him butting-in on the affairs of a little principality in Europe. It is the jolliest mix-up you have ever seen in your life.

"An idea of the enormity of the production can be gathered from the fact that Mr. Fairbanks spent $40,000.00 for the erection of one 'set' alone. This is an entire section of a little French town and was built complete to the last detail, from palace to hovel, from city hall to railroad station. Every building was erected as permanently as if it were designed as the living quarters of the inhabitants of the town. Even the streets were paved and the realism of the buildings was so convincing that hundreds of swallows built their peculiar nests of mud in the copings and cornices.

"Another city of an entirely different character was built in the hills surrounding the Douglas Fairbanks studios. Here the action demanded a Mexican village and a Mexican village 'Doug' built.

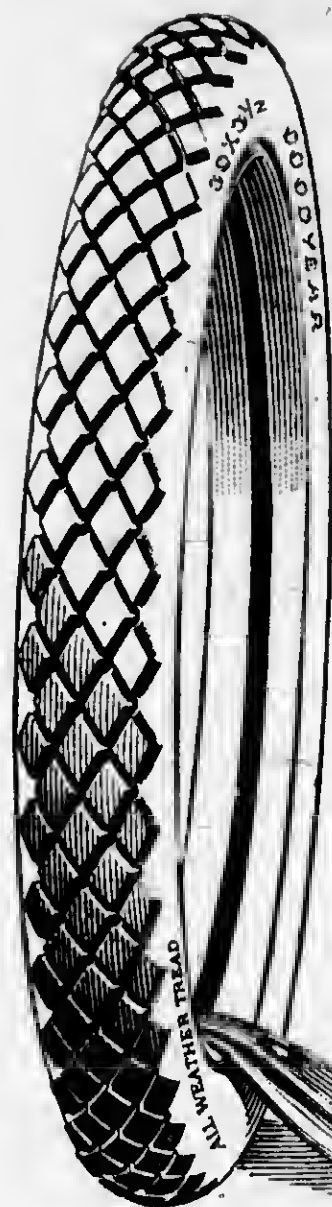

"In addition to these and many more, a complete European railway line was built, 1500 feet long and of the standard continental design, the earnings being the exact duplicate of the type in use in France.

"Supporting Mr. Fairbanks in this production are Marjory Daw, Frank Campeau, Lillian Langdon, Albert McQuarrie and Sam Sothern, famous New York and London actor and brother of E. H. Sothern, who makes his first screen appearance in this picture.

"I do not want to say anything more at this time except that we have got a genuine treat for our audiences when we show them 'His Majesty, The American.'—Saturday March 6th.

INTERESTING BITS OF INFORMATION CLIPPED FROM OUR EXCHANGES

Chicago voters last week voted to bond the city of Chicago for $20,000,000 for lake front, driveways and park improvements, including bathing beaches, playgrounds, etc. Railroads running in Chicago have agreed to electrify their plants if Chicago would bond for the improvements wanted. The federal government is also expected to spend considerable money improving Chicago harbor and lake front. Chicago also conducted her first non-partisan election, and reports it a big improvement over the old party system.

"Not a church bell rang in Elk Rapids Sunday, by order of the health officers," says the Progress of that town. Many of the men who have been suffering for years from the church bell ringing are reported to have shown improvement and to be resting quietly.

"If you have the flu," urges the Huron County Tribune, "stay in bed. If you feel better, stay in bed. If you think you are well, stay in bed. The doctors say that the most of the fatal flu cases are the result of getting up too soon. Stay in bed." We felt better, and we thought we were well, and we had an idea we would like to get back to work, so then we knew we were just beginning to become really ill and we stayed in bed.

State health officers inform us that we can help prevent the spread of the flu, when we sneeze, we will say not "cough-choo," but "e-dee." The change will be difficult at first, but no doubt we can always arrange our faces properly if we count 100 before we sneeze.

Chauncey D. Burritt, aged sixty-one, one of Cadillac's best known lumber operators, died at his home near there of pneumonia after an illness of five days. Mr. Burritt was president of the Cadillac Exchange club. He leaves a widow, two sons and two brothers. The family has lived there 15 years.

That one swallow does not make a summer is no greater truth than that two cold feet do not make a winter.

But still there are a limited few things left which one may purchase with a silver dollar.

Returning the Railroads

"Ding" the famous cartoonist who lives in Iowa and draws for a New York newspaper pictures that make the whole nation sit up and take notice, had a cartoon the other day, depicting the return of the railroads to private operation. The scene was laid in a village door-yard, at the front door were standing father and mother, representing the owners of the railroads, and on the porch were a group of boys who had dragged in to the yard a very badly used toy railroad train. "Thank you for letting us playing with this," said the boys, and one youngster asked, somewhat bashfully: "Please may we borrow them again sometime?"

The railroads that the government is now turning back to the control of the owning companies, after two years of war service, certainly show the effects of hard usage, and it is a tough job that has been put to the managers to restore the railroads to first-class condition.

Some Plain Facts

Here are some plain facts about the condition of the railroads as they are relinquished by the government. The operating expenses have been increased by $1,600,000,000 a year, of which more than $1,000,000,000 is increased cost of labor.

The government has provided only half the required number of new freight cars and engines, and no new passenger cars, so that the owners must find the wherewithal to buy about $700,000,000 worth of equipment.

The government has been unable to maintain the roadbeds in as good condition as they were taken over, and the owners will have to dig around for probably $300,000,000 new capital to put the roadbeds in condition.

Two years of political control of wages and working conditions has undermined the morale of the $2000,000 employees, with the resulting lowered efficiency and it will probably take several years to get the working forces back to normal.

Railroads rates were not increased sufficiently by the government to meet the great increase in operating costs and a further considerable increase in rates will be necessary to make the roads self-sustaining. The government has passed this "buck" to private companies.

Maimed and Crippled

The railroads return from the wars maimed and crippled, physically and financially (but, fortunately for the commerce of the country that is so vitally dependent upon sound railroads, Congress, after months of painstaking labor has provided in the new railroad law a means of bringing the railroads back to the state of efficiency. Without the protection of this law there would undoubtedly have been widespread railroad disaster, with bankruptcy and heavy losses to investors and the general business of the country.

Not An Ideal Law

The new railroad law is not ideal. No laws ever are. But it is an honest effort on the part of Congress to provide a sound basis for the future development of our railroads. It makes it mandatory for the Interstate Commerce Commission to provide a level of rates that will provide for the greatly increased payrolls and the higher costs of materials. How much this increase in rates will be has not been determined, but it is believed that there will be an average increase in freight rates of something like 25 per cent.

The Interstate Commerce Commission. Greater responsibility than ever has been placed on the Interstate Commerce Commission by the new railroad law. The salaries of the members of the Commission are increased to $12,000 a year, and the membership is increased from nine to eleven. As there is already a vacancy on the Commission, President Wilson will have to appoint three new members. A former member of the Commission, Judge C. A. Prouty, now head of the Valuation Bureau of the Commission, recently said that the whole future of the railroads now rested with the Commission, because of its great power over the carriers.

There is great interest, therefore, in the appointments the President must soon make on the Commission. If these new members are broad-minded, courageous administrators the building of railroads will be encouraged and capital will again flow into the vitally necessary development of railroad facilities.

Suspended Newspapers

Until within recent years newspapers never quit—they just passed on from one owner to another. But now publishers fail in business, just like other business men. Publishing has become a matter of first importance in the nation, and likewise its hazards have increased. The time has passed when you can take a dull boy and "make an editor out of him," as the poet Will. Carleton put it. Twenty-five hundred newspapers have suspended publication since July, 1918, but still the Post office Department cries savagely for higher rates for second-class mail matter. They lay their deficits at the door of the publisher, and even try shifting some $58,000,000 annual loss in the rural free delivery service to the newspapers.

White Print Paper

It would be a pleasure to report that there was a prospect that the government would limit the size of some of the big city papers. The excess fat that cannot be classified as "news" in Sunday editions consumes enough white print paper to provide thousands of small weeklies and dailies. But the government is not likely to intercede, and meanwhile the big publishers with their sinches on the white print paper supply are the big fish in the pond whose greediness has jumped the price of print paper out of sight. Evidently the bigger the publishers the less is their worry about the white print paper condition.

The Raw Materials

New York State and New England will exhaust their woods from which paper is made in approximately 17 years. The Lake states are good for 18 years, Pennsylvania, Maryland, Virginia and North Carolina will finish in ten years. Only Alaska, Washington, Oregon and California have the reserves that insure that their supplies are in no immediate danger. The Government itself substantiates these statements.

It is an important factor that 95 per cent of the pulp and paper mills are located in the east. To move these plants to the west means that they will have to be wrecked, or entirely reconstructed. The change in the geographical source of supply means higher cost of paper. Canada has entered into the equation, and already one-third of our paper, wood and pulp used in the United States comes from Canada.

Future Stocks

The Forest Service has called attention to the Swedish system where the mills employ technically trained foresters who prepare accurate figures concerning the growth of young forests. This federal Bureau even supplies the belief that young forests can be produced and reproduced in the vicinity of the paper mills. And the layman who reads the Forestry literature can see young trees fed in to the hopper like sugar beets passing through the factory. But Uncle Sam is insistent that he has the right "dope" and it is declared that young, thrifty growing forests "will produce yields scarcely imagined by one who has been accustomed to deal exclusively with old timber." A sad commentary on the spirit of national wastefulness is the fact stated by the

DRINK HOT WATER IF YOU DESIRE A ROSY COMPLEXION

Says we can't help but look better and feel better after an inside bath.

To look one's best and feel one's best is to enjoy an inside bath each morning to flush from the system the previous day's waste, sour fermentations and poisonous toxins before it is absorbed into the blood. Just as coal, when it burns, leaves behind a certain amount of combustible material in the form of ash, so the food and drink taken each day leave in the alimentary organs a certain amount of indigestible material, which if not eliminated, form toxins and poisons which are then sucked into the blood through the very ducts which are intended to suck in only nourishment to sustain the body.

If you want to see the glow of healthy bloom in your cheeks, to see your skin get clearer and clearer, you are told to drink every morning upon arising, a glass of hot water with a teaspoonful of Limestone phosphate in it, which is a harmless means of washing the waste material and toxins from the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels, thus cleansing, sweetening and purifying the entire alimentary tract, before putting more food into the stomach.

Men and women with sallow skins, liver spots, pimples or pallid complexion, also those who wake up with a coated tongue, bad taste, heavy breath, others who are bothered with headaches, hillyous spells, acid stomach or constipation should begin this phosphate hot water drinking and are assured of very pronounced results in one or two weeks.

A quarter pound of Limestone phosphate costs very little at the drug store but is sufficient to demonstrate that just as soap and hot water cleanses, purifies and freshens the skin on the outside, so hot water and Limestone phosphate act on the inside organs. We must always consider that internal sanitation is vastly more important than outside cleanliness, because the skin pores do not absorb impurities into the blood, while the bowel pores do.

Are You Contemplating Purchasing a TALKING MACHINE

If so, are you using the same careful study you would were you purchasing a Piano. The real Talking Machine of today is an instrument on which is perfectly re-produced the finest music from the most noted artists and is a beautiful piece of furniture. SUCH IS THE VICTROLA. Thousands of dollars and years of research have been spent in perfecting the sound box and tone arm. The Cabinet work and finish is as fine as on the most expensive Piano. The joints are all perfectly made and will not open in years of use. The Veneers are perfect and will not peel. The finishing material is the Best that can be produced and put on by experienced men, some of whom have made the finishing of Victrolas their life work. And you will not pay any more for the Victrola than you will be asked to pay for one of over a hundred other makes. Where the main object of the manufacturer is to unload them and get the money.

Let us demonstrate to you the truths of the above statements.

Forest Service that in the saw mill waste in flabs and edgings now taking place that 1,600,000 cords of wood could be made into pulp and paper is lost. The publishers hopes for the future evidently lie in new methods of getting pulp wood, perhaps along the lines referred to above.

TRAP FOR CATCHING RABBITS

Wooden Affair is Shown in Illustration—How Made.

A practical and easily constructed rabbit trap consists of a wooden box, with a wire door which is closed when a wire trigger is pushed by the rabbit on entrance. The box should be made of old boards, or new boards blackened with a stain not likely to offend the rabbit's delicate sense of smell. Five boards are required, two 1 by 6 by 22 inches, two 1 by 8 by 22 inches, and one 1 by 6 by 8 inches. These are nailed together to form a square tube with the inside dimensions 6 by 6 by 22 inches. One end is closed by the small piece.

The door is made of heavy wire, hung loosely in the open end of the box from two staples. A small strip of wood must be fastened in the bottom of the opening to prevent the rabbit from pushing the door open when he is once caught. The trigger, also of wire, is hung from two staples in the top board of the box. The straight part of the trigger is 12 inches long and the loop 3 inches in diameter. Be sure that the trigger is hung so as to slide freely through the staples.

In operation the trap is simple. It is set by pushing the door inward and upward against the top board of the box, and pulling the trigger forward until the door will rest on the hook.

Any green bait, such as lettuce, or carrot, may be used, being placed in the closed end of the trap, but it is not absolutely necessary. The curiosity of the rabbit, and the likelihood of its trap to a log being sufficient to attract him. As the animal enters the trap he pushes the loop of the trigger back until it releases the door, which falls behind him, leaving him a prisoner but unhurt. WHERE IT CAME FROM

The like of such money-squandering orgy as many people in this country have been engaged in during the past year, and particularly during the past six months, has never been known before. Hotels with room and restaurant prices advanced beyond all precedent have been filled to the roof in every large city in the country. And the higher the prices, the greater the demand. The same thing is true of everything valuable; jewelry, furs, all sorts of costly wearing apparel, have been going like hot cakes everywhere—provided the prices asked were high enough to be attractive to unlimited purses. Railroads have been swamped with —all to swell the astounding, the infamous bills of cost which seem never to have been honestly, or at least intelligently, scrutinized.

In numerous cases the committee investigators found that at least one-half the money spent might have been saved by letting the contracts outright, as they should have been let. Instead of throwing the Government Treasury doors wide and inviting every rascally contractor to come right in, help himself, and charge it up to costs. And when it is remembered that these sums, one-half of which might have been saved, amounted to millions, one is quite prepared to accept the opinion of the investigators that the total of which the tax payers of the country were thus robbed runs close to the billions.

Multiply the countless millions lost through the cost plus operations of the war department alone by as many other different business activities as the war thrust upon the government, and you have the answer to the question where some, at least, of the money of our bejewelled, be-furred, be-limousined squanderers came from.—Harvey's Weekly.

CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH

The theme for the morning of March 7th, will "Actions and Reactions—from the Interchurch Conference." At Lansing, February 25-28, was broached the most ambitious plan for the Protestant churches since their foundation—scheme which if carried out, will demand every bit of driving power of our concerted efforts. Our national leaders, both in the fields of politics and religion, tell us that nothing short of a rebirth of national spirit will avail. To bring this to pass is the aim of the Interchurch movement. Manifest your interest by your presence!

The Young People's Society will convene at the usual hour 6:00 p. m. Miss Ruth Solomon will lead from the theme "Life Lessons from the Book of Proverbs." This is also the last meeting before the close of the contest. Help your side by your presence!

The evening service will be given to a stereopticon lecture on the second of the series dealing with the subject of comparative religion. "Hinduism" the Religion of 333,333,333 Gods" will be the subject. Organ prelude by the organist, Mrs. LaLonde.

The Cecilians will meet at the usual hour on Thursday evening under Miss Bement's direction. The matter of Easter music will be taken up at this time. Therefore it is urgent all members be present.

The Mid-week Class will convene at 8:00 p. m. in the church parlors. All teachers are urged to be present, as the course of study outlined at a previous meeting will be taken up.

This is church census week. Your home will be visited in interest of a closer relationship between it and the greatest force for good in the world—the church. So be ready with a cordial welcome for the census taker.

To replace the worn out parts of your car means

Money Saved

That little rattle or knock may be nothing serious now, but if left unrepaired it will soon develop to such an extent that a breakdown will result.

Attended to now the cost will be small, but when the break comes, you will have a large repair bill to contend with. Repairing your car before greater damage is done is as good as money in the bank.

SATURDAY, MARCH 6—Big attraction, Douglas Fairbanks in his first United Artists Picture, "HIS MAJESTY, THE AMERICAN." 50 per cent better than any Fairbanks picture we have ever shown Here is a picture for you. A romance with a regular hero and heroine. Villains and everything. And such a hero. He cleans up everything from New York to the Mexican border, and then hops over to Europe to show them how to handle a revolution. CAN HE DO IT? WELL, YOU KNOW DOUG.

Eight big reels of art, comedy and drama. Two solid hours of fun. And the best of all we are going to put the admission price within the reach of all.
15 and 35 cents including War tax.

Three shows: Afternoon Matinee at 2:30 p. m. Evening at 7:15 and 9:15. If you miss this show you will be the loser.

WEDNESDAY, MARCH 10th—Double attraction, World Pictures presents Evelyn Greeley in "THE OAKDALE AFFAIR," an Appel production. Story by Edgar Rice Burroughs. Thrill, comedy, drama—mystery galore. You will never guess the ending. Excellent cast, headed by Evelyn Greeley. This is one of her best pictures. And the 6th episode of Elmo the Mighty, "The Puma's Paw."

COMING—March 20, Mabel Normand, star of Mickey, in "Upsairs."

FRIDAY, MARCH 5th—Lecture Course presents Mrs. Maud Ballington Bonth.

COUNCIL PROCEEDINGS

March 1, 1920.

The Common Council of the City of Charlevoix met on the above date, Mayor Rose, presiding.

Aldermen present: Geneit, Hiller, Levinson and Washburn.

The minutes of the meeting held February 24th were read and approved.

Enter Ald. Benton.

The council having under consideration the matter of the petition of twenty-eight members of the Charlevoix Commercial Association, asking for the submission to the electors of a proposed amendment to the city charter so as to permit the raising of 3-4th of one mill instead of 1-4th of one mill for advertising purposes.

Alderman Levinson offered the following resolution and moved its adoption:

A resolution proposing an Amendment to the Charter of the City of Charlevoix:

Resolved, By the Common Council of the City of Charlevoix, That the

DRINK HOT TEA FOR A BAD COLD

Get a small package of Hamburg Breast Tea at any pharmacy. Take a tablespoonful of the tea, put a cup of boiling water upon it, pour through a sieve and drink a teaspoon full at any time during the day or before retiring. It is the most effective way to break a cold and cure grip, as it opens the pores of the skin, relieving congestion. Also loosens the bowels, thus driving a cold from the system.

Try it the next time you suffer from a cold or the grip. It is inexpensive and entirely vegetable, therefore safe and harmless.

RUB BACKACHE AND LUMBAGO RIGHT OUT

Rub Pain and Stiffness away with a small bottle of old honest St. Jacobs Liniment

When your back is sore and lame or lumbago, sciatica or rheumatism has you stiffened up, don't suffer! Get a 30 cent bottle of old, honest "St. Jacobs Liniment" at any drug store, pour a little in your hand and rub it right into the pain or ache, and by the time you count fifty, the soreness and lameness is gone.

Don't stay crippled! This soothing penetrating oil needs to be used only once. It takes the ache and pain right out of your back and ends the misery. It is magical, yet absolutely harmless and doesn't burn the skin.

Nothing else stops lumbago, sciatica and lame back misery so promptly!

GOOSEBERRIES AND CURRANTS

When Interplanted in Cherry Orchard Bushes May Be Left for Several Seasons.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

When interplanted in cherry orchards gooseberries and currants may be left for several years, according to the growth of the orchard and the size of the bushes; and in apple and pear orchards they may be left somewhat longer, though the ground occupied should be restricted to one or two rows of bushes through the center of the space between the tree rows. Otherwise, the bushes will be likely to interfere with the proper care of the trees. In vineyards the currants and gooseberries are often made a part of the permanent plantation, but while they are commonly productive when so grown, the grapes are likely to be rather unproductive.

First Written Presidential Message.

President Jefferson was the first chief executive of the nation to read his message to congress. The event took place December 8, 1801. Prior to this it had been the custom, inaugurated by Washington, for the president to appear in person before congress and speak his message, reading from manuscript if he desired.

Some Never Learn That.

Young Mrs. Perkins says that if experience were as good a teacher as advertised, Charley would by this time have learned something about which horse to bet on.

LEGAL NOTICES

Order for Publication.

State of Michigan, the Probate Court for the County of Charlevoix.

At a session of said court, held at the Probate office in the city of Charlevoix, in said county, on the 18th day of February A. D. 1920.

Present: Hon. Servetus A. Correll, Judge of Probate.

In the matter of the estate of Andrew Klooster, deceased. Albert Klooster having filed in said court petition praying that the administration of said estate be granted to petitioner or to some other suitable person.

It is Ordered, That the 13th day of March A. D. 1920, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, at said probate office, be and is hereby appointed for hearing said petition.

It is Further Ordered, That public notice thereof be given by publication of a copy of this order, once each week for three successive weeks previous to said day of hearing, in the Charlevoix Courier, a newspaper printed and circulated in said county.

MORTGAGE FORECLOSURE.

Whereas default having been made in the conditions of a certain mortgage made and executed by Oliver C. Poole and Myrtle H. Poole, his wife, of the City of Charlevoix, County of Charlevoix, State of Michigan, to William F. McLaughlin, of the City of Detroit, County of Wayne, State of Michigan, dated the twenty-fifth day of October, 1915, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds for the County of Charlevoix, State of Michigan, in the Sixth day of November, 1915, in Liber 52 of Mortgages, on page 464, on which mortgage there is claimed to be due and unpaid at the date of this notice Fourteen Hundred and Forty-six and 25-100 ($1446.25) Dollars, and no suit or proceedings at law or in equity having been instituted to recover the debt secured by such mortgage or any part thereof. Now, Therefore, by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage and the Statute in such cases made and provided, notice is hereby given that on Monday, the Seventeenth day of May, 1920, at twelve (12) o'clock noon (Central Standard time) said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale at public vendue to the highest bidder at the front door of the Charlevoix County Court House, corner of State and Antrim streets, in the City of Charlevoix, County of Charlevoix, State of Michigan (that being the building in which the County Court for the county of Charlevoix is held), of the premises described in said mortgage, or so much thereof as may be necessary to pay the amount of said mortgage as aforesaid, together with interest from the date of this notice, and all legal costs, charges and expenses, including the attorney fees of Thirty-five ($35.00) dollars allowed by law in such cases, which premises are described as follows, to-wit: All the certain pieces or parcels of land situated and being in the Township of Chandler, in the County of Charlevoix, State of Michigan, and more particularly described as follows, to-wit: The north half (N 1/2) of the South west quarter (S. W. 1/4) and the South half (S. 1/2) of the North west quarter (N. W. 1/4) of Section 20 (2) in Township Thirty-three (33) north of Range four (4) West. Containing One Hundred and Twenty (120) acres of land more or less according to the Government Survey. Excepting and reserving for Cobbs & Mitchell Inc., of Cadillac, Wexford County, State of Michigan, its legal representatives or assigns, a strip of land one hundred feet wide over and across said lands, should the same be at any time required by it or its legal representatives for the purpose of constructing, building or operating a railroad or any road for logging purposes, together with hereditaments and appurtenances thereof.

Dated, February 7th, 1920.

OUR WEEKLY LIMERICK

Idea that the cabinet's advancing,
Have kept Woodrow Wilson war dancing.
Like a child whom folks spoil,
He resembles a holl,
With a head that's too sore to stand Lan 'e) sing.

Koo Klooster made a business trip to Boyne City one day last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph DuFore were Charlevoix visitor on Tuesday of this week.

Mrs. Isa Alward was called to Petoskey last week by the illness of her daughter, Mrs. Floyd Turks.

A sleigh load of Ellsworth young people attended the lecture course at Central Lake on Tuesday evening of last week.

Lavern Clark of East Jordan, spent Thursday and Friday of last week at the home of his mother, Mrs. Gardner Miller.

The Marketing Association have been busy taking in hay recently, and have shipped several car loads during the past week.

Henry Elzinga of Atwood and L. VanSkiver expect to leave some time this week for a visit with friends and relatives at Grand Rapids.

The special meetings which have been in progress for the past few weeks at the Holiness church will be discontinued with the end of this week, according to present plans.

Grant Kenner left last week for Detroit, where he expects to work. He was accompanied by H. Yettaw who will visit friends and relatives at Detroit and Flint for a few days.

Friday, March 12, has been the day set aside by the township committee for the regular Banks Township caucus, at which time all candidates for the different township offices will be chosen.

H. L. Dawson of Elk Rapids, formerly of Eastport, has rented the east half of the Blue store and has established his undertaking business. He is also in line for appointment as post master to succeed D. E. Clow.

M. R. Nelson of the Ellsworth Produce Co., left on Friday of last week for Cleveland, Ohio, in charge of five car loads of potatoes purchased from the marketing associations at Central Lake and East Jordan.

Volunteer fire fighters were called out shortly before noon last Sunday when the word was passed that the Art Walker home, in the south end of town, was on fire. The fire, however, proved to be nothing but a slight blaze on the roof, caused by sparks, and this was soon extinguished. Very little damage if any was done.

The chemical fire extinguisher belonging to the village, which has been housed in the hardware store ever since its purchase, has been placed in the basement of the Blue Store, where it can readily be secured if it should be needed. The village has also purchased ladders which will be stored in the same place and which will be used at fires.

Edward Telegenhoff sold his farm west of town to Wm. Kooyer last week and left the first of the week for Grand Rapids to join his family and will go from there to Linden, Washington, where he expects to make his future home. Mr. and Mrs. Telegenhoff have many friends in this vicinity who, although regretting to see them go away, will wish them good luck in their western home.

Bert Sinclair is harvesting ice, which is a splendid variety and at least 2 feet thick.

Mrs. C. W. Fales was in Ellsworth a couple days last week a house guest of her mother, Mrs. White.

Walter Wilson, who has been working in Lansing the most of the winter is expected home about the middle of the month.

Alex Sinclair has returned to his work at the Loeb farm after a few days at home necessitated by the kick of a horse, while on duty.

We would say to the Norwood correspondent that we did not intend an offense in their direction whatever but were "boosting" our postman too only went a little farther, giving dates and deeds for comparison and not offering our hat out of lack of needing it at present prices and fully expecting to retain it however when any other R. F. D. man came up for the comparison. We are willing to reach one-half way across and handshake and boost together for the best country and state under the sun, if we have a lot of snow for it to melt.

FAIRVIEW—BANKS.

Rev. H. K. Beute is on the sick list.

Frank Kass went to Charlevoix Thursday on business.

L. E. Shaver went to Central Lake on business Wednesday.

L. E. Schaver bought a horse of John Hennip of Essex last week.

Minert Wielenga sold two of his cows to Albert Kuiper last week.

Ennis Schaver had the misfortune to lose a new milch cow last week.

Several from here attended the road meeting at Ellsworth held Wednesday.

U. Senneker returned from Man-ton Wednesday, where he visited relatives for a few days.

It has been reported here that N. Veldkamp has bought the O'Dell farm near Central Lake.

On account of the storms and so much snow, people are starting to get the "California" fever.

ROCK ELM.

Mrs. Levi Metz is confined to her bed again.

Ed Metz came home from Detroit Saturday night.

Mrs. James Secord is still confined to her bed as a result of the flu.

Mrs. Melvin Donaldson visited her sister, Mrs. Charles Donaldson, Saturday and Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph DuFore of Ellsworth visited at the home of her son, Charles Donaldson, Sunday.

Miss Violet Gilbert has returned to her school duties after a "flu" vacation of more than two weeks.

Most of the flu victims are now able to be out, though some of them are still a little "wobbly" as a result of it.

Mrs. Malvina Donaldson of Detroit, who came to attend the funeral of her sister-in-law, Mrs. Bert Grossett, returned to her home this week.

ANTRIM CITY

Mr. Brant is suffering from rheumatism.

Frank Mason's baby was sick, but is better now.

Miss Bessie Elkington visited Doris Greeley Sunday.

Most everyone around the neighborhood have colds.

C. L. Scott went to Elk Rapids Wednesday on business.

L. McDowell sold fifteen cord of wood to Mr. Paul last week.

We had a nice program at the school house last Friday night.

Mrs. F. Simon and Miss Green were visitors at the J. Simon home Sunday evening.

Mrs. Logan McDowell and Mrs. Gerrit Stael were visitors at the Fred Brook's home Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs. Logan McDowell and family were at Gerrit Stael's for dinner Sunday, the 22nd.

ATWOOD.

Flu! Flu! Oh, my!

H. Klooster went to Grand Rapids Monday.

Jos Sprik is moving into the M. E. parsonage at Norwood.

A Muskegon man was here last week buying cattle and hogs.

A baby boy has arrived at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Veenstra.

John Parsons sold ten tons of hay to the Ellsworth Produce Co. last week.

Sometimes we get discouraged with so much flu, snow banks, etc., but don't forget foreign hills are not always green.

W. V. Coeling and family of Grand Rapids have rented the John Joliffe farm and will take possession next week.

A draft dodger has gone insane. Probably on the advice of his attorney.

PLEASANT HILL.

Mrs. Albert Fielstra is visiting her parents in Fairview, Banks.

Albert and Anna Prince visited at the DeYoung home Saturday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. James DeYoung visited at the Fielstra home Tuesday last.

John Fielstra and Albert Prince butchered four pigs Monday afternoon.

Roy Powell is working for his grand father at Bellaire for a few weeks.

Mrs. Fielstra is home again after a three weeks visit in the southern part of the state.

Mr. and Mrs. James DeYoung visited their daughter, Mrs. Matthias Rubingh Friday last.

Harm Fielstra, who is working in Grand Rapids, visited his parents for a couple of days last week.

MILES DISTRICT.

Minnie Cincush is much better at this writing.

Clarence LaLonde made a business trip to Charlevoix Monday.

Gus LaLonde of East Jordan was a Sunday visitor at the home of Mrs. F. LaLonde.

Roy Phelps and sister and Miss Taylor of East Jordan, called at the farm home of Mrs. F. LaLonde last week.

Last Wednesday the stork left a baby boy at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Moore. He will be called Edward James.

Fred Bancroft received a telegram from Detroit Sunday that his brother-in-law, Nelson B. Shaw, had died very suddenly.

Nelson Shaw was born and lived in Charlevoix county until about ten years ago, when he and his family moved to Veteran, Canada, where they lived until last fall, moving to Detroit on account of Mr. Shaw having poor health. His many friends were sorry to hear of his sudden death. We all sympathize with the bereaved family.

ATTENTION TO BUSH FRUITS
Currant and Gooseberry Plantation Will Thrive for Many Years With Proper Care.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)
If a currant or gooseberry plantation is properly cared for, at least eight to ten crops may be expected before it becomes unprofitable because of its age. Productive fields over twenty years old are not uncommon in some sections. Although the number of years a plantation will continue in good bearing condition depends to some extent upon location and soil, the most important factor is the care which it receives. The period of productivity of both currant and gooseberry plants is longer in northern regions than toward the southern limits of their culture and longer on heavy soil than on sandy soil.

Ginger a Valuable Crop.
Ginger grown in Jamaica has always commanded more than double the price of any other. Under favorable conditions an acre will produce as much as four thousand pounds.

U. S. INCOME TAX EXEMPTS NOBODY

Every Person Who Had Income in 1919 Must Determine Own Liability.

MARCH 15 LAST FILING DATE.

Surest Way is to Follow Form 1040A.
Free Advice in Doubtful Cases.
Savers Penalties in Law.

Nobody is exempt from Income Tax. An obligation is laid directly on the shoulders of each citizen and resident to consider his own case and to get his return in on time if one is due.

With each return showing a tax due a payment must accompany the return in the full amount of the tax or at least one-quarter of the tax.

All returns for 1919 must be filed on or before March 15.

Must Show True Figures.

In figuring up his earnings for income tax purposes a person must take into consideration all items of taxable income, and each item itself must be accurate in amount. Guesses and estimates must be avoided, for the return is made under oath.

Everybody who had an income during 1919 must now determine whether his or her net income was sufficient in amount to require an Income Tax return. The best way to find out is to get a Form 1040A and follow the instructions printed on it. That form will serve as a reminder of every item of income; and if a return is due, it tells how to prepare and file it.

One of the important points to keep in mind is that a person's net income is found by a computation prescribed in the law, and that each item of income from every source must be considered, unless specifically exempted.

Another thing to remember is that the personal exemption allowed taxpayers by law has no relation whatever to the requirement to file return. This exemption is not to be considered until a person has figured out his net income and determined whether it was sufficient to require him to file a return. Then, if a return must be filed, he should read carefully the instructions for claiming exemption, and complete his return.

If in doubt on any point as to income or deductions, a person may secure free advice and aid from the nearest Internal Revenue office. Many banks and trust companies are also furnishing similar service during banking hours.

Heavy Penalties in Law.

For failing to make a return on time the penalty is a fine of not more than $1,000 and an addition of 25 per cent. to the tax, if any. For making a false or fraudulent return the penalty is a fine of not more than $10,000 or imprisonment not exceeding one year, or both; and, in addition, 50 per cent of the tax. There are other penalties for failing to pay tax when due and for understatement of the tax through negligence.

Many Sources of Income.

Aside from what one may earn by his services, there are many other sources of income. If he sold any property during 1919 he must figure out the gain realized. If he rented buildings, land, apartments or rooms such rents must be considered taxable, and he may claim deductions for necessary expenses incidental to rents.

Bank interest is a common source of income and is taxable whether withdrawn or not. Any amount of interest credited to a depositor is income to the depositor.

Interest on mortgages and notes is taxable; also bond interest received from corporations.

A taxpayer who cashed his insurance during 1919 must report as income any excess received over the total of premiums paid.

Members of partnerships or personal service corporations or beneficiaries of an estate or trust must report their shares of income distributable to them whether or not actually withdrawn.

Dividends of domestic corporations must be reported. Many other forms of income are taxable, unless specifically exempted.

INCOME TAX IS DUE MARCH 15

Penalties for Delay and Failure to Make Returns—Early Compliance Urged.

All income tax returns covering the year 1919 must be filed by Monday, March 15. Each taxable return must be accompanied by check or money order for the full amount or at least one-quarter of the amount of tax due.

Cash payments are accepted only at the collector's main office; if sent by mail, they are at the sender's risk.

Residents of Michigan should send returns and payments to John A. Grogan, Collector of Internal Revenue, Detroit, or E. J. Doyle, Collector of Internal Revenue, Grand Rapids.

Those who must file returns but have not done so are warned that the revenue law imposes heavy penalties for failure to get returns in on time or to make payments on time.

Early filing and early payments are urged, in order to relieve the Internal Revenue offices as much as possible of an overload on the final day, March 15.

Don't Stay Gray! Here's an Old-time Recipe that Anybody can Apply.

The use of Sage and Sulphur for restoring faded, gray hair to its natural color dates back to grandmother's time. She used it to keep her hair beautifully dark, glossy and attractive. Whenever her hair took on that dull, faded or streaked appearance, this simple mixture was applied with wonderful effect.

But brewing at home is messy and out-of-date. Nowadays, by asking at any drug store for a bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," you will get the famous old preparation, improved by the addition of other ingredients, which can be depended upon to restore natural color and beauty to the hair.

A well-known downtown druggist says it darkens the hair so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied. You simply dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two, it becomes beautifully dark and glossy.

Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound is a delightful toilet requisite for those who desire a more youthful appearance. It is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.

BALLOT AND ITS MEANING

ALL SHOULD KNOW WHAT EACH PARTY STANDS FOR

Republican Party Wants Women of Its Faith to Be Informed on All Public Issues.

Now that the women are about to be given the ballot, they owe it to themselves and to their country, as a high duty, to be not merely voters, but intelligent, informed and therefore effective voters.

No subject should be of more interest to the patriotic citizen, man or woman, than politics. Politics in a republic like ours is the determination of public questions by public opinion. The man or woman who professes a lack of interest in politics, confesses a lack of interest in the government which in this free land is the protector of our "life, liberty and pursuit of happiness." That this government might live our forefathers offered their all upon the field of battle. It represents today the service and sacrifice of generations of home loving, country loving, men and women. If, given the responsibility of participating in that government, we fail to do our duty, we are the slackers and deserters in politics and public affairs. For the citizen, man or woman, to fail to exert his or her influence in politics is something more than neglect, it is a positive wrong against one's country. For the good or bad in government here reflects the good or bad in public opinion, and all that does not fight for the right in politics counts for the wrong.

To say that one has no use for politics in a republic is unpatriotic and unintelligent. For one to say that he will have nothing to do with a political party is no less so. For political parties in a republic like ours are the agencies through which public opinion impresses itself upon public affairs. For more than a century this has been a government through political parties. While it is a republic it will remain so. Therefore if we are to have an intelligent and effective part in politics and public affairs it is our duty to know what these parties stand for, where they come from and where they are going; what they have done and what they propose to do.

Political parties are founded upon great fundamental principles, by which principles their policies are determined. These principles are antagonistic; they are not equally safe or correct. There is a question of right or wrong, of peril and safety, of prosperity and adversity, involved, and by the decisions the people make from time to time the welfare and happiness of every home in this broad land of ours is affected. Those who say the two great parties, for instance, are not far different, confess their ignorance of the principles, the history, the traditions and the tendencies of these parties. The vital differences between the Republican and Democratic parties cannot be discussed in detail in the brief compass of a single editorial. It is enough to say that these differences exist and that many of us, believing that the history of the Republican party is one of the brightest chapters in the history of human service, and because today it stands for the principles and policies we believe to be essential to the highest and best welfare of our beloved country, have thrown in our lot with it, to stay with it while it goes right, as Lincoln said, and to part with it only when it goes wrong.

To decide our party allegiance we must know what the great parties stand for. To know if we wish to be Republicans we must know what it believes, what it has wrought, what it is doing, what it proposes to do. Until we know these things we catch none of the spirit of political service, another name in the best sense for public service, which makes party work worth while. The important things in politics are not leaders, who come and go, or factions, which rise and fall, but principles, principles which live, which lived yesterday and will live tomorrow; great principles of public conduct that determine the fate of nations, and most of all a nation like ours, which rests in public opinion and will live or die as the people will it.

The Republican party wants the women of its faith to be voters fully informed on public issues, moved in their voting by knowledge and conviction rather than momentary enthusiasm for a campaign catch word like "he kept us out of war," or upon mere emotional impulse. Republican leadership knows that if men continue to neglect their education in public questions, and women employ their leisure and their spirit of service and their sense of justice in mastering the problems of our national life, the time will not be far off when, instead of it being thought that women vote as their fathers, brothers and husbands do, it will be known that husbands vote as their mothers, sisters and wives do, and as they turn to women for guidance in every crisis of their own lives, will likewise turn to them for counsel in every crisis of our national life; and that women will point them right.

STORM SWEEPS NORTH. MICH.

TRAFFIC ON ALL ROADS COMPLETELY BLOCKED

No Trains on Pere Marquette for Two Days—Penn. Lines Tied Up for Eighty Eight Hours

The storms of last week were the most severe that Northern Michigan has experienced in years and resulted in a complete tie-up of all railroad traffic.

The Pennsylvania Lines operating between Grand Rapids and Mackinaw City were the hardest hit of all having no train service for eighty-eight hours.

The Pere Marquette was blocked for two days but managed to open the road Saturday and from that time on little difficulty was met.

At Petoskey a snow plow outfit was wrecked endeavoring to remove the masses of ice and snow from the right away. A huge freight engine was also wrecked and plunged into a pond near the brick yard at that place.

On the Penn., Mancelona reported a forty rod stretch of track buried under several inches of ice. Railroad men at that place reported that the ice would have to be cleared by pick and shovel.

In the work of breaking the road through on this line a crew of eighty men armed with picks and shovels were used. The outfit left Cadillac Friday morning and the first train arrived at this end of the division Monday. The road breakers experienced trouble at Mancelona, Kalkaska and other points along the road.

Freight, mail and express on all lines have been piling up at junction points and reports from these points say the yards are filled to utmost capacity with freight cars north bound. Little freight was moved Monday in the Grand Rapids region and none at all in northern Michigan. It is estimated that it will take at least a week to open the various sidings so that freight may be received.

Many towns have been out of coal and this cold wave has caused much suffering. In some of the smaller towns much illness prevailed and it was impossible to get medicine or aid to them.

Wrecking crews have been busy all the week clearing away wrecks of snow plows and removing locomotives that were stuck in the huge drifts of ice and snow and it will take until the end of the week before things will be moving normally again.

WORK STARTED TO INCREASE FUTURE RESORT BUSINESS OF CHARLEVOIX

Co-Operation of Citizens of the City Asked in an Endeavor to Make Charlevoix a Bigger and Better Summer Resort

At the coming spring election the voters of the city of Charlevoix are going to have an opportunity to decide whether or not Charlevoix shall advance in the future or whether it shall remain as it is at present.

A resolution prepared by the City Council raising the present tax of one fourth mill to three fourths mill the proceeds of such taxation to be used for advertising the advantages of Charlevoix as a summer resort and other such enterprises that will tend to better the city, will be put before the people.

It is a business proposition pure and simple. Charlevoix from the present out look will never be anything but a resort town, which means that the receipts of four months business will have to be large enough to off set the slack months of winter.

Charlevoix with no commercial enterprises and only her natural resort resources to depend upon cannot be a one horse resort and live. In order to make Charlevoix a resort of the size and capacity that she must be to support herself, advertising and publicity work, public improvements must be done and means provide by which the people seeking summer resorts will be attracted.

In the past, work has been done, but it has been done a very small scale, and the funds with which these things have been done has been furnished largely by a few of the Charlevoix business men who have been broad minded enough to see that the town had to be pushed to order to make it progress. While those few men have been furnishing the money to provide these things the others have done nothing, but have reaped an equal amount of benefit from the good work done. In other words they have been getting a whole lot for nothing and in most cases that whole lot represented their total earnings.

This new resolution by which these things will be paid with money derived by taxation will equalize the expenses and will place upon the shoulders of the big hotel owners and summer visitors a share of the burden of making Charlevoix a bigger and better resort.

If by advertising, twice as many people can be attracted to Charlevoix than in the past, it will mean twice as much business and twice as much money for the people of the city. A summer resort must attract and after it has drawn the people to it, it must have adequate means to entertain these people, to make them enjoy themselves and bring them back year after year.

This is the thing that must be done here if Charlevoix is to obtain the greatest benefit from the resort possibilities. We have every natural resource that could be asked for to make a great resort and the only thing left to do is to make this fact known to the world, bring the people here and keep them here after they come.

SERIES OF LECTURES AT CONG. CHURCH

First Lecture to Be Delivered Sunday Evening March 14.

In order to combat the rising flood of unrest and social discontent, the Rev. Dr. Newell Dwight Hillis, minister of Plymouth Church, New York City, prepared a series of ten lectures (illustrated) which were delivered in his church terminating at Christmas, 1919.

These lectures were so effective that a group of New York business men secured Dr. Hillis' permission to syndicate them, making arrangements for many thousands of lectures in the prominent cities of our land. Under the general title "Back to the Republic" we may see the development of our land under the fathers, the struggle for independence, for emancipation, and for world freedom. Yet the liberties so secured are menaced by communism, by I. W. Wism, in short, by all the forces of social discontent. Just how pernicious—fatal even—for us to follow any radical leadership at this time is the aim of the lectures, and as well, to foster a higher appreciation of the blessings that are ours today.

The first of these illustrated lectures will be delivered in the Congregational church on Sunday evening, March 14th at 7:15 p. m. The public is invited, and there will be no admission fee.

W. C. T. U. LADIES WILL GIVE MOVIE

At Palace Theatre Tuesday March 16th

The ladies of the W. C. T. U., of Charlevoix will have a day at the Palace Theatre next week, Tuesday, March 16th, when Marguerite Clark will appear in "Girls."

The benefits of this show will go to aid further in the work of this organization here. Tickets are now on sale by most of the members and this method provides a way to aid this wonderful organization which has done such so much good throughout the country.

DEATH CLAIMS MRS. WESLEY STALEY

Died at Her Home on Mason Street Tuesday, March 9th.

Death claimed another Charlevoix resident Tuesday, when Mrs. Wesley Staley passed away at her home on Antrim street.

Minnie Katherine Staley was born in Boyne Falls, October 17th, 1890, moving from there to Eveline township with her parents 21 years ago. She was the oldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Courier of East Jordan.

In 1909 she was married to Wesley Staley of this place and they have made Charlevoix their home ever since. Mrs. Staley was well known in Charlevoix and leaves a host of friends to mourn her departure.

She is survived by her husband, two small daughters, her father and mother of East Jordan, a brother, Frank, who resides here, two brothers, John and James, and a sister, Bernice.

The funeral will be held from the home on Mason street, Thursday afternoon at 2:00 o'clock.

CHARLEVOIX MUSIC STORE SOON OPENS

Will Carry Complete Line of Records and Talking Machines

The Charlevoix Music Store, Brown & Wallace, proprietors, will soon embark in business in Charlevoix. They will be located in the north room of the new Brown Garage, formerly known as the Ferguson House.

Messrs. Brown and Wallace returned last week from a ten days trip to Chicago, Detroit, and other points, the main object of the visit being the selection of a make or makes of talking machines of standard make and durability.

Their choice was the Columbia and Harlanola, both machines of national reputation and considered as good as can be obtained. They will also handle a complete line of Columbia and O. K. records, making it point to always have in stock the latest records obtainable.

These machines will be sold on cash or easy payment plan and the venture should make a hit among our residents. Watch for their announcement in next week's Courier.

WILL GIVE BENEFIT DANCING PARTY

Proceeds to Be Given to Aid Injured Citizen

An old fashioned dancing party is scheduled to take place at the Bank Hall on Saturday evening of this week, and the sale of tickets is being pushed by many interested in making the event a success.

The proceeds of the dance, less expenses incurred in hiring hall and musicians, will be given to Elmer Poole, confined in his home through the accidental breaking of his leg while working in the basement of the Adams' building on Bridge street some weeks ago.

Ask for a ticket—buy whether you attend or not. The cause is a good one and there is no telling when the time will come when your friends may be called upon to aid you under similar conditions.

BRANCH OFFICE IS A GREAT HELP

Automobile Owners Get Licenses Near Home This Year.

Petoskey, Emmet county and Northern Michigan auto owners appreciate the value of the service that is being rendered them by the branch auto license office established by the state at Petoskey. Several thousand car owners are expected to secure their licenses there this season. Instead of sending to Lansing for them.

Heretofore it has been necessary for car owners to send their money to the office of the secretary of state and there await their turn for license plates. Many times a wait of one to two months has been necessary, and the trouble and nuisance involved has been general.

It may not be generally understood that the Petoskey bureau is supposed to serve Northern Michigan in general. Some people have understood that its service was restricted to Emmet county. This is not true. The Petoskey office can sell license plates to an automobile owner from Cheboygan, Gaylord, Onaway, Alpena, Charlevoix, Boyne City, East Jordan, Mancelona and other surrounding places. The territory is the entire northern part of the state. Auto owners are urged to act early and not wait until the day they want to use their car.

HOUSE BUSY ON YANK BONUS PLAN

MANY SUGGESTIONS GIVEN AT SPECIAL MEETING.

Thirty Dollars a Month and Extra for Overseas Men Recommended by One Organization

A bonus of thirty dollars for each month's service with a hundred dollars additional for overseas service is the minimum the government should give to service men, representatives of veterans of foreign wars declared before the house ways and means committee last Wednesday at Washington.

"The American Legion asks for no bonus, wants no bonus; it merely asks the government to assist the ex-service man in overcoming some of the financial disadvantages incidental to his military service," Franklin D'Olier, national commander of the American Legion, told the house ways and means committee, having charge of legislation to aid ex-service men.

"A bonus sounds too much like a gift or a present from the government," D'Olier continued.

Four plans, from which the service men could collect were outlined by D'Olier, as follows:

"1. Land settlement covering farms in all states and not confined to a few states.

"2. Aid to encourage purchase of homes in either country or city.

"3. Vocational training for all ex-service persons desiring it.

"4. Adjustment of compensation or final adjustment of extra back pay based on length of service for those not desiring to avail themselves of any one of the previous features.

"The ex-service persons to be given his option of any one and only one of the above four features and only upon his application.

"It asks that each of these four features shall only be as liberal as is consistent with the welfare of the whole country. The American Legion asks nothing in its selfish interests, but it does not feel that all economizing should be done at the expense of the ex-service men.

"If such legislation is wisely framed covering land settlement, home aid and vocational training, every dollar invested by the government will bring ultimate great returns to the country by making the ex-service man a better citizen."

RURAL SCHOOLS PLAN SCHEDULE

WILL HAVE TOWNSHIP MEETING DAYS

Plan Exhibit at Next Fair—Eighth Grade Program For Each Township as Last Year

Plans are already well under way for the township school days of the rural schools. In every township but one the teachers have met, elected their chairman for the contests, appointed committees, decided upon the kind of outdoor program they wished to have, studied the premium list for the exhibit, and made plans for the eighth grade commencement exercises.

The schools this year agreed to have the exhibit work repeated with a uniform list in awarding premiums in order that only the best work may be selected for the exhibition in the Educational Hall at the County Fair. They felt that only work following a uniform list could be compared and judged in a satisfactory manner. Each township will have some sort of outdoor program. A few have chosen athletic feats, one or two have selected stunts from the Detroit Decathlon contest list, and still others plan on games, singing, folk-dances, and winding of the May Pole. In every township commencement exercises will be held for the eighth grade graduates as in 1919. So far all have reported picnic or pot luck dinners, but a few of the teachers wished to leave this undecided until a third or fourth meeting which they plan on having as soon as the roads make such meetings possible.

The following schedule has been agreed upon, with election of chairmen as indicated:

May 24, Melrose, Clarion Town Hall, Loretta O'Donnell, Chairman.

April 25, Evangeline, Painter School, Melisa Fineout, Chairman.

May 25, Bay and Evangeline, Lakeside School, Verna Johnson, Chairman.

May 26, Ilaves, Maple Grove, Georgin Redfield, Chairman.

April 26, Hudson, Hoffman School, Orthella Porter, Chairman.

May 4, Boyne Valley, Robinson School, Ethel Brintnall, Chairman.

May 27, Hudson and Boyne Valley, Boyne Falls Schools, Mary Ford, Chairman.

May 28, South Arm, Peninsula Grange Hall, Violet Gilbert, Chairman.

May 31, Norwood, Norwood Townhall, Clare Thorsen, Chairman.

June 1, Wilson, Deer Lake Grange Hall, Eva Latham, Chairman.

June 2, Marion, New Johnson School, Florence Maddaugh, Chairman.

June 4, Beaver Island, St. James, Town Hall, Mary Frans, Chairman.

June 7, Eveline, Ironton, Hilda Carlisle, Chairman.

June 8, Chandler, Springvale, Gladys Everts, Chairman.

CAR FERRY STARTS ITS DAILY TRIPS

Strike Ended Wednesday When Back Pay is Given.

"The strike has been settled and the car ferry has commenced its daily trips." This welcome news came from St. Ignace Wednesday when the big car ferry Chief Wamintam started on her first trip in over two weeks.

The striking members of the crew were given their back pay and returned to their posts. The shipping public is particularly well pleased with this news as there has been no freight moving to or from northern Michigan since the strike was called.

The crew of the car ferry anticipated some trouble in getting the big barge away from her dock. Twenty-five men were involved, who were employed as firemen, wheelmen and water tenders.

Are You Contemplating Purchasing a TALKING MACHINE

If so, are you using the same careful study you would were you purchasing a Piano. The real Talking Machine of today is an instrument on which is perfectly re-produced the finest music from the most noted artists and is a beautiful piece of furniture. SUCH IS THE VICTROLA. Thousands of dollars and years of research have been spent in perfecting the sound box and tone arm. The Cabinet work and finish is as fine as on the most expensive Piano. The joints are all perfectly made and will not open in years of use. The Veneers are perfect and will not peel. The finishing material is the Best that can be produced and put on by experienced men, some of whom have made the finishing of Victrolas their life work. And you will not pay any more for the Victrola than you will be asked to pay for one of over a hundred other makes. Where the main object of the manufactures is to unload them and get the money.

Let us demonstrate to you the truths of the above statements.

CENSORED SPOONING.

A Chicago pastor, Rev. Dr. Thompson, a Methodist speaking in Pittsburg, urges church protection for spooners. He would use the churches for trysting places. He wants cozy corners where the young women and men may spoon, may do their "love-making under favorable circumstances," he says.

Now, every city pastor will agree with Dr. Thompson that city girls have some difficulty in finding proper places to meet their young men friends, and every citizen will agree that it is too bad. But probably that is as far as they will be willing to go with Dr. Thompson. Surely it is long time since the revered gentleman was young, and he has forgotten the rudiments of "spoon-ing," if ever he practiced the gentle art.

"Love-making under favorable circumstances," as the good doctor expresses it, cannot be achieved by regularly organized or freely offered spooning parlors or cozy corners. As a matter of fact, no church, no sect, no city, no government, can create "favorable circumstances." Young men do not deliberately make love in pre-arranged and properly organized corners, and young women cannot play their divine part under carefully socialized and strictly tutored church chaperonage. That, we fear would, in the words of the poet, prove "an unrelenting foe to love," and such chosen and appropriately arranged cozy corners would surely wring from the lips of the young persons whom it sought to help, the ejaculation of another poet: "O, love! (In such a wilderness as this!"
And with entirely new meaning.

SCHOOLS MUST TEACH CITI- ZENSHIP TO CHILDREN.

Civics and patriotism must be taught in the lower grades of schools, as a means of educating all children against the perils of bolshevism and anarchy. This is the opinion of one of the leading educators of the country, expressed at the convention of the National Education association in Cleveland.

The big majority of children never reach the high schools, yet most school programs introduce the study of government only in the high school departments.

Of course any technical study of government is beyond the younger children of any school, but there are certain basic principles in which even the smallest can be firmly grounded. Current subjects can be handled, and should be, from the lower grades up.

One of the greatest benefits of the war is said to be that it has made men of all classes think. If that benefit is to be lasting it must show its effect in the better direction of youthful thought. Good citizenship must become an active and beloved ideal in the child's mind, if the younger generation is to show any advance over the present one.

ONWARD! THE RED SCHOOL HOUSE.

No more will the little old red school house be open for the winter and closed for the rest of the year, if prominent educators have anything to say about it.

The National Educational association in its recent convention agreed on at least one thing, which was that the country boys and girls are entitled to just as much and just as good schooling as their mates in the city.

Better salaries are urged for the country teachers, and living conditions such as would tempt good teachers to take up the vital work in the rural school districts now lagging because too little attention has been paid to keeping it up.

In the cities at present things are rather chaotic. There are industrial disturbances and there are anarchy and bolshevism. Out in the country are the farmers, the backbone of the nation. From them must come the steadying power which is to hold the country in balance. It is wise and just, and for the good of all concerned, that their children should have every advantage which modern education has to offer.

Great men and women have come from the old-style country schools, but there is undreamed-of greatness possible in a body of country born and bred youths with a fine and comprehensive modern education.

"DIPLOMATIC TRIUMPH"—BUNK.
"Railroad strike averted by diplomacy" declares the headline of a Democratic contemporary. Wonder if we are going to suffer another series of those Wilsonian "diplomatic triumphs."

Editor Baldwin, the battling editor of the Escanaba Journal, says: "We have no personal ambitions to be gratified by the nomination and election of any particular candidate.
We believe that any of them would be a splendid president, and we firmly believe the one that secures the nomination shall be elected. If we have any special leaning towards any of the candidates it is towards General Wood. 'He has proven himself a big man during many years' service for his country. As soldier, as diplomat, as military governor, he has always proved himself bigger than his job. The country owes him much, and an election to the office of president is little enough recompense for the life-time of service of hard knocks that he has received. But, as heretofore stated, the republican nominee is our candidate, and while we hope it is going to be General Wood, we shall be very well satisfied with any one of the others."

Former Kaiser Wilhelm will not object to being guarded by Holland. It is doubtful if he gets over the scared rabbit feeling that attacked him more than one year ago.

Now it is agreed the Pilgrims didn't land on Plymouth Rock, that the

it isn't Plumb.

Mr. Burleson may be a good public speaker, as claimed for him, but there is still an impediment in the

Mrs. E. N. Cook formerly Miss Caroline Ross arrived Wednesday from Reed City for a visit with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Ross.

Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Loper announce the marriage of their daughter, Fern, to Frank Coatta of this city. The ceremony took place at Flint, March 6th, and they will make their home at that place in the future.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Lewis entertained ten of their friends at their home on Antrim street Tuesday evening. Five hundred was played, after which dainty refreshments were served.

Guy Eccleston, bookkeeper at the Charlevoix Elevator Co., was called to Gould City, Wednesday, by a telegram announcing the sudden death of his sister at Watersmeet, and whose remains will be brought to Gould city for burial.

Word received from Flint that Miss Rose Coats formerly of this city has been seriously ill at that place with pneumonia for the past month is now improved and will soon be able to be about again. She wishes to thank her friends for their kindness during her illness.

The Petoskey High School added two more victories to her string last week by defeating the Boyne City and Traverse City schools. The Boyne game was played last Wednesday night Petoskey winning 29 to 24. Traverse City played there Saturday night and the final score was 12 and 11 with Petoskey in the lead. Charlevoix has defeated both of these teams easily and by much larger score than did Petoskey. Watch for that Petoskey-Charlevoix game next Tuesday night.

MARION BOY TAKEN BY PNEUMONIA

Brice Black Died at Home Wednesday Morning.

Brice Black son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Black of Marion township died at the home of his parents, Wednesday morning of pneumonia.

The disease developed from influenza which was contracted while working in the woods near Levering. Having recovered slightly from the flu he came home. Pleurisy developed which extended into pneumonia from which he suffered about four weeks before his death.

He was about twenty years old and well known and respected in this vicinity having at one time been a student of the Charlevoix High School.

He leaves his father and mother, two brothers, Byron and Forest and three sisters, Lydia, Doris and Margaret to mourn his departure. The funeral services will be held from the house Thursday at ten o'clock and burial will take place at Brookside cemetery.

TO ADJUST CLAIMS OF EX-SERVICE MEN

Such Claims to Be Reported to American Legion

The State Welfare Officers of the American Legion has arranged to have several conferences through the state, at which time any grievances which ex-service men may have in regard to pay, allotments, insurance, or any other matter will be discussed and every effort made to adjust the difficulty.

Leslie T. Shapton Post No. 226 of Charlevoix will have a representative at one of these conferences to take up matters pertaining to this district. Should any ex-service man, whether a member of the Legion or not, have anything he wishes to have adjusted for him, communicate with the Commander of the Legion Dr. F. H. Wilkinson, or Adjutant, Robert F. Bridge, before March 23rd.

AT THE MOVIES

Episode 7

Episode Seven of "Elmo the Mighty," which marks the debut of Elmo Lincoln, of "Tarzan" fame as a serial star, will be shown at the Palace Theatre, March 17th. Lincoln, as Capt. Elmo Armstrong, the forest ranger, continues his efforts to aid Grace Gunnrd (Lucille Gray) in her endeavor to clear her father's name from the stain laid on it by Sen and his villainous aids. This episode works up to a particularly gripping climax.

ATTRACTIONS FOR THE WEEK

FRIDAY, MARCH 12—Vitagraph presents Harry T. Morey in "Honors Web." One word would save him. His promise meant more than his life. His moral code that of the days of chivalry. He did what he believed was right. A character you will all admire. Also a one reel Pollard Comedy, "It's a Hard Life."

SATURDAY and SUNDAY, MARCH 13 and 14—Double attraction featuring HARRY CAREY in "Ace of the Saddle." Here is a real, rollicking, rapid fire western life. With as many chuckles as thrills and Harry Carey doing a lot of that acting which puts him absolutely in a class by himself. One of Carey's latest pictures. Also a 2-reel Mack Sennett Comedy, "Her First Mistake."

PLEASE REMEMBER THIS DATE—TUESDAY, MARCH 16—Artcraft presents Marguerite Clark in "Girls," one of her latest pictures. Also a News reel. This show will be for the benefit of the W. C. T. U. Good show. Let everyone come.

WEDNESDAY, MARCH 17—Double attraction. World Pictures presents June Elvidge in "The Woman of Lies." With Earl Metcalfe. A tense story of a good woman's revenge on the man whose lies ruined her. A picture with a different story. No fury like a woman scorned. And the 7th episode of the serial "Elmo the Mighty." This will be the most exciting episode so far screened of Elmo.

COMING, MARCH 20—Mable Normand in "Upstairs."

The Invisible Line.

Congress has worked for ten years to enact a railroad law, and it has finally performed the task rather well. Every person who has had the remotest interest in railroad problems has been given an opportunity to be heard. During the years that has passed congress has frequently been accused of autocracy by the misguided advocates of government ownership and public management. But it is absolutely unfair to charge congress with being autocratic, even though the invisible line has often run thin between democracy and autocracy in our public affairs. Because democracy has had to proceed after the theory outlined by Walt Whitman, its aims have often been misconstrued. "Thunder on! Stride on! Democracy. Strike with vengeance!"

Whatever may have been the objections against the Cummings-Esch bills it appears that in their final passage, according to Senator Lenroot, "there are only two guaranties in the conference report. One is a guaranty that the owners of the railroads shall for a period of six months after March 1 receive a minimum return equal to the amounts they have received during federal control, and the other a guaranty that the employees of the roads shall for a like period receive a minimum wage equal to that which they are now receiving under federal control."

Industrial Tribunals.

The railroad bill as it was passed by congress creates a final tribunal of nine men, three of them selected from recommendations made by the railroad owners, three by the railway employees, and three representing the public appointed by the president and confirmed by the senate. This tribunal is to adjudicate disputes between the employers and employees. Senator Lenroot says: "We have here the recognition that should have come long ago, that a dispute between railway employees and employers is not merely a private quarrel between them, but is a matter in which the public has an interest. That is recognized in the labor provisions of the bill. The final arbiters will be the three men representing the public and they can be trusted to do justice if there be an impartial tribunal appointed, as I believe there will be."

The principle established is identical with that recommended in the preliminary report of the president's industrial conference, which has been studying the industrial problems for some weeks. The personnel of this group of men is interesting, and their names are in themselves a promise of results. Secretary of Labor W. B. Wilson is chairman, Herbert Hoover is vice chairman, while the additional members are: Martin D. Glynn, Thomas W. Gregory, Richard Hooker, Stanley King, Samuel W. McCall, Henry M. Robinson, Julius Rosenwald, Oscar S. Straus, Henry C. Stuart, F. W. Taussig, William O. Thompson, Henry J. Waters, George W. Wickersham, O. D. Young.

The foregoing commissioners said in their report that "the frank meeting of the parties in controversy together with other men skilled in questions at issue always gives promise of settlement." Beyond this explicit definition of what is hoped for is the knowledge which it now seems is to be applied at a late hour to industrial affairs that courts and tribunals are the only sane instruments that can absolutely function in disputes, whether the case be one of simple disagreement between individuals; embracing, as in industrial matters, including the railroads, the affairs of great numbers of men.

America at Sea.

An "American merchant marine," "the American flag in every port," and "American ships for American goods and passengers," has been the wail that has gone up in the press and congress for twenty years. And now that America has through the fortunes of war acquired the greatest ships in the world, she does not know what to do with them. "Here, England, take these German liners," was the import of the position by the shipping board. Asked why, Chairman Payne said that the United States, with prohibition, could not operate passenger ships in competition with the carriers with booze aboard. Oh, shades of the Titanic, the drunken orgy that sank you, has failed to convey its lesson!

Among other fortunes of war the United States came into possession of great fleets of ships suitable for freight carriers. The wail has been answered, and a merchant marine, our flag in every port, and American ships for American goods and passengers are in our keeping. But if half one hears in Washington is half-true the shipping board is making a mess of things in operating our new-found ships, and the failure is even worse than those recorded in the public operation of the railroads and wire lines.

Unfortunately American ship owners have not been developed to any great extent, and American capital is slow to enlist in the business of the seas.

The United States evidently has a big problem on hand, and what we have been doing in solving that problem up to date does not reflect any particular amount of credit upon us.

The Kinkaid District.

A few years ago there was a region in southwest Nebraska that people said was "no good." Then Moses P. Kinkaid came to congress, and offered the solution for the problem in his district. "Dry farming is a success," he declared, "but it takes a lot of land for each family to succeed." He proposed enlarged homesteads, and the judge got double the amount of acres for his farmers. Time has proven that the Nebraska congressman was right. His poor farmers have developed their enlarged homesteads, and are enjoying the average degree of prosperity. Now Judge Kinkaid's plan for a million trees for his Nebraskans has been adopted by the government, and they will be distributed to over five thousand people by the forest service.

Thus a congressman reclaimed the desert and now he is having it sprinkled over with trees. Men like Judge Kinkaid do the impossible, and we may almost expect he will find a way to plant pools of water on every farm around the borders of which his trees will furnish shade for fishermen who will some day gather in the finny tripe, that Uncle Sam will be induced to provide for these imaginary lakelets.

These last expectancies are, of course, exaggerations. But they seem little less possible than did the schemes of that quiet Nebraska congressman when he broached them to the lawmakers years ago. Would that there were more Kinkaid-men who would invent practical ways and means through which government action might be directed in making other sections of the country happy and prosperous, by simply pointing out and insisting on the logical, commonsense way of doing things.

The Get-Together Spirit.

The department of agriculture figures it out that 50,000,000 Americans live in the country or in places of less than 2,500 inhabitants. In order to be happy all people must have human companionship, and the development of this has been taking place by means of better mail service, telephones, automobiles, good roads, and the movies. As a result of the war the idea of club houses has been growing, and the department has been keeping "cases" on 300 of them. In consequence our staid old agricultural department has become enthusiastic over this innovation to the rural and village life. It issues a statement expressing the opinion that there is a new era growing into existence about the community club houses. These structures are described as "the centers of a great variety of wholesome activities." The building and maintenance of the institutions is pictured as rather easy for any community, and anyone who wants to work out the idea at home can get a lot of advance information by sending a dime to the Government Printing Office, Washington, D. C., for a copy of the pamphlet called, "Rural Community Buildings in the United States." A good many of the community camps built for soldiers during the war have been taken over by the local inhabitants, with splendid results in most instances.

Object to Sunday Ball

The Kalamazoo County Ministerial alliance has gone on record as opposed to Sunday baseball as a result of the announcement that Sunday games in the Central leagues would be scheduled there for the coming season. "The opposition is nowise to be construed as a protest against baseball as such," says the resolution, "but against the playing of the great American game on a day set aside for holy purposes."

"No Rheumatics" is a Mighty Poor Reason for Wearing a Wooden Leg

NO sting or hot burnin' is a mighty weak-kneed recommendation for tobacco. But when tobacco is mild and cool, and yet as full of "fun" as a barrel of monkeys—well, that's another story—that's Velvet.

And 'cause why?

'Cause Velvet is brought up—not jerked up by the hair. It's raised as carefully as a favorite child. It's cured in the big fresh air. And it mellows away for two years in wooden hogsheads 'til it's smooth and rich as cream. The wonder would be if Velvet wasn't a whacking good pipe smoke.

"Let Nature mellow yo' tobacco an' that tobacco will shore mellow yo' nature," says Velvet Joe. And he's pretty nearly right.

NATURE-AGEING in the wood does more to make tobacco friendly than any camouflage you can cover it with—and don't you forget it. See, taste, smell, feel the "real tobacco-ness" in Velvet. Why, you can almost hear it. Velvet's the tobacco you can judge with your eyes wide open and specs on.

There's a whole lot in Nature's way of making good tobacco better. And it's all in Velvet.

Here's to a full pipe and a friendly one.

OUR WEEKLY LIMERICK

There was an old fellow named Sears.
Who was fond of his wines
and his beers,
Till a friend that he knew,
Filled him up with home brew
He'll be dead for a great many years.

Nathan Burns of Charlevoix, was in town last week on business.

Peter Baar has been under the doctor's care for the past few days. Fred Bosworth of Bellaire, was in Ellsworth on business one day last week.

Mat Routley left on Monday of this week for Muskegon, where he will work this spring.

Charles Greeley left on Tuesday of this week for Detroit to visit his daughter, who is very ill.

Mrs. Lewis Deline was called to Detroit the first of the week by the serious illness of little grandson.

Eugene Osborn of Traverse City, spent from Saturday until Monday visiting friends here and at Atwood. There were no evening services at the M. E. church last Sunday by reason of the illness of the Pastor Rev. E. E. Clark.

Peter VanPlank of Zeeland, Michigan, was in Ellsworth last week. He inspected several farms in this vicinity with the object of buying.

Frank Supernaw and family, near Atwood are confined to the house with the "flu." Calvin Supernaw is staying out at the farm and looking after the chores.

The pupils of the Ellsworth school subscribed fifteen dollars for the relief of the starving Armenians during the recent drive. This we think is a record of which they may well be proud.

Mrs. B. J. Beuker and children, John and Alida left the first of the week for Battle Creek to join Major Beuker, who is stationed at Camp Custer.

Dr. Vis of Central Lake, was called on Monday of this week to the Harry Elzinga home by the serious illness of little Johnnie Elzinga. The lad was found to be suffering from brain fever and is in a serious condition.

Two auction sales were on the board of this week, one being at William Brown's on the Blow farm between Atwood and Norwood on Monday and the other being at Norwood at the Brown home. Both sales were well attended.

ESSEX

One of Mr. Cooper's cows died last week.

Mr. VanBeek has had a couple of sick cows the past week.

Mrs. Anna Dekken spent Tuesday afternoon visiting Mrs. Wieland.

The Wieland family have all been under the weather with colds the past week.

We haven't received the last issue of the Courier at the present writing.

Mr. N. Dekken, who has been gone several days with a car of potatoes for the Ellsworth Produce Co., returned home last Tuesday.

John Hennip has changed his mind about going to California this winter. He is going to stay and farm for another summer and intends to go west next fall.

Mr. and Mrs. Nick Brock's infant daughter died last Thursday morning at East Jordan following an operation, the place taking place at the house at noon Saturday. The people of the neighborhood extend their sympathy to the bereaved parents.

MILES DISTRICT

Inez Slack has again resumed work in East Jordan.

Our mail was surely snow-bound this time as we've had no mail for three days.

Mrs. Mary Clark returned from her visit in Detroit and Grand Rapids last Tuesday.

A. W. Carr was called to Ellsworth Monday morning to meet Will Hubbard of Bellaire.

Catherine Moblo was absent from her school duties last week on account of illness.

Lawrence Cincush came home from Muskegon last Tuesday where he has been working the last few months.

The Miles family were pleasantly surprised when a party of young people came to spend Saturday evening.

Mrs. Mary Clark went to Central Lake Wednesday spending the night with Mr. and Mrs. Frank Sisson returning Thursday.

HIGH SCHOOL FOR BANKS

TO BE VOTED UPON AT SPRING ELECTION

A Consolidated Rural School Would Give Children of Country Districts Higher Education

The township board at their meeting on Wednesday of last week decided on Saturday, March 20th, as the date for the special election to decide the question of a Rural High School. Petitions bearing the names of over one third of the qualified school electors having been presented to the board at this meeting and present indications are that the issue will carry with a rush. Not more than one in twenty seem to be opposed to the plan as nearly all Banks citizens are broad minded enough to realize the value of an education. Of course as in all movements ahead there are some cold water artists ready with the hose, but these seem hopelessly in the minority in this particular case.

Then, there are a few who through not understanding just what a Rural High School is, confuse it with a consolidated school or a township unit, and for the benefit of these we can say that it in way effects many pupils below the 8th grade. All children up to the 8th grade will attend their own district school the same as at the present and the only ones to attend the high school will be those who have passed this grade.

Those who do not thoroughly understand the Rural High School system should get in touch with some one who does understand it, and find out the advantages to be gained and then come out on March 20th, and vote yes.

ECHO DISTRICT NO. 4.

Floyd Russell's family are all sick with the flu.

Thom McPherson is very sick with the "flu."

The Roy Wilson family are all victims of the "flu."

Thos. Nowland lost a valuable Jersey cow and calf last week.

Mr. Odell, our meat man is again able to make his weekly trips. Glad to see him.

There is no school at present on account of the teacher being detained at home by the serious illness of her father.

Dr. Moorman was called to the homes of Jim Pickering and Dell Countryman Monday night to attend "flu" victims.

ANTRIM CITY

Frank Mason lost a valuable cow this week.

Mr. Frank Mason went to Ellsworth one day this week.

Mrs. Josie Simons was a visitor at Mrs. Gerrit Steel's Thursday.

Mr. Boumbach hauled a load of hay to Central Lake this week.

Mr. Gerrit Steel and Mrs. Logan McDowell went to Central Lake Tuesday.

Mrs. Gerrit Steel and Mrs. Fred Brooks were visitors at Mrs. McDowell's Tuesday afternoon.

Construct Rural High School
Construction of the first large consolidated rural high school building in Cadillac section of Michigan will be begun at Hixville at once. The contract for the building was awarded to the Cadillac Cabinet and Construction company, and calls for a $20,000 structure. A. E. Munger, of Bay City, is the architect. The consolidation of six districts and the building of the new union school has been made possible through the efforts of Roy Noteware, county school commissioner.

INTERESTING BITS OF INFORMATION CLIPPED FROM OUR EXCHANGES

A correspondent of the Cheboygan Democrat sums up reasons of many for not attending church as follows: "Some complain that the winter months are too cold and stormy, the summer is too nice not to be out, and the spring and fall—well, simply rains every Sunday. Some don't go to church because they are careless, others are indifferent, and still others are negligent. For some the church is for the poor and not for the well-to-do; for others it too old fashioned, always preaching the same word and not modern enough. For some it costs too much or they are at variance with some other cause not mentioned above. Christ, however, summed up all the causes in one word, when he said, 'Ye would not, Matthew 23:37.'"

A Saginaw woman admits that she has quit kissing her husband now, since it is no longer necessary to go through that ceremony in order to determine whether he has been having a session with the Demon Rum. All a woman needs to do now, it seems, is answer the door when the ambulance comes, and sign a receipt.

George Lee, of the Soo, will "no more wash shirts" for three months. He is closing the laundry which he has operated for five years and will go to San Francisco to meet his wife who is coming from China. Seven years ago George left his home and came to America. He worked in San Francisco for nearly two years, spent a couple of months in Chicago and then went to the Soo. Three of the five children of the family also left behind when George came to America to make his fortune over the steaming tubs, will come with Mrs. Lee. The others are established in China and do not care to come—Soo Times.

Owing to the heavy ice in the Straits few fish are being caught this winter. This especially is true of lake trout as few are being caught and those having nets set in the bay are getting only a few suckers. They also claim that in Saginaw river where ice is so heavy and where holes are cut in the ice many dead fish come to the surface and the live ones that come to the holes are after nir. The fishermen say that in the inland waters of the state there will be quite a large percentage of the fish die this winter, through the inability of the fish to secure sufficient oxygen.—Cheboygan Tribune.

Federal officers and the state constabulary in raids on two Italian houses at the Soo destroyed twenty gallons of raisin wine and a similar amount of home-made beer. A portion of a still also was found. It is believed much liquor is being smuggled to United States from Canada at that port and officers are keeping close watch on the border.

Crossing the street to offer aid to a woman he saw sitting on the steps of an apartment house in Beloit, Wis. Earl Fiese found his mother dying from apoplexy. She was on her way home from shopping and died soon after her son reached her.

The Roy Fleming farm, near Charlotte, has produced a freak lamb with two tails, two spinal columns, and eight legs. However, we are able to restrain our enthusiasm rather easily, having determined long ago to reserve it for the lamb that could furnish two bits to a chop.

George Smith and James Tucker, convicted of operating a whiskey still on the Grand Traverse peninsula farm of the former, will serve sixty days each in the Detroit house of correction. Emma Smith, wife of the owner, is placed on probation. Frank Germaine and George McCall were each given forty-five days in the Grand Traverse county jail for liquor law violations.

The state police made seven hundred and seventy-nine arrests for violation of the prohibition laws, confiscated seventeen thousand two hundred and thirty-six gallons of liquor and destroyed fourteen stills in the last year, the report of Major Roy C. Vandercook, of Lansing, commanding, has made public.

Propitious Climate Enables Owner to Produce Eggs to Better Advantage—Some Obstacles.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Increased interest in poultry raising in the general farming sections of the South, with purchase of much better stock, is reported by a specialist of the United States department of agriculture who recently investigated the status and activities of Old Mother Hen in Alabama, Louisiana, Mississippi and Texas. Producers are working not only to supply the home market but eggs are also being shipped from Mississippi, Alabama and Texas to Memphis, St. Louis, New York and other marketing centers.

The advantages of the South for poultry keeping are manifold, and include a propitious climate, which enables the flock owner to produce eggs to better advantage during the winter season, while he also can make use of simpler and cheaper houses than can his northern associates. Furthermore the favorable weather conditions in the South promote the feeding of green stuff to the hens practically the year around.

There are certain disadvantages, too, such as prevalence of insect pests, including mites, lice, and in some sections mosquitoes and stick-tight fleas, as well as the blue bug in parts of Texas. Furthermore southern markets are not high-paying consumers of locally produced eggs. This is particularly true in the resort section of Florida, where for many years the trade has been accustomed to import its eggs from the North and West. It does not readily transfer this business to local producers. In addition the southern market for eggs is usually "spotted," due to fluctuations in the tourist traffic.

During the heat of summer egg losses in the South aggregate a considerable sum, largely due to the development of fertile eggs. It is essential that southern producers exert every effort to produce and market only infertile eggs in order to control this source of loss. A common opinion prevails that the legions are particularly adapted to southern conditions, but according to the experience of the specialists of the United States department of agriculture southern poultrymen realize just as satisfactory results—and in many instances more favorable returns—from the maintenance of the heavier, general-purpose birds.

A number of failures in the poultry business on the part of newcomers in Florida, who endeavored to specialize production of poultry products, are explained by the fact that most of them were unfamiliar with local conditions and started on too expensive a scale.

A beginner in chicken raising in a new locality should always start on a small scale and expand his operations as he learns more about local conditions and as his returns from the business justify. For the man who is experienced in poultry raising and who will not take excessive risks, and who is supplied with plenty of working capital the southern states apparently offer for a fair opportunity.

Horticultural PointsTO SIMPLIFY FRUIT NAMES

Efforts Being Made to Eliminate Confusion in Terms and Synonyms of Many Varieties.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

In co-operation with the American Pomological society, the department of agriculture has been working for many years, with a view to simplifying the names of fruit varieties, to determine what are correct names and what are synonyms, and to promote the use by nurserymen in their catalogues, by fruit growers and the public generally, of correct variety names. It is only by so doing that confusion in variety names can be eliminated. When correct names are used a nurseryman in California will know exactly what variety of apple a correspondent in Maine may be asking about and a peach grower in Texas can talk understandingly with one in Michigan about varieties.

In the matter of fruit-variety names the "Rules of Nomenclature," frequently referred to as the "code" of nomenclature adopted in 1903 by the American Pomological society, govern in the work along this line done by the department of agriculture. In fact this code constitutes the only recognized guide in America in the naming of fruit varieties.

Moreover, department workers are giving critical consideration to the possibility of making better variety descriptions and illustrations than those usually made heretofore. This work has progressed farther at the present time with the apple than with any other fruit. It is expected that in due course after the work is completed the results of the studies now being made will be published by the department and thus be made available for other workers in pomology and the public generally.

CLARION WOMAN PASSES AWAY

Mrs. Lavina Pease Died Saturday Morning

Mrs. Lavina Pease and old resident of Clarion died at her home near that place Saturday morning at the age of seventy-five years.

Mrs. Pease retired Friday night evidently in the best of health and must have passed away while asleep as she found dead by her son the next morning.

Mrs. Pease is survived by her son, Fern, her husband having died about ten years ago.

The funeral was held Tuesday from the farm home and burial will take place at Clarion cemetery.

DEATH CALLS FORMER CHARLEVOIX TEACHER

William Ewing Passed Away Monday Night

Word was received Wednesday by H. A. Craig, that W. A. Ewing former principle of the Charlevoix High School has passed away Monday night of tuberculosis.

Mr. Ewing had been in very poor health for the past three years and spent some time in the western states striving to overcome the disease. He is survived by his wife and one child, and his father and mother who reside in Alma, Michigan.

Mr. Ewing was connected with the Charlevoix schools for three years during which time he made a host of friends both among his pupils and the people of the city who extend their sympathies at this time.

DEATH TAKES DEER LAKE RESIDENT

Died at the Petoskey Hospital Last Friday Afternoon.

Mr. Sidney Slaughter, and old resident of the Deer Lake neighborhood, died at the Petoskey hospital Friday afternoon.

The body was taken to his home south of Deer Lake on Saturday, by his wife and Henry Korthase. The trip had to be made with sleighs as no train were running.

The funeral was from the home Sunday, interment being made in the Wilson township cemetery.

CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH

Sunday, March 14th, has been appointed a "Go To Church Sunday." Our aim is "Every one in one service in one church on one day." This is the minimum. In this season of the earth's renewal—the spring time—there is no happier nor better time for a life renewal. Let us unite in making this day a genuine rebirth of religious activity in our city! The theme for the morning worship will be "Seeds—and Deeds." We heartily invite you to share in the gladness of our fellowship and the blessedness of our labor. Welcome!

Full announcement of the evening service in another column.

The Cecilians will meet under the direction of Miss Bement as usual.

The Mid-week Meeting will convene in the church school rooms at 8:00 p. m. Thursday evening. Despite the inclement weather much interest was manifest in our last week's meeting.

Boys—Don't forget the minister's class which will meet in the church parlors on Thursday afternoon at four o'clock. Let's all plan to be there right after school. Light refreshments afterwards.

The Prayer Meeting committee and Christian Citizenship committee won out! So near was the final mileage that a tie was declared, and the two winners are to be banqueted by the losers on Wednesday evening. Every boy and girl who have helped in the contest are expected to be there!

Attention, all young people of the church! A big St. Patrick's Party is to be held in the church parlors on next Monday evening. There will be games, refreshments and a general good time. You cannot afford to miss it!

Entertains in Honor of Birthday

William M. Brown entertained his teacher and twenty of his small friends at a party Monday in honor of his ninth birthday.

There was a large cake with nine candles and a table loaded with goodies that the youngsters enjoyed. William received many gifts from his little friends and every one had the best kind of a time.

PERE MARQUETTE STEAMER SINKS

Steamer No. 3 Goes Down at Ludington

The Pere Marquette steamer No. 3 was sunk Monday just out side of the harbor at Ludington, after being fast in the heavy ice for several hours. Three other ear ferries were imprisoned by the ice in the same vicinity.

The No. 3 left Milwaukee the day before and experienced no difficulty until reaching the Michigan shore. Here she became fast in the ice after which a blizzard broke and the ice was piled mountain high by the high wind. A huge hole was broke in the stern of the imprisoned steamer by the ice, causing the sinking. All passengers aboard were saved but the boat and large cargo of freight were a total loss.

PEOPLE FOR LEONARD WOOD

HAS GAINED SENTIMENT OF THE PUBLIC

Leonard Wood's Platform Has Been Indorsed By Prominent Men
Nation Wide

Samt has been found recently in some of the political machines of the country. It is the sand of the people's sentiment. Some of the machine politicians have found that the wheels are not turning as they should. The urgency of the situation has demanded oil, but they have found oil to no purpose.

As in other days of somewhat unhappy political memory, there have been attempts here and there on the part of men "who know what they want" to fashion the will of the voters in a mould of the old time machine make. The people apparently will have none of it, and this year with memories of the past still keen the voters of the United States intend to see to it that the man they want is nominated by the Republicans for the presidency of the United States, and that no little band of political machinists shall be allowed to thwart their intention.

The tenders of the machines finally have awakened to the situation. This, however, is not exactly the way to put it, for their awakening was not a self-imposed task. They were rudely shocked out of their sleep of security.

In certain of those states where in the elder day of political maneuverings the politicians not only proposed but disposed, the whole scene of things have changed, or is rapidly changing. The mass of American Republican voters desire the nomination of Leonard Wood for the presidency, and the mass is forcing the machine men not only to listen but to pay heed.

In some of the primary states the machinists, if they may pally be so called, retired with somewhat bad grace from their occupation some years ago, but in certain other commonwealths of this union the machine operators stayed at their apparatus, believing that it would run as it did of yore. Suddenly the sand appeared, sprinkled with no an-lavish hand by men who finally were aroused to the fact that the will of the few had been dominant, and that now the time had come for the will of the many to have its undenied way.

It is invidious to name persons and perhaps it is invidious to name states, but there are certain sections of this country which are counted on by the men of an unhappy and lang-ryne to duplicate the machine-made goods of other days. Few roads of this kind will be turned out for vending in the people's market this year of years.

Political machinery in certain sections of the Great East lost some of its hitherto resistless power after what the people called "the doings of 1912," but time brings forgetfulness and occasionally courage with it. So it was that men of a certain type were emboldened to start the res and send the wheels whirling nee more, but today in those parts of the East where the attempt has been made to turn out things on the old scale and after the old pattern, the wheels have shown recent signs of clogging, and there is unhappiness in the Camp of the tenders.

In the Leonard Wood Campaign headquarters in Chicago, the situation as it has developed, East, North, West, and South, is known in detail by day. No one with any political sense has been unaware of the fact that attempts have been made behalf of this candidate or that ndidate for the Republican nomination so to manipulate the things that man pleasing to the politically-erful few should be chosen at icago rather than the man own as the Favorite Son of the enation. In the past it was almost hopeless except under conditions of great public resentment to tempt to make certain that the vote majority should dominate the chinery minority. Things have changed and the Wood Chieftains ow it. The people from Maine thward through the coast states d westward to the Mississippi and ond are taking hold of the thing h the grip of their own will. The people of Ohio are to have a l opportunity to say who it is that y desire as their candidate for the idency. In Ohio, after a shilly-shallying, and side-stepping, one candidate finally decided that he would enter into the contest in armour, blazoned with the words "Favorite Son." - "Words, words, words," as a reader of things worth while reminiscently might say, for in Ohio's case, as in the case of several other states the caption "Favorite Son" is but joining of two meaningless words.

In Indiana the signs point to a complete victory in the primaries for Leonard Wood. A change has come over the Indiana situation so rapidly and so markedly that it has caused some of the politicians to breathe hard enough to hurt their lungs. What seemingly was impossible two months ago because of certain grip-like holdings by some politicians, now not only is possible but is certain. The people of Indiana are for Leonard Wood, and for a proof of it to any doubter, ask any Republican politician in Hoosierdom who as the courage to tell the truth.

In Illinois things are going to happen. (The primaries are on April 13 and as in Ohio, Illinoisans will be given a chance which the voters of every state should be given to express their direct preference as between men for the Republican nomination.)

LECTURE COURSE MARCH 24TH

LOU J. BEAUCHAMP "THE HUMOROUS PHILOSOPHER"

Has Had a Vast Amount of Adventure and Experience in All Portinns of the Globe

Lou J. Beauchamp, famous as "The Humorous Philosopher," will be the next attraction on the Lyceum course. He will be here Wednesday, evening, March 24th, and will give one of the great lectures for which he is noted.

Lou J. Beauchamp is peculiarly fitted for the platform. He has been an editor of metropolitan newspapers and a writer for magazines. At thirty he wrote a book which has been read by over 100,000 people and translated in many languages. Yet he never had any schooling outside of the school of the spare hours. He never knew his mother, losing her when a baby. He was reared by the Indians in the southwest, his grandfather being an Indian trader who left the child with a friendly tribe when on one of his trading trips.

At thirteen Mr. Beauchamp learned the printer's trade and began his wanderings. Now at the age of seventy he has traveled over 1,300,000 miles. Crossing the Atlantic many times he is as familiar with the cities of the old world as with those of the new.

Mr. Beauchamp is one of the deans of the American platform. Few are the cities and towns which at some time have not heard and enjoyed one of his lectures. Although now seventy years old, he is said to be doing the best work of his life. His lectures are filled with wit and humor of the highest type and along with the fun and mirth are philosophy and wisdom that give food for solid thought.

It is because of faculty of mixing fun and facts, humor and philosophy, mirth and messages that Mr. Beauchamp gained the title of "Humorous Philosopher."

CHARLEVOIX DEFEATS TWO OF NORTH- ERN MICHIGAN'S FASTEST TEAMS

Walloped Harbor Springs Friday Night 36-8—Beat Petoskey for Northern Michigan Championship Tuesday Night By Score of 24-10

The past week certainly has been a victorious one for the Charlevoix high school basketball team. During this time they have played two of the fastest teams in northern Michigan and defeated both teams by a large margin.

The first game was with Harbor Springs last Friday night, the final score of this game being 36-8 with Charlevoix on the long end of the score. Harbor Springs had played a game with Charlevoix previous to this, at Harbor Springs, Charlevoix winning by a small margin. They were after revenge but the local team was all together to fast for them and the game was rather one-sided although the boys from Harbor put up a fine scrap and played a good clean game of basket ball.

Wexstaff far Charlevoix was the star of the game netting seven field baskets and throwing two out of four free throws. Capt. Krulick was close second with five field baskets. Halverson also netted five baskets. The Harbor Springs team threw two field baskets during the entire game illustrating the good work of the Charlevoix guards Jones and Hammet. Following is the line up of the two teams last Friday night:

Charlevoix	Harbor Springs
Krulick	L. F. Martindale
Halverson	R. C. Thompson
Wexstaff	C. Lamkin
Hammet	R. G. Kniesly
Jones	L. G. Judd

Goals from field, Halverson 5, Krulick 5, Wexstaff 7, Martindale 1, Lamkin 1.

Goals from foul, Wexstaff 2 out of 4, Judd 4 out of 7. Time twenty minute halves. Referee C. L. Petoskey.

Petoskey Game.

The game Tuesday night with Petoskey was undoubtedly the very best of the season and also the most important as the winning of it brought the championship of northern Michigan to Charlevoix.

Petoskey defeated Charlevoix earlier in the season by a small score, the game being played at Petoskey and at that time there was much doubt as to which was the better team. The game Tuesday night however proved conclusively which was the better team. The final score was 24-10, never during the entire game was there a shadow of doubt as to the outcome. Petoskey was outclassed in every department of the game. Of course playing on a foreign floor proved a handicap as did last year, and this hotel rebuilt and equipped along the latest lines of accommodation, will prove a drawing card and a big one. The city could use another hotel of the same size if future seasons are to be compared with the last. The resort business that was somewhat checked by the late war seems to have re-opened with unusual vigor and resorts and hotel men all over the country pronounce the last season the best in years, and prospects of still larger business the coming year.

It is understood that the management of the hotel will be given to some one outside, the name of whom is unobtainable at present. It can be assured, however, that whoever it is, will operate the establishment according to the latest up-to-date methods.

East Jordan is to have a new industry which promises to be one of considerable importance to the city.

The Velvet-Mint Gum factory formerly located in Detroit has chosen East Jordan as the site of their future operation and the work of moving the machinery of the plant to that place has already begun.

The plant will occupy the old Clarke Seed House located on the south side of the lake. The plant expects to be in operation some time in April.

East Jordan is to be congratulated on securing and industry of this size and one with so promising prospects for the future.

The Courier carries all the news.

DEATH TAKES PIONEER RESIDENT

Jacob W. VanDusen Dies at Home in Norwood

Death claimed one of Charlevoix county's oldest residents Monday when Jacob W. VanDusen passed away at his home near Norwood, after a long period of illness.

Mr. VanDusen was born in New York state January 4th, 1843 and moved to this territory about fifty years ago being one of the first settlers at Norwood. At that time there were no roads connecting Norwood and this place and this entire territory was practically a wilderness.

He was married, March 13, 1870 to Miss Anne Clarke, who died about seven years ago. To this union five children were born, Lyman of Lansing, Mrs. Maude Goodrich of Vermont, Mr. W. H. Mayne, Mrs. Will Richardson and Mrs. Will Alward of Norwood.

He was a veteran of the civil war serving 2 years during that struggle, and a member of the Methodist church. Funeral services will be held from the Methodist church at Norwood and burial will take place in the Norwood cemetery.

PETOSKEY BRANCH OF BROWN GARAGE

NEW BRANCH WILL BE OPEN
APRIL 1st

New Garage Will Be Under Management of Seth Smith and Kenneth Thomson

Benj. Brown automobile dealer of this city has made a still farther advancement into the automobile field of northern Michigan by installing an Oakland headquarters at Petoskey.

Mr. Brown recently purchased what is known as the West Side Carage in Petoskey of C. E. Culbert. In this new garage he will handle the Oakland car, the Overland, Republic Tires and Mobile Oils. He has the agency for Charlevoix, Emmet and Antrim counties on these tires, oils and the Oakland car.

The building will be turned over to the new management, April 1st, but the work of preparing the building for the season's business has already begun and business will be started as soon as the building is acquired.

The new enterprise will be under the management of Seth Smith, well known here and Kenneth Thomson. Both men are automobile experts and under their management satisfaction and the best of service is insured.

The Brown garage now practically envelope the entire automobile field of this district. There is a branch garage at East Jordan which handles that section thoroughly, the Charlevoix headquarters which has a rapidly increasing business and now the Emmet county branch at Petoskey. Mr. Brown announces that next fall the branch at Petoskey will be rebuilt and enlarged and every modern device now used in automobile repair work installed.

FAIR PROGRAM FOR NEXT FALL

SPLENDID FEATURE ATTRACTIONS HAVE BEEN SECURED

Wonderful Exhibition of Fireworks Illustrating Important Events in Late War to Be Given

Although the Charlevoix County Fair will not take place until the week of September 13th, the secretary has already secured the 1920 free attractions. All over the Country, county and state are this year making even greater preparations than they did for 1919 Fair. The Charlevoix County Fair is leading the fairs of this section in the preparations for the biggest and best fair ever held.

This year's fair will be open for entries on Monday, September 13th. Entries will close Tuesday, September 14th at eleven o'clock a. m. The fair will be in full swing from that time until Friday night. Night fair commences Tuesday, September 14th and an excellent program will be given the nights of September 14th, 15th and 16th. While the deal is not yet closed prospects are very bright for securing a five car carnival company to take care of side shows.

The free attractions will be taken care of by the six marvelous Moriles, who will perform on the casting bars, patting on stunts in this class of work which will excel anything which has been heretofore shown at the county fair. They also have a slack wire artist who will dance Spanish dances on the wire. Among other things shown by the troupe will be a head slide, teeth slide, hair slide and toe slide. This troupe is booked at the larger southern Michigan county fairs, and would have been booked at the West Michigan State Fair had they not already entered into a contract to perform at the Ann Arbor fair, which is held the same week as the West Michigan Fair. Advance notices indicate that it is an act of unusual merit.

The association has contracted with the Byrnes-Weigand Fireworks Company of Chicago for three nights of fireworks. This company will send their own expert to fire the display and have contracted to put on each night a program of fifty-two numbers. Among the said pieces which will be shown each evening will be the battle of Chateau Thierry, produced by the discharge of blinding magnesium flashes and reports, these reports and flashes growing heavier and stronger as the firing continues, finally finishing in a blinding cannonade. A realistic representation of a battle scene, the quick rattle of the musketry and the boom of the cannon, the flash and smoke of battle. This is a elaborate and very special, covering a space of 200 feet in length. Among other numbers which will be put on each evening are the following: Realistic naval battle, between an American cruiser and a foreign gunboat. In outlines of fire the two boats are shown. A realistic battle takes place in which hundreds of shot and shell are fired, concluding with the blowing and sinking of the foreign gunboat, the raising of the American flag, showing the stars and stripes in lines of colored fire. A wonderful realistic and beautiful device creating great admiration everywhere. One thousand feet of bombardment is used in this scene. Pugilistic contest between Jess Willard and Jack Dempsey. Two life-sized figures are shown and both outlined in lines of colored fire, very heavily lanced, reproducing a very realistic scene of the last round of the last pugilistic contest between the two Celebrities, in which Jess Willard being knocked out. "Niagara Falls, showing one solid sheet of aluminum fire, 35 feet high and 75 feet in length which has the appearance of the glittering water and the sound of the mighty cataract itself. The molten fire reaches the ground, rebounds with a spray of silvery mist creating a most realistic and inspiring effect long to be remembered. 75 feet in length." This unusual fireworks display will close the program each evening and will please lovers of spectacular fireworks.

Music will be furnished by a combination of northern Michigan hands (Continued on page 10.)

Look and Feel Clean, Sweet and Fresh Every Day

Drink a glass of real hot water before breakfast to wash out poisons.

Life is not merely to live, but to live well, eat well, digest well, work well, sleep well, look well. What a glorious condition to attain, and yet how very easy it is if one will only adopt the morning inside bath.

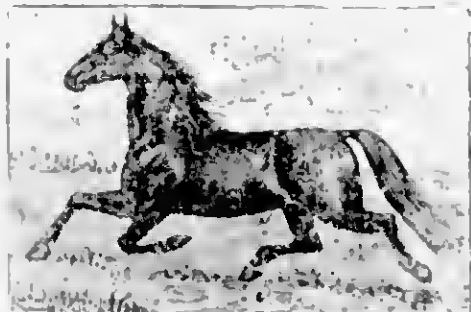

Folks who are accustomed to feel dull and heavy when they arise, splitting headache, stuffy from a cold, foul tongue, nasty breath, acid stomach, can, instead, feel as fresh as a daisy by opening the sluices of the system each morning and flushing out the whole of the internal poisonous stagnant matter.

Everyone, whether ailing, sick or well, should, each morning, before breakfast, drink a glass of real hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it to wash from the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels the previous day's indigestible waste, sour bile and poisonous toxins; thus cleansing, sweetening and purifying the entire alimentary canal before putting more food into the stomach. The action of hot water and limestone phosphate on an empty stomach is wonderfully invigorating. It cleans out all the sour fermentations, gases, waste and acidity and gives one a splendid appetite for breakfast. While you are enjoying your breakfast the water and phosphate is quietly extracting a large volume of water from the blood and getting ready for a thorough flushing of all the inside organs.

The millions of people who are bothered with constipation, bilious spells, stomach trouble, rheumatism, others who have yellow skins, blood disorders and sickly complexions are urged to get a quarter pound of limestone phosphate from the drug store which will cost very little, but is sufficient to make anyone a pronounced crank on the subject of internal sanitation.

Charlevoix Citizens Gladly Testify and Confidently Recommend Doan's Kidney Pills

It is testimony like the following that has placed Doan's Kidney Pills so far above competitors. When people right here at home raise their voice in praise there is no room left for doubt. Read the public statement of a Charlevoix citizen:

"Mrs. R. S. Hammond, 207 Belvedere Ave., says: 'Several years ago my kidneys were weak and acted irregularly. At times my hands and feet were swollen and my face was bloated also. I felt miserable all over. When I heard of Doan's Kidney Pills I began their use and three boxes removed all the trouble, making me feel like a different person.'"

The World's Largest Production of Tires on the Smaller Cars Alone

We call attention not so much to the size of this average daily production as to the extent of the effort we put into the making of these 30x3-, 30x3½-, and 31x4-inch sizes.

The separate factory we have devoted to their manufacture is not only the largest of its kind in the world, but it makes fully effective that experience and resourcefulness which have produced the tires most popular on the higher-priced cars.

No tires bearing the Goodyear name contain a higher relative value than these tires for Ford, Chevrolet, Dort, Maxwell and other cars requiring the sizes mentioned.

If you own one of these cars, go to the nearest Goodyear Service Station Dealer for these tires and for Goodyear Heavy Tourist Tubes. He has them.

30x3½ Goodyear Single-Cure Fabric, Anti-Skid Tread..... $21.50

INTERESTING BITS OF INFORMATION CLIPPED FROM OUR EXCHANGES

Traverse City has officially adopted Eastern standard time, to start March 28 and end October 3. Petoskey, Cheboygan and other Northern Michigan cities tried out this time and soon returned to Central Standard, owing to the fact that the railroads, express companies, post-office, etc., operated on Central Standard.

A $25,000 corporation has been formed at Boyne City to take over the business formerly managed by E. J. Olson. Among those who are interested in the new project are L. C. Rouse, formerly connected with the Solvay Process Co., of Detroit; A. H. Green, first vice-president of the Solvay Process Co.; L. H. White, superintendent of the local railway, and E. J. Olson. The company will deal in coal, cokes and motor cars.

The February report of the Grand Rapids weather bureau shows that there were but two clear days for the entire month that six were partly cloudy and that twenty-one were cloudy. Snow fell to a depth of .01 inches or more on nine days. The total snow was 12.2 inches, 6.5 inches of which remained on the ground at the end of the month. The maximum temperature for the month was forty-four on the 2nd, and the minimum six below on the 19th. Remember this is for the vicinity of Grand Rapids. Here the snowfall was more and temperatures lower, but the days of cloudiness and sunshine about the same.

Sixty-three persons met death at the hands of mobs in the United States in the first ten months of 1919, according to a statement issued by the National Association for the Advancement of Colored people. Sixty-one of the victims were American citizens and two were Mexicans, the statement adds and says that fifty-nine of the Americans killed were negroes, of whom eleven were hanged at the stake.

Owosso—Flood conditions have become acute as a result of the heavy rain, and the river rose nearly two feet and is over its banks in many places. Blocks in the southwestern part of the city are flooded with houses surrounded. With the water steadily rising, the flood conditions of two years ago are feared. An ice jam was formed above the city water works plant, which now is threatened by the flood.

Under the new railroad re-organization under private ownership E. E. Cain, superintendent of the Petoskey division, became general superintendent of the Pere Marquette system and W. H. Wallace, an attaché of the Grand Rapids general offices, became superintendent of the Petoskey division.

Mrs. Nate Klock was taken to a Petoskey hospital last week for treatment. Her three small children, who were being cared for by neighbors, were taken to Petoskey by County Agent Weaver, and will be cared for by the probate court. It is alleged that the father, Nate Klock, would not provide for the family, which was in a destitute condition.

Sheriff Charles Miller was in town investigating the case of Nate Klock, accused of neglect of his horses. It is alleged that Klock allowed one horse to starve to death and another was nearly dead from lack of food and water, when neighbors complained to the authorities. The sheriff took him before Justice Grewett, who sentenced him to serve ninety days in the county jail.—Pellston Journal.

KEEP RATS AWAY FROM HENS

Rodents Destroy Feed, Eggs and Fowls and Are Inevitable Enemies to All Poultry.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Every poultryman should be on guard continuously against rats. They destroy feed, eggs and fowls, and are inevitable enemies to all kinds of poultry, from chicks, squabs, ducklings and young turkeys just out of the shell to tough old birds awaiting the hatchet at the close of a long and noisy career. Although most of their depredations are confined to eggs and young birds, when driven by hunger rats kill full-grown fowls at roost, biting them through the head or neck.

Complaints about rats have come to the United States biological survey, department of agriculture, from many quarters. For example, a farmer in Virginia reported 20 turkeys killed by these pests in a night. Another, in Kansas, lost between 200 and 300 chickens and many eggs by rats during the course of one summer. His neighbors had similar experiences. From New Jersey has come a report of rats killing young ducks. An Ohioan has complained that the animals burrow beneath his coops and take chicks from under the hen. In certain neighborhoods of Massachusetts half a season's hatch of chickens and ducklings have been killed by rats.

Rats multiply rapidly when left undisturbed, where there is plenty to eat. One pair may increase to more than 2,000 in a single year. Whoever allows his property to become overrun by them invites vexation and loss.

Are You Contemplating Purchasing a TALKING MACHINE

If so, are you using the same careful study you would were you purchasing a Piano. The real Talking Machine of today is an instrument on which is perfectly re-produced the finest music from the most noted artists and is a beautiful piece of furniture. SUCH IS THE VICTROLA. Thousands of dollars and years of research have been spent in perfecting the sound box and tone arm. The Cabinet work and finish is as fine as on the most expensive Piano. The joints are all perfectly made and will not open in years of use. The Veneers are perfect and will not peel. The finishing material is the Best that can be produced and put on by experienced men, some of whom have made the finishing of Victrolas their life work. And you will not pay any more for the Victrola than you will be asked to pay for one of over a hundred other makes. Where the main object of the manufacturer is to unload them and get the money.

Let us demonstrate to you the truths of the above statements.

HARVEY'S HUMOROUS HAVEST
Colonel George Harvey of Harvey's Weekly found a rich field in the Wilson-Lansing correspondence, and gathered a humorous harvest.

"No; Mr. Wilson is not crazy; he is just mad, not as a hatter, but as a hornet that has been sat upon; so mad that he can't bear it without stinging."

"Only a year ago Woodrow Wilson was not only the greatest man on earth, but the greatest man who had ever been on earth or anywhere else, so far as we know."

"And now! Every bubble burst, fluted by Italy, reviled in France, calmly ignored in England and awaiting in his own country a verdict of violent repudiation such as has never been recorded in the history of this Republic."

"Is it not remarkable that he has not broken out before with something that would have seemed equally crazy? Quite likely poor Lansing happened to be the first suitable goat to appear. Anyhow the first letter was indicated—oily, crafty, insinuating and utterly false in all its implications; in a word, as we have remarked, wholly normal."

"The doctors have disagreed or lied about his malady from the beginning. The only one who had it right from the start was Senator Moses."

President Wilson said in his letter on the Adriatic question: "Justice rather than expediency should govern nations." It has never been claimed, even by President Wilson, that he gave his consent to the Shantung infamy on any grounds but those of expediency.

They are booming Governor Edwards as a "wet" candidate for the Presidency, but if precedents teach us anything of election of a governor of New Jersey as a "wet" candidate on the Democratic ticket would result in drying up even the lakes and rivers.

The New York Times says the Foreign Affairs committee of the Senate was "packed" against the un-Americanized covenant. The truth is that the people "packed" the senate against it in November, 1918.

The Democratic organs are demanding that the Republican party do something constructive. The first big constructive job is to get rid of the administration that put us where we are today.

Samuel Gompers has never failed to find plenty of good non-partisan reasons for supporting the straight Democratic ticket in some twenty-five years activity in American politics.

In view of the fact that the unspeakable Turk is going to be allowed to remain in Europe the suggestion that we have saved the world for democracy is positively in Sultan.

The statesman who has a quick cure for all that the Democratic party has done to us in the last few years must believe that the day of miracles is not over.

Norman Hapgood says: "The Republicans are likely to win in November." Well, if anything could raise a doubt it would be a prophecy by Colonel Hapgood.

We are reminded that the war is over. But the results are not over, for the job holders are still with us and the bills continue to come in.

THIS IS LEONARD WOOD

The Man Who Won the Unqualified Endorsement of Theodore Roosevelt, Greatest American of His Time.

—and the man who should get your vote in the Primaries, April 5th

A vote for Leonard Wood is a vote for Roosevelt's principles, for the very same things that Roosevelt would be advocating if he were alive today.
A vote for Wood is a vote for a candidate whose backers have pledged themselves to see that the voice of the people of Michigan is heard in the state and national conventions. Wood is fighting for the nomination, not merely to gather up delegates to be transferred to some other candidate when the party leaders decide that the psychological moment has arrived.
General Wood, in his public utterances, has shown a thorough understanding of the farmer's problems and a warm sympathy for the farmer. He says: "Our stability rests largely in the agricultural population. The red flag never flies over the house of a farmer who owns his farm. If the American farmer had not played the game as they did, we would have lost the war, because we would not have been able to feed our Allies in the field as well as ourselves. If the American farmer had struck, the Germans would have won the war. The farmers sent their sons to war, and in spite of the shortage of labor they, by tremendously increasing their efforts, gave the world the biggest crop in history. Agriculture is not only the principal source of our wealth, it is the groundwork of our most stable citizenship."
"We must have a department of agriculture conducted for the farmer by men who really know farming from the furrow to the crop. It should be the intention of the national government at Washington to make farming conditions such that there would be fewer tenant farms and more owned farms."
Theodore Roosevelt said of Leonard Wood: "He has made all good Americans his debtors by what he has done."

FARM STOCK

SCRUBS BEING CLEANED OUT

West Virginia Stockmen Making Vigorous Effort to Drive Out All Scrub Bulls.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

West Virginia—largely regarded as a mineral-producing state—is on the war-path to increase beef cattle production and its output of dairy products by eliminating scrub bulls, which are primary offenders against profitable and progressive live stock husbandry. Within a few months parts of West Virginia where the campaign is most active expect to round out a clean-up which will eliminate the scrub bulls and leave the purebreds as monarchs of all they survey. The case of Roane county, W. Va., is an example of what West Virginia stockmen accomplish when they go over the top. The live stock specialists of the State agricultural college, the county agent and officers of the Roane county farm bureau have solidly backed up the scrub sile clean-up.

"Not a single man turned us down," remarked the live stock specialist in telling how the campaign to oust the scrubs was conducted.

"The first of the year our local stockmen made a declaration of independence against scrub bulls, and work was begun promptly in taking a thorough bull census. This investigation of sire ancestry showed that there were 200 bulls in the county, of which 102 were misfit grades and scrubs, while 98 were registered purebreds. There were 57 registered Herefords, 28 registered Angus, and 13 registered Shorthorns. Fortunately, the army of 102 grades and scrubs was not as formidable as it looked on the paper, because 60 of these low grade sires were yearlings. Furthermore, the census showed that there were only 30 men who actually made a practice of keeping a scrub bull."

By correspondence and personal contact with farmers the state live stock agent and the county agent waged the battle. These men toured the county day after day visiting the scrub bull owners, holding meetings, and requesting influential farmers to assist in regaining the scrub sires into the live stock scrap heap. In the main the scrub bull owners, once they learned the purpose of the campaign, and once they appreciated the benefits which would result if they substituted purebred sires for the scrubs, were glad to dispose of their inferior herd members. Detailed figures showing the increased value of calves sired by purebreds over calves of scrub parentage were particularly convincing in gaining converts. Most of the scrub bull owners were prompt in admitting the error of their live-stock raising ways. The Roane county banks have aided the movement to replace poor bulls with good ones. Every bank in the county has offered to lend money at 5 per cent to farmers for the purpose of purchasing purebred sires as substitutes for their scrubs.

A Typical "Native" Scrub Bull, an Obstacle to Progress in Live Stock Improvement.

HANDLE SHEEP WITH PROFIT

Good Drainage, Pasture, Some Shelter and an Interested Attendant Are Important.

The requirements of a farm where sheep can be handled with profit are good drainage, plenty of fresh pasture, land that will produce clover, alfalfa, cowpeas, or soy beans; a good water supply, fences that will keep sheep out of growing crops and furnish two or three fields for frequent change of pasture, a shelter that will protect the flock from cold rains, winds and storms, and an attendant who can give the flock interested and intelligent care.

SWINE CONSUMED MUCH FEED

Devoured More Grain Than Cattle Last Year, Being Fed 50.3 Per Cent of Corn.

Swine consumed more grain than cattle last year in the United States, being fed 50.3 per cent of the corn, 10.5 per cent of the oats, 60 per cent of the barley, 29.1 per cent of the wheat and 41.5 per cent of the mill feeds fed to all farm animals.

MIXTURE FOR LITTLE CHICKS

Give Equal Parts of Hard-Boiled Eggs and Rolled Oats or Stale Bread Soaked in Milk.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

For the first three days chicks may be fed a mixture of equal parts of hard-boiled eggs and rolled oats or stale bread, or stale bread soaked in milk. When bread and milk are used care should be taken to squeeze all the milk out of the bread. From the third or fourth day commercial chick feed may be fed until the chicks are old enough to eat wheat screenings or cracked corn.

PLAN FOR MARKETING EGGS

Brown and White Shells Should Be Placed in Separate Packages—Keep All Culls.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Market white-shelled and brown-shelled eggs in separate packages. Eggs irregular in shape, those which are unusually long or thin-shelled, or which have shells otherwise defective, should be kept by the producer for home use, so that breakage in transit may be reduced as much as possible.

All males except those needed for breeding purposes, should be got rid of as soon as possible.

It is said that farmers lose millions of dollars annually on account of poor methods of producing and handling eggs.

Be a crank about cleanliness, mites, lice and disease in your poultry yard and see if it doesn't pay a big dividend.

Diseases of poultry are frequently transmitted through the drinking water; the drinking fountain should be cleaned daily.

Chicks on good range get practically all they need in the way of mineral salts through the fresh vegetables, but ranges are often overrated.

Help save eggs by keeping the nests clean and free from lice. Gather eggs twice daily, keep them in a cool, dry room or cellar, and market twice a week.

PRODUCTION IS ONLY MEANS OF LOWERING COST

Leonard Wood Says That More and Better Work Means Relief From Burden of the High Cost of Living.

HE WANTS REAL TRUTH-SEEKING

Capital and Labor Should Work in Harmony That Can Be Promoted Only By Honor and Fair Dealing on Both Sides.

In a recent address, Leonard Wood handled the capital and labor situation in the following straightforward way:

"It is no time now for rash experiments or untried ideas. We must hold us to the policies and methods of established worth, which experience has shown to be sound. We must progress but we must know where we are going."

"We must do all we can to encourage good business, whether it be big business or small business. If it is

DRINK HOT TEA FOR A BAD COLD

Get a small package of Humberg Breast Tea at any pharmacy. Take a tablespoonful of the tea, put a cup of boiling water upon it, pour through a sieve and drink a teaspoon full at any time during the day or before retiring. It is the most effective way to break a cold and cure grip, as it opens the pores of the skin, relieving congestion. Also loosens the bowels, thus driving a cold from the system.

Try it the next time you suffer from a cold or the grip. It is inexpensive and entirely vegetable, therefore safe and harmless.

RUB BACKACHE AND LUMBAGO RIGHT OUT

Rub Pain and Stiffness away with a small bottle of old honest St. Jacobs Liniment

When your back is sore and lame or lumbago, sciatica or rheumatism has you stiffened up, don't suffer! Get a 30 cent bottle of old, honest "St. Jacobs Liniment" at any drug store, pour a little in your hand and rub it right into the pain or ache, and by the time you count fifty, the soreness and lameness is gone.

Don't stay crippled! This soothing, penetrating oil needs to be used only once. It takes the ache and pain right out of your back and ends the misery. It is magical, yet absolutely harmless and doesn't burn the skin.

Nothing else stops lumbago, sciatica and lame back misery so promptly!

good business and beneficial to the public, it is worthy of encouragement; if it is bad business, we must control it and regulate it. Good business means prosperous labor, and this means increased production and nothing must be allowed to interfere with ample production. It is the real remedy for the high cost of living. Limitation on production is an invitation to disaster—disaster which strikes first the poor but eventually affects all. We cannot consider business and labor separately. They are interlocking and interdependent. We must spread the war burden over a much longer period of years than at present contemplated.

Tax is Paralyzing.

"The present excess income tax is paralyzing initiative. It is a stranglehold upon the throat of business which must be relaxed if American business is to have that initiative which will be necessary to give us our share in the world's trade. We must do everything we can to help on good business, for on it depends national prosperity. Labor and Capital in this country must work together in order to meet the problems which are going to follow this world's war. We do not wish an outcropping of either Capital or Labor, but a real democracy in both, characterized by a spirit of co-operation and helpfulness. We must inject more of the human element into our relations with those about us, whether they be our associates or our subordinates—more gathering about the table and discussing matters fully and frankly.

"Arrangements for the adjustment of grievances must be provided which will work smoothly and promptly. We must do all we can to improve the worker's living conditions, to make his surroundings decent and attractive to himself and family. His hours of work must be such as to give him an opportunity for reasonable recreation with his family during the hours of daylight. He should receive a wage that not only permits him to keep body and soul together, but enables him to lay by something for the future. If these conditions are to be obtained and maintained, labor must recognize that high wages can only be maintained under conditions of high production and high efficiency."

Equitable Distribution.

"Capital must be paid in accordance with the risk of the enterprise. Those who direct and plan must be paid adequately, labor must be adequately paid, and after this, if anything remains, comes the question of an equitable distribution. Many of the more progressive, intelligent and far-seeing men are already beginning to give to labor a participation in this surplus—a share varying with its amount."

"The main thing is for labor and Capital to pull together in the present great crisis, remembering that only through co-operation and frank and full understanding and mutual concessions can the wheels of industry be kept going."

"We must impress upon both labor and capital, the words of Abraham Lincoln, for they embody a sound doctrine which must govern: 'Let not him who is houseless pull down the house of his neighbor; but rather, let him strive diligently to build one for himself, thus, by example, showing confidence that his own when built shall stand.'"

WOOD AND WOODY LEADERS IN POLL

Leslie's Weekly all-party presidential poll for president shows Leonard Wood far in the lead over all rivals, both Republican and Democrat. This vote comes from every section of the country and is intended to show the trend of public sentiment. The latest compilation follows:

Leonard Wood.....1783
Frank O. Lowden.....161
Hiram Johnson.....531
Senator Volstead.....86
President Wilson.....542
W. G. McAdoo.....93
Governor Cox, Ohio.....71

WOOD SUPPORTS ROOSEVELT CREED

Republican Candidate is Worthy Successor To His Friend and Guiding Spirit.

HAS SOME EXCELLENT IDEALS

Men who followed Theodore Roosevelt still believe in the same things, justice more than prosperity. They believe that the social and economic system of the nation is full of crass injustice, that can and ought to be remedied. They are disturbers of the old traffic ways, are these men and they will not line up with a man or with a party that worships the god of things as they are.

And that is the reason that we find these men, who were behind Roosevelt in the good old days when the people roared, behind Leonard Wood. For they know that if Leonard Wood is sent to fill the shoes of Col. Roosevelt that he will fill them in a man-sized way. There will be no half-way measures with Leonard Wood, no more than there were with Theodore Roosevelt. As Roosevelt labored for the masses, so will Wood, who labored with him, continue to labor. As Roosevelt waved his big stick and the so-called "interests" shivered in terror, so will Wood wave the big stick, for the general carries as big a stick as did the colonel.

That these things will be true, the men who were Roosevelt's friends, and who are Wood's friends, know. That is the reason that adherents from every state are joining the Wood movement and taking off their coats getting into the thick of the fray. After eight years of Democratic darkness, they believe that Leonard Wood is the logical man to bring the nation back to where the dauntless Theodore left it.

WOOD QUALIFIES AS BUSINESS MAN

His Record in Cuba, Where He Solved Variety of Industrial Problems, Proves His Soundness.

ALWAYS MET SITUATION WELL

Man and woman are crying for a business man for our next president. They are right. If ever the United States needed a business head for the next administration it is now. Leonard Wood fills that qualification, for a chief executive. A single instance is proof, and if a single instance were not enough there are others.

Leonard Wood was in Cuba for approximately four years after the close of the Spanish-American war. He went there to find the country practically bankrupt, without a school system, loaded with debt, with totally insufficient transportation systems, with few laws, and those no good. In short, he found a country crushed into the very depths of dirt, squalor and despair.

In four short years he accomplished that which Theodore Roosevelt once said, "had it been accomplished three thousand years earlier would have made Wood a hero mixed up with the sugar-lad in various ways." Concretely Wood left Cuba with a sound and reorganized banking system, an excellent system of transportation reaching into practically every part of the island, free of debt, with nearly $2,000,000 of unencumbered money in the treasury, a sugar crop of nearly a million tons, sound municipal laws, fine public works, a firm agricultural foundation, and an absolute respect among the people for life and property.

AID TO PERMANENT PASTURE

Ohio Station Officials Recommend Use of Alsike and Blue Grass—Manure is Big Help.

Grass seed applied early in February or March helps to establish a permanent pasture, and Ohio station officials recommend the use of alsike and blue grass, as red clover does not thrive well where tap-rooted plants will leave out in the winter.

The application of manure is of help in every instance in producing a good growth of pasture.

One of the best inside linings for poultry houses is tar paper, tacked on smoothly. Mites do not bother it.

FORD

The Northern Auto Company has just received its first shipment of cars for the season of 1920. This shipment includes Sedans, Touring Cars and Trucks.

Due to the present shortage in material and labor, the factory production of cars has decreased and it will be hard to obtain the same number of cars as in the past year.

Don't put off ordering until it is too late. Come in. Talk it over with us.

We can sell you a Ford car on time—a small cash payment when you take the car, the balance divided into eighteen monthly payments. This method assures you one year and six months to pay for your car.

If you are having trouble with your car, let us tune it up for you.

CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH

The theme for the morning of March 21st will be "The Strategy of Opportunity." This church extends a most cordial welcome to all, especially to any in this community who are strangers or who have no church home. Our parish is the community.
We stand for the universal brotherhood of men. We emphasize no distinction, whether of creed, social position or nationality. We heartily invite you to share in the gladness of our fellowship and the blessedness of our labor. Welcome!

The Young People's Society will be led at the usual hour, 6:00 p. m., by Edward Shanahan. He will lead an interesting meeting in an original way. Hear him.

The Junior Young Peoples' society will meet at the same hour in the primary rooms. Mrs. Tomerassen will lead this, the first meeting of our Juniors. Are you under fourteen? And are you interested in a live society for five boys and girls?
Then join the Juniors.

We are happy to open our hospitality to the W. C. T. U., who will have charge of the Sunday evening service. An interesting program will be presented, including a Missionary drama by eight young ladies.

The Cecilia's will meet at the usual hour, Thursday evening, under Miss Bement's direction.

A fine "round table" of boys was on hand to greet the minister on last Thursday afternoon at the Study Class. Let's all be on hand promptly at 3:30 p. m. Thursday afternoon for the second hour! Light refreshments afterwards.

The Mid-week meeting was rather scarcely attended last week—as the boats were not plying, probably!
However, a strong meeting is anticipated at promptly eight o'clock
Thursday evening.

Were you at the St. Patrick's party? If you weren't, you missed a splendid time. Great credit is due to every committee for its original and interest work. Watch out for the next "social stunt" of the young people!

A "stag for Mr. Loomis' class of boys was very much in order after that Petoskey game. Congratulations to the boys of Charlevoix on clean sportsmanship and hard playing!

M. E. CHURCH NOTES

"The Divinity of Jesus Christ" is the sermon subject at the First Methodist Episcopal church next Sunday morning. In the evening the preacher will speak from the text, "Whatsoever a Man Soweth, That Shall He Also Reap." The girls chorus will assist in this service.

Palm Sunday, March 28th, will be Acknowledgement Day in the Sunday school. At this time every member of the school will be asked to accept Jesus Christ as their personal Saviour and Lord and to unite with the church. At the morning service the sacrament of baptism will be administered to infants. Parents expecting to have their children baptized are asked to notify the pastor as soon as possible.

All boys and girls intending to unite with the church on Palm Sunday will meet at the church with the pastor this Thursday afternoon immediately after school.

Judge Mayne delivered an instructive and greatly interesting address last Sunday morning to a large class of men and women. "The Psychology of the Criminal."

An abundance of good things to eat, music, talks, games and a general good time is scheduled for the Epworth League supper next Friday evening, March 19. Every "Red" and "Blue" is invited.

The church choir, under the direction of Miss Helen Bates, are to give one of their famous cantatas
Easter Sunday evening.

Mrs. C. Beers will have charge of the opening exercises of the Sunday school next Sabbath.

Last Sunday night a crowded house enjoyed "The Heart of a Nation," a stereoscopic lecture illustrating the splendid work of the Red Cross society.

Card of Thanks

We wish to thank our relatives and friends for the kindness and sympathy shown us during the illness and death of our son and brother,
"Brice."

We also wish to thank the Grange, Eglers and the A. O. O. D. for the flowers.

Snub Pollard Comedy, "How Dry I Am."

SATURDAY and SUNDAY, MARCH
20 and 21—Big Double Attraction featuring Mabel Normand, the Star of Mickey in "Upstairs"

A Ragtime Romance with Cupid at the Drums. Two in One she starts as a hash slinger in the kitchens of swell hotels. She finishes as the ragtime queen of the Cabaret with a millionaire bellhop for the prize. That's Mabel Normand's two in one role in the greatest, Fastest Comedy of her screen career. A story of the spice of life, made for laughs and nothing else.

And a two reel Century Comedy featuring "Lonesome Hearts and Loose Lions."

WEDNESDAY, MARCH 24 — Lecture
Course presents Hon. J. Beauchamp, Humorist.

THURSDAY, MAR. 25—The World Pictures presents the favorite star, Creighton Hale in "The Black Circle."
A gripping story of a newspaper man's fight for life against a gang of smugglers. Vividly told in five absorbing reels. Tense with a close sequence of exciting events.

And the eighth episode of "Elmo the Mighty, "The Flaming Pit."

COMING, March 27—The Monroe Sala-bury in "The Sleeping Lion."

COMING—D. W. Griffith's "Broken Blossoms."

BANKS TOWNSHIP CAUCUS RESULTS

Number of Votes Cast Small Because of Bad Roads

The regular Banks township caucus was held at the town hall on Friday, March 12th, and was attended by a large crowd considering the condition of the roads although the attendance was not more than one-third of the voting strength of the township.

The roads were the worst in the history of this country and those who attended from the surrounding country walked in, there being only one farmer with courage to risk a horse on the roads.

The meeting was called to order at 2 o'clock p. m. by D. E. Carpenter and after C. E. Bearss had been appointed chairman with H. J. Timmer secretary and J. H. Elzinga and D.
E. Carpenter tellers the following men were placed in nomination for the various township offices, the final result being attained by the following vote.

Supervisor, votes cast 100—H. S.

her meals, one in front of the sink and the other near the stove, as she has found that in this way the covcleared away, the papers are thrown out, and with them no little grease or small particles which would have soiled the floor.

The dairy cow is but a machine whose function is production and re-hence more valuable than when given her as raw material. It is man's business to supply food or fuel unit for this machine.

There's a World of Solid Comfort In the Rich, Red Tin

YES, sir, we mean that same warm red and gold tin that smiles a welcoming "Howdy" to you in every tobacco store. Know what those colors mean?

The red is for the friendly warmth, the mellow cheeriness, that Velvet puts into your old pipe. And the gold is where the Kentucky sunshine, that ripens good old Velvet, has just sort of soaked through.

Remember what Velvet Joe said about it?

"You've met canned meat and canned music. Ever see any tinned sunshine? Well, look into any Velvet tin."

And think this over:

We don't have to hide Velvet's taste or smell with, a lot of this, that and the other thing. Because Velvet has naturally what pipe smokers want—real simon-pure tobacco taste and fragrance. It's just good, honest Kentucky leaf, made still more friendly and mellow by two years' ageing in wooden hogsheads. Just good tobacco. That's all. But it's mighty near enough for the man who wants a pipeful of tobacco and not a box of bon bons.

The picture of a pipe on the tin needn't keep you from rolling a jim-dandy cigarette with Velvet.

How's the Velvet holding out in your old red tin?

OUR DAILY LIMERICK

There was young lady named Keller,
Who once had a regular feller,
Till she found in his grip
And also on his hip,
Some booze that had been in her cellar.

Mrs. A. L. Ely was a Petoskey visitor on Monday of this week.

Mr. and Mrs. D. Denny are visiting relatives at Lowell for a few weeks.

The special services at the Holiness church closed with last Sunday's service.

J. M. Elzinga was calling on friends at Petoskey from Saturday until Monday.

Wolf Galinski bought and shipped a carload of cattle from Ellsworth one day last week.

George Klooster was called to Remun, Michigan, the first of the week by the death of a relative.

C. W. Comstock of Cadillac, was at Ellsworth last week auditing the books for the Marketing Association.

Calvin Supernaw has been on the sick list for the past few days, but is able to be out again this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Benj. Madell visited from Saturday until Monday at the George Frink home at Bellinre.

W. D. Murray of Gaylord, a salesman for the Northern Auto Co., was in town on business several days last week.

Mr. and Mrs. John Glass returned the first of the week from Chicago, where they have been visiting the past six weeks.

Sheriff Andrew Dunsmore of Bellaire, was in town on Saturday of last week, posting notices for the county road system, which is to be voted on at the April 5th election.

Several new cases of flu are reported from near Atwood. Among the latest being Mrs. Irvin Lord, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Elzinga and Albert Elzinga. The condition of none of these however seems serious.

Glen Compton of Muskegon, formerly a resident of Ellsworth visited old friends here a few days of last week. Mr. Compton spent four months overseas with the A. E. F. and is at present in the regular army reserve.

Friday, April 2nd, will be service day in Ellsworth for DeLaval Cream Separator owners. The announcement was made by W. A. Boss, the local representative.

On this date a representative of the company will be at the Boss store to explain the working of the machine and make suggestions or repairs as the case may be. If there is something about your machine you do not understand, make it a point to be at the store on this date and it will be explained to your satisfaction. Find out how to adjust the different parts of your machine, and if new parts are needed, the representative will order for you and explain the difficulties you have been up against.

ECHO DISTRICT NO. 4

The flu victims are all improving. Maud Mosler is working for Hiram McPherson.

Ida Smith is working a few days for Roy Wilson.

Eythel Pickering visited in East Jordan Saturday and Sunday.

Mrs. Grace McMillan is visiting at the Dave Gagnon home this week.

The Dell Countryman family spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. T. E. Nowland.

The mail-carrier hasn't been able to get through for the past four days on account of bad roads.

Mrs. Jack Smith and granddaughter, Leda Clark, returned Monday from a month's visit in the upper peninsula.

Card of Thanks

We wish to thank our friends and neighbors together with the pastor for their kindness and help during the illness and death of our beloved son and brother. We also wish to extend our deepest thanks to those who contributed to the beautiful floral offerings.

BENEFITS OF A HIGH SCHOOL

HIGHER STANDARD OF EDUCATION ASSURED

Would Keep Children at Home Under Observation of Parents While Attending High School

Owing to the bad conditions of the country roads and the bad conditions in which they will probably be on March 20th, the day set for the special school election, an attempt has been made to establish a voting precinct at Atwood for the voters from the west side of the township to cast their votes for a Rural High School, as those who are pushing the movement realize that that would be a fair way to get the sentiments of the township at large, but on looking up the law covering such matters it is found that no township can be sub-divided into precincts within sixty days of the date set for a general or special election. This seems a decided shame as there seems to be no question but that the larger the vote polled the larger will be the majority rolled up in favor of a high school. And why not? Is not your own township entitled to a high school? Are not your children entitled to the benefits of a high school education as well as are the children of those parents fortunate enough to live with in a reasonable distance of a high school? Isn't it better that your thirteen or fourteen year old boy or girl can attend a high school in your own community than that you will be obliged to pay board and tuition for them in some neighboring city?

Your vote will tell your sentiment. If you wish to be rid of your children for weeks at a time and prefer to pay board for them among strangers while they pass from the 8th to the 12th grades in school vote (no) on Saturday, March 20th, and if you wish them to secure a high school education and at the same time be where you can see and speak to them each morning and evening and at the same time save yourself the expense of board and tuition, then go to the polls on March 20th and vote (yes) and we believe you have the interest of your child and your pocket book enough at heart to vote (yes) and thus place in your own township that which it needs and should have, a Rural High School. (Vote yes.)

Death Relieves Suffering After a Few Days Illness

JOHNNIE ELZINGA

Johnnie Elzinga, the little son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Elzinga was born October 6, 1910 and died of brain fever at his home in Ellsworth March 10, 1920 death following an illness of several days during which every possible effort was made to save him.

He was next to the youngest in a family of seven children and was a thoroughly likable little fellow and a favorite with his teacher and his school mates.

Strong hopes were held out for his recovery up until a few hours before his death and Dr. Vis the attending physician did all that was possible but it was of no use.

The funeral services were held at the M. E. church on Saturday, Rev. Beute officiating and owing to the impassable condition of the roads the body will remain in town until it can be moved to the Holland cemetery for burial.

The parents together with the brothers and sisters have the sincere sympathy of the entire community.

What we need in this country is somebody to keep us out of Europe.

CHARLEVOIX BOY ON M. A. C. TEAM

Ralph Coulter Member of Delphic Squad at Lansing

Ralph B. Coulter of Charlevoix, is playing in the M. A. C. intersociety basketball league this winter as a member of the Delphic five. Right now sixteen teams are in a merry race for the trophy offered by the college and the Delphics believe they have a good chance as any.

Coulter is a member of the class of 1921 and is taking the agricultural course.

Championships among the societies are decided by a series of elimination contests. The sixteen teams are divided into four blocks each. In the preliminaries each quintet plays two games. Winners in the four blocks meet in the semifinals, after which the two remaining fight it out for the title. The same plan is followed with volleyball and indoor baseball.

The intersociety league has become an important cog in the basketball machinery of the school. At the top is the varsity team, which has met almost every fast college five in the middle west. The all-fresh, who compete against minor Michigan colleges, are next in the scheme. Each of the four classes is represented by a basketball team, while the society contests round out the system.

In this way new players for the varsity are constantly being developed. Nearly 200 men regularly take part in the court game, while hundreds of other students play in impromptu contests.

COUNTY NORMAL NOTES

Miss Bates and Miss Morrison were absent from Normal one week, both having the flu.

The Normal girls had charge of the critic room during Miss Morrison's absence.

The Misses Boyle, Thorne, Dorothy and Beryl MacDonnell are back again after all having the flu.

Miss Leone MacNeill substituted in the high school English department during Miss North's absence of a week.

Miss Alden Emrey substituted in the third grade during Miss Gustent's absence.

Miss Lillian Thorne substituted in the sixth grade during the Miss Verdine's absence.

Card of Thanks

We wish to thank the kind friends and neighbors who so kindly offered their sympathies during our bereavement also for the beautiful floral offerings and the singing.

WORK TO STIMULATE LATE RESORT TRADE

Plans for Coming Season Very Extensive

The following is a copy of a telegram received from Hugh J. Gray connected with the bureau working to enlarge the resort business of Michigan:

Resort regions competitors of Michigan will make extraordinary effort this year, by expenditures of large sums of money, advertising and establishing information bureaus in territory from which Michigan naturally derives benefit. In addition transcontinental highways are insisting by same methods. This puts northern Michigan where they must put forth every effort to secure and keep fair share of business, and it is the opinion of business men that it can be done in a large way by pooling efforts by this method. We will be represented in every Blue Book published this year. Display advertising in not less than fifty large dailies in central, south and west. If properly supported can fill northern Michigan each year from now on and have every hopes of lengthening seasons. The past three years efforts have established a reputation among clientele which is invaluable and to keep work going, we must have support of Charlevoix as indicated by their business men's meeting last fall.

PEOPLE ARE FOR LEONARD WOOD

nation for the presidency. There is a so-called "Favorite Son" of Illinois Frank K. Lowden. Leonard Wood also temporarily, at least, lives in Illinois. The signs of the lake and prairie days point to the assurance that Leonard Wood while pronouncedly the favorite son of Illinois even though his son-ship be by temporary adoption.

Within the last week Leonard Wood has been in Michigan, in New York, and in New Hampshire, which is his native state. The week before, he was in South Dakota. Now the people of South Dakota pronouncedly are for Wood, and they made their sentiment known as pronouncedly as they felt it. It is not often that one can run a parallel between conditions in Michigan, New York, and New Hampshire; but this year unless as in dry times, all signs fail, Leonard Wood has appealed to Michigan, New York, and New Hampshire, just as he appealed to South Dakota.

Lessons have been taught the politicians in the not distant past. It is only fair to say that some of them learned their lessons and remembered them. Others, like the school boy who crams only for a recitation, forgot "Instructions" warning voice and showed every intention of trying the old thing over again. This year the people are acting as school teachers and are not forgetting the birch rod for punishments.

and will be of a very high class caliber.

There will be races each afternoon of the fair, the program of which will be announced later.

The management feel that the entertainment end of the fair will be taken care of in a manner which will excel any previous effort of the association. Announcements will be made from time to time of the work done to make the fair one of unusual merit from an educational standpoint.

NEWBERRY AND 16 OTHERS CONVICTED

ONE OF MOST BITTER CASES IN COURT HISTORY ENDED

Men Acquitted of Conspiracy Convicted of Excessive Expenditures of Money in Campaign

Truman H. Newberry, Michigan's United States senator, and sixteen other defendants, in the Newberry election cases, were found guilty Saturday afternoon of causing the expenditure of a sum of money in excess to the amount allowed under the federal corrupt practice act. The entire eighty-five defendants were acquitted on the sixth count, which charged a conspiracy to use the United States mails in defraud.

The maximum penalty provided for the offense for which the seventeen men were convicted is "two years imprisonment in a federal prison and a fine of $10,000. The jury reported at 11:20 o'clock Saturday after being in closed session from 5 p. m. Thursday morning.

Others found guilty were Paul King, Detroit, campaign manager; Frederick Cody, New York, legislative agent and Newberry's right hand man; Charles Floyd, Grand Rapids, manager of campaign; Allan Templeton, president Detroit Chamber of Commerce; Hannibal Hopkins, publicity agent for the Newberry campaign; B. Frank Emory, Detroit; Harry C. Turner, Detroit; E. V. Chilson, former secretary of State Senate, Lansing; Roger M. Andrews, publisher, Menominee; John S. Newberry, brother of the senator, who furnished ninety-nine thousand nine hundred dollars for campaign; Milton Oakman, Detroit, Wayne County manager; William J. Mickel, Oshkosh, Wis., Newberry worker; Richard Fletcher, state labor commissioner; Silas J. McGregor, Delta; Fred Henry, Flint; George S. Ladd, Sturbridge, Mass.

The "Newberry Case" grew out of one of the bitterest campaigns ever waged for a seat in the United States senate.

Truman H. Newberry and Henry Ford were the leading contestants. Newberry, a member of one of Michigan's oldest families, before the automobile industry hit Detroit, wealthiest families, a member of the navy during the Spanish American war, assistant secretary of the navy in Roosevelt's cabinet and an aid to the commander of the port of New York during the world war, based his appeal for election on a war platform.

Ford, head of the Ford Automobile Company, head of the Ford penmanship, and before the United States entered the war, leading pacifist, built his platform on support of President Wilson's policies.

The Newberry supporters built up a huge organization extending into every county, city and village in the state. By their own admission $178,000 was spent. The government attorneys contended that they had showed $225,000 was paid out for "purchased a seat in the senate" for Commander Newberry. Testimony given at the trial stated one defendant in conversation said $800,000 was spent.

Paul H. King headed the Newberry campaign committee in Michigan. The government claimed the Senator Newberry and Frederick Cody hatched the alleged plot to corrupt the 1918 elections in Michigan while they resided in New York. They sent for King to come to New York and made him manager of the campaign, the testimony showed.

Newberry worked directly through King in carrying out the details of the campaign, the government contended. Correspondence presented in the trial of the defense, which passed between King and Newberry showed King wrote as many as eight letters a day to his chief.

The case hinged on the question of whether or not Senator Newberry "caused to be expended" an amount in excess of the sum allowed by the Michigan statutes in procuring his election. This amount is $3,750.

The defense contended that Newberry had nothing to do with the spending of large sums of money; declared that he did not contribute one cent to the campaign fund, was not informed of the huge amount spent in his behalf during the campaign.

A grand jury summoned in the autumn of 1919 returned the indictments accusing 135 men of conspiracy to violate the federal statute by spending an excessive amount of money in the campaign. A conspiracy to defraud the whole state of Michigan by using the mails in the alleged fraudulent election scheme also was charged.

These were the two main accusations which went before the jury. Four other indictments were either quashed or combined with these two principal charges.

The trial covered a period of eight weeks. More than 400 witnesses testified for the government and approximately 250 for the defense.

King was the only leading defendant to take the witness stand. He never completed his testimony, he suffered a physical break-down and was unable to proceed with the cross examination.

James Helm, who the government claimed, was entered in the democratic senatorial race by the Newberry organization to prevent Henry Ford from becoming a candidate on both the democratic and republican tickets denied any knowledge of the charges. The government claimed Helm was paid a salary by the Newberry organization and that his petitions were circulated by Newberry workers.

When the case finally reached the jury's hands only eighty-five defendants remained.

TOURISTS TO HAVE CAMP SITES

RESORT ASSN. TO PROMOTE SERVICE FOR AUTOISTS

Five Camps to Be Located in 1920 With Others Completed in Later Years.

West Michigan promises to be the first resort region in the land to offer automobile tourists standardized sleeping and eating accommodations. Before the summer season opens, it is proposed to establish along the Great Lakes Way, a chain of high grade tourist camps, where travelers seeking for permanent resorts or seeking a few days outing, may feel sure in securing three things: Comfortable beds; wholesome, appetizing meals; and service that will promote enthusiasm, both for the camps and for Michigan.

The officers of the Michigan Tourist and Resort association, believing that the pulling power of the region will be strengthened by the assurance to visitors that they will be well taken care of on the way to the resort they have chosen for their long summer sojourn, is fostering and encouraging the establishment of these camps. They believe that the standardized Harvey eating houses years ment to the state and will divert travel up the Great Lakes Way from other touring regions just as standardized Harvey eating houses years ago turned western traffic toward the Santa Fe and built up a reputation for superior service that is world wide among travelers.

The tourist camps are not designed to take the place of the permanent resorts. They are intended to make travel to the permanent resorts more pleasant and attractive, and bring in a larger flow of patrons for the regular resorts.

The plan is to establish the camps all the way up the West Michigan Pike from the Indiana line to the Straits of Mackinac and to the Mackinaw Trail, from Kalamazoo to the straits. They will be placed at such intervals that tourists traveling in leisurely fashion, as so to enjoy all the scenic delights along the way, may travel from one to another between meals, or at least between breakfast and supper. They will be located in attractive places, so that travelers stopping there over night, or for a meal, will have all the advantages of resort life. For this summer it is proposed to establish five camps, with more to be built in 1921. It will be possible for a traveler to reserve accommodations for himself and party, all the way from Chicago to Mackinaw City.

Where the first five camps will be located will probably be decided at a meeting to be held at the Association of Commerce rooms at Grand Rapids this week. Business men of various resort towns have been invited to this meeting, and it is expected that the project will be launched formally at this time. Several towns have sent word that they will be represented by committees and will seek to have camps located in their vicinities.

MUST HAVE AUTO-MOBILE LICENSES

County Official Says He Will Enforce the Law.

Sheriff Weaver announces that the automobile license law will be enforced this year to the last degree. Any cars found operating without licenses will be stopped and the owner will have to stand the consequences.

It is very easy this year to obtain a license as they are handled at a branch office at Petoskey, and it only takes a few days to receive them after the application is made. To avoid difficulty, leave your car in the garage until after you get your license.

LIFE SUMMARY OF LEONARD WOOD

HAS BEEN SUCCESSFUL IN ALL UNDERTAKINGS

His Service Both Military and Civil Have Proved His Worth as Leader and Diplomat

The purpose of this article is to present a few facts concerning the career of Major General Leonard Wood, who is today the foremost candidate for the Republican nomination for President.

The overwhelming expression of popular support recently given to him in South Dakota, the fact that a majority of the Republican senators and representatives in Congress regard him as the most probable nominee, and the widespread favor with which his name has been received, offer convincing evidence of his present leadership.

Leonard Wood was born in New Hampshire 58 years ago of sturdy American stock for generations, and his life has been a succession of splendid achievements. His first service after graduation from the Harvard Medical School were given gratuitously to the poor of Boston. His experiences as a physician imbued him with a sincere and constant regard for his fellowmen.

An insistent desire for action led him to enter the Army, and although a surgeon he was given an Infantry command in the Apache campaign, acquiring himself with distinguished bravery and winning the coveted Congressional Medal of Honor. He entered the Spanish war as colonel of the Rough Riders, a regiment which he efficiently and rapidly organized, and was soon promoted to be Brigadier General. At the close of the war he was placed in charge of the civil administration of Santiago. He cleaned the city, constructed roads and bridges, renovated or rebuilt public buildings, established a school system, and executed the laws with promptness and justice.

Leonard Wood when 39 years of age became the Governor General of Cuba, further revealing his ability and efficiency as an administrator. His work required the adoption of a new constitution, the re-writing all the laws of the island, including a new railroad organization law; the revision of the public works, the installation of the public works, the general establishment of a vast machinery for the proper operation of a new government. Leonard Wood proved himself a master builder and a diplomat; changing one of the most oppressed countries of the world into a liberal and prosperous republic. Theodore Roosevelt, in a message to Congress, spoke in the highest terms of Wood's executive and constructive capacity.

After his success in Cuba, Leonard Wood was given the difficult task of pacifying the Mindanao province in the Philippines, and not as warrior but as a good administrator, he wiped out the lawlessness of twenty Moro tribes, earning their good will and changing a place of headhunting and polygamy into a clean American colony with public schools. He was then made Chief of Staff of the Army, initiating a plan of student officers' and business men's camps that ultimately produced a force of approximately 40,000 partially trained officers immediately available for service in the war against Germany.

He was then assigned to command the Department of the East, where he put into active operation the Plattsburg camps and afterwards other students' camps throughout the country. These camps were made possible through the initiative, the first funds being raised by him among his personal friends. As the result of his foresight and forcefulness this country was enabled more quickly and effectively to enter the great struggle.

More recently, in the difficult task of restoring and maintaining law and order in Omaha, Gary and West Virginia, he abundantly demonstrated his firmness, combined with tact and wisdom, and earned the respect and confidence of the American people.

Not only have the accomplishments of Leonard Wood been due to his innate ability, but he has shown his large-mindedness in selecting the best men to aid in his administrative work, enjoying always their personal regard and loyal service. He is a keen accurate judge of character and capacity, and as President would command the aid of brainy and talented men in administering national affairs.

As a speaker, Leonard Wood is direct, forceful, terse, easily understood. He does not indulge in flowery rhetoric, but is convincing, logical, and speaks with a clearness and authority which compel attention.

His many splendid characteristics are thus summed up in an editorial in the New York Times:

"General Wood is strong in character and public service, yet his greatest strength is to be found in his tact, energy and success as an administrator in Cuba and the Philippines. He is strong because his firm acts and words in respect to plots of dangerous agitators have won public approval. As administrator and man of action his achievements entitle him to be a candidate for President. * * * He has shown again and again, and continuously, courage, patriotism, force."

His name is presented by his friends with confidence that under his competent guidance American principles and ideals will be steadfastly upheld, an efficient administration secured, vital problems wisely solved, and the safety and welfare of the nation fully assured.

CHARLEVOIX 49 PELLSTON 7

CHARLEVOIX TAKES THE LAST GAME OF SCHEDULE.

Pellston by Far Outclassed in a Rather Uninteresting Game Friday Night.

Charlevoix High School basketball team finished their season schedule last Friday night by defeating Pellston high 49-7. Pellston was so far outclassed that the game was rather uninteresting. The boys were also inclined to be rather careless in their playing, due to the lack of opposition.

The Charlevoix team was much faster, also heavier, than the boys from Pellston, and were better trained and evidently had had much more practice.

The basket shooting of Wexstaff was the feature of the game. Art shot them from every position on the court and every angle seemed to be the same to him. He alone scored 30 of Charlevoix's 49 points in field baskets, and several more in free throws. The Pellston team scored but two field baskets, the other three points being made from free throws.

Following is the line-up of the two teams:

Charlevoix	Pellston
Halverson	R. F. Emerson
Krulick	L. F. C. Smarus
Wexstaff	C. Schmalried
Hmmet	R. G. McKee
Jones	L. G. Kingsley

Time, 20 minute halves. Referee, Speltz, East Jordan.

Field baskets, Wexstaff 15, Halverson 3, Krulick 4, Emerson 1, Smarus 1.

This is the last game of basketball to be played at Charlevoix this season, as the boys leave Friday morning for Petoskey where they will enter into the tournament to decide the representatives from this district at the state tournament. Coach Loomis announces that the team is in the best of condition and should have little trouble in defeating the teams opposing them. Here's for the state championship, boys.

RECEIVES MORE THAN HE ANTICIPATED

Local Shoe Dealer Carries Out Unique Offer.

Some time ago the Campbell Boot Shop of this city made a very unique offer which involved one of the cleverest advertising schemes pulled off in Charlevoix for some time.

Mr. Campbell's offer was to present to each boy born in Charlevoix and vicinity during the year of 1920, a pair of shoes. Thus far in the season he has presented new arrivals with twenty-one pairs of shoes.

The latest arrivals in the Swart-out family near Norwood was rather more than Mr. Campbell anticipated. Instead of one pair, he had to hand out two pairs to a couple of mighty husky youngsters that just arrived last week. Needless to say the twins got their shoes, as will all twins, triplets, etc., for the remainder of the year.

ALL READY FOR THE TOURNAMENT

TWELVE TEAMS HAVE ENTERED THUS FAR

From Record Charlevoix Should Represent This District at Lansing Class "B"

The basketball tournament scheduled to be held at Petoskey Friday and Saturday, March 26 and 27 of this week promises to be one of the best in the nine to be held throughout the state. The high schools of the state have been divided into two classes. Those with less than 250 students enrolled are in Class "B." Those having more than 250 students enrolled are in Class "A."

These tournaments are being held in nine different cities of the state and the winners of these tournaments, in each class will go to the state tournaments where the state championships will be decided. The Class "B" tournament is to be held at East Lansing under auspices of the M. A. C. and Class "A" at Ann Arbor directed by the University of Michigan. The winners of these larger tournaments will be considered champions in their class and will be awarded by silver loving cups.

There are three teams entered in Class "A" in the tournament for this section of the state, Traverse City, Petoskey and the Soo. Cadillac is not considered in this district and will have to compete at Mt. Pleasant. The Soo is reported to have a powerful team and Traverse and Petoskey will have to hustle if they expect to place.

There are a number of teams entered in Class "B" among which are Harbor Springs, Charlevoix, Cheboygan, Mancelona, Onaway, Bellaire, Alba, Alanson and Pellston. Several other teams may yet be entered before the opening of the tournament.

Bozette City will unfortunately not be able to enter. The influenza epidemic in that city has necessitated the closing of the schools at that place and their team has not been together for some time.

Drawing for places will take place Friday—the first day of the tournament right after dinner. Coach Butler of Petoskey will have charge of this end of the work.

W. B. McClintock, of the state normal college at Marquette, will have charge of the tournament and will referee many of the games. He will be assisted by other able referees.

Entertainments for the visiting players is to be handled by the Petoskey High school assisted by the Petoskey Chamber of Commerce.

From the record so far made this season by the Charlevoix team, they should represent this section of the state at the state tournament. They have met and defeated every fast team in this section and the scores have all been rather one sided. The team is well trained, fast and very much heavier than the average high school team. Most of the men on the team are veterans at the game and this should prove useful during the coming tournament. Charlevoix should send the boys to Petoskey Friday morning full of confidence and with the knowledge that the city is backing them and expects them to land the state honors.

As information to those anticipating attending this tournament, it has been stated that games will be played Friday afternoon, Friday evening, Saturday morning and afternoon and Saturday evening.

Silk banners will be given the winners in each class and watch fobs to the individual members of the teams. The officials will select an all-tournament team at the close of the meet.

JUNIOR CLASS WILL-GIVE MOVIE

"Little Women" at Palace Theatre on April 1st.

The Junior Class of the Charlevoix High School, will give a "movie" at the Palace Theatre, Thursday, April 1st, the benefits of which will go into the class treasury and be used toward the coming "J" hop.

This picture is one of unusually fine merit and one that will be enjoyed by both young and old.

Turn out and help the class put this across.

CORRESPONDENCE

MOUNTAIN DISTRICT

Mr. Hosegood lost a horse last Saturday.

Annie Wilson spent Sunday afternoon with Alice Stallard.

Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Dean are moving from the Stewart farm to a place in Ironton.

A daughter arrived at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ervin Nowland Sunday March 21st.

Arthur Gaunt's family, who have been having the flu, are once more able to be out.

The children of E. R. Stallard are just recovering from a disease that has all the symptoms of scarlet fever.

Mrs. Charles Coblenz has been called to care for her daughter, Mrs. Ervin Nowland, during her illness.

A number from this place drove to Boyne City Saturday and found the roads much better than they expected.

Two weeks next Wednesday since our mail carrier, Mr. Foote, has ventured out with the mail. Wonder if he has the flu?

Miss Elizabeth Seiler, Mr. and Mrs. John Seiler and their children were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. George Jardine Sunday.

Glenn and Rex Sanford drove through here on their way to the Stewart farm last Thursday. Mighty glad to see them out again.

The Misses Beryl and Dorothy McDonald and their brother, Godfrey, who are attending school at Charlevoix, spent the week end at home.

Charles Earl's horse was taken sick while on the way to Boyne City last Monday and Mr. Earl was detained in that place a couple of days until the horse recovered sufficiently to return home.

We have Mr. Ferris of the Three Bell's District to thank for the fact that our mail has reached us during the past week. Several times he has brought it from East Jordan then has sent it the rest of the way by other parties.

EAST CHANDLER

William Hughes lost a fine colt last week.

The Smithengell boys are cutting ties near Dye's mill.

Mrs. William Hughes is visiting relatives in Detroit at present.

Our Mail carrier has not made his trip for over a week on account of bad roads.

The man on Mr. Brant's farm at Thumb lake lost several head of cattle lately.

WHEN THE KIDNEYS FAIL

Charlevoix People Have Found That Ill Health Follows.

Do you ever feel that you simply can't go any further—that you must have rest from that lame and aching back—relief from the constant, dead-tired feeling—freedom from those stabbing, darting pains? Likely your kidneys are worn and tired and need help. The kidneys work night and day, removing uric acid from the blood and other waste created by expenditure of strength and energy. Naturally a life of unusual activity doubles the duties of the kidneys and in time the strain generally tells. Doan's Kidney Pills have brought new strength to thousands of bad backs and quick relief to weakened kidneys, so users say. Let them do the same for you. Convincing proof of merit in Charlevoix testimony.

Mrs. Morris Ackert, 1101 Bridge St., Charlevoix, says: "About two years ago I was troubled with my back and kidneys. My back became weak and lame, causing my housework to be a burden, especially if I had to stoop over. Doan's Kidney Pills had been used in my family with good results so I tried them. Doan's soon relieved me and before long rid me of all my annoyances."

Price 60c., at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mrs. Ackert had. Foster-Milburn Co., Mfrs., Buffalo, N. Y.

The youngest son of Clarence Smithengell that dislocated his ankle some time ago is improving alright.

Two of our neighbors went on foot and met the mail about five miles out Monday. Mr. Hughes may go today (Friday.)

A small house belonging to Mrs. Eastwood, the lower rooms used for tools and upper rooms occupied by Ed. Adama was burned Monday with all its contents except a hay rake and cultivator.

PHELPS

George Drost has left school to help at home.

Missee Reta and Ethel Balch called on Helen McElroy Sunday.

Miss Grace Francisco is ill with the flu and Levi is absent from school this week.

Mrs. G. S. Wallace, who has been visiting her daughter, returned to her home in Bellaire.

There was no meeting at the church last Tuesday evening, on account of the storm.

The seventh and eighth grades have finished their history and have spent considerable time studying up review questions and lives of modern Americans.

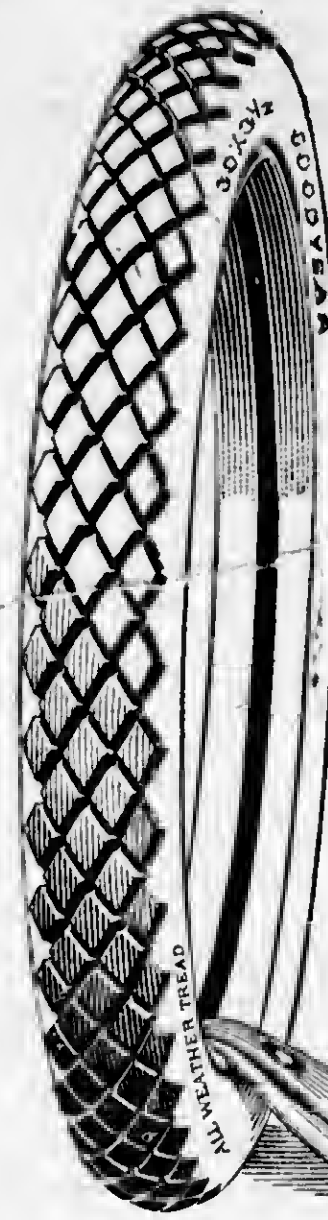

We have received paper covered copies of the rhyme "Ancient Mariner" also "Peeps" into Bird Nooks."

The seventh and eighth grades are studying the "Ancient Mariner."

The fifth grade will study "Peeps into Bird Nooks."

The Courier carries all the news.

Get Goodyear Tire Economy for That Smaller Car

Just as owners of the highest-priced automobiles get greater mileage and economy out of Goodyear Tires, so can the owners of smaller cars similarly enjoy Goodyear advantages.

The 30x3-, 30x3½, and 31x4-inch sizes of Goodyear Tires are built to afford a money's worth in performance and satisfaction which only the utmost in experience, resources and care can produce.

This extraordinary money's worth begins not only with the merit of these tires, but also with the first cost, which in most cases is no greater, and sometimes actually is less, than that of other makes of the same types of tires.

Go to the nearest Goodyear Service Station Dealer for Goodyear Tires for your Ford, Chevrolet, Dort, Maxwell, or other cars taking these sizes. He is ready to supply you Goodyear Heavy Tourist Tubes at the same time.

30x3½ Goodyear Double-Cure Fabric, All-Weather Tread $23.50
30x3½ Goodyear Single-Cure Fabric, Anti-Skid Tread $21.50

Goodyear Heavy Tourist Tubes are thick, strong tubes that reinforce casings properly. Why risk a good casing with a cheap tube? Goodyear Heavy Tourist Tubes cost little more than tubes of less merit. 30x3½ size in water—$4.50 proof bag.

To replace the worn out parts of your car means

Money Saved

That little rattle or knock may be nothing serious now, but if left unrepaired it will soon develop to such an extent that a breakdown will result.

Attended to now the cost will be small, but when the break comes, you will have a large repair bill to contend with. Repairing your car before greater damage is done is as good as money in the bank.

THE ONE WAY OUT

America must stop trying to lift itself by its bootstraps out of the pickle it is in.
It has got to get out of it, if it gets out of it at all, by the old-fashioned way—by climbing out, step by step —by hard work and saving.

Raising wages, with the raise to be reflected in a higher cost of living and a lower production by making production too expensive, won't do it.

Skimping work don't do it.
Smashing unions won't do it.
Putting any one class in power won't do it.

Laws won't do it.
Parties won't do it.
But work—PRODUCTION. Will do it; production and saving; sensible industry and sensible thrift.

There is no magic that will do it in the twinkling of an eye.
There is no royal road out.
There is no new panacea that will work a miracle.

In a word, nothing but good old-fashioned American horse sense, which is thrift, will do the business.
The one way out is to climb out step by step—to overcome scarcity by production—to restore the financial balance by saving.

And the salvation of the nation and the world depends, more than on anything else, on the industry and common sense of the individual—of EVERY individual.

Since he landed in the middle of the street Robert Lansing has made a noise like Colonel House.

DEATH CLAIMS MRS. ROBERT O'NEILL

Died at Her Home South of Town
Sunday, March 21.

Mrs. Robert O'Neill passed away at her home south of the city Sunday, March 21, after an illness of several months.

Mrs. O'Neill was well known in Charlevoix, and held a place of high esteem in the minds of all with whom she was associated.

She was born in Oxford county,
Canada, November, 1869, and moved to Charlevoix with her parents a number of years ago. She was for some time a teacher in the Charlevoix schools. She was married in 1896 to Robert O'Neill, who died about seven years ago. She was a member of the Baptist church.

She is survived by her son, Robert
O'Neill, Jr., her father and mother,
Mr. and Mrs. J. Stover; three brothers, Joseph Stover of Marion, Edward Stover of Port Orange, Fla., Clarence Stover of Commarock, Va., and a host of friends.

The funeral was held Tuesday,
March 23rd, from the home in Marion, and burial took place in Brookside cemetery. Rev. Chas. Rice of the Baptist church, officiating.

RECRUITING OFFICE IN CHARLEVOIX

Station in the Post Office Until April 5th.

Private Walter T. Price, Co. G,
14th Inf., Camp Custer, arrived in Charlevoix Tuesday afternoon and has opened an army recruiting office in the post office.

Now that he is in your city he wants to see and talk with you all.
See him and let him show you the wonderful opportunities there is in the army for the young man in educational and vocational training.

The sun never sets on Old Glory today. Our army is scattered all over the world, from New England to California, from the Gulf of Mexico to the Pacific northwest, Hawaii
China, Siberia, the Canal zone, in France and on the Rhine.

A soldier's opportunity for travel is unsurpassed. Do you want to travel?
If you have the desire, but not the means, the army offers the solution. Enlistments are now open for practically all over the world.

Anyone wishing any information about the army, army insurance, compensation, bonus, Victory buttons or any other matter pertaining to the army service is cordially invited to visit the recruiting office in the post office building.

AMERICAN LEGION TO ENTERTAIN

Will Give a Supper to the Basket Ball Team.

In recognition of the good work done this season by the Charlevoix
High School basket ball team, the American Legion will entertain the boys and the coach at a banquet to be given at the Hotel Charlevoix next Monday evening.

The boys have established a fine record this season and all possible honors are due them.

OVERLAND CO. IN- CREASES FOREIGN TRADE

Larger Production Made Necessary
by Demand.

Export order on the books of the Willys Export Corporation, which is a subsidiary of the Willys-Overland Company, are reported to be more than three times as large as the total foreign shipments of the Willys-
Overland during any preceding year.

This great growth of the Willys-Overland company's foreign business is indicative of the fact that the new Willys-Overland product is proving as successful in foreign countries as at home.

It is stated that the Willys-Overland Canadian Company has been re-organized during the past year with increased capital, and is now turning out more than fifty cars per day.

It is also stated that the Willys-Overland Company's plant in Manchester, England, will have a capacity for manufacturing 25,000 cars per year by the end of 1920.

Production at the Willys-Overland plant in Toledo is now in excess of 600 cars per day, and that production it is expected will reach 800 cars per day within a short time.

Inasmuch as the demand for the new product is increasing steadily, and is in excess of present production facilities, the Willys-Overland
Company is now taking far sighted

EDWARD KLOOSTER TO RE-OPEN STORE

Will Open Meat Market and Fruit Store

Edward Klooster, who until recently operated a meat market and grocery store in the city, has decided to go back into business once more, and will have his store ready for opening April 3, in the building formerly occupied by the B. W. Miller grocery. Mr. Klooster sold his grocery store and stock to Martin Block in December of last year.

He will handle a first class line of meats during the coming season, also a variety of fresh fruits. He welcomes all of his old customers as well as new, and will render the same brand of service as in the past.

State Bank Receives Bonds.
The Charlevoix State Savings Bank has received a shipment of the permanent United States Third Liberty Loan bonds with all coupons attached. If the holders of the temporary bonds of this issue will present their bonds at the bank a permanent bond with all coupons attached to maturity will be given in exchange. A service of this kind to Charlevoix bond holders will be appreciated, as very few banks are making the exchange upon presentation.

Derivation of "Flannel."
Some of the earlier philologists claim that the word "flannel" was originally written and pronounced "flannet" and that it was essentially of Welsh origin, being derived from the Welsh "gwalunne" wool, but this derivation is considered doubtful by more modern lexicographers, who regard its derivation from the Danish "flanel" or French "flanelle" as more probable.

You Can't Run a Train Without Tracks

Everybody knows you can't run a train without tracks; and everybody ought to know you can't run a telephone company without money.

Sometimes people seem to forget this fact concerning the telephone. The business man knows he must have money to run his business. The housewife knows she must have money to run the home. They both know that it costs more to run anything, these days, than it did two or three years ago.

It is just the same with those of us who go to make up the telephone company; we linemen, operators, electricians and engineers; the cost of living has hit us just as hard as it has hit you. And the cost of the materials with which we work has just about doubled.

These are plain, everyday facts. Without enough money to pay expenses it is just as impossible for us to run the telephone company as it is impossible to run a train without tracks.

Rates must meet expenses.

The British had their angels at Mons, and our own soldiers, too, are not without a faculty for dreaming dreams and seeing visions. "The next war," dreams one of these soldiers in a letter to the Lapeer Press, "I hope they put the prohibitionists and anti-cigarette leagues at the front, and that when they get back, they find the country wet and everybody smoking cigarettes and getting drunk. It will be as fair to them as it is to us now."

Carrying fuel and provisions the steamer Missouri of the Wisconsin Transit company, late Monday of last week after a sixty-hour battle with ice, reached the steamer Illinois of the Goodrich line, imprisoned in a big ice field ten miles off St. Joseph harbor, according to wireless advices from the rescue ship. Fears had been felt for those aboard the Illinois because of reports that her food supply was fast dwindling. Strong south winds are moving the ice fields and it is believed both steamers will be able to work free.

Two privately owned banks, the People's Commercial Bank of Cope-nish, and the bank of Mesick, closed their doors last week after applying to the courts to have the Michigan Trust company appointed as receivers. Their act was voluntary and an expression of their desire to close up their banking affairs, and an official of the banks stated that every depositor will be paid 100 cents on the dollar.

County Clerk Madlen issued thirty automobile licenses Monday of last week, receiving $368.05 for these licenses. Says the Petoskey Evening News. Of this amount $137.70 was sent in from East Jordan.

Up to Monday night Mr. Madlen had issued four hundred and fifteen licenses, receiving from car owners $5,163.05, or an average of $12.44 for each license.

Mr. Madlen anticipates a heavy rush for licenses with the spring breakup.

Now All You Good Fellows, Come Fill Up Your Pipes

If ever men are "Tom" and "Bill" to each other, it's when good pipes are a-going. If ever good pipes go their best, 'tis when Velvet's in the bowl.

For Velvet is a mighty friendly smoke. Kentucky Burley is the leaf that Nature made for pipes. Wholesome and hearty, honest as the day. And Velvet is that same good Burley leaf, brought to mellow middle age.

For eight long seasons Velvet "meditates" in wooden hogsheads, throwing off the rawness of "young" tobacco—truly "ageing in the wood." Out Velvet comes—cool, calm and generous—the tobacco Nature made good, kept good and made better.

Velvet's sweetness is the sweetness of good tobacco, not "put on" like "frosting" on a cake. Its mildness comes from natural ageing, not from having the life baked out. Its fragrance is true tobacco fragrance, not a perfume. And Velvet makes an A Number One cigarette. Roll one.

As good old Velvet Joe says:

"Fill yo' heart with friendly thoughts,
Yo' mouth with friendly smoke—
An' let the old world wag."

suit or proceedings at law or in equity having been instituted to recover the debt secured by such mortgage or any part thereof. Now, Therefore, by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage and the Statute in such cases made and provided, notice is hereby given that on Monday, the Seventeenth day of May, 1920, at twelve (12) o'clock noon (Central Standard time), said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale at public vendue to the highest bidder at the front door of the Charlevoix County Court House, corner of State and Antrim streets, in the City of Charlevoix, County of Charlevoix, State of Michigan (that being the building in which the Circuit Court for the county of Charlevoix is held), of the premises described in said mortgage, or so much thereof as may be necessary to pay the amount of said mortgage as aforesaid, together with interest from the date of this notice, and all legal costs, charges and expenses, including the attorney fee of Thirty-five ($35.00) dollars allowed by law in such cases, which premises are described as follows, to-wit: All the certain pieces or parcels of land situate and being in the Township of Chandler, in the County of Charlevoix, State of Michigan, and more particularly described as follows, to-wit: The north half (N 1/2) of the South west quarter (S. W. 1/4) and the South half (S. 1/2) of the South half (S. 1/4) of the North west quarter (N. W. 1/4) of Section Two (2) in Township Thirty-three (33) north of Range four (4) West. Containing One Hundred and Twenty (120) acres of land more or less according to the Government Survey. Excepting and reserving for Cobba & Mitchell Inc., of Cadillac, Wexford County, State of Michigan, its legal representatives or assigns, a strip of land one hundred feet wide over and across said lands, should the same be at any time required by it or its legal representatives for the purpose of constructing, building or operating a railroad or any road for logging purposes, together with hereditaments and appurtenances thereof.

ELLSWORTH LOCALS

Mrs. A. L. Ely was at Charlevoix on business on Monday of this week.

M. R. Nelson made a business trip to Lansing and Grand Rapids last week.

C. E. Densmore of Bellaire, was in town between trains one day last week.

The township board met on Tuesday of this week to make their annual settlement.

L. VanSkiver is at home again after a visit with friends and relatives at Grand Rapids.

Sheriff Weaver of Charlevoix county, was in Ellsworth on business the first of the week.

District Supt. Slee and Rev. Exner of Bellaire, called on Rev. E. E. Clark on Monday of this week.

The few sugar bushes in this vicinity have been tapped during the past week and a good sap flow is reported.

Rev. E. E. Clark preached at the Methodist church last Sunday evening for the first time since his illness three weeks ago.

County farm agent, Drake of Bellaire accompanied by a soil expert from the M. A. C. were in Ellsworth one day last week.

The Misses Bertha and Anna Bouman of Detroit, arrived last week for a two week's visit with their sister, Mrs. Roger Speyer.

Quite a few from Ellsworth attended the Charlevoix-Petoskey basketball game at Charlevoix on Tuesday of last week.

The P. M. bridge crew which have been stationed here during the past two weeks have moved their outfit further down the line toward Traverse City.

Maj. B. J. Beuker is at the Camp Custer hospital recovering from another operation according to word received from Mrs. Beuker, who is at Grand Rapids.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred VanGorder left this week for their home at Hubbardston Saskatchewan after a three or four month's visit with Mrs. VanGorder's sister, Mrs. William Walker.

The penny social held at the school house on Friday evening of last week netted considerably over thirty dollars in addition to furnishing those who attended a very enjoyable evening. A program in which practically every pupil took part was given and the little folks did great work in the parts assigned them.

A Pere Marquette construction gang have been in Ellsworth the past week building a new stock yard something needed here for a long time. Ellsworth is the best and largest shipping point for produce between Traverse City and Petoskey and will rapidly go into the lead for live stock shipments now that proper loading facilities have been provided.

The school this year so far at least, has been a hummer. The teachers, parents and the pupils have worked in harmony and aside from the regular school work have made a great improvement in the appearance of the school building. Recently the members of the three higher grades purchased and sold lead pencils the profit from the sale being used to purchase beautiful silk American flag. Other emblems have also been secured by the same means and the result has been the class and study rooms present a decidedly better appearance than at the opening of the school year.

ATWOOD

We hail thee O' Spring! Sam VanHouten has purchased a new Chevrolet car. William Coeling and family are getting settled on the John Jolliffe farm.

Those having maple trees are preparing to make the good old maple syrup.

We are not going to mention how many persons have had, or having the flu. Scarcely no family escaping.

Born, to Mr. and Mrs. Swartout on Sunday morning, March 21, two baby girls. Surely congratulations ought to be extended.

Several thousand Armenians reported killed in Massacre. The world is getting back to normal conditions.

HIGH SCHOOL PLAN DEFEATED

LOSES OUT BY A VERY SMALL VOTE

Question Will No Doubt Be Brought Before Township Voters Again in Future

The high school proposition went down to defeat at the special election Saturday, March 20th, by a vote of 130 to 120 those opposed to a high school education having a majority of ten votes, not many but enough for the anti's to win.

Those who favored a high school are not disheartened by their defeat however especially when it is taken into consideration that some of reports used by the opposition to defeat the movement were regular fairy tales. Several from the west side of the township were informed that in case the proposition carried the township would be obliged to pay the bonded indebtedness of district No. 9 and that the election had been called by the school board of district No. 9.

A large number of people from the west and southwest side of the township, who had voted no, when they first reached town found later how badly they had been misinformed and emphatically stated their opinions of the ward heelers who had given them their false information, but by that time it was too late to remedy their mistake.

The question will probably be presented to the voters again in the near future.

This is the Stove Polish YOU Should Use

It's different from others because more care is taken in the making and the materials used are of higher grade.

Black Silk Stove Polish

Makes a brilliant, silky polish that does not rub off or dust off, and the shine lasts as long as ordinary stove polish. Used on sample stoves and sold by hardware and grocery dealers.

All we ask is a trial. Use it on your cook stove, your parlor stove or your gas range. If you don't find it the best stove polish you ever used, your dealer is authorized to refund your money. Insist on Black Silk Stove Polish. Made in liquid or paste—one quality.

Black Silk Stove Polish Works

Shining, Illinois. Use Black Silk Air-Drying from Kameel on grates, registers, stove-pipes—Prevents rusting. Use Black Silk Metal Polish for silver, nickel or brass. It has no equal for use on automobiles. "A Shine in Every Drop"

WHITE-SHELLED EGG LAYERS

Fowls of Mediterranean Breeds Best Suited for This Purpose—Classed as Nonsitters.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Poultry of the Mediterranean or egg breeds are best suited for the production of white-shelled eggs. Representative of this class are bred largely for the production of eggs rather than for meat production. Among the popular breeds of this class are: Leghorn, Minorca, Ancona, and Andalusian. One of the outstanding characteristics of the egg breeds is the fact that they are classed as nonsitters. That is, as a rule, they do not become broody and hatch their eggs. When fowls of this class are kept artificial incubation and brooding are usually employed.

Men used to wear hob-nailed shoes because they wanted long wear. They got it, but lost comfort and neat appearances.

This Hirth Krause shoe will outwear the hobnails and will never pinch the foot nor appear clumsy.

They are made from leather, scientifically prepared in the Hirth-Krause tannery, are moisture and acid proof as near as leather can be made, with double vamp and three-quarter full vamp counter covering.

The man who works will appreciate these advantages. Manufacturing as we do, complete "from hide to shoe", we give maximum quality at low prices.

Go see the Hirth-Krause dealer. Let him show you this aristocrat among shoes with the mileage guarantee.

UNCLE GEO. VANPELT STILL ON JOB

Boosting for Good Roads and Fire Proof Hotels

The following communication was received this week from "Uncle George VanPelt. Uncle George is at present at Sea Breeze, Fla., where he spends his winters:

"We have here a Tourist Association branches in every state in the union. Michigan leads in point of numbers with your Uncle George as president. At our last meeting I exhibited the pennants I had on my car last year on my 4,000 mile trip 'Way Down East.' One 'Charlevoix, Mich.' the other 'Sea Breeze, Fla.' Three banners, one 'Illinois is building 4000 miles of concrete road. What is your state doing?' One, 'Michigan has bonded for 50 million dollars—will build mostly concrete. What is your state doing?' One, 'Wanted-Five fireproof hotels.' Every one of them is sufficiently important to make a very readable and instructive article for any issue of my paper.

"There are plenty of things in life that are well worth working for and that are capable of engaging the deeper and better energies of a man. The man who fools away his time on little things thereby puts to sleep the forces that will prevent his bringing forth better and greater things, and every one of us, when charged with same must cry guilty. 'The great need of our present day-life is for people to get busy, and to hold to some high ideal, and to work for it. I have realized this for a long time. First I took up the cause of good roads, and good roads, came, the effect has been surprising. Second, constant travel, getting poor hotel accommodations, being imposed upon those engaged in profiteering, and continued exposure to danger by living and sleeping in fire trap hotels, led me to take up the fire proof hotel hobby. It is working well.

"I have heard the following said dozens of times by the guests of the Clarendon hotel. 'It is not only the best tourist hotel I ever stopped at, but it is fire proof, and I surely sleep sounder and feel more secure, than I do in fire trap hotels.' 'I am advocating that a law be passed throughout the United States that every hotel over two stories high, shall be built strictly fire proof, and all hotels four stories high or more must, have both freight and passenger elevators. I hope to see you all in July.

When Service Difficulties Arise

Occasionally your telephone rings and there is no one on the line when you answer.

This may be due to several causes:

1. An operator (not your operator) may have been in error, or there may have been "trouble" on the line.
2. You may have been slow in answering, and the person calling, having grown tired of waiting, has hung up.
3. The calling person for some reason may have replaced the receiver on the hook without waiting for a response.

In any of these cases your operator by her "Excuse it, please," expresses the Company's regret for the inconvenience.

ants were involved. Ten pleaded nolo contendere and the government failed to sustain its charges against thirty-eight others and they were dismissed. One man was not apprehended and another was too ill to stand trial.

The investigation and the trial cost the government defendants a huge sum, estimated by the court attaches at approximately $1,500,000.

The defense also cost nearly $1,000,000 they estimated.

Leading lawyers of the country were employed in the case.

Frank C. Bailey, Bluffton, Ind., who prosecuted successfully the Indiana election fraud cases, was appointed special assistant attorney general and given charge of the entire investigation and trial. He was assisted by W. H. Eichhorn, former judge, also of Bluffton, Ind. Earl Houck, Port Wayne, Ind. headed a large squad of government agents which combed the sited for evidence.

Martin Littleton, of New York City, who defended Harry Thaw and recognized as probably the greatest criminal lawyer in the United States headed the defense attorneys. James O. Murfin, of Detroit, personal attorney for Senator Newberry and George Nicholson of Ionia, Michigan, a leading attorney of the state, also were members of the general counsel for the defense. About thirty other attorneys represented individual respondents.

Clarence W. Sessions, United States judge for the western district of Michigan conducted the trial.

The seventeen men found guilty Saturday were granted a ninety-day stay of execution of their sentence and an appeal is being taken to the Supreme court.

The men were sentenced as follows by Judge Sessions:

Truman H. Newberry, Detroit, two years in Leavenworth federal prison and $10,000 fine.

Paul H. King, Detroit, two years in Leavenworth prison and $10,000 fine.

Frederick Cody, New York, two years in Leavenworth prison and $10,000 fine.

TO GIVE A SERIES OF LECTURES

Arranged by the University Extension Department.

The University of Michigan Alumni and Business Men have secured the services of Prof. R. M. Wenley, head of the department of philosophy of the University of Michigan, who will give a series of lectures and conferences, commencing Sunday evening, April 11th, and continuing until April 15th. Professor Wenley will lecture each evening on some phase of the "Great Re-construction Problems."

Arrangements are being made for conferences with the Women's Club, the business men, the school faculty of our school and of our neighboring cities and at the Loeb Farm. A more complete announcement will be made later.

Professor Wenley will visit Charlevoix under the auspices of the University Extension department, and all lectures and conferences will be free to everyone.

Charlevoix is indeed fortunate in securing Prof. Wenley, and his lectures should be of great interest to all of northern Michigan.

RESULTS OF BASKET BALL MEET

THE SOO AND CHEBOYAN WILL GO TO LANSING

Several Surprises in the Results of Different Matches—Soo Beats Cheboygan in Final Game

The first basket ball tournament ever held in Northern Michigan took place at Petoskey last Friday and Saturday under the auspices of the Petoskey High School in which twelve teams of this section of the state competed.

Petoskey, the Soo, Rogers and Traverse City competed in Class A, while class B was composed of Harbor Springs, Alanson, Pellston, Cheboygan, Mancelona, Bellaire and Charlevoix.

Several surprises resulted in games of both classes and favorites were defeated in the games played on Friday. The results of the meet were that Cheboygan won the championship of Class B, and the Soo that of class A. The Soo defeated Cheboygan in the final game played Saturday evening.

The finals in class B were the best of the tournament as far as clever playing was concerned. It was a battle between a team composed of individual stars and an organization using team work and team work won. The teams from Cheboygan and Mancelona played the finals in this class. Mancelona did not have the team work nor was her defense strong but every man on the team was an expert. Cheboygan displayed wonderful team work and a strong defense and although Mancelona took the lead at the beginning of the game she came back strong at the close of the first half and proved her superiority at the close of the game by winning by the score of 17 to 14.

In the finals of class A, the Soo defeated Rogers. The Soo team although small were one of the most aggressive teams ever seen in this part of the state. Their play was as smooth even when behind as it was when they were leading and they were fighting every minute, this spirit combined with good condition won for them the championship of the tournament.

Harbor Springs started off well at the beginning of the tournament and Friday and eliminated Alanson. Pellston also defeated Onaway 20 to 15 but were beaten by Cheboygan, 14 to 12, while Harbor Springs was defeated by Mancelona 28 to 9.

The surprise of the Friday afternoon games was when Cheboygan defeated Charlevoix 15 to 11, in a desperate battle. Charlevoix showed over-confidence in the first half and were out-played but came back strong in the second half and held Cheboygan even. Cheboygan scored six field baskets to Charlevoix four. Charlevoix stars were Weststaff and Halverson while the Richardson boys lead the Cheboygan players. The game was very fast with Cheboygan always in the lead.

The fastest game of the tournament was played Friday night between Petoskey and the Soo and was undoubtedly one of the fastest high school games ever played in this section. The Soo, because of their fighting spirit, proved winners by the score of 17 to 13. The Soo was behind at the beginning of the game but came up and took the lead near the close of the game. They were weighed considerably by the Petoskey team.

A large crowd gathered in Petoskey to witness these contests and there were people from all the towns entered there. A number of Charlevoix people attended both Friday and Saturday nights.

Following is the lineup of the teams participating:

Petoskey: Hamill, center; D. Miller, guards; Ruggles, center; C. Miller and Bailey, forwards.

Cheboygan: Paddock and H. Richardson, forwards; Riggs, center; C. Richardson, Little and Childs, guards.

Charlevoix: Halverson and Krulick, forwards; Weststaff, center; Hammet and Jones, guards.

Mancelona: Davidson, Embrey and Clugge, forwards; Brown and Nuland, centers; Nuland and Benn, guards.

Traverse City: Cole and Chavanka, forwards; Flaggert, center; Livingston, Burgett and Stronb, guards.

Harbor Springs: Stone and Martindale, forwards; Thompson and Lamkin, center; Judd and Knisley, guards.

Pellston: Emerson and Smarks, forwards; Shmalzried and McRae, center; McKee, Hoar and Hewitt, guards.

Bellaire: N. Smith and Bucon, guards; C. Dickson, center; Atkins and Dunnison, forwards.

Alanson: Penberton and Fairbairn, guards; Ramsby, center; Lucas and Ormsby, forwards.

Onaway: Hunt, Caddy and Faircloth, guards; McCluthey, center; C. McCluthey and McVay, forwards.

Soo: Raavet and Henderson, forwards; Kokko, center; Roe and Newton, guards.

Rogers: Dueltgen, Voigt and Mundt, guards; Pengise and Goll, center; McNeal, Schultz and Quade, forwards.

ELLSWORTH-EAST JORDAN ROAD REBUILT

Work Will Begin as Soon as Possible This Spring

As soon as the snow has disappeared and road work is possible the work of reconstructing the road between East Jordan and Ellsworth will begin and by fall it is expected that these two towns will be connected with one of the best gravel roads in this section of the state.

Commissioner Courier has an extensive plan for road building the coming summer and one that will insure several new roads for the county.

LAKESIDE GARAGE TO OPEN SOON

WORK ON NEW BUILDING HAS BEEN COMPLETED.

Will Have Agency for the Chevrolet Automobile and Will Handle Gould Battery.

The Lakeside Garage, Henry Block, proprietor, has been completed and in a few days will open its doors to the public. The new garage is located on Antrim street, at the corner of State, and is undoubtedly one of the best garage locations in the city.

The work on the new building was commenced several months ago and every effort has been used to make it up to date and modern in every respect. It is a concrete building, roomy and substantial, and absolutely fire proof.

Mr. Block has secured the agency for the Chevrolet automobile and will have cars of this make on hand as soon as the garage has been opened. He also handles the Gould storage battery, which is recognized to be one of the best batteries now manufactured.

The garage will have the battery sales and service station in connection, and will do all battery repair work and cleaning, in addition to carrying a full of battery accessories. An expert man is in charge of this work and excellent service is guaranteed.

Mr. Block is himself an expert auto repair man, and his merit along this line of work is well known in this vicinity. He will have working with him men of the same calibre, and the repair department of this establishment will meet all requirements. It is ready to handle any type of auto work and stands back of the work done.

In connection with the Chevrolet agency, the Lakeside Garage will carry Chevrolet parts, assuring owners of this make of car, quick and efficient service. The Chevrolet needs no introduction to the public, as its reputation has been founded on a long line of good service and durability. One will be able to obtain this car in any model desired and quick delivery is assured. Watch this paper next week for further announcement.

Breaks Leg

Earl Clark, the manager of the Brevoort Point farm at Ironton seems to be pursued by a jinx of some sort. Last fall he was caught in the belt of a gasoline engine and badly injured one of his legs being broke.

The leg had been mending slowly and just as he was able to get about on crutches Saturday he fell and re-broke the leg in the same place. He was taken to Petoskey and is now under the care of Dr. Reycraft at that place.

COMMERCIAL ASSOCIATION EXPLAINS PLANS FOR CITY RESORT ADVERTISING

The Association Endeavors to Explain How The Burden of Advertising Will Be Placed Equally Upon The Property Owner of The City Instead of Upon a Few Individuals

To the Voters of Charlevoix:

The Charlevoix Commercial Association desires to explain fully its position in regard to the proposed amendment to the city charter to permit the raising of an additional amount of money for advertising purposes, and we ask that each of you study the matter carefully.

First, you know that this association is trying to do everything within its power to advance the interests of Charlevoix. Its members are working unselfishly and without pay. Mutual advantages can be obtained only by mutual effort. It aims to have every citizen a member and would like to have everybody co-operate and there is not a man or woman in the city who is interested, that would not be welcomed to membership. Its object is to promote the welfare of every class or kind of business, the farmer, the workman, the merchant, the professional man, the owner of property, the hotel interests, the cottage owner and in fact every kind of business. Understanding this, it should be the desire of every good citizen to help along every worthy effort put forth by this body of citizens. Can any person deny this with any reason at all?

Last fall the association looked into the advertising project organized by the Michigan Tourists' Association. This association or bureau has headquarters at Grand Rapids. It object is to boom West Michigan as a Summer Resort. It was found that cities throughout the entire resort section from St. Joseph to Mackinaw were co-operating and investing certain amounts of money for advertising through this association. The amounts were apportioned according to the size and importance of each locality. Charlevoix was asked for $1500. We understand that our neighbor, Petoskey was asked $2500. The question was whether Charlevoix should stand out and refuse to co-operate. If it did, what would be the result? Granting that our city is well-known as a resort and probably as the best of them all, would we be justified in refusing to share our part of a general advertising project. The members thought not, and did not like to be considered as lacking in spirit and progressiveness.

The association, after full investigation, contracted to pay its share. Then comes the question as to the best way to raise the money. Were a few people to shoulder the whole load, or should the whole people pay a little? In entering into the contract, the association decided to put the matter before the people and let them decide. If the people voted against a general distribution of the burden, then the members would raise the money this year in some other way.

There is Only One Way to Mutually Co-Operate

The present city charter permits

PETOSKEY TO HAVE AEROPLANE SERVICE

Roseswift Company to Locate at That Place This Summer

Petoskey, through the efforts of the Chamber of Commerce, will have a school of aviation during the coming summer season. In connection there will be active air service between Petoskey, Grand Rapids, Chicago, Detroit and even New York, if called for by visitors or local residents. This means an "air taxi" service from Petoskey to any point on the continent. It is probable that many of the visitors will appreciate the possibility of a quick and clean journey to either home or business with an equally quick return.

Arthur Rosenthal, general manager of the Roseswift Airplane company, has established a nation-wide reputation for the high character of his enterprise. This is the result of extreme care in the operation of his air crafts. As Mr. Rosenthal expressed himself to Secretary Quinn, who is an acquaintance of long standing, he will permit none but legitimate safe flights regardless of inducements offered for the performance of death-inviting stunts with passengers.

The fact that one of the best known insurance companies invites the council to raise $\frac{1}{4}$ of one mill for this purpose. It is proposed that this limit be raised so as to permit raising $\frac{1}{2}$ of a mill. Understand This Does Not Mean That The Whole Amount Allowed Will Have To Be Raised. The $\frac{1}{4}$ mill will raise about \$624. There is now about \$500 in the advertising fund. It will be necessary to have about \$1000 more. Raising $\frac{1}{2}$ a mill this year will be sufficient and that is all the association is asking.

Does Not Necessarily Mean An Additional Tax

You understand that the present limit of taxation for general purposes, that is, for the general funds, is one and one-fourth percent, of 12 $\frac{1}{2}$ mills. This advertising fund is one of the general funds and the $\frac{1}{2}$ or $\frac{1}{4}$ mill tax for advertising purposes comes out of the 12 $\frac{1}{2}$ mill limit, so that raising $\frac{1}{2}$ mill for advertising simply means that some of the other funds will be reduced just that much. Therefore, the taxes will not be increased, but the amount raised will be apportioned differently and that is all.

How Much Is a $\frac{1}{4}$ Mill Tax

Some seem to have a mistaken idea as to the amount of such tax. We have heard it rumored that it means \$7.50 on a \$1,000. That is a mistake. It means 75 cents on each thousand of valuation. In other words, if your assessed valuation is \$1,000 your share would be seventy-five cents. If your valuation is \$500 your share would be about 38 cents. This assumes that the full limit 12 $\frac{1}{2}$ mills is not raised by the council. If the full limit is raised, there will be no increase at all.

We have tried to make ourselves clear. We think that we are not going into any wild-goose affair, but that it is clear, straight-forward business proposition. Practically every man, woman and child in Charlevoix will receive a benefit, directly or indirectly. There is a large amount of vacant property in the city, a large amount of resort property, a large amount of non-resident property all of which receives a direct benefit from the proposed advertising. There is no way in which to make all of this property bear its just portion of the expense, but by a tax assessment.

This is why the association has asked that the proposed amendment be submitted to the people. We feel that it should pass by a large majority (it requires a two-thirds majority) and we therefore ask that each voter consider this matter carefully and let his or her vote be an intelligent one, based on facts and not on mistaken rumors.

The result of this vote decides whether Charlevoix is to keep at the top by advertising itself, or whether it is going to sag back into a rut and be out-of-date.

Charlevoix Commercial Association.

Mr. Rosenthal's patrons to carry its policies endorses the airplane company's methods.

The air pilots engaged by the Roseswift company are of the best obtainable. Among these are Chief Pilot Unsell, known throughout the aerial world, and Aviator L. F. Bishop, formerly of Chicago-Cleveland airmail service.

The Chamber of Commerce will locate an aviation field and furnish a hangar for the season's operations.

NEW AUTO COMPANY INCORPORATES

Boyer City Sales Co. Purchases E. J. Olson Holdings

The Boyer City Sales Co., a new corporation, has purchased the Garage and sales agency of the Boyer City Garage and Sales Company formerly owned and conducted by Mr. E. J. Olson of this city says the Boyer Citizen.

Stockholders of the new company are Mr. A. H. Green, Jr., General Manager and first vice president of the Solvay Process Co., and Solvay Colliers, of Detroit, L. C. Rouse formerly of the Solvay Process Co., L. H. White, General Manager of the Boyer City, Gaylord and Alpena R. R., and E. J. Olson. Mr. Rouse has been assigned the management of the company and Mr. Olson has been retained on the sales end.

The Sales company expects to round out the old firm's business considerably and have added to their line this year, besides the Overland cars, the Chevrolet and Paige cars. They will also conduct a coal and coke business in connection, and will be extensive operators of this particular branch of the business as soon as a suitable location can be found for coal yards. Mr. Rouse of the firm, has for the past year, represented in this section of the state, the Pittsburg and Cleveland Coal Companies, and is in a position to assure the trade, a first class domestic coal at all times.

Negotiations have just been completed by the company for the purchase of the Heron Hardware store corner Park and Water streets, and they will remove their stock to the new quarters as soon as the building is put in readiness. The store will undergo some little remodeling and decorations after which the new lines of pleasure cars and trucks will be placed on exhibit to the trade. This work will be pushed along as rapidly as possible with a view of getting in readiness to receive carloads of cars which are now in transit.

CLARENCE BRIDGE CITY ELECTRICIAN

FILLS PLACE VACATED BY F. S. BENSON.

New City Electrician Has Proven Himself Capable in His Various Undertakings.

The city of Charlevoix has secured the services of Clarence Bridge as city electrician and superintendent of light and water to fill the vacancy left by the resignation of F. S. Benson, who has occupied this position for the past year.

Mr. Bridge is a thoroughly capable electrician, as has been proven by the success of his previous undertakings. He is a Charlevoix boy and a graduate of the Charlevoix High School. Upon finishing his school work here, he entered Union College, Schenectady, New York, where he completed a course in electrical study. Finishing his school work here he entered the service of the Edison Company and completed a course at their Central Station Institute and entered in the work of this company at Chicago where he remained until the outbreak of the war.

At this time he entered the U. S. Merchant Marine service, plying between the United States and Europe, and continued this service until the close of the war. Since the war he continued sailing and was on a boat running between Boston and London.

Mr. Bridge is well known and highly respected in this community, and under his management the city electric light plant should be brought to the highest standard of efficiency.

INTERESTING PLANS FOR SCHOOL WORK

WM. HARRINGTON IS APPOINTED TRUANT OFFICER

Rural Schools Have Been Presented With Decorative Trees By George H. Hemingway

Due to the long illness of Mrs. Swafford, the truancy work has for some time rested with Miss Stewart. The work has been done by correspondence mostly but in most cases with very much success. Finally, however, Mrs. Swafford insisted upon the acceptance of her resignation which had been tendered for over a month, stating that she would probably never again be able to do the strenuous work of either the city or county truancy. The resignation was regretfully accepted for Mrs. Swafford knew her work, knew men and women and boys and girls. We can only offer best wishes for her speedy recovery.

Mr. William Harrington of East Jordan has been appointed in her place, has taken his oath of office and given bonds as county truant officer. Mr. Harrington is a civil war veteran of unusual energy and ability. Although well long in years, Mr. Harrington is still active in lodge and other local work and says that he will enjoy getting out among the people of the county. His former experience as sheriff in Cheboygan county will peculiarly fit him for the duties of the office, as the truant officer is really merely a deputy sheriff for school legislation. He loves boys and girls and has the good of the school at heart. In his new work he has the congratulations and good wishes of his many friends.

Mr. George Hemingway, one of our summer visitors, making his home at Ironton, is particularly interested in the rural schools of the county. He wants to see a beautiful county and wishes to begin with the school yards. He has accordingly made an offer in which he proposes to give every school district from which one will volunteer to call for the tree, its choice of the three most beautiful of decorative trees:

American Mountain Ash 6 to 8 feet high.

Weeping Hills Spruce 8 to 10 feet high.

Black Hills Spruce 3 to 4 feet high.

The school must agree to plant the tree selected with some sort of appropriate Arbor Day Exercises on May 7th.

Mr. Hemingway is preparing pictures of these trees so that the children may see three and choose what they will prefer. He will have the trees delivered by truck to three central places of the county on May 6th so that they may be ready for planting the following day. They must be called for on May 6th the same day on which they are delivered to these central places. Mr. Mackey of the Northern Auto Co. has offered the Northern Auto Co. Garages in the three towns as free distributing centers for these trees and the trucks will accordingly leave them in these towns. Vote of the county schools is now being taken to indicate the number of trees wanted and the places where they will be called for.

Let us quote from Mr. Hemingway letter:

"My heart is in this work, as it is a great influence in any community. Wherever and whenever you can get folks to love their home more by adding to the beauty of its surrounding, you may be certain that things in general are going in the right direction."

Dies of Spinal Meningitis

Stanley, the youngest son, of Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Chew, who live north of Charlevoix on the Petoskey road died at the home of his parents, Thursday, March 25th, after an illness of about three weeks. Spinal Meningitis was pronounced the cause of his death and it was thought that the disease was caused by a fall while skiing.

Funeral services were held from the Church of God Chapel, Saturday, Rev. Pontius officiating. Burial took place at Brookside cemetery.

High School Wins

The Charlevoix High School basket ball team defeated a team picked from the American Legion Tuesday night. The high school, outplayed the Legion team which was to be expected as the Legion boys were not in condition and had not played together before.

MUST GET MEN BACK TO FARMS

GIBSON SAYS THIS IS ONLY SOLUTION OF FOOD QUESTION

Declares that America Will Import Food From Europe Inside of Five Years

Prediction that America will be importing food from other countries within the next five years unless the movement to rural life to the cities is arrested is being made by John I. Gibson, secretary of the Western Michigan Development Bureau, who was one of the speakers at the farm school held at Harbor Springs Monday and Tuesday.

This assertion coming from a man who has held the pulse of western Michigan agricultural life for years and has noted a weakening in its heart action during the last year is not being lightly looked upon by farmers who have been conscious for the last two or three years of the danger confronting the nation.

Mr. Gibson is of the opinion that once this flow of rural life to the cities is arrested and a regeneration of rural America sets in, the nation can be spared of the disastrous results which he sees in store for any country that is unmindful of its obligations to agriculture.

Exodus is Menacing

It is a regrettable fact that farm life in many parts of the country is dying out. The country life must be revived if the exodus of the boys and girls and men from the farm to the city is to be stopped," is one of the assertions of Mr. Gibson.

"The exodus is increasing all the time," he says. "Farm help is hard to get and for the most part incompetent. This is forcing the farmers everywhere to seed down their lands and reduce the acreage planted to cultivated crops. Unless a remedy is found for this state of affairs the consequences will be disastrous.

"The 1920 census given out so far show that population has decreased in some instances very materially in nearly every township in Michigan, while at the same time the population of the cities is increasing fast. If this state of affairs is not remedied the development of our national life long normal lines will be arrested.

Land is Great Source

"We cannot get away from the fact that man is a land animal, and that farming is his primary and fundamental occupation.

"We must have food and clothing and the necessities of life, all of which come from the soil. Labor applied to land is the source of wealth.

"The prosperity of the farmer is coincident with the prosperity of the state and fundamentally the welfare of the people depends on the proper cultivation of the soil. All governments and policies have their origin in and depend on these fundamental facts.

"There is no single panacea for the present abnormal desire to leave the farms for the excitement and so-called pleasures of urban life."

1—Farming must be made economically attractive.

2—Farmers must be helped to better their transportation and marketing facilities in order to speed up and encourage food production.

3—Farmers should be encouraged to improve their homes and make them more attractive to their boys.

4—Michigan should back the "Great Lakes to the Sea" waterway project.

5—The state should provide adequate forest fire protection to communities thus endangered each year.

6—A land classification and soil survey should be made under state supervision.

7—America should inaugurate a selective immigration plan to secure men desirable as farmers.

8—Farmers should adopt a systematic plan of cultivation which eventually will put every acre of land in Michigan at work at that which it is best adapted.

9—Establish an efficient state im-

How Bad Backs Have Been Made Strong—Kidney Pills Corrected

All over Charlevoix you hear it. Doan's Kidney Pills are keeping up the good work. Charlevoix people are telling about it—telling of bad backs made sound again. You can believe the testimony of your own townpeople. They tell it for the benefit of you who are suffering. If your back aches, if you feel lame, sore and miserable, if the kidneys act too frequently, or passage are painful, scanty and off color, use Doan's Kidney Pills, the remedy that has helped so many of your friends and neighbors. Ask your neighbor. Follow this Charlevoix citizen's advice and give Doan's a chance to do the same for you.

H. R. Fox, carpenter, 205 Park Ave., says: "Sometimes when I catch cold or do too much stooping my kidneys get out of order and my back becomes lame. Whenever I get these attacks, I feel all tired out. A few Doan's Kidney Pills, however, soon straighten me up in A-1 shape. All kidney sufferers should use Doan's."

Price 60c, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mr. Fox had. Foster-Milburn Co., Mfrs., Buffalo, N. Y.

—is YOUR Farm
Equipped With

Combined Electric and Belt POWER?

Probably not, for, in spite of the fact that over Six Million American farmers need and want electric light for their homes, the farm light industry has not yet been able to supply even 2% of the tremendous demand.

We make and sell the Litscher Lite—equipment which has received national and foreign endorsement on account of its greater adaptability to farm power requirements. Our product is universally used, well advertised and favorably known. We are assured of a prominent position in an industry which ten years from now will rank in size with the other gas engine industries which twenty years ago were in our present position.

To insure our dominance in the near future, all we need is the production facilities which will enable us to fill the multiplying demand.

Each Litscher Lite plant sells many other Litscher Lite plants. The Litscher Lite has many advantages over other equipment which attempts to imitate its service; it operates electric lights, electric irons, electric washing machines, electric vacuum cleaners and belt driven churns, cream separators, fanning mills and pumps—all at the same time.

We are making our first public offer of Litscher Lite stock. We afford careful investors an opportunity to share in the success which our market, our production and our management assures. The officers and directors of our concern are men well known in Central Michigan for their connections with live prospering concerns.

Write us for Detailed Information regarding this first public Litscher Lite stock issue—grasp the privilege to become interested in the farm lighting industry at this early stage of development.

10—The state should conduct a thorough investigation to find out why so many Michigan farmers are being deserted or seeded down and the country districts depopulated. The state should be prepared to work in conjunction with other states to do something to remedy these conditions as quickly as possible.

Farm as Bulwark

"The farmers are the most useful and the most conservative of all our citizens," Mr. Gibson asserted. "Their labor supplies us with food and clothing and to them we turn when the riots and bloodshed of our cities render the future of the republic gloomy and uncertain. From the bitterness of class antagonism; from the greed of the rich who oppress the poor and from the desperation of the poor who would despoil the rich, we turn to the rural homesteads of this land and there we find a rugged independence tempered with a reverence for the law which constitutes the nation's best and wisest safeguard. Around these humble firesides, even in this age of selfishness and greed, the love of country is above the love of self and second only to the fear of God. A republic which practices injustice against homes like these, which multiplies their burdens and drives their impoverished and discontented occupants to the already over-crowded town and cities, invites its own destruction. We must do something to save this rural life for the betterment of the nation at large."

WHAT'S AN AMERICAN ANYWAY?

Two army aviators, patrolling the Mexican border, lost their way. When they found it again they were one hundred miles south of the line. But they were out of gasoline and were forced to land in Mexican territory. There, on orders from Carranza, they were held for a month. Finally, released, they returned to the United States, were promptly arrested and commanded to prepare themselves for court martial.

The more glaring shortcomings of these young aeronauts are these: They have taken service with Uncle Sam at a time when the international policy is of the form and consistency of stuff which refuses to jell. They have read their orders too literally—actually undertaken to patrol the border when it would have pleased Washington more if they had gone on into the hills, played pinochle for a few hours and returned with a pack of lies for their report. They have lost their way in the clouds, whereas they should have seen to it that there were no clouds, and thus have given the elegant gentlemen in the state department new cause for ennui. And they have been Americans.

This last is the most serious fault of all, a distinct disadvantage both to themselves and to our present administration. An American is nothing as compared with a Mexican. This is an axiom both at Washington and the City of Mexico. An American must expect no mercy, no protection, no fairness of treatment, no consideration where international relations are involved. Did not Josephine Daniels tell a delegation that whoever ventured into Mexico did so at his own risk and, if he suffered, received just what he had coming to him? This is our Mexican policy. It has the strength of law, though lacking dignity.

The hope must be general that the aviators are punished good and plenty. In the first place they made fifteen minutes' trouble for their superiors. In the second they are fools for thinking that in our relations with Mexico an American represented anything more than a cornered coodle.

A West Virginia dog fancier claimed his two trained "hooch poodles" can smell a whiskey still a mile. Everyone should rejoice that after all there is some reason for the existence of a poodle.

Rural Carrier Examination
The United States Civil Service Commission has announced an examination for the County of Charlevoix, Michigan to be held at the Boyne City and Charlevoix on April 24, 1920, to fill the position of rural carrier at East Jordan, Mich., and vacancies that may later occur on rural routes from other postoffices in the above mentioned county. The examination will be open only to citizens who are actually domiciled in the territory of a post office in the county and who meet the other requirements set forth in Form No. 1977. Both men and women, if qualified, may enter this examination, but appointing officers have the legal right to specify the sex desired in requesting certification of eligibles. Women will not be considered for rural carrier appointment unless they are the widows of U. S. soldiers, sailors, or marines, or the wives of U. S. soldiers, sailors, or marines who are physically disqualified for examination by reason of injuries received in the line of military duty. Form No. 1977 and application blanks may be obtained from the offices mentioned above or from the United States civil service commission at Washington, D. C. Application should be forwarded to the commission at Washington at the earliest practicable date.

CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH

The service of Easter Sunday, April 6th, will be fraught with special significance. The day is hallowed with the accumulated reverences of nearly two thousand years. And annually it is the beginning of the rededication of countless lives to a larger measure of sacrifice and service.

So these two elements will receive recognition, in that there will be two brief services comprised in one; a service of Communion, and a service of Worship, with a reception of new members. The public, especially such as have no church home, is cordially invited to share in the joy of the day.

As the day will have more than its share of activities, neither of the young people's societies will convene.

Third of the "Better America" series of illustrated lectures will be delivered at 7:15 p. m. the subject being "Forces which Build the State, and Forces which Undermine It." These lectures have been exceptionally well received, and this should measure fully to the standard.

Tuesday evening the second of the "Better America" series was delivered to the employees of the Loeb farms, whom we were glad to have as our guests for the evening.

Boys Don't forget the minister's class on Thursday afternoon at 4:00 p. m. Let's be prompt. Light refreshments will be served afterwards.

The Mid-week Meeting at 8:00 p. m. was sparsely attended last week, yet interest ran high. Interest lies in ration to attendance. Plan to be there!

The Ceciliaans will meet at the usual hour under Miss Bement's direction. As this is a particularly busy evening, promptness is desirable.

Any parents having infant children who have not been baptized, or who have not been baptized themselves and contemplate uniting with the church, are urged to enter communication with the minister (phone 338) or write or call in person. He will be glad to be of service.

THE NATIONAL CAPITAL

By J. E. Jones

The Ex-Soldier and Washington Congress appears to be taking its time with the proposals to grant additional bounties to soldiers and sailors who served in the World War. Again and again the question is asked "where are we going to get the money to pay out $2,000,000, to these former soldiers." Representative Frear of Wisconsin, has answered the question by saying: "If it was a question of raising $2,000,000,000,000 to pay the expenses of a going war no one would stop to ask where the money was coming from." Confronted by burdensome taxes and never-ending complaints about war extravagances Congress has reached the point where the advocates of economy and the watch dogs of the treasury are popular. Every effort is being made to prevent the bills providing bounties from being acted upon by Congress.

When the war enthusiasm was at its height the men who answered the call to colors were lauded and patted on the back everywhere. Secretary of the Interior Lane proposed a worthy plan to provide lands upon which the returning soldiers might build homes for the future. The homestead law at the close of the Civil War has served as a boon to the men who had been in that war, and at the same time it had performed miracles in developing the resources of the nation. Whether there was too much lassitude among our young men in accepting the Lane proposal to give them farms, we do not know, but at any event the scheme was abandoned.

Other proposals of the government to provide jobs for soldiers and to furnish vocational education for the wounded have met with gratifying success. There are no longer any unemployed soldiers—at least none who are willing to work. The wounded men have been very carefully taken in hand, and as they have qualified for trade and work they have been supplied with employment. Still another proposal gives Civil Service preference in clerical and other positions in public employment, but this has fallen pretty flat, since the policy of Uncle Sam as an employer of persons in civil duty has been quite similar to that of private institutions that have immense war plants—and with no war in progress they have been compelled to shut up shop. Many thousands of war workers who came to Washington have returned to their homes. At one time it was estimated that there were 110,000 clerks employed in Washington. What the number now is the writer does not know, but real friends of the United States government who are familiar with Washington conditions believe that about 55,000 employees would be a full sufficiency. The war department is preparing to dispense with the services of approximately 10,000 clerks on July 1. The War Risk Bureau has already made a big splash. Many of the special boards and divisions created for the war, notably the Food Administration, War Industries Board and Fuel Administration have practically passed out of existence. But in other lines the government evinces a big natural growth, and among the most active institutions at the present time are the Census Bureau, Federal Trade Commission, Federal Reserve Bank and the Department of Justice. This latter institution had been given tremendous problems connected with the war, and nearly everything that comes up is "referred to Mr. Palmer."

has allowed each soldier toward his education the sum of $200. The state of North Dakota has allowed each of their loyal sons the sum of $25 for each month of service with which to purchase a farm or go into business. The state of Oregon allows each of her defenders the sum of $25 a month toward his education. The state of Wisconsin has given each of their fighting men $10 a month for each month's service, but not less than $50 in any event.

The United States government, according to Representative Emerson of Indiana, "squandered millions on this war, paid the contractors all they asked, and squandered millions on ships and millions on flying machines." But we have not matched up with other progressive countries in appreciation of our soldiers.

The Dominion of Canada, impoverished by the war, pays each private soldier from $280 to $400. France, who lost her sons by the thousands and had the enemy upon her soil for over four years pays her private soldiers from $82.99 and $233.33.

On the face of the returns it is quite evident that the United States has lost a lot of its war enthusiasm.

Government Not a Christmas Tree
"If we want to make the government a kind of pickpocket, the way to do it is just to confiscate the great properties of the public service corporations through the country," declared ex-Mayor Ole Hanson of Seattle, at the recent meeting in Boston of the New England Association of Gas Engineers. "If the time comes," he added, "when a utility enterprise that has honestly expended the public's money in creating or developing a gas, electric or street car plant cannot operate, we must raise the rate so they can get by, or we must refund to them the money they put into the enterprise."

"I cannot believe that the public utility that employs a large number of men requires a large amount of capital will function as efficiently when publicly operated as it will when privately operated, with an individual reward for the corporation at the end of the day."

"The time has come to tell the truth to the people—that the United States government is not a self-perpetuating Christmas tree for anyone's benefit. Now that the war is over the time has come to see that the investors get a run for their money—to protect the great body of men and women who have saved and put their money into public utilities and who had their entire capital cut in two during the war. The corporations in the final analysis are owned by the rank and file of the people who have been thrifty enough to lay aside something for a rainy day. Our work is to see that they get justice and that the public gets adequate service at fair and compensatory remuneration."

The Nation's Gas Supply

George Otis Smith, Director of the United States Geological Survey is the authority for the statement that there is less than eight years supply contained in the oil reserves of the country. According to Mr. Smith the total amount represents 6,500,000,000 barrels. He comments: "The secret of the capacity of nature's storehouse is easier to unlock than the mystery of the progress in man's needs and desires. I think the oil geologists can estimate within 50 per cent of the oil fields of the United States, but who could have foretold within 100 per cent of the truth the increase in the consumption of gasoline even within the present decade." The present demand for oil is more than 5,000,000 barrels greater per month than it was a year ago, and Mr. Smith observes that "the arts of peace are requiring more oil than we have." What are we going to do about it? The problem does not seem to be concerning very many people since the number of automobile users is constantly on the increase, and the automobile manufacturers are all behind in their orders. At the same time there is a steady increase in the use of oil for heating and power in transportation and industries.

Miner's Wages

The Commission appointed by the president at the time of the calling off of the coal strike for the purpose of making recommendations with regard to wages, hours and working conditions, cannot be accused of having been dilatory, since they have submitted their report and the hope is expressed at the White House that it will serve effectually as the basis for a final settlement of difficulties among the people who operate and work in coal mines.

Rubber Preservative

A preparation that may be used for preserving rubber may be made by getting a saturated solution of turpentine in denatured alcohol. The point of saturation is known by a drop of undissolved turpentine remaining in the alcohol. A little more alcohol is added to dissolve this drop and the solution is saturated. Rubber articles should be occasionally painted or scolded with this solution.

DARKEN GRAY HAIR, LOOK YOUNG, PRETTY

Sage Tea and Sulphur Darkens So Naturally that Nobody can tell.

Hair that loses its color and lustre, or when it fades, turns gray, dull and lifeless, is caused by a lack of sulphur in the hair. Our grandmother made up a mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur to keep her locks dark and beautiful, and thousands of women and men who value that even color, that beautiful dark shade of hair which is so attractive, use only this old-time recipe.

Nowadays we get this famous mixture improved by the addition of other ingredients by asking at any drug store for a bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," which darkens the hair so naturally, so evenly, that nobody can possibly tell it has been applied. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears; but what delights the ladies with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound is that, besides heartily darkening the hair after a few applications, it also brings back the gloss and lustre and gives it an appearance of abundance.

Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound is a delightful toilet preparation to impart color and a youthful appearance to the hair. It is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.

The Lesser Evil

By IZOLA FORRESTER

(Copyright, 1919, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

"Well, of course you'd do as you please, Kathleen. You always have, and far be it from me to try to argue you out of it." Miss Conston sat back farther in the wing chair by the bay window and spread her skirt carefully. But I'm your mother's own cousin and I shouldn't rest easy in my grave if I didn't tell you what I thought at such a time.

"Why did she ever leave such an idiotic will?" Kathleen interrupted stormily. She sat by the old-fashioned flint-topped desk in the middle of the library floor, both elbows planted on the mace of papers, while she cried plentifully in her handkerchief. It was half an hour since Graham, the family lawyer, had howled his way out, leaving the only living relative of Mrs. Letitia Lovejoy to digest the will she had left. Everything, with the exception of two clocks, one colonial drop-table, one curate's delight and one silver tea service, went to Kathleen. These were reserved for "my dear cousin, Mary Conston, in loving appreciation of her care and friendship these many years."

The last paragraph, however, had come like a thunderbolt to Kathleen. She had always known that at her mother's death the estate would revert to her by her father's will, but here was a proviso tacked on, of which she had known nothing.

"Providing that said Kathleen Lovejoy shall marry my beloved godson, Randall Lovejoy Phelps."

"You can't tell me, Cousin Mary, that Randy didn't know all about this long ago and he could have saved me by

"Why Did She Ever Leave Such an Idiotic Will?"

refusing to marry me, then what could she have done about it? I hate him. I'd rather give up everything, the house and all, than marry him. It's the lesser evil, and I shall write to Mr. Graham and tell him so." Kathleen wiped her eyes belligerently. "I'm not one bit afraid of work, and you know it. I can go back into the motor corps tomorrow if I want to. They're

SAYS HOT WATER WASHES POISONS FROM THE LIVER

Everyone should drink hot water with phosphate in it, before breakfast.

"To feel as fine as the proverbial fiddle, we must keep the liver washed clean, almost every morning, to prevent its sponge-like pores from clogging with indigestible material, sour bile and poisonous toxins, says a noted physician.

If you get headaches, it's your liver. If you catch cold easily, it's your liver. If you wake up with a bad taste, furred tongue, nasty breath or stomach becomes rancid, it's your liver. Sallow skin, muddy complexion, watery eyes all denote liver uncleanness. Your liver is the most important, also the most abused and neglected organ of the body. Few know its function or how to release the dammed-up body waste, bile and toxins. Most folks resort to 'violent calomel, which is a dangerous, salivating chemical which can only be used occasionally because it accumulates in the tissues, also attacks the bones.

Every man and woman, sick or well, should drink each morning before breakfast a glass of hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it, to wash from the liver and bowels the previous day's indigestible material, the poisons, sour bile and toxins; thus cleansing, sweetening and freshening the entire alimentary canal before putting more food into the stomach.

Limestone phosphate does not restrict the diet like calomel, because it can not salivate, for it is harmless and you can eat anything afterwards. It is inexpensive and almost tasteless, and any pharmacist will sell you a quarter pound, which is sufficient for a demonstration of how hot water and limestone phosphate cleans, stimulates and freshens the liver, keeping you feeling fit day in and day out.

URIC ACID IN MEAT CLOGS THE KIDNEYS

Take a glass of Salta if your Back hurts or Bladder bothers you—Drink more water.

If you must have your meat every day, eat it, but flush your kidneys with salts occasionally, says a noted authority who tells us that meat forms uric acid which almost paralyzes the kidneys in their efforts to expel it from the blood. They become sluggish and weaken, then you suffer with a dull misery in the kidney region, sharp pains in the back or neck, headache, dizziness, your stomach sour, tongue is coated and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine gets cloudy, full of sediment, the channels often get sore and irritated, obliging you to seek relief two or three times during the night.

To neutralize these irritating acids, cleanse the kidneys and flush out the body's urinous waste get four ounces of Jad Salta from any pharmacy here; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate sluggish kidneys, also to neutralize the acids in urine, so it no longer irritates, thus aiding bladder weakness.

Jad Salta is inexpensive; cannot injure, and makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink.

going to keep up all sorts of branches in reconstruction lines, and I shall write an application tomorrow to be restored to service now that I am free from the care of mother."

Just two days later Randall Phelps sat in Graham's new office up in the Crandall building on Main street and heard Kathleen's opinion frankly expressed by letter. She would not follow the terms of the will. She would never marry Mr. Phelps, or anyone else under the terms of coercion, and she was leaving the house at once that there might be no further trouble.

"Where has she gone?" asked Randall, frowning at the portrait of Daniel Webster on the wall. "Presumably back to the motor corps," Mr. Graham searched the letter again for verification. "Most unusual, but quite like Kathleen. Have you—have you had any serious quarrel?"

"Not recently. I haven't seen or heard from her since I got back. Two years ago, just before I enlisted we—we—or, the devil, Graham! I'm not going to have her do this. Give up her home and money for me. I don't want her to marry me on compulsion. What can I do legally?"

"Nothing," Mr. Graham told him dryly. "Nothing at all." The terms of the will stood. Perhaps he might win her over by doing something in the same line as herself, first-aid, as it were, in the new building-up work with soldiers.

Randall smiled as the plan dawned on him, and he gripped the old lawyer's hand fervently. It did not need any words of his to prove his own stand on the will.

And not a week later, at the little local headquarters in the town, Kathleen received orders to call at the railroad station for the first consignment of convalescent soldiers to be sent up to the Lovejoy place, under Mr. Phelps' arrangement.

Never did any soldier ordered over the top go with a stiffer upper lip than Kathleen. Sternly she faced front and drove along the familiar roads until the row of tall Norwegian pines came in view, and there was Randall himself to welcome his guests, with Cousin Mary beside him to act as hostess.

They both nodded to her pleasantly, and Kathleen felt hurt and cold as they all phased up the box-bordered walk together. She was to wait there for the two nurses who had brought the men up. But long before they put in an appearance Randall came leisurely down to the car and lit a cigarette before he opened up a conversation.

"You're needed here more than you are running that car, Kathleen."

"A matter of personal opinion, isn't it?" said Kathleen coolly. "You seem to be very pleasantly situated."

"Nothing has been changed. It is still your property," he said gravely. "I am only acting in your interests in the way I think you would approve of. I'm going to do this all summer. I thought by September you would be tired of running the car, and we could be married about your birthday, the 17th, isn't it?"

"Did you tell Mr. Graham that we were engaged?" Kathleen tried her best to be scornful. It was hard when she saw the new D. S. O. on his breast. Her specialty these days was heroes, and it would be rather nice to have one in the family. Besides, his eyes were disconcerting.

"You were wise not to understand we were—two years ago. If you insist, I shall turn the place over permanently as a home for disabled soldiers. I'm one myself, as it is; heart trouble."

She laughed. Down the path were the two nurses, walking slowly and chatting with some of the men. The time was short. He reached in his inner pocket and drew out a small, flat bill-fold she remembered giving him long ago.

Silently he opened it for her scrutiny. Around it was coiled a long curling strand of blond hair, making a frame. On the other side was a letter, the one she had written him that last day.

"I'm sorry I said no. I never dreamed you were really going. Never believe me when I say no, Randy. I'm still all yours until you return."

"Well, that only says 'until,' she said.

tered. But she knew the fight was over as Randall swung around with a ready smile and broke the news to his guests in this way: "You boys are all welcome—until after the wedding."

GIFTS FROM THEIR MOTHERS

Maternal Talents That Have Been Reflected in Work of Great Musicians and Writers.

There are numerous instances in history in which parents possessing uncommon gifts are supposed to have passed them on to their children. This is especially the case in regard to musical talents, observes a writer in London Tit-Bits.

The mother of Schumann, for instance, had great musical ability. Chopin received his wonderful gift—and also his delicate constitution—from the maternal side; Gounod's mother was exceedingly fond of music, while the mother of Spohr, the German composer, was an excellent judge of music and a fine critic, without having herself a musician.

Sir Walter Raleigh declared that he inherited from his mother the politeness of deportment which ever distinguished him. Goethe pays frequent tribute in his writings to the character and culture of his mother, as does also the poet Wordsworth.

Sydney Smith believed that he inherited from his mother his rare conversational powers and quickness of repartee. It is well known that the mother of Edward Gibbon, the historian, was a great reader and cultivated the same taste and habit as her son.

The mother of Charles Darwin made herself acquainted with all the branches of natural history and entertained a great fondness for animals. This record seems to show that maternal talents and tastes are frequently transmitted to sons; it is also claimed that the gifts of the fathers usually descend to the daughters.

GLEANINGS

WHIP-GRAFTING APPLE TREES

Operation May Be Performed Any Time During Winter Months—Secure Strong Seedlings.

On practically every farm there are varieties of apples or chance seedlings that the owner wishes to propagate. Oftentimes the varieties are unknown, and for that reason extra trees cannot be ordered.

Whip or tongue grafting can be done any time during the winter months, the earlier the better. All that is necessary is to secure strong one-year-old seedlings for stocks, and good vigorous wood of the previous season's growth for scions.

The seedlings should be cut off at the crown. When the roots are of sufficient length, they may be divided, thus making what is commonly known as "piece root grafts," which are invariably inferior to grafts that are made on the entire root. The scion should be from three to four inches in length and should contain from two to four buds.

The secret of successful grafting is to bring the cambium of the stock and scion in direct contact. The cambium is found between the wood and bark, and is composed of living, active cells, which are in a state of division.

Whip-Grafting Apple Trees—The Prepared Scion and Stock Before and After Being Joined and Tied.

Therefore, the novice must exercise especial care to bring the growing tissue of the stock and scion in direct contact.

To make this graft, cut both the scion and stock diagonally across, the cut being one to one and one-half inches in length, this being dependent upon the size of the material. In order to join them together, a vertical cleft is then made in both stock and scion, and the two are joined by pushing the tongue of one into the cleft of the other.

When made, the grafts can be put out in the open field at once or wrapped in moss or sand and kept in a cellar where the temperature is low. If the latter method be followed, the grafts should be transferred to the field in the spring as soon as the ground can be worked. Where only a few are to be put out, dig the trench with a spade, and place the grafts up against the vertical side. The upper end should be at the surface of the ground, and the grafts should be planted ten to twelve inches apart in rows that are at least three feet apart.

Frank Crompt has accepted a position as repair expert at the Brown Garage. John Courier and Oral Lewis are the latest additions to the Brown Garage. Courier has charge of the bicycle repair shop and Lewis will be clerk.

Mrs. James Saunders and son, King, arrived in the city Tuesday from Chicago. Mrs. Saunders went to that place some time ago to visit her daughter and was taken ill while there. King is home from Albion college to spend his vacation.

E. N. Davy and son, Roy, are in Petoskey this week painting the Petoskey branch of the Brown Garage. Benj. Brown takes possession of the building there April 1st, and is having the place thoroughly over hauled and repainted prior to the date of opening.

The local express company has leased the two rooms of the Benj. Brown building on the corner of Mason and Bridge street, and will move into their new quarters May 1st. The Brown Battery shop will occupy the room between that and the Charlevoix Music Store.

At the Hat Shop, new hats are arriving every day. Order your Easter hat now.—Adv. 1311.

Ice Cream Factory Opens

The Charlevoix Ice Cream Company which was purchased some time ago by the Northern Creamery and Cold Storage Co., will be open during the next week. This creamery will open early in the spring and stay open until late in the fall in order to give the people of this vicinity the best of service.

ATTRACTIONS FOR THE WEEK

FRIDAY, APRIL 2—Vitagraph presents Anita Stewart in "The Combat." Directed by Ralph Ince. This is a feature you will like. Lots of action crowded into the five big reels, and a punch that smacks sweet. Big scene separated by a bit of light comedy to relieve the tension and set the next thrill off in bold relief. Also a one-reel Snub Pollard Comedy "Tough Luck."

SATURDAY and SUNDAY, APRIL 3, 4—Big double attraction. Artcraft presents Elsie Ferguson in "The Avalanche." A big production, and one of Miss Ferguson's latest and best pictures. Don't miss this. Also a two-reel Century Animal Comedy, "African Lions and American Beauties."

WEDNESDAY, APRIL 7—Double attraction. World Pictures presents Evelyn Greeley in "Me and Capt. Kidd." It is the star you all like so well. In one of her latest and best pictures. And the 10th episode of Elmo the Mighty, "Victims of the Sea."

COMING—April 10, Ethel Clayton in "Sporting Chance."

COMING—April 17, D. W. Griffith's "Broken Blossoms."

MORTGAGE FORECLOSURE.

Whereas default having been made in the conditions of a certain mortgage made and executed by Oliver C. Poole and Myrtle B. Poole, his wife, of the City of Charlevoix, County of Charlevoix, State of Michigan, to William F. McLaughlin, of the City of Detroit, County of Wayne, State of Michigan, dated the twenty-fifth day of October, 1915, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds for the County of Charlevoix, State of Michigan, on the Sixth day of November, 1915, in Liber 52 of Mortgages, on page 464, on which mortgage there is claimed to be due and unpaid at the date of this notice Fourteen Hundred and Forty-six and 25/100 ($1446.25) Dollars, and no suit or proceedings at law or in equity having been instituted to recover the debt secured by such mortgage or any part thereof. Now, Therefore, by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage and the Statute in such cases made and provided, notice is hereby given that on Monday, the Seventeenth day of May, 1920, at twelve (12) o'clock noon (Central Standard time), said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale at public vendue to the highest bidder at the front door of the Charlevoix County Court House, corner of State and Antrim streets, in the City of Charlevoix, County of Charlevoix, State of Michigan (that being the building in which the Circuit Court for the county of Charlevoix is held), of the premises described in said mortgage, or so much thereof as may be necessary to pay the amount of said mortgage as aforesaid, together with interest from the date of this notice, and all legal costs, charges and expenses, including the attorney fee of Thirty-five ($35.00) dollars allowed by law in such cases, which premises are described as follows, to-wit: All the certain pieces or parcels of land situate and being in the Township of Chandler, in the County of Charlevoix, State of Michigan, and more particularly described as follows, to-wit: The north half (N. 1/2) of the South west quarter (S. W. 1/4) and the South half (S. 1/2) of the South half (S. 1/4) of the North west quarter (N. W. 1/4) of Section Two (2) in Township Thirty-three (33) north of Range four (4) West, containing One Hundred and Twenty (120) acres of land more or less according to the Government Survey. Excepting and reserving for Cobbs & Mitchell Inc., of Cadillac, Wexford County, State of Michigan, its legal representatives or assigns, a strip of land one hundred feet wide over and across said lands, should the same be at any time required by it or its legal representatives for the purpose of constructing, building or operating a railroad or any road for logging purposes, together with hereditaments and appurtenances thereof.

INTERESTING BITS OF INFORMATION CLIPPED FROM OUR EXCHANGES

Physicians and nurses at Petoskey hospital recently had the unusual experience of treating a man with a broken neck. Eugene LaPine, of Mackinac Island, spent several days there while physicians undertook to put his neck back into normal position.

Some time ago the man, who is a painter, fell nearly fifty feet, striking on his head and shoulders. He was picked up for dead but finally regained consciousness, and although in painful condition, survived. An X-ray picture of the neck shows where the bones were broken. They have now grown back together again, but not in normal position. The treatment here, while being of much benefit to the man, could not cure his injury.

Reimbursements to owners of condemned cattle in Michigan will be paid from the state emergency fund after the appropriation of $75,000 for this purpose exhausted April 1. This decision was reached by the state auditors, following the receipt of a communication from H. H. Hal-laday, chairman of the livestock commission, advising the board that after April 1, his commission would be without funds to pay for tubercular cattle ordered slaughtered. The state commission has been working this year with the federal department of agriculture, and more than twice the usual number of cattle has been inspected.

Joe Nelson and Jack Lyons, both of Old Mission, escaped death in Grand Traverse bay one day last week, when the auto in which they were driving across the ice, ran into a crack several feet in width, hurling Jack into the icy water. The accident occurred at about four o'clock in the morning. The gentlemen had spent Sunday in Traverse City and were on their way home. Owing to the dimness of early dawn they did not see the gap ahead and drove right into it, with such force that Jack was thrown from the car into the water. The break was not wide enough for the car which, after Joe had rescued his friend who had been stunned by the fall, the boys succeeded in dragging from its perilous position, and with it returned to the city. They decided to return via the road.

Bert McClarry, for a year and a half a resident of Bliss township, killed himself last week near his home by the shotgun route. The body was found by his wife a short while after the shooting. Neighbors and relatives report that the man had apparently not been in his right mind for some time.

He leaves a wife and step-daughter as well as other relatives. The body was taken to Dowagiac for burial. Mr. McClarry formerly resided in Los Angeles where he was a street car conductor.

ELLSWORTH CORRESPONDENCE.

ECHO DISTRICT NO. 4

Lester Hosler is working for Clarence Murray.

Mrs. Will DeForest is on the sick list this week.

School commenced again Monday after vacation of four weeks.

Frank Eaton is visiting for two weeks at the Jack Smith home.

The mail carrier has not been over the route for some time owing to bad roads.

Mrs. Nellie Murray spent Sunday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. T. E. Nowland.

Mrs. D. A. Countryman spent Monday with her cousin, Mrs. Clarence Murray.

The Misses Ethel and Myrtle Murray attended the funeral of Jane Crawford Sunday.

Paul, is the name of the new boy to arrive at the Hiram McPherson home on Monday. Mother and son doing nicely.

Mr. Peter Murray one of the pioneer residents of this section, died at his home Monday of cancer. Five daughters survive to mourn their loss.

ROCK ELM

Mrs. Secord has gone home with her mother to rest and recover from the effects of the flu.

The low lands bordering on Monroe creek have been overflowed to a greater depth than usual this spring. Rock Elm has been cut off from the mail service for the past three weeks by the bad roads, so the news has been "canned."

Mr. Stephens's sale was well attended in spite of bad roads and an unpleasant day, and everything brought a fair price.

One of Mr. Snattse's fields looks quite like a mill yard. Several have availed themselves of the opportunity to have their lumber sawed when the mill is moved in. Some who failed to get their logs in while the snow lasted are hauling them now on trucks.

WILDWOOD

Mrs. Duncan Crawford was home for the week end as usual.

Mrs. Cross of Bellaire, has been spending some time of late with relatives here.

Mynard Newberry expects to move with his family to Flint in the very near future.

Miss Ellen Crawford has decided to remain at the farm home of her parents this summer.

Neal Crawford returned on Monday of this week to Flint where he is employed in the Buick Auto works.

Miss Kate Wilson of Bellaire, was here for the week end with relatives and to attend the funeral of her cousin, Miss Jane Crawford.

Mr. and Mrs. E. R. Wilson, also the Crawford family have their sugar bush tapped and for the present may be expected to be rather "stuck up."

Mrs. Finley Hammond of Traverse City, was at the Crawford home to attend the funeral of Miss Jane, who had lived four years while in Traverse City at the Hammond home.
